BLOOD PRESSURE WARNS

High blood pressure is not a disease but a warning of weakness. It indicates unusual medical checkups are needed, especially for people over 40.

Car Chased At 80 MPH

Magistrate T. Y. Wills handed a six-months driving suspension and $50 fine to Dail Mills, 18, after hearing evidence of a police chase on Highway 2.

OPP Constable Howard Adamson said he chased Mills' car at speeds up to 80 miles an hour during which the accused drove through a red light at the 8-RD road intersection.

Fight on — Why?

The Hanoi newspaper Nhan Dan says that North Viet Nam will "resolutely fight to the end."

The U.S. state department says that this does not constitute an official rejection of President Johnson's recent offer to hold peace talks. Of course the state department is right. Still, in a communist country any newspaper article has some significance and doubly so when it appears in an official newspaper.

It is easier for a government to change its mind if its stand has been voiced in a newspaper, rather than in a state document, but what is originally stated in the newspaper is still an indication of government thinking at the time the article was published.

We can take it, therefore, that the North Viet Nam regime intends to fight, for a while at least.

Why?

Surely it must be obvious to President Ho Chi Minh that, whatever the end may be, it it is long delayed it must inevitably include massive damage to North Viet Nam's economy. There can be no doubt about the ability of the U.S. to inflict heavy losses on the present combatants, nor any doubt about its ability to step up the present scale of attacks if the opposition is stiffened, by aid from China or from Russia or both. The only question is not whether the continuation of the war will bring ruin to North Viet Nam, but how many other countries will be drawn into the widening circle of devastation.

A willingness, not to accept risks but to endure certainties, can only spring from two sources, an overwhelming conviction of a righteous cause or a dread of even worse calamities.

We should not doubt that North Viet Nam believes it is in the right—who ever judges himself to be in the wrong?—but its stubbornly treads the road to certain ruin is neither in keeping with what we think we know of the Oriental temperament nor with the communist ideology. Lenin himself said that he was always ready to take three steps back in order that he might later take four steps forward. If ever there was a situation in which the technique of strategic withdrawal appeared wise for the communists, surely it is this.

This leaves us only the possibility that the North Vietnamese prefer U.S. bombings to the alternative? What could be dreaded more? Possibly active Chinese intervention, a stream of "volunteers" rushing into the country from the north and bringing down on the hapless North Vietnamese intensified U.S. retaliatory raids.

If this is the explanation, then we may expect Viet Cong activity, insofar as it is controlled by Ho Chi Minh, to be maintained at a pace which will satisfy China's demands for continued harassment of the U.S. but not to increase to the point where the U.S. would be provoked into massive raids on the Hanoi area, where lie the new factories and mills the regime has erected at the cost of heavy economic sacrifices.

We should then have a situation in which both sides were depending on time as the ally which could provide victory without plunging all into the abyss of a full-scale war between nuclear powers.

What Price Independence?

The Canadian Press reports: "A committee of the (Ontario) legislature today ordered Ontario's three-man independent redistribution commission to reconsider its whole redrawing of boundary ridings."

We think The Canadian Press writer meant the redrawing of riding boundaries.

But you cannot blame him getting confused after hearing the learned legislators "order" an "independent" commission to "reconsider" its earlier report.

We live in a time of youth obsession and youth worship. We have turned youth into a tin god, turned young people into a special, highly important body of opinion. We study youth with devoted, myopic attention, completely forgetting that nearly all young people want passionately to grow up. Few people really like being young, except in retrospect.—British novelist Pamela Frankau.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

"May I say in parting, gentlemen—it has been an honor and a privilege to have been your commanding officer"

20 YEARS AGO

April 15th, 1945

As a result of discussion at a recent meeting of Front Street property owners and members of the local city council, plans for the construction of the proposed Riverside Drive along the east bank of the Moira River, have been brought up to date by the City Engineer. A new detailed map of the area clearly showing the changes proposed has been drawn and it is expected a further meeting of property owners will be called soon for approval of the plans.

Most striking in the change of plans as compared to the original is the proposed continuation of the drive north along the river bank to emerge onto Front Street at the present fire hall instead of through the alleyway north of the Belvedere Hotel. The latter idea was objected to by hotel owners because of the disturbance which would be created by trucks using the drive at night.

Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, Italian immigrants, were arrested for the murder of two men in a robbery in Braintree, Mass., 45 years ago today—in 1920. They were convicted a year later, and a series of motions for review by a higher court was turned down. A world-wide wave of protest grew, claiming the men were victimized as immigrants and as anarchists, until Governor Fuller of Massachusetts appointed a review board, which found no ground for mercy or a retrial. Sacco and Vanzetti were executed Aug. 23, 1927.

Promiscuity Throws No Light on Love

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: The poor are constantly being exhorted to lift themselves up by their own boot straps, which is difficult enough; but the exhorters seem not to notice that the boots don't even have straps.

Barring accidents, everybody dies of what he was born to die of: the ancients said that one's fate was in his character, which is true — but it is also in his chromosomes.

The secret of triumph is no secret at all; it is easy to grasp and hard to execute — namely, to reorganize the obvious on behalf of the non-obvious, as an Einstein organized those obvious ideas of time and space into the stunningly non-obvious concept of relativity.

The best argument against promiscuity is not a moral one, but a psychological one; as Reesenstock-Huessy tersely put it: "Sexuality throws no light upon love, but only through love can we learn to understand sexuality."

A man is not to be blamed if he doesn't comprehend life any better at 50 than he did at 20; he is only to be blamed if he pretends to himself, and to others, that he does.

The most important thing a woman has to tell her friend is not said during the two-hour visit, but while they are standing at the door saying good-by.

The first thing a good teacher learns, and almost the last thing a parent learns, is when not to correct a child.

A closed circle, like a closed circuit, inevitably carries an electrical shock through its members; in Alfred Capus' phrase: "Combien de gens ne se brouillent que parce qu'ils ont des amis communs?" ("How many people quarrel simply because they have mutual friends?").

(My recent column on "misnomers" — rice paper isn't made from rice, mailing-envelopes no wax, lead pencils contain no lead, etc — omitted another flagrant example that an artist friend has brought to my attention: camels' hair brushes come from Siberian squirrels, and not from camels.)

Whenever we say we would be willing to "change places" with someone else, there is an unspoken reservation. What we could remain myself at the same time"; for we are not willing to give up consciousness of self, only limitations of self.

Those lapel buttons worn by some Southern sheriffs, "Never" are the surest sign that a way of life is on its last legs; for unyielding resistance to a social change is the largest factor in making such change inevitable.

A literary prize is an award customarily given to a writer either long before he has earned it, or long after he needs it.

Germs Are Transmitted by Unmuffled Coughs, Sneezes

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Your article on "tuberculosis — on the increase" gave me the idea that you could do a great deal of good by writing on how to prevent TB, like not licking stamps, spitting, putting fingers in the mouth, etc.

Last winter when an appeal was made to the public to use TB seals on mail, there was a picture of a man licking the seals and putting them on a package. —Mrs. R. B.

Your motives are what we need more of, but don't blame the inoffensive stamp.

Tuberculosis is caused by germs, and the disease is spread from person to person. The cough and the sneeze, unmuffled by handkerchief or tissue, are apt to do the damage. And, of course, spitting does, too.

Putting fingers in the mouth, no matter what other risks it carries, will not transmit TB unless the fingers have just picked up the tubercle bacillus.

TB germs, like some others, thrive in a moist, warm environment. Primarily this means the lungs. If a person has the infection, the germs are carried by the invisibly small droplets of moisture that are breathed out. These droplets don't go far — unless ejected by a cough or sneeze. Then they may go several feet.

Thus licking a stamp doesn't cause TB since the stamp, to begin with, is dry, and is not a place on which the germs can survive.

The most dangerous place to get TB is right at home — if a relative and frequent visitor has TB but doesn't know it! His small cough sprays germs into the air. This repeated exposure sooner or later occurs when someone's resistance is low. And presently you have two people, instead of one, spreading the germs.

That is why TB spreads so much faster in crowded parts of cities, but also can spread in rural areas where people live relatively crowded living quarters and are not aware of just how the disease is transmitted, and how dangerous it is not to find out quickly when someone near you develops TB.

The safest place is in a sanitarium or hospital. Patients with TB can be helped and you, but you know the danger is present. Following a few strict rules of hygiene prevents the germs from being spread from one person to the next.

Dear Dr. Molner: Has cold sweat any diagnostic significance? Also perpetually cold hands? — J. T.

Basically sweating is an automatic way of cooling the body, but fright or excessive nervousness can make one perspire.

Cold sweat falls in this latter category. In some people, the involuntary nervous system is overactive or unstable — that is, the system which controls such things as sweating, blushing, etc.

Hence they may perspire too readily even though the body does not require cooling. A secondary result can be cool, damp skin.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is cendiuls? Does it spread throughout the body? Is there a cure? — Mrs. P. P.

Tendinitis is irritation or inflammation of a tendon. A common form is seen in the shoulder joint, with calcium deposits at a point at which the shoulder is under considerable stress.

No, it doesn't necessarily spread throughout the body and may be limited to just one place.

Dr. of course, there may be stress and hence irritation at some other point. Spurs or calcium deposits of the heel are quite common.

Often tendinitis needs no treatment; other times, it is active and painful, heat helps. In selected cases, surgical removal of a spur may be warranted.

Germs Shed By Scrubbing

Winnipeg Tribune

Even the most casual viewer of Dr. Ben Casey knows that no surgeon would think of entering the operating theatre without scrubbing. The scrub before surgery has become an unchallenged tradition.

Well, almost unchallenged.

St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London has been doing some research recently which seems to contradict long-accepted practice. This research indicates that a shower triggers a bacteria-shedding action by the skin which can continue up to an hour or more.

The Financial Post reports that a surgeon who had taken a shower, shed up to 40 times more bacteria after the shower than he would have had he not taken it. The heaviest fallout occurred 15 to 30 minutes after the shower.

Furthermore, persons in street clothes covered by a paper bag exuded fewer bacteria, including staphylococci, than those who took a shower and then donned the clean cap-and-gown attire normally used.

Just where this research will lead is unknown. But it certainly fortifies the position of small boys who resist scrubbing.

Who Pays M.P. Phone Bills? In Many Cases No One

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — For exactly a year, some of the Honorable Members of the Commons have been worrying — but not much — about their phone bills.

And so, too, with good reason, has the phone company. Probably plenty.

For some of those bills—nobody, except the phone company, knows how many — were not being paid.

What is more, one Mr. Speaker, explosively fiery Creditiste Deputy Gilles Gregoire, who ran up an unpaid account of something more than $800, boasted quite openly that he simply was not going to pay it.

He went so far, he has been quite frank to relate, as to ring up a vice-president of the phone company and tell him "go ahead cut the wires; you're not going to get a nickel out of me."

Of course, there was no wire snipping.

Not just because Gilles Gregoire has acquired something of a tough-guy reputation, having hailed the RCMP high command before a Parliamentary Committee for "illegally" arresting him in Engtish when he would have been perfectly happy to summer in French to answer some blithely ignored traffic charges, but probably because likely because the phone company, wisely, figured it might be tempting fate — and a blast in the House of Commons — to cut off an MP's phone service.

JACKPOT

So, sagely, the phone company waited and waited and waited, day after week after month for a year.

And then — jackpot.

There were others, although just how many, the phone company, cautiously, is not saying.

But at last accounting, which was three months after the Honorable Members had declared their moratorium on paying phone bills, eight MP's had politely confessed to refusing to settle accounts variously amounting to $130.55, $137.15, $160.55, $66.50, $86.50, $467.65, $412.55, and $66.70.

That was last July.

And how the bills since must have mounted was indicated by Real Caouette when, with a shudder of financial pain the other day, he disclosed he had written a cheque "for not much less than $1,000."

Take the average of those eight bills — it was $190 for the three months — multiply by four for the year's account, and you get $760.

Now suppose every MP in the House had refused to pay his bill — they all didn't of course— the phone company would have had an unpaid tab of $210,000.

And it wasn't just the Creditistes who were telling the phone company to whistle for its money — Liberals, Conservatives, New Democrats and Social Creds were members in good standing of the Parliamentary Won't Pay Club.

They finally paid, out of what Real Caouette says was self-defence, as the bills climbed to frighteningly high figures, but what ultimately might have been financially crippling levels.

NOT OFF THE HOOK

How did it happen that these Honorable Members came to consider themselves so immune to bills and able with impunity to dare the phone company to cut them off?

By way of a little-read and too-late-understood clause in the Parliamentary pay-increase legislation providing for more generous travelling and other expenses.

There was a scant-noticed catch in it.

Telecommunications expenses, as they were termed, were to be paid "as the respective Houses (Commons and Senate) may prescribe for their Members."

And neither House so far has so prescribed.

Until they do, long distance phone bills, it has been ruled by the powerful Joint Parliamentary Internal Economy Committee, "remain the personal debt and charge of the individual Member concerned and not the responsibility of the Treasury."

But before you stand up and cheer and forget about it, that it's good enough for them —consider this.

Many, in fact a great many long distance phone calls to an MP, Front and Backbencher alike, come collect.

And because, essentially, an MP is basically in the business of being known people who elected him and sent him to Ottawa to watch their interests, he gets an awful lot of calls collect and can be confronted with some pretty formidable bills.

Take the case of Leader Robert Thompson's which runs to better than $2,000 a year, or Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker's at something more than $3,000.

That makes a pretty big hole in a Parliamentary cheque and perhaps, as a working necessity for any MP's discharge of public business, should be paid by the Treasury.

Mice and Men Are Mated

Washington Post

In a recent issue of the British scientific journal, Nature, two Oxford professors report experiments fraught with horrendous implications.

They have mated the cells of mice and men and kept them in the hybrid cells alive for 15 days.

That's long enough. We have enough mouy men around as it is, and we cannot afford any artificially induced manpower.

Of course the experiments have not yet gone that far. Creeds were mentioned. Oxford do not really anticipate developing any new species of mice or men.

Their studies are designed to explore the mysteries of genes, which transmit characteristics from generation to generation. The new experiments, they report, make it possible to study "problems of nucleocytoplasmic relationship which could hitherto be studied only in hybrids of fungi or yeasts".

But maybe they better go for the Oxford dons next time.

A legend in the west tells of a chap who mated a cactus and a farmed land and produced a prickly critter that tenderfeet were always stumbling over.

Maybe the Oxford dons went on the lower orders of creation. We mammals already have enough troubles to afflict us.

ing countries by September.

In one or two years, it was hoped these persons could be joined overseas by 1,000 from the Company of Young Canadians. It was hoped to have another 1,000 servicing within Canada at the same time.

Mr. Pearson said development of a general anti-poverty plan will be undertaken by a special cabinet committee with himself as chairman and Labor Minister MacEachen as vice-chairman.

CONSULT PROVINCES

A special planning secretariat would be established in the Privy Council office under the directorship of Tom Kent, up to now Mr. Pearson's policy co-ordinator.

This staff would assist the cabinet committee in analyzing existing anti-poverty measures, assess the extent and nature of poverty, plan further federal measures and consult with the provinces to ensure co-ordination of planning.

The planning secretariat would go to work officially Tuesday with a permanent staff of some six members. The staff would draw on business and labor for advice.

Mr. Pearson said he had never worked with any public servant who had greater devotion and ability than Mr. Kent.

GOOD RESPONSE

The prime minister said he has received a good deal of warm response from youth and church groups concerning the announcement in the three speech of formation of a Company of Young Canadians.

He said he has discovered these Canadians don't wish to be called "eager beavers," a term he himself had used in the Commons in a jocular way. Such a phrase would be "ballcitous and inappropriate."

Mr. Pearson said all provinces at a ministerial meeting last week approved the federal government's welfare proposal for a Canada Assistance Plan.

The statement expected to have its proposal in final form for presentation to a federal-provincial conference of premiers at the end of May.

Mr. Pearson said he hopes the necessary legislation can be passed at the current session of Parliament.

Three other measures would be outlined in the Commons soon after the Easter recess. They were: a rural development fund; plans for labor mobility and training; and an expanded area development program.

Thunderstorms and tornadoes sent northern Texas and parts of Oklahoma into a state of jitters Wednesday night as tornadoes raked a wide area.

Sheriff's rangers tracked what was termed a big tornado cloud in the Fort Worth-Roanoke-Lewisville area. Six tornadoes were sighted in central Oklahoma. No injuries were reported, though two twisters touched down on farm country.

In Wisconsin, residents along the banks of the upper Mississippi and St. Croix Rivers were evacuated Wednesday night and prepared for high waters.

AT 14.2-FOOT LEVEL

At La Crosse, the level was 14.1 feet, 2.8 feet above flood stage. It was expected to reach 18 feet within a week.

The weather bureau has predicted that the flooding this spring will surpass the disastrous floods of 1952.

The Mississippi is expected to reach a crest of 27 feet at St. Paul late today or Friday. It stood at above 25 feet today. The previous high of 18.5 feet was established in 1952.

Hundreds of residents were evacuated from some sections of St. Paul, but others refused to leave. Most of the city's homes and business establishments, however, are on high bluffs and safe from the rising water.

The weather bureau said the Mississippi is above flood level at most gauging stations from Fort Ripley, Minn., to Caruthersville, Mo., and is expected to crest at record high levels between Keithsburg, Ill., and Fort Ripley between April 16 and 17.

Smrke, however, held out for s full terms of his contract, emanding $726 for hockey ages and $1,414 for off-season mployment.

"It may have been that some embers of council felt that r. Smrke should be paid for is hockey services but not for s guaranteed employment," aid the judge. "I see no reason . . . why, when he has performed all services set out nder that contract, that he ould only be paid for his ockey services and not be paid or the guaranteed employment . . .

"In the net result there will e an award against the corporaon for the total claims of 2,140 less the amount of $202 hich Lou Smrke . . . received rom casual employment during the period he claimed the all $78 a week."

For Smrke it was the end of five-year battle, halting out ong after every other player ad come to an understanding ith the city.

His obduracy in challenging e city for what he claimed was egally owing him, carried him hrough lengthy and frustrating ttempts at settlement.

The city can derive some consolation from the proceedings. nstead of taking it into court, oth Mr. Templeman and city olicitor, E. Guss Porter, agreed o present the case as an arbitration issue in judge's chambers.

As a standard court proceeding it "might have extended nto a week or ten days," said udge Anderson.

This would have greatly increased the costs found against he city.

As it was, the arbitration, hich began February 25, lasted only a day and a half.

This included careful scrutiny f all minutes and reports inolving city and hockey affairs rom 1950, legislation, bylaws, and ast precedents.

In all it took six weeks before he was prepared to render his decision today.

Opposition Challenged To Vote Against Bill

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Saskatchewan legislature Wednesday hassled about who would eventually control the Regina power system.

The government threatened to let die on the order paper a bill ratifying the sale of the Regina power system to the Saskatchewan Power Corporation.

But Health Minister D. G. Steuart, minister in charge of the SPC, said later the corporation expects to operate the Regina power plant from seven to 12 years after its purchase May 1.

A. K. Blakeney (CCF—Regina West) moved an amendment to the bill which would enable the city to buy back the power system if the government in future sold the publicly - owned provincial interest.

Premier Ross Thatcher said the Liberal government would not sell the corporation and it will make more money than it ever did when the former (CCF) government was in power.

He challenged opposition members to vote against the bill. If they did, he said he would let it die on the order paper later. It was approved on third reading.

Plant Fan Unit Exploded On Two Previous Occasions

PICTON (Staff) — The fan unit which exploded at Lake Ontario Cement Plant near here and killed a man on February 8th, had exploded on two previous occasions.

This was brought out in evidence at an inquest here Tuesday night into the death of Murray Robert Gibson of Belleville.

Coroner Dr. C. R. Richmond of Picton presided over the inquest which resolved that Mr. Gibson came to his death from an explosion of unknown origin.

Recommendations made by the five-man jury coincided with those of the department of labor officials who investigated the accident. These included:

"That explosion ducts leading to the outside should be installed on the fan;

"There should be no smoking in the area during maintenance;

"That non-ferrous metal tools be used in servicing the equipment;

"That shielding be erected between the fan housing and the electronic control panel;

"That vents be properly cradled for proper maintenance."

FELL INTO FAN

An engineer with the department of labor, Edward Wells, said that all necessary precautions had been taken for installation of the unit under the code involved.

Corporal Charles Fletcher of the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said he was reporting second hand that explosions had occurred in the same fan unit on January 9th, 1959 and June 22nd, 1964.

George Cheeseman, general superintendent of production, confirmed the one on June 22, 1964. He explained the cause of that one but said no exact cause had been found for the one in February which claimed Mr. Gibson's life.

First Meeting Of New Council Is Scheduled

PICTON (Staff) — The first meeting of the revised North Marysburgh Township Council is scheduled for Thursday night at the township hall in Waupoos. This will be the first meeting of the revised council after its election Monday.

The veteran councillor, David Whattam, who was returned in the election, was one of two who resigned after their qualifications were challenged a few weeks ago. It will be the first session for the newly-elected Arthur Frizzell.

In a joint statement issued after the election, Mr. Whattam and Mr. Frizzell said that the election "shows the people endorse our policy of progress as previously attempted to be carried out by Harold Morrison (the other deposed councillor) and myself.

PICTON (Staff) — There was considerable debate in the Prince Edward Collegiate Institute here Wednesday as to whether a film produced by the film unit of the Ohio State Highway Patrol called "Mechanized Death" should be shown to High School students. The film was introduced as not being a pretty one, and the fact that fifteen students left, or were carried from the auditorium attested to this. The film was designed to be a shocker and to provide evidence of the dangers of operating a motor vehicle. Most of the students who saw the film thought that it served this purpose well. The film was shown to students of age 16 and over.

Col. Wells served for 22 years in China and in 1948 was transferred to Canada where he served as commanding officer for several major corps. In 1953 he was transferred to New Zealand where he served until 1956.

DESERONTO

Big Decrease In Tax Rates Is Recorded

DESERONTO — The town has a much asked for decrease in taxation for 1965, the big help to this end has been a reduction in education levy from $108,000 in 1964 to $53,000 in 1965. This gives a reduction of 51 mills for education purposes. The full effect of the decrease is not realized by the taxpayers this year as the town had to budget closely last year on the streets and other committees. This leaves a heavy burden to catch up on this year.

The breakdown of the budget is as follows:

DECREASES IN LEVIES

Education 51 mills, county 3 mills, water explorations 2 mills, taxes written off 2 mills. Total 58 mills.

INCREASES IN LEVIES

Protection to persons and property 7 mills, streets 11 mills, welfare 1 mill, bank charges 1 mill, Centennial park 1.5 mills, reserve for working capital 6.5 mills, deficit 8 mills, sundry items 1 mill. Total 37 mills.

Residential rate 1964, 166.05 mills; residential rate 1965, 149.85 mills; decrease 16.20 mills.

Due to substantial tax arrears for the years 1963 and 1964 a levy for working capital reserve was necessary to keep borrowings within allowable limits.

Interest and penalty rates on tax arrears have been increased from ½ of 1% per month to 2/3 of 1% per month.

RCN No Place For Introverts

By ERIC WILSON

BERGEN, Norway (CP)—The young Canadian sailor gazed a bit ruefully at the crowded living quarters of his floating home and then remarked cheerfully: "Well, privacy is just a civilian word."

Able Seaman Don Anderson of Pembroke, Ont., was merely reflecting the general view of life aboard the Canadian destroyer escort Columbia now participating in extensive NATO exercises that take her from ports stretching from Norway to Portugal before returning home to Halifax in June.

The 2,900-ton ship is relatively big but after all limited. After packing the 366-foot length, there's no chance of a country stroll if tempers flare and crew members get edgy.

"There must be something about the sea that attracts gregarious fellows because we're all friends at sea and ashore. I'd feel mighty sorry for the introvert who joins our crew because privacy is a civilian word not meant for the navy."

In the navy 24 years, Anderson mans the radar-like instruments tracking submarines. He puts in a four-hour watch, followed by eight hours off duty. Often his work begins after midnight but Anderson doesn't mind.

"We can grab a cold snack in the cafeteria any time and some of the best games in our bridge tournament are played in what the folks back home call the wee small hours."

For those who may become bored, the ship's welfare committee plans an assortment of entertainment including first-run movies and a selection of fine books in the ship's library.

"My favorite is the talent show, when we get saxophone solos, would-be Shelley Berman and lots of guitar picking," says the enthusiastic Anderson.

The performers are not necessarily amateurs. One is leading Seaman Jerry Cole, 29, of Kirkland Lake, Ont., who cuts Western and cowboy tunes for London Records.

Before decks in the quarters he shares with 19 other sailors, Anderson chats amiably about the ports they've visited—San Juan, Fort Lauderdale, Londonderry.

PLAN TALENT NIGHT

"We're planning a NATO combined talent night for the English, Dutch, Americans and ourselves in Lisbon during this five - month exercise," he remarks.

His buddy, 23-year-old Mike Keith of Bathurst, N.B., with a beard and a tattooed dragon on his forearm, enjoys spinning a few yarns.

"There's a British sailor," he says, "who has snakes tattooed around his eyes and his serial number on his lower lip."

While life at sea is a bit confining, it is not expensive. An amateur barber aboard cuts hair for 50 cents and cigarettes can be obtained at the canteen for 15 cents a pack.

And they can all dream of the future. Anderson says the navy is his future but he points to a 36-year-old chief petty officer with 20 years' service who is about to take over an $800-a-month civilian job.

It's made with special English hops and toasted barley-malt. Hence its deep amber colour and its robust taste (malty and rich, with a definite "bite" to it). Also you'll notice Toby's smoothness: It has less gas than Canadian beer.

Have a Toby. Find out why Englishmen have been devoted to it since 1759.

Are Viruses the Villains in Cancer?

ARTICLE 10

BY PAT McGRADY

In the spring of 1961, a few scattered scientists came up with an alarming conclusion: Many millions of people inadvertently had been exposed to a cancer virus hidden in polio vaccine.

The cancer causing agent was called Simian-Virus 40 (or SV-40) because it was one of many unidentified particles which existed naturally in kidney cells of Asiatic monkeys. There, it appeared completely harmless, the monkeys healthy, the cells undamaged.

But when SV-40 was added to cultures of kidney cells from African monkeys, the cells blistered, bubbled and died. In newborn hamsters, SV-40 produced cancers.

The polio virus is grown in monkey kidney cells and then either weakened or killed for vaccine. But the contaminating cancer-causing SV-40 virus survives the weakening and killing processes.

Scientists estimate that a majority of the many millions vaccinated against polio up to the summer of 1961 received SV-40 in both oral and injected vaccines. U.S. vaccines since then have been clean. Vaccines used in the Soviet Union and Cuba were decontaminated later.

There is not the slightest direct evidence that SV-40 has induced cancer in any human. But volunteers had their noses and throats sprayed with SV-40, and suffered only mild, passing respiratory difficulty. Moreover, SV-40 failed to induce cancer in mice and rats.

DOUBLE JEOPARDY

It usually takes many years for cancer to appear in humans following contact with the cancer - causing agent, however, and it may be some time before the real consequences of SV-40 exposure are known. It is entirely possible that SV-40 may even have immunized people against some forms of cancer.

Newly developed facts, have been found to place some of those inoculated against both polio and a respiratory disease in double jeopardy.

Drs. John J. Trentin and Yoshiro Yabe of Baylor University College of Medicine and Frank Taylor of M.D. Anderson Hospital, Houston, reported in the spring of 1962 that one type of adenovirus itself causes cancer when instilled in the lungs of newborn hamsters.

From five to 18 weeks following treatment, up to 90 percent of the animals died of tumors which filled their chests.

In these experiments, the Trentin group used adenovirus 12. Others later induced experimental cancers with adenovirus 18 and adenovirus 7. Adenoviruses of types 3, 4 and 7 have been used in human vaccines. Two years after finding adenovirus 12 carcinogenic, the Trentin group produced a live vaccine against it; it was effective in hamsters and, to a degree, in mice.

Adenoviruses, first isolated in 1953 in human adenoids, are a common cause of respiratory infection among children and, even more so, among military service recruits.

Adenovirus infection differs from the common cold in that its onset is more gradual and the symptoms are more severe and longer lasting.

One cannot say with certainty whether a person receiving a vaccine containing two distinct viruses—like SV-40 and adenovirus—each of which cause cancer in newborn hamsters, would run a greater risk than is offered by a single virus.

Viruses — known to cause cancer in animals —may be the deadly and primitive broth that cause some human cancer to o. It is a lingering question.

The SV-40 experience has indicated it might be a good idea to examine the long-term effect of all vaccines.

Vaccinia virus, like that received in smallpox shots, is commonly used to enhance the effect of carcinogenic chemicals in inducing cancer in experimental animals. Against this disquieting circumstance, however are the irrefutable facts that immunization has virtually wiped out a plethora of plagues.

THE LONELY CRUSADER

Back in the early 1940's a soft-spoken but fiery Spanish-born scientist proclaimed his belief that at least some human cancers were caused by ordinary viruses.

The scientist, Dr. Francisco Duran-Reynals of Yale University, stood virtually alone. His utterances represented heresy to the solid body of conventional science, against which cancer virologists found it expedient to pursue their studies quietly and apologetically. Not only was their line of investigation at stake but so were their jobs.

To physicians who knew viruses only as a scapegoat diagnosis the idea of linking common viruses and dreaded, blind cancer was catching, and this, they reasoned, would make pariahs of cancer patients.

In his lonely campaign, Dr. Duran-Reynals confronted his silent, apathetic, or hostile peers with the meagre history of cancer viruses in animals, his own elegant experiments, and a rapidly rising tide of findings by his younger contemporaries. Two years before his own death from an unusual malignancy which paralyzed him completely and which some felt might have been caused by one of his laboratory viruses, he had the satisfaction of hearing Dr. Wendell M. Stanley, of the University of California, one of science's leading figures, validate some of his sentiments.

The big question, which remains unanswered at this writing is: Do viruses cause human cancers?

Dr. Duran-Reynals, and Dr. Trentin showed that human viruses cause cancer— but only in animals.

Scientific proof that viruses do cause human cancers would entail rigid procedures. The virus would have to be (1) shown to be present in every case of the disease, (2) cultivated in pure culture, (3) made to produce the disease when removed from culture and inoculated into humans, and (4) recovered from the deliberately infected humans and grown again in cultures. The law does not permit this.

Dr. Leon Dmochowski of the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Hospital has produced excellent electron micrographs of viruslike particles in many kinds of cancer cells—animal and human. Despite this persuasive evidence, however, he concedes that the case for viruses as a cause of human cancer is strictly circumstantial. The viruses are at the scene of the crime, but their guilt has not been proved.

Somewhere in the welter of the seemingly unrelated, often contradictory, always confusing observations, there must be a thread of logic. If the profound principles involved can be fathomed, man stands to gain a great deal. He can stop worrying about innocuous viruses and concentrate on what seems to be a mounting menace by harmful viruses. In 1950 only 21 human viral diseases were recognized; in a short dozen years the number exceeded 200.

One urgent problem is foldetermine if man is susceptible to animal cancer viruses and how such virus is transmitted. With this knowledge it might be possible to ward off some human cancers.

A fringe benefit has been the development of antiviral drugs. A few clever preparations—of limited value against cancers already show promise of overcoming virus infections in animals and man.

We live in an atmosphere bolled with viruses—hard, incessequential and good. Broad new vistas of preventing and treating virus disease are opening. Some of the findings have implications for controlling cancer—possibly and hopefully human cancer.

Go to your local post office. They have lots of regular T1 forms and they'll be happy to supply you with one.

That's easy to explain. Your Personalized Tax Form went to your old address. The Postal Department crossed it out before they forwarded it to you at your new address. However, there is a space to write in your new address on the label itself (and for brides, your new name).

Something's puzzling you?

Call or visit your District Taxation Office. You'll find it listed in the White Pages of your Telephone Directory under Government of Canada. They'll answer any questions you have.

You keep forgetting to put it in the mail?

Try this. Tonight, put your completed form in a stamped envelope. With sticky tape, attach envelope to the inside of your front door just about eye level. Tomorrow remove it before you go out and hold it in your hand till you reach the nearest mail box and drop your completed form in.

Your form is all filled out, but you owe us a small sum and you're short of cash?

We understand. Sometimes the fact you've got to pay more tax catches you unprepared. But you can mail your completed tax form anyway by enclosing a postdated cheque for the sum owing as late as April 30th 1965.

Now, thank-you for your co-operation.
Really.

Life in British Guiana Outlined At University Women's Club

Dr. R. R. Asregadoo, a native of British Guiana, spoke to the University Women's Club of Belleville and District at their April meeting on the political and economic aspects of life in that country.

British Guiana is a country wealthy in raw materials. Sugar-cane, rice, bauxite (developed with Canadian capital), gold, diamonds and timber are the principal products, together with a growing beef cattle industry. The population is of a mixed ethnic background made up of native aborigines, East Indians, Africans, Chinese and Portuguese, all but the natives originally being brought in as labor in the sugar-cane industry. The population of approximately 600,000 is settled along the coast and the access rivers.

Politically the country was governed by a British Governor in Council from 1814 until 1952, at which time the first general elections were held. Plantation owners controlled the council without representation from the general population to whom little education was offered.

ECONOMIC CONDITIONS

In 1942 a native of British Guiana of the East Indian ethnic group returned to the country with an American wife after obtaining a degree in dentistry from Northwestern University. Dr. Jagan became concerned with the poor economic conditions under which most of the population lived and formed a people's party. In the 1953 elections Dr. Jagan's party won 80 per cent of the seats. Finally the country had representation in the government. Within months it became obvious that Dr. Jagan had what might be termed radical socialistic intentions. He denounced the Queen, the constitution was suspended. An interim government brought a period of instability. Jagan carried the 1957 elections despite new opposition from Mr. Burnham, of African extraction, with a lawyer, who had broken away to form his own more moderate party.

A period of economic growth and political tranquility ensued until 1962, during this time more reforms were introduced and another party was formed by a Portuguese capitalist, Mr. D'Aguiar. In February, 1962, Dr. Jagan brought a socialist professor from Cambridge and with his help brought down an extreme socialism budget. Mass strikes in the sugar industry and the Civil Service followed. Bloodletting became a rampage and crisis followed crisis. Africans rioted and attacked Indian businesses.

In 1963 Dr. Jagan increased a labor relations (Taft-Hartley type) bill but the people by this time were highly suspicious of his every move. Strikes and looting followed. Money was withdrawn from the country; a currency law was invoked. The economy suffered.

PARTY REPRESENTATION

In 1964 the opposition asked for proportional party representation, and to ease the tension all round the British imposed it. The strikes and rioting continued. In December, 1964, in a new election, Dr. Jagan, under this system took 24 seats, but Mr. Burnham's party with 22 seats and Mr. D'Aguiar's party with six seats formed a coalition and took over the government. A period of relative quiet has followed, although only a few weeks ago Dr. Jagan announced that he and his followers planned to boycott the legislature.

Dr. Asregadoo, in closing, stated that during the periods of rioting in his country, the presence and activity of British troops prevented an out-and-out civil war. He suggests that British Guiana needs economic stability, foreign capital investment, education made available to all, and a moderate political milieu—given these the country could take its place as a prosperous nation.

A question period followed. Dr. Asregadoo was introduced by Mrs. D. T. Thompson and thanked by Mrs. J. Ormsby.

SEMINAR IN MAY

Preceding the talk on British Guiana, the president, Mrs. R. E. Barrett introduced Mrs. G. E. Boyce, Regional Director for Ontario East. Mrs. Boyce brought news of activities of other clubs in the district. She announced that Mrs. F. H. Bellstedt and Mrs. R. J. A. Foxton would represent the Belleville Club at the seminar to be held at York University in May on Continuing Education for Women. The Regional Conference will be held in Cornwall in October, the keynote speaker being Mrs. H. C. Campbell of York University.

Mrs. Boyce was thanked by Miss Doyle.

During the business meeting, Mrs. R. S. Burtt, convener of the Spring Fair gave a progress report on its preparation. Mrs. Burtt also announced that the closing party for the bridge group, to which all members are invited, will take place on the evening of May 6th at her home.

2 Peeresses Cross Swords Over 'Pill'

LONDON (AP)—Two Labor peeresses crossed swords in the House of Lords Wednesday night over the pill. Baroness Summerskill called for an immediate ban on the contraceptive. Baroness Gaitskell disagreed.

Lady Summerskill, a 64-year-old physician, is a former minister of national insurance, told Parliament's upper house the pills could have dangerous side effects.

"Surely the time has come to call a halt to the proliferation of these drugs, which are highly suspect, until the Dunlop committee issues its report," Lady Summerskill said.

The Dunlop committee was set up to investigate reports that the thalidomide scare. Recently the committee investigated the deaths from thrombosis of two young women who had taken contraceptive pills. The committee reported it found no evidence to link their deaths with the pills.

"Although there may have been cases of thrombosis," she said, "it is not at all clear that these are due to taking the pill."

Club Activities

The members of Alpha Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met on Tuesday evening at the Corby Public Library in Belleville. Mrs. C. J. Young introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. L. Andrews who is president of the Belleville Art Association. She gave a short talk on art and commended on the exhibit of art presently on display at the library from the Eastern Ontario Art Association.

On behalf of the Sorority, Mrs. B. Manley thanked Mrs. Andrews for her interesting talk and presented her with a small token of appreciation.

The members proceeded to the home of Mrs. G. Brown where the president, Mrs. C. J. Young, conducted the business portion of the meeting.

The meeting was followed by refreshments were served by the hostess and co-hostess, Mrs. R. Swansborg.

Local Delegates Attend U. E. L. Council

At the annual meeting of the Dominion Council of the United Empire Loyalists' Association of Canada which was held in Toronto, the delegates representing the Bay of Quinte Branch were Dr. and Mrs. Gerald Allison, Picton, Mrs. C. L. R. Wanamaker and Miss Helen Fraleck, Belleville.

The committee on bi-lingualism and bi-culturalism reported that a brief had been presented to the Royal Commission in which warning was given that if special consideration is given to the founding peoples of Canada, as the terms of reference of the Commission state, the net result will be the balkanization of the country.

In the brief it was emphasized that Canada's origins are not bicultural but multicultural, comprising groups such as Negroes, Indians, Jews, Swiss, Germans, Dutch and Danes. If there is a case for bi-culturalism, whatever this term may signify, it might better rest on practical realities than on an historical misconception that all embitter and exaggerate misunderstandings.

For several years the Association has been making an effort toward the preservation of Wolford Chapel, the burial place of John Graves Simcoe, Upper Canada's first Lieutenant Governor, which is situated seventeen miles east of Exeter in Devon. The present owners, of the property, Lord Harmsworth, a zealous that its upkeep be taken over by some trust or association. Last fall Alderman Rotenburg brought a motion before the Toronto Board of Control recommending that the city take over the care and upkeep of the chapel.

ESTABLISH FOUNDATION

It is now reported that a foundation will be established with the aid of the provincial government. The government has agreed to guarantee the maintenance of the burial place, Wolford Chapel, under terms suggested by its present owner. The chapel will be handed over to the owner to the foundation consisting of fifteen directors. The foundation's objectives will include disseminating information about the life and works of Colonel Simcoe. The province will contribute $2,000 toward a fund of $25,000, the interest from which will be used to help to maintain the chapel. Three directors, Floyd Chalmers, Norman Long and Harry Price, have undertaken to raise the remainder of the fund. Under the terms the province will maintain the chapel if the foundation is unable to do so.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The officers elected to the Dominion Council for the ensuing year are: president, Mrs. V. Jones, St. Catharines, 1st vice-president, Mr. E. J. Chard, Pickering, 2nd vice-president, Miss Helen Fraleck, Belleville, 3rd vice-president, Dr. J. G. Dillane, Hamilton, secretary, Miss Mairie Ketchenson, Toronto, treasurer, Mr. Ross Glassford, genealogist, Mrs. Ross Glassford, Toronto.

What Women Are Doing

Women's Study Guild

Mrs. J. R. Reynolds, President

The Women's Study Guild has been functioning continuously since 1931, when it was formed as "The Young Women's Guild" at John Street Church," with Miss Frances Sullivan as its first president and Miss Olive Bloom as secretary. It was designed to fill a need to study the problems of the day in the light of the teachings of Jesus. The programs were, and are, prepared entirely by the members with the occasional outside speaker. Membership was, however, not restricted to John Street Church people and in 1954, a revised Constitution was adopted and the name changed to "Women's Study Guild," as the group had by then become non-denominational.

The depression sparked the School for Leisure, which offered courses in sewing, radio, woodworking, home economics, good grooming and child training. These were all conducted by experts in their field at no cost to the city or those who took advantage of these opportunities. Perhaps some readers will remember two old time concerts, put on by the Guild to raise the funds for these projects.

Following past program topics, which incidentally are practically all on record, reveals the interest existing at the members of the group, no small part of which was due to Mrs. R. Reynolds' good Miss Robina Templeton.

Following the fire at John Street Church, Sunday classes were continued at Tabernacle Church while the need existed. Gifts of clothes from the Red Cross was assisted regularly by the Guild through sewing and knitting groups, and many food parcels were sent to England for distribution.

Over the years many worthwhile and deserving causes have been helped. A French child, an Italian boy and at present a Tunisian girl have all been helped, and all have been written personal notes through membership fees and offerings. During the post-war years, the Guild assisted in making war brides feel at home in Canada.

For many years The Lecture and Study Group, which was a development of the School for Leisure, filled an intellectual need for men and women of Belleville. With the passing of the years, such studies have been undertaken by University Women's Club, Canadian Club and University Extension Classes.

Recent programs have encompassed such topics as Politics of Education; Problems of African States; Indian Rock Paintings; the Malaysian Federation; The Comfortable Pew. The object of the studies is to stimulate the thinking of members to a broader outlook. Meetings are held the fourth Monday of each month at members' homes and any ladies wishing to participate will be welcome.

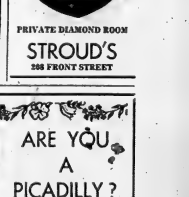
CLUB 4-H NOTES

ALBURY JUNIORETTES



The third meeting of the Albury Juniorettes was held at the home of Marion Yorke.

President, Marianne Leth opened the meeting with the 4-H pledge. Ten members were present. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Nancy Weese.

At the conclusion of a discussion on the many "Foods, the members examined an exhibit of ten types of cheese. Louise Miller, Beverly Dextrator and Marion Yorke cut these so that everyone could sample each one.

During group work, Nancy Weese and Evelyn Peck made an attractive plate of "Foods That Please With Cottage Cheese" consisting of a tomato, surrounded by peach halves and celery all stuffed with cottage cheese fillings. Marjorie Bedford made tasty cheese sandwiches while Bonnie Murray and Sharon Anderson made equally good French toast. Thus the members discovered the many "Hidden Treasures" in dairy foods.

Successful Living

Husband May Be a Genius, But He Has His Faults

DEAR DORIS — We have two young people — a daughter 26 and a son 18 — who would like help with making sociable conversation. They are bright students, but conversation is difficult for them.

DORIS CLARK

My husband is not of a sociable nature. He is of an intellectual, studious nature, hard-working and genius. This is not the easiest nature to live with, especially as he is an extreme hoarder and there is a confusion of papers and old junk around the yard.

How I long to burn a lot of stuff! His nerves are very bad; his home life was very unhappy. Over the years he has burned up a tremendous lot of nervous energy without accomplishing too much. — MERELY MOM.

* * *

DEAR MOM — Would an intellectual parent tone in if his young people were to make a table-talk study of psychology? I'd suggest the three of you read up on what makes people tick — then begin dinner discussions.

More than once each eye-opener have helped anxious but thoughtful people to get to see themselves; and to understand their impact on others.

Your near-genius might even come to realize his own confusion; which is one step towards clearing it up!

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I like this boy but he is terribly shy. He knew I like him because I sent him a Valentine card, but he did not send me one. I have a feeling he likes me but he never even says "hi."

How can I get through to him that I am as shy as he is but I don't show it? — BASHFUL ONE.

* * *

DEAR BASHFUL ONE — Sending a Valentine to someone who doesn't even speak to you isn't my idea of shyness. If you keep pursuing him he'll retire further into his shell and probably clam up entirely.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — My hands have shown signs of stiffening in the mornings. Any suggestions?

I find your column most interesting and think it is a splendid idea that we should have someone to whom we can go for help, without the frequently embarrassing feeling we may suffer from, if telling a trouble to a personal acquaintance. — OVER FIFTY.

* * *

DEAR OVER FIFTY — I like to help. But physical symptoms are not in my line. Stiffening hands should be shown to your doctor for diagnosis and proper medical treatment.

* * *

Confidential to "A FEW MIXED-UP TEEN-AGERS" — Please write again, repeating your questions — in briefer form, please! — and enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I do enjoy reading your column and do think you give real good advice. However, this one about the 17-year-old boy who swears. We might well refer to him as a pig, but really I think myself there is something radically wrong with a father that would sit silent and hear his offspring speak as he did to his mother (this man's wife.)

I say God pity the mother and daughter who have to live with such inhuman monsters and work with them. Living in the hog pen would be too good for such as they. — WIFE AND MOTHER OF A SON.

* * *

DEAR WIFE AND MOTHER — Right. There are times when Father should step in. But didn't this boy's resentment begin a long way back? I wonder just how much praise was mixed with the discipline at a time when said offspring was first trying his wings?

* * *

DEAR DORIS — This is for "Afraid." When I was expecting my baby, childbirth was quite a mystery to me, too. My doctor gave me a book on natural childbirth. When I had read it I hardly could wait until my baby was going to be born.

It was hard work and concentration, then, but it was the greatest moment in my life, too, when I saw him and heard his little voice, our little son!

Now there are classes for mothers-to-be, and a public health nurse gives you additional information with films and talking things over. She, too, will show you how to behave during delivery and how to keep your body fit during pregnancy. — MOTHER OF THREE.

* * *

DEAR MOTHER — I have the name of that book, which is excellent. And the classes are going on in centres right across Canada. Welfare councils, V.O.N. branches and health departments have the schedules.

* * *

(There are Canadian resources to help solve your problem. Write to Doris for direction, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN ADOPTION?

THERE ARE INFANTS AND CHILDREN IN HASTINGS COUNTY WAITING FOR ADOPTING PARENTS — IS ONE OF THEM THE CHILD YOU HAVE BEEN HOPING FOR?

Many people believe that to adopt it is necessary to earn a large salary and own a home with a bedroom for each child. This is not true. What is important is that the adopting parents be responsible, mature individuals with the capacity to love a child not born to them.

TASTY DESSERT FOR EASTER

Many years ago a member of the Press Club brought a Hungarian Drum Cake to a dessert party and told us she had paid a reader-friend $4.00 for it. After our initial shock we tasted it and found it was worth every nickel.

After you read my recipe for Walnut Apricot Torte which is a rich second cousin to a Hungarian Drum cake and recover after buying the ingredients, and then get right down to making and tasting it, I hope you, dear friends, will be glad. My idea in giving it to you is for your Easter Dinner dessert because of its beauty.

Have I alibi-ed enough?

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Dutch Veal Patties Casserole (see Monday); Baked Mixed Carrot and Parsnip Chunks; Bruised Celery; Relish Tray; Bread and Butter Pickles, Radishes, Olives; Pineapple Refrigerator Cake; Tea.

FRIDAY
(Good Friday)

Codfish Cakes; Creamed Cabbage; Hard-Cooked Egg Ring on Bed of Watercress (see Tuesday); Strawberry (fresh frozen) Cream Pie; Coffee.

WALNUT APRICOT TORTE

3 cups ground walnuts (buy 1 lb. broken pieces), ½ tea-spoon salt, 1 cup fine dry breadcrumbs (see note below), 9 large eggs, yolks and whites separated, 1 cup plus 2 table spoons sugar, 2 tablespoons grated orange rind (from 1 large orange), ¾ cup strained orange juice, 6 tablespoons sugar (second amount), 2 cups 32% cream, ¾ to 1 cup apricot jam, one 15-oz. can apricot halves, drained, 2 green maraschino cherries, drained and cut into quarters.

Grind the nuts in food grinder through finest knife (or chop in food blender—about ¾ lb. at a time—until as fine as possible) Add the salt and crumbs to the nuts and with a fork mix them together to break up the nut lumps which tend to pack because they are oily. In a very large mixing bowl beat the egg yolks with the first amount of sugar until very thick. Stir in the orange rind and juice. Beat the egg whites until foamy then add the second amount of sugar (6 tablespoons) and beat until whites are very stiff. Fold nut-crumb mixture alternately with beaten whites into yolk mixture until smoothly blended. Turn into 3 buttered and wax-paper-lined 8½" layer cake tins. (This batter will come nearly to top of tins and when it bakes it rises above rims, but subsides somewhat). Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. 30 to 40 minutes, testing cakes at centre with your finger tip to be sure centre is baked. Let cakes rest for 5 minutes before carefully turning out on cake racks and peeling off wax paper. (They are tender so don't be rough or in a hurry). Let cool. Whip the cream until stiff. Cut each cake into two layers, making 6 in all and put one layer on large beautiful serving plate. Spread with apricot jam and some whipped cream. Continue piling up and spreading each layer with jam and whipped cream until all are stacked. You should have half of the whipped cream left over. Spread top and sides with the whipped cream. Arrange a border of apricot halves round bottom edge, rounded side up. Cut 2 apricot halves in quarters and make 4 yellow "tulips" on top of cake, having green cutlets made from the maraschino cherry quarters.

Note: 1) This torte may be made 24 hours in advance, but if you do I would advise whipping only half of the cream and stacking the layers and storing in refrigerator. When serving time approaches whip remaining cream, spread on sides and top of torte, and apply apricot decoration. 2) It took me one full hour to make this but Roasted and ground my own breadcrumbs in that period of time.

ON FILE

Dear Susanna: To help your children (so they don't get needlec more than they have to!) and yourself and the school, and your doctor . . .

Make a section in your recipe file for your children — and then make out a recipe card with each child's name on a separate one showing the needles they received and the dates; the diseases they have; and hospital treatments where they get stitches and the resulting tetanus shots, etc.

Time and time again you will refer to this card for school and doctor reports. You are sure at the time that you'll remember who had what and when, but when you are asked a few dates and details just try to pull 'em out of your mind in a hurry and see how elusive they become.— Mrs. W. D. Hall.

KITCHEN HINT

Dear Susanna: My favorite kitchen hint is this: A small sponge, dampened in water, then placed on a piece of foil wrap, and the foil laid on top of 4 or 5 crisp or stale cookies in an air-tight tin, will soften the cookies and keep them that way. Turn up the edges of the wrap slightly, and keep sponge moist.

This method is much better than putting an orange or an apple in with cookies, as the cookies often take on the flavor of the fruit. I have kept a quantity of Christmas biscuits palatable this way for three or four months. — Mrs. G. Butterill

(If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope when requesting pamphlets).

ADOPTIONS MADE EASIER

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan adoption regulations are being eased, says Miss M. E. Battel, provincial director of child welfare. There are now no age limits and a year's residence is no longer a requirement. Also, children may be sent hundreds of miles across the province to a good home.

"Now, where are my false eyelashes?"

Sunday School Lesson

Treat Life as Immortal

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

A young man was seeing the Grand Canyon for the first time. As he gazed down into its cavernous depths, he remarked, "Something must have happened here." His remark was certainly one of the greatest understatements of all time. Something indeed had happened there to turn an ordinary river valley into one of the most spectacular natural wonders of the world.

In the light of the results in the lives of the disciples of Jesus, something tremendous happened following Jesus' death —something that convinced them that Jesus was alive again, something that turned their doubts into faith, their discouragement into a glorious hope, their cowardice into boldness, courage, and made Jesus, their leader, the Lord of the church.

The resurrection of Jesus became the very foundation of their faith and message. In his very first utterance following Pentecost, Peter declared of Jesus that "God raised Him up, having loosed the pangs of death, because it was not possible for Him to be held by it." (Acts 2:24 RSV) Paul made the resurrection of Jesus the keystone of his faith, declaring that Jesus was "designated Son of God in power . . . by His resurrection from the dead." (Romans 1:4 RSV) Christian martyrs faced death with songs on their lips because they believed the resurrection of Jesus assured them of their own life after death.

LIFE AFTER DEATH

To many people today, faith in life after death does not seem to be too important. This world offers so much, they are willing to forego heaven to enjoy its pleasures. They haven't time to think about the life to come. If they think about it at all, they seem to think that regardless of how they neglect the soul, in the end, as one writer puts it, "heaven will be dropped into their undeserving hands." They are like the man in Jesus' parable (Luke 12:16-20) who spent his life filling his barns until he could say, "Soul, you have ample goods laid up for many years; take your ease, eat, drink and be merry." He had been so busy providing for his stomach, he hadn't thought about his soul for years. Which was a tragic mistake, for God said, "Fool, this night your soul is required of you; and the things you have prepared, whose will they be?"

The story of the resurrection reminds us that life in this world is not the whole story. If the resurrection is true, then death is not the end of the play, but only the end of the first act. There is more, much more, to follow, and men dare not spend all their time thinking about the physical and material phases of life which are transient and temporal, and give no consideration to the spiritual side of life which is eternal. (II Corinthians 4:18)

LIFE'S GREATEST INCENTIVE

The Bible presents faith in life after death not only for our comfort, but as life's highest incentive for noble living. Paul argues for its reality in the 15th chapter of I Corinthians. He bases his hope squarely on the resurrection of Jesus. But he does not leave it there. He says, "Therefore . . . be steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, knowing that in the Lord your labor is not in vain." (I Corinthians 15: 58 RSV)

A builder once accepted a contract to build a house. In order to make more money than was his due, he put cheaper material in places where he thought it wouldn't show. When the house was completed, the owner, who was also a philanthropist, gave the house to the builder, and insisted that he live in it. The builder discovered he had shortchanged himself.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for April 18: "The Resurrection," Matthew 28.

If life is immortal, men need to treat it as such. One does not treat a Stradivarius violin as if it were a cheap fiddle to be discarded after it has been played a few times. And if personality survives the grave, men must not treat themselves or each other as if they were only living cells to be obliterated forever at death. If the soul lives on, men had better think about being ready to stand in the eternal presence of their Maker. It is also an answer to communism. If man is immortal, he is not just a physical creature to be used however the state sees fit to use him. He is a child of God, and must be respected and treated as such. To deny him his right to worship is to deny his rightful heritage as one who is made in the image of his Maker, and who, through prayer and dedication, must prepare to stand in the eternal presence of his God.

Ann Landers

Picked Up Poor English From Foreign-born Parents

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My boy friend is a high school senior. Butch is not the greatest student in the world but he's a terrific athlete and has a wonderful personality. My girl friends make fun of Butch because they say he talks like he was born in a foreign country.

He was born right here in Buffalo. His parents were born in Europe and they speak their native language at home. Butch pronounces certain words wrong but then nobody is perfect. He says "Babe Root" instead of "Babe Ruth," "dem" for "them" and "vacation" instead of "vacation." When he said "Walley Forge" in class everyone broke up.

ANN LANDERS

Should I correct Butch when he makes mistakes or would it be best to say nothing and hope that he catches on by himself? — BUTCH'S GIRL.

* * *

DEAR GIRL — A high school boy who says "Babe Root" and "Wally Forge" is not going to catch on by himself.

Speak to Butch privately about the words he mispronounces. He picked up these speech habits from his parents and it's going to take a lot of work to unlearn them.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our oldest son married too young although we begged him to wait. We have lent them money until we are almost broke ourselves. They have been married six years and have five children. In the past four years they've moved eight times. If it isn't trouble with the neighbors it's trouble with the landlord.

We own a large duplex. The family upstairs is moving to the coast. When our son and his wife heard this they announced that they were moving in.

I told them "Sorry, no." My husband is not well and he can't stand noise. Furthermore, my daughter-in-law is such a sloppy housekeeper it is better if I'm on the other side of town and don't see what goes on.

My son telephoned yesterday and cried. The landlady has given them notice and they have no place to go. Am I a terrible mother as my son says? I'm heartsick and miserable. — PEARL.

* * *

DEAR PEARL — If you think you are heartsick and miserable now just let that pack move in upstairs and you'll find out what heartsickness and misery are.

You are going to wind up on the street with this son and his wife, sooner or later, no matter what you do.

If this crybaby is man enough to father five children in six years he should not be slobbering on the phone and calling you names because you refuse to continue bailing him out of his financial problems.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I enjoy sending cards to my friends on their birthdays. It makes no difference whether they send me a card in return.

This morning I ran into a woman to whom I had recently sent a card. She was not alone but she stopped me and made a big thing out of thanking me. She said, "You're awfully nice to remember me year after year even though I never remember you on your birthday."

I tried to pass it over by saying her birthday was easy to remember because it fell on the same day as my sister's. Then came this biting insult, "Even if your birthday was the same day as mine I wouldn't remember to send a card!"

Why would a person make such a thoughtless and tasteless remark? — KANSAS CITY.

* * *

DEAR K.C. — People make thoughtless and tasteless remarks because they are thoughtless and tasteless.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

ST. JOSEPH'S C.W.I.

The annual meeting of St. Joseph's C.W.I. was held in the Parish Hall the second Monday of the month, President Mrs. C. Murphy opened the meeting with the league prayer.

The monthly reports were given. Mrs. E. Tugnett for Guides and Brownies informed the members of the departure of Guide Captain, Mrs. Olive Jarvah, and Mrs. E. Cassidy from St. Joseph's Guide Company 14, due to the transfer of their respective husbands from the city; also the resignation of Mrs. J. Eilard. This is a great loss to Company 14, which will be inactive in the fall unless a new captain can be obtained.

A report was given of the past year's activity by each member of the executive. Mrs. V. Muldoon chairman of the nominating committee presented the executive for 1965-66 as follows: president, Mrs. D. V. Duminie; past-president, Mrs. C. Murphy; 1st vice-president, Mrs. J. Eilard; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. J. Bibby; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. E. Clarke; recording secretary, Mrs. B. Beirne; treasurer, Mrs. George Whalen; corresponding secretary, Mrs. M. Barlow.

The new executive was installed by the Spiritual Director Right Rev. J. A. Carley.

On behalf of the members a past-president's pin was presented by Right Rev. Carley to Mrs. C. Murphy who graciously thanked the members for their wholehearted support and cooperation while in office.

Monsignor J. A. Carley addressed the ladies on the outstanding merits of the Catholic Women's League as the only National Catholic Women's organization and their achievements of the past, and gave a report of the spectacular from the league for the future.

Case for Higher Rates For Nursing Home Outlined

NAPANEE—A special meeting of Napanee council was held Monday, April 12, at which Mrs. McDonald of McDonald's Nursing Home, presented a brief to council to explain why she felt it necessary to raise the rates at her nursing home $15 a total of $180 a month. Mrs. McDonald explained that due to added government regulations and the minimum wage-law she finds it difficult to operate at the present rates charged. As Mrs. McDonald has only four patients from Napanee, many other communities are also involved. The Napanee council sympathizes with the problems of the nursing homes but feel that already the indigent cases cause much added work and expense for the welfare department and wonder how much further they can extend assistance. They realize the need is great for such homes and will make a decision after Mrs. McDonald hears from the other communities involved.

A licence will be issued to Mr. D. Caird for a nursing home as soon as a certificate from the Fire Marshal and one from the Medical Officer of Health accompany the request.

Mr. C. T. Smith, engineer for the town, presented a report to council in reference to the sewer line to be installed at the east end of town to service the Imperial Oil Co. service centre to be built on Highway 401. The Imperial Oil Co. will instal the sewer line to the town limits, and will pay 25% or $12,216 of the cost to instal a sewer line from Clarkesville under the river along King Street, to meet the town sewer line at Bridge Street, a cost of $36,649 to the town. This will also service the Clarkesville area and the property owners on the river front along King Street. Councillor Marshall asked that a rate be fixed for the people who will connect to this line.

Mr. Smith then included in his report to go to the Municipal Board that (a) a sewer connection charge be set up, based on annual rate per foot frontage, being 50% of actual cost of 1 foot of 8-inch sewer; (b) an equitable charge for use of 14-inch gravity sewer west of the river, any additional commercial establishments outside the town to pay to the town a portion of capital cost based on the volume of sewage. On a recorded vote this report was adopted unanimously.

Mr. Smith was given the authority to call for tenders subject to the approval of the Municipal Affairs Board.

Council also gave approval to the Public Utilities commission for an expenditure of $15,325 for water mains to service Clarkesville and the Imperial Oil service centre. On a recorded vote there was one dissenting vote.

The Tatham Co., is to be paid $500 held back until the project is completed, this was covered by a performance bond and this bond is to be enforced so that the driveways in question will be fixed properly.

A motion was passed to secure prices to build a manhole in the Rollins sub-division.

Councillor Marshall made a motion that the Sanitation and Waste committee ask Richmond Township council and representatives from the hospital board to meet with them to settle the sewage problem as no definite arrangement has been made to date.

Mr. C. T. Smith has been given approval to send a crew in to investigate possibilities of a sewer on Church St., and is to report to council whether it is feasible or not.

New Officers Nominated For C. of C.

NAPANEE — The Chamber of Commerce met April 12, at which time nominating committee brought in the slate of officers for the year as follows: president, Mr. William Morris; vice-president, Mr. Herbert Hayes; treasurer, Mr. W. Steinmas; secretary, Mr. E. Leaver.

A letter was received from Dr. P. M. Ellis of Leeds, England, stating, that as the Chamber of Commerce had been unsuccessful to date in locating a position for him with one of the doctors in Napanee, he has accepted a position in Saskatchewan. The chamber feels, perhaps, this is a loss to the town as Dr. Ellis' wife is a dental surgeon and this is a service needed greatly in the town.

The Chamber of Commerce is to meet with the town council, the industrial committee and Mr. Don Kingon of the Lake Ontario Development Association, this will be in the form of a dinner meeting to be held in May. The topic of discussion will be the promotion of industry for this area.

The members decided that the stores in Napanee will remain open until 9 p.m. Thursday evening a Friday is a holiday. The store hours will remain the same as usual on Saturday.

KKK Signs Ignored By Negroes

BOGALUSA, La. (AP) — Negro pickets, ignoring signs warning "the Ku Klux Klan is watching you," marched under the hot Louisiana sun at Bogalusa to demand equal job opportunities.

Police stood guard as they walked in front of midtown stores Wednesday. Segregationists staged a "buy in" and some whites crossed the picket lines, made purchases and waved them at the Negroes.

Officials announced the arrest of four white men on charges resulting from an attack on a column of Negro protest marchers last Friday. One of those arrested was charged with committing assault with a dangerous weapon on James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality.

In Washington, meanwhile, the House of Representatives voted 312 to 43 to give its committee on un-American activities $50,000 to start its investigation of the Ku Klux Klan.

DROP CHARGES

In Montgomery, Ala., the justice department dropped charges against a Birmingham man arrested after the March 25 civil rights slaying of a white housewife from Detroit.

U.S. Commissioner James H. Guttery signed an order dismissing a conspiracy charge against Gary Thomas Rowe, 35.

A justice department spokesman in Washington said dismissal of the charge was a routine action as the grand jury failed to indict Rowe. He was arrested with three other Birmingham area men after Mrs. Viola Liuzzo, 39, was shot to death from ambush near Lowndesboro, Ala.

The others were indicted on charges of violating the constitutional rights of civil rights demonstrators.

Alabama Attorney - General Richmond Flowers disclosed, meanwhile, that he plans to place the results of the state's investigation into the slaying before the Lowndes County grand jury next week. He has said that should the evidence warrant it, he would seek first-degree murder indictments.

In Kansas City, former president Harry S Truman defended his criticism of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Negro civil rights leader, saying, "He had it coming." Truman has called King a "trouble maker" and a "rabble rouser."

Govt. Prepared to Curtail Power of House of Lords

LONDON (CP)—While Prime Minister Wilson was promising to "knock hell" out of U.S. business competition in New York Wednesday night, his supporters were threatening to slam the stuffings out of the House of Lords in London.

The Lords handed Wilson's Labor government its third defeat in two days and Socialist ministers immediately put the word about that their lordships were going too far.

Wilson is prepared, if necessary, to pack the Lords with hundreds of new life peers if the Tory - dominated Upper House persists in delaying or amending legislation, senior ministers said.

Newspapers generally gave front - page splash display to Wilson's New York speech in which he told of a resurgent Britain eager to do battle with the giants of trade and "knock hell" out of U.S. bankers, financiers and industrialists in business competition.

There were also front - page accounts of the goings - on in the House of Lords where, for the second consecutive day, the Socialist government was humiliated by a dozen Tory peers.

By 28 votes to 24, the Conservatives pushed through an amendment to limit to three years the term of office of commissioners engaged in law reform.

Tuesday, Tory, Liberal and cross-bench peers decisively defeated the government — by 75 votes — on a bill to block compensation for an oil company that suffered heavy losses in Burma in the Second World War.

In all, there now have been six defeats of the government in the Lords since Wilson came to power last October and the new ones have added greatly to Labor's mounting anger at the delay to its heavy legislative program.

William Hamilton, a leading Labor backbencher from Scotland, plans to introduce a bill to abolish the Lord's power to hold up government measures for a year. He had asked Wilson earlier—to "liquidate" the Upper House.

Fewer than 700 are described as "active," however, and daily attendance in the Lords is generally about 140—so that even the so-called active aristocrats are not regular attenders.

Lord Gardiner, the Labor lord chancellor who presides over the Upper House, noted before the Wednesday vote that the lords had a "built - in majority of about 900 for the Tories but its function was limited to reviewing and revising of House of Commons legislation.

Wilson has appointed perhaps 20 life peers. It is thought that for him a threat to appoint new ones by the hundred would be an emergency move until the government could get a mandate for the wholesale reform of the Lords at a general election.

CAOUETTE RECOVERING

OTTAWA (CP) — Real Caouette is "doing fine" in hospital and his doctor expects the Creditiste party leader will leave hospital Friday, Mr. Caouette's office reported Wednesday. The 47-year-old Creditiste leader has been in hospital in neighboring Hull, Que., since he collapsed Monday in his House of Commons office.

Deaf Boy Lost For 18 Hours On NY Subway

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Pinckney is 12 years old and deaf. For 18 hours, he was penniless, frightened and lost on the subway system.

The story of his ordeal beneath the busy city's streets was told Wednesday.

It started Monday when Bobby, because of a school bus drivers strike, entered a Brooklyn subway station to ride to a school for the deaf in Manhattan.

He had left in time to meet schoolmates and travel with them. He missed the rendezvous and decided to go alone.

Bobby got off at the correct station, but became confused when he took the wrong exit and decided he had better return home. The subway token cost his last 15 cents.

He became hopelessly lost and rode and rode — small, hungry, scared and, because of his deafness, unable to speak clearly to obtain directions.

A transit authority patrolman noticed his plight about midnight and took him to a police station. There, Bobby wolfed down the food policemen gave him. He managed to make his identity known and was returned to his family about 1 a.m. Tuesday.

NEWSPAPER MAN DIES

FORREST, Ont. (CP)—Funeral service will be held here today for Arthur G. Ross, 80, a founder of the Dresden (Ont.) News. He died in a Sarnia hospital Monday. Mr. Ross was mechanical superintendent at the Calgary Herald before he and his son, Charles Arthur Ross, founded the Dresden weekly in the 1930s.

Young Lambs Gambol On Clint Brown's Farm, Stray Dogs Are Menace

The accompanying pictorial lambs' essay on the Shannonville district farm of Clint Brown, has that spirit-of-spring touch in just the right proportions.

While sheep ramble and lambs gambol and graze around the farmstead, all seems right with the world. In the distance the Bay of Quinte is thawing out, fed by tributary rivers and creeks now bursting at the seams with fresh torrents. The weather is bright and balmy.

For the Browns, and some of their sheep-raising neighbors, indignation is their first reaction when someone points and says: "Look at the pretty lambs, dear."

The fact the lambs are there at all is something of a minor triumph.

In recent months, sheep on local farms in the Shannonville-Point Anne district, have been falling prey to marauding dogs, the Browns claim.

So far they have lost a ram and three ewes, while their neighbors also have incurred losses.

Worse, the predatory attacks hastened the arrival of this season's lambs — all of whom were born prematurely.

"We didn't think we'd have any lambs until April 8," said Mrs. Brown. "They are a full two weeks ahead of time."

With normalcy upset, feeding problems have arisen.

Most of the new lamb arrivals now have to be bottle-fed. In such incidents, local townships compensate farmers for losses.

However, since the loss can only be a matter of estimate, compensation can never be considered wholly satisfactory.

26 Killed As Airliner Crash Lands

JERSEY, CHANNEL ISLANDS (Reuters)—A badly injured French stewardess was in hospital here today — the sole survivor of a British airliner crash that claimed 26 lives Wednesday night.

Miss Dominique Sillere, 23, of Paris, suffered two broken legs when a twi-engined DC-3 flying here from Paris crashed in thick fog on the edge of Jersey airport and burst into flames. Three other crew and all 23 passengers perished.

The plane of Jersey Airlines, an affiliate of British United Airways, was reported carrying a number of French, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese workers travelling to the island for agricultural work.

The bodies of victims were taken in ambulances to a temporary mortuary set up in an underground hospital built by the German army during its occupation of the island during the Second World War.

People living near the airport said the low-flying plane apparently tried to make two landing attempts in the fog.

Prisoner Hangs Self

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — A 36-year-old prisoner serving a 10-year term in Sherbrooke Jail was found Wednesday hanged by a rope apparently fashioned from a sheet in his cell.

Rodolphe Gaudreau, sentenced for store and bank robberies, was from Hull, Que., but none of his family is known, police said. He had been released on parole from an earlier 10-year sentence for armed robbery last October.

Boy, 16, Given 12-year Term For Stabbing

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — Maurice Devost, 16, was sentenced to 12 years imprisonment Wednesday for manslaughter in the stabbing death Nov. 29 of Marie Lavergne, 69, in nearby Cache Bay.

Whether or not he serves the full period of imprisonment will depend on the progress he makes, Mr. Justice J. M. King said.

"You can only do the best you can with the equipment you have, and I would hope that you will make progress," he told the youth, who stood quietly in the prisoner's box flanked by his defence counsel, Richard F. Donnelly and Spyros Loukidelis.

Devost was on trial for five days for capital murder before he pleaded guilty to manslaughter April 6.

The morning after he stabbed Mrs. Lavergne, Devost thought "something bad had happened to him but hoped it was all a bad dream," Sudbury psychiatrist William Surphlis said before Devost was sentenced.

The Stanley Cup "hometown-teams-always win" bubble has been burst. Canadiens' Claude Provost pricked it Tuesday night with his overtime winner in Toronto. And the pieces fell gently in an invisible shroud over the grave of Leafless hopes for a fourth cup in a row.

The big question in the minds of Chicago fans is "Can the Hawks emulate the Habs' feat in Detroit tonight?

Also, can the Chicago "Scooters" sudden return to scoring form offset the superior bench strength of Gordie Howe's sharpshooters?

The Windy City faithful says they can. The Motor City feels claim the win-away-from-home virus is not contagious.

Meanwhile down in Montreal the lovers-owning members of the Habs will enjoy a brief snappo-cappuccino respite, and keep an eye on tonight's battle of the giants.

Hawks' fans in this village walked today with expanded sternums after their Boys of Chicago smithies had poured over the Wings in a four-goal shootout flood. "Mikita scored" some of them warbled. The sudden soaring power of the third line brought glee to some sceptical minds.

And the sudden reversal of fate of the injury gremlins may have a powerful bit to do with the result of tonight's chips-down hassle. The pesky cranes rode herd on the Hawks during the latter part of the season, their ace mount being the knees of Bobby Hull.

During the semi-finals series they switched their attention to the Red Wings with the result that might swing the pendulum of victory.

But while the sudden resurgence in early season form has kindled the fires of hope in the Hawks' wigwams, clear thinking Chicago fans are not telling the Red Wings, the most consistent team of the season, short.

Desperation is one of the greatest fuels for the fires of victory. None knows better than Sid Abel that his Detroit Larger Gentlemen are on a tough spot in their clash with the fired-up Hawks. They'll be a tough crew to subdue tonight and if their reserve strength shoots par hockey it should be the classic struggle in the toughest series since the ancient pewterware was turned over to the pros.

Meanwhile, the senior citizens of the Leafs with their younger cohorts are back to the drawing boards, hockey schools, parliament, ambassadors-of-goodwill dashs and whatnot, moaning "That Was the Year that Wasn't" and wondering what the future holds for them.

There is talk that Allan Stanley, George Armstrong, "Red" Kelly and Johnny Bower won't be around next year, while Andy Bathgate, Eddie Shack and Don McKenzey paid for their scoring lethargy by gracing the bench in the Montreal series.

Johnny Bower and Shack, to give them credit, were the only Leafs to show some go-getters in one game, although Bower, the "Grandma of the Mask" objected strenuously to the Habs setting up light housekeeping on his doorstep at times.

Hawks, Wings Poised For 'It' Battle

BILLY REAY

By STERLING TAYLOR

DETROIT (CP)—As a long-time coach and general manager in Detroit, Jack Adams might be expected to favor the Red Wings in tonight's seventh and deciding game of their Stanley Cup semi-final against Chicago Black Hawks. But he'll be pulling strongly for a couple of guys in Chicago uniforms.

Adams is president of the Central Professional Hockey League and stoutly insists that his circuit is the best in minor professional hockey. And a couple of graduates from the two-year-old circuit may turn out to be key men in Chicago's bid to qualify for the cup final against Montreal Canadiens.

The two CPHL men are centres Phil Esposito and Fred Stanfield, both of whom spent last season with St. Louis Braves before making it a National Hockey League regulars this season. Esposito has scored two goals in the current series to date and Stanfield has one.

Their production isn't outstanding compared to Bobby Hull's seven-goal output for the Hawks or Norm Ullman's five for Detroit. But Chicago coach Billy Reay is hoping the rookie centres will come up with a big game in tonight's decider.

Esposito has already proven himself over the 70-game NHL schedule, scoring 32 goals—14 in the final half—and picking up 23 assists.

REAY SATISFIED

Stanfield came through with only seven goals and 10 assists during the season, but Reay is satisfied.

"Stanfield missed a lot of time because of an appendix operation," Reay said. "He's really only coming into his own now."

At Olympia Stadium Hull donned a goaltender's catching glove and caught shots in shoes and street clothes for brother Dennis, defenceman Doug Jarrett and forwards Camille Henry, Jack McKenzie and Chico Maki.

Meanwhile, the Wings arrived at their hideaway at Toledo, Ohio, Wednesday afternoon. Coach Sid Abel expects to have defencemen Doug Barkley and leftwinger Larry Jeffrey back in tonight's lineup.

Barkley suffered concussion in Sunday's game here and Jeffrey has been sidelined for several games with a recurring back injury.

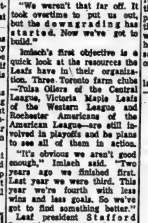
'We've Got to Build'

Imlach Tally-Ho's For Talent

TORONTO (CP) — Barely 36 hours after his Toronto Maple Leafs bowed out of the Stanley Cup playoffs, coach Punch Imlach left Toronto early today to start hunting for talent.

The three - time cup champions dropped their best - of-seven semi - final to Montreal Canadiens 4-2, losing the deciding game 4-3 in overtime here Tuesday night. Imlach's post-mortems Wednesday lacked bitterness.

"I am not putting the knock on anybody," he said. "They won three Stanley Cups for me and nobody gets a knock from me.



"We weren't that far off. It took overtime to put us out, but the downgrading has started. Now we've got to build."

Imlach's first objective is a quick look at the resources the Leafs have in their organization. Three Toronto farm clubs —Tulsa Oilers of the Central League, Victoria Maple Leafs of the Western League and Rochester Americans of the American League—are still involved in playoffs and he plans to see all of them in action.

"It's obvious we aren't good enough," Imlach said. "Two years ago we finished first. Last year we were third. This year we're fourth with less wins and less goals. So we've got to find something better."

Leaf president Stafford Smythe suggested that the overhaul would not necessarily need to be drastic.

"The main part of our team is all right but I think we have to rebuild our bench strength," he said.

PUNCH IMLACH

Commercial Softball League

An official of the Belleville Commercial Softball League said this morning, "We are confident of having at least six starters, despite the fact that no clubs would commit themselves at our first meeting last night."

Four or five possible entries were represented but most asked the executive to hold off listing them as definite starters at this time.

Another league meeting has been called for next Wednesday night, at eight o'clock. It will be held at the Recreation Centre if the building is available. This is being looked into today.

A spokesman said he was happy with the turnout, adding "If all those represented last night come back next Wednesday with an O.K. from their sponsors to go ahead, we are in business."

It was also pointed out that two possible entries, SACO and Tee-Hear Daubers, were tied up with hockey playoffs last night and did not attend the softball meeting.

Lose to Buffalo 3-1

Floaters Beat Bears

HERSHEY, Pa. (CP) — The goaltenders' nightmare, a long, bouncing shot that changes direction, caught up with Claude Dufour Wednesday night.

Two floaters got past the Hershey goaltender as the Bears took a 3-1 beating from Buffalo Bisons that left them within a game of elimination from the Calder Cup playoffs.

The Bisons, runners - up in the American Hockey League's Western Division during the regular season, were trailing their Eastern Division counterparts 1-0 in the third game of their best - of - five semi - final when Pat Hannigan's 55-footer hopped by Dufour to tie the score at the seven-minute mark of the first period.

It happened again 19 minutes later. With Hershey defenceman Adam Keller serving a penalty, the Bears' goaltender was fooled by a 40 - foot shot from Jerry Meinyk that bounced 10 feet in front of him.

PLAY FOXY TRICK

KILLAMARSH, England (CP) — The Barlow Hunt had almost caught up with a fox in the Yorkshire countryside when it ran off across what appeared to be a pool. When the hounds tried to follow, they found it was a pool of tar, not water. The fox watched the huntsmen pull out the unfortunate animals, then walked slowly into a nearby wood.

BAGS COST TOO MUCH

MONTREAL (CP) — Plastic bags for garbage collection would save the city 15 per cent, but would cost householders $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 a year extra. Roads director Jean Arpin recently decided it would be too costly for most people to change to plastic garbage bags, after a three-month survey of their use.

'Don't Care Who, Ready', Says Blake

Calls Two Rearguards

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) — There's an old saw in professional sport which has the kindly coach declaring no preference regarding the opponent his team draws for the pennant, series or cup final.

Toe Blake, Montreal Canadiens coach, ran true to form Wednesday as his Habs waited for the Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks to play the seventh and deciding game of their Stanley Cup semi - final at Detroit.

Blake's charges earned a four-day respite by eliminating the Maple Leafs 4-3 in overtime at Toronto Tuesday night in the sixth game of their semi-final series.

Blake said Wednesday he didn't care whether his team met Detroit or Chicago in the final. He was more concerned with obtaining a replacement for all-star defenceman Jacques Laperriere, shelved for the season with a fractured left ankle in Tuesday's contest.

Canadiens won six, lost three and tied five with the Hawks during the season while they won four, lost eight and tied two games with the Wings.

"Sure we've had a better record against Chicago this year," Blake agreed. "But don't forget Detroit are hurt very badly right now."

PLAGUED BY INJURIES

The Montreal coach was referring to the injury jinx which has plagued the league-champion Wings since the playoffs series began.

If the Wings win tonight the Canadiens journey to Detroit for Sunday and Tuesday games.

If it's a Montreal - Chicago playoff, the Hawks visit Montreal Saturday and Tuesday.

With Laperriere out, two rearguards from the Canadiens' farm system will practice with the big team today.

Jean Gauthier from the Omaha Knights and Bryan Watson of Quebec Aces will be on hand as will Noel Picard who joined the Habs during the closing weeks of the regular schedule.

Picard, a big but somewhat slow defender, has a good point shot and could possibly help on the power-play.

Gauthier had several chances with the parent club and was an all-star with the Knights of the Central Pro League this season. Watson appeared with the Habs before being sent to the American Hockey League Aces for seasoning.

Belleville's minor hockey teams are taking full advantage of Easter holidays to participate in various tournaments across the country.

Besides the Biteways' participating in the big Brampton Novice tourney, both Oddfellow clubs from this city, the bantams and midgets, are also entered in week-long elimination affairs.

The Trenton tournament gets under way with Belleville and Cobourg clashing at 7.00 o'clock Monday morning. The grand championship game is slated to complete the duel next Friday.

Entries are: Belleville, Cobourg, Bowmanville, Gananoque, Whitby, St. Margarette's, Kingston, Scarborough, Brampton, Ajax, Trenton, Milton, Orillia, Ottawa (4), Toronto (4), Georgetown, Stamford, Riverside, Don Mills, Etobicoke, Lindsay and Hawkesbury.

Winners of each game advance in the championship round while losers drop to the "B" series. The "A" and "B" winners wind it up on Friday.

Names of entries in the Georgetown bantam tournament were not available here but 40 teams are said to be taking part.

That tourney gets under way on Good Friday with the grand final ending it one week later, on April 23.

Centres meet in two-game, goals-to-count series in each round and as long as a team wins it keeps playing.

It was unknown here yesterday as to what day Belleville will start play, or who will supply the Oddfellows' first opposition.

HARDING CITED

May Change 'Hockey Night In Canada'

TORONTO (CP) — Saturday night hockey, a Toronto tradition since Maple Leaf Gardens opened its doors in the early 1930s, may be disrupted if the National Hockey League succeeds in making a deal with a United States television network.

"We wouldn't mind giving up a few dates, if it means getting television exposure in the United States," Gardens president Stafford Smythe said Tuesday.

Eight years ago, when a U.S. network experimentally telecast NHL games on Saturday afternoons, the Leafs were non-participants because of their Saturday night commitments. Lack of competitive variety was blamed for failure of the experiment.

Smythe said the games pushed basketball out of the ratings but were unable to attract a sponsor. The NHL now has installed Fred Cureton, a former professional golf official, as promotion consultant in New York and is confident that financial support will be forthcoming in its current venture.

'Cardenal ' Steals Chance, Ford Debuts

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cardinal or Cardenal. Either way it seems to spell trouble for New York Yankees.

The American League champions, who had trouble with 25 Cardinals from St. Louis last October, ran into considerable difficulty with one Cardenal from St. Louis last October, when they opened their relationship with one Cardenal from Los Angeles Wednesday night as they lost to the Angels 4-3.

Stealing the spotlight from the expected duel between Juan Chance, the league's Most Valuable Pitcher of 1964, and ace left-hander Whitey Ford of the Yankees, Cardenal connected for his first major league homer as the leadoff hitter and later started the Angels' winning rally.

By that time both Chance and Ford had left.

Chance lasted six innings before he was lifted for a pinch hitter after allowing five hits and two runs while walking five men. Ford, meanwhile, was touched for eight hits and two runs in 5 1-3 innings.

The two runs were the first the Yankees had scored off Chance in 25 innings.

On another front, Baltimore Orioles handed Chicago White Sox their first loss in some 6½ months. The White Sox won their last seven games of the 1964 season and their 1965 opener before Milt Pappas shut them out 6-0 on six hits.

There was only one other game played in the American League, Washington Senators whipping Boston Red Sox 6-4 on Don Blasingame's key triple. The Cleveland at Kansas City and Detroit at Minnesota games were rained out.

Cardenal, a right - handed swinger with one hit in 29 previous major league games coming into the season, collected two in the Angels' opener Tuesday and doubled his production again with a 4-for-5 performance against the Yankees.

With the Angels trailing 3-2 in the seventh, Cardenal singled off Hall Reniff to get the winning rally started. Another single by Willie Smith and Jim Fregosi's two-run double did the rest of the damage.

The two Yankee runs off Chance were provided by Tom Tresh, who smashed a homer following a fifth inning walk to Ford.

Pappas, who missed the opening - day assignment because of a sore elbow, kept the White Sox from putting more than one man on base in any inning.

He also scored the only run he needed by doubling in the third inning against Joe Horlen and coming around on a single by Paul Blair and Louis Aparicio's double-play grounder.

Blasingame's two-run triple, over the head of centre-fielder Lennie Green, capped a three-run outburst in the seventh inning that won it for the Senators against ace Red Sox reliever Dick Radatz. Willie Kirkland's double and a single by Jim King tied it before Blasingame slammed his game-winner.

Homers were hit by both starting pitchers — Boston's Earl Wilson and Washington's Buster Narum.

CZECHS TURN PRO

PRAGUE (AP) — Pavel and Eva Roman, brother and sister who four times won the world ice dance championship, were given permission by Czechoslovakian authorities to turn professional Wednesday. They will join a United States ice skating show. The Romans will be the only admitted pro athletes from behind the Iron Curtain.

Ter-Haar SACO All Even

Ter-Haar Daubers pushed the Quinte Hockey League finals to a seventh and deciding game last night by edging SACO in a 2-1 squeaker here.

Tied 3-3 in games now, the clubs will settle the issue at Memorial Arena tonight at 7.30.

The Daubers grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first period and each club scored once in the middle frame. Then came the scoreless third.

Don Forsythe collected SACO's lone marker, on a solo effort, for the 2-1 score—but that was it.

Ter-Haar stayed away from penalties, getting only two minors, one in each of the first and third periods. SACO drew seven penalties, all minors.

Two-bits Pirates in Debut

Dodgers' Osteen Antidote For Arm Ache

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Claude Osteen went eight years without a victory and five years with a losing record in the National League.

Now, in less than two hours, he's removed both blights at a time when Los Angeles Dodgers needed no antidote for a serious arm ache they have developed this spring.

Osteen, making his first appearance since his acquisition from Washington Senators last winter, pitched a two-hitter in the Dodgers' 3-1 triumph over Pittsburgh Pirates Wednesday night.

When the Dodgers obtained him in the seven - player deal that sent Frank Howard to the Senators, they hoped Osteen would be able to fill in for Johnny Podres if the veteran southpaw failed to come back from a sore-armed 1964.

But now it appears Osteen may have to take over the heavier left-handed load from Sandy Koufax and his arthritic elbow.

HAD LOSING RECORD

Osteen's return to the National League ends a four-year absence. In between he spent three seasons and part of a fourth compiling a losing record with Washington.

The 25 - year - old lefty began his major league career with Cincinnati back in 1957. In 26 games with the Reds from then through 1961, his only decision was a loss in 1960.

His first victory was a sterling performance. Through 8 2-3 innings he allowed only one hit, Jim Pagliaroni's fifth - inning double off centre-fielder Dick Smith's glove.

After that hit, Osteen retired 13 consecutive Pirates before Bob Bailey connected for his second homer of the season with two out in the ninth.

In other NL games, San Francisco Giants downed Philadelphia Phillies 5-2, Chicago Cubs defeated St. Louis Cardinals 7-3 and Houston Colts nipped New York Mets 7-6 in 11 innings.

Ron Turcotte Gets Mount

First Derby For Jockey

By KEN PRITCHARD

NEW YORK (CP)—The stars in Ron Turcotte's eyes glow brighter than ever these days.

The 23 - year - old Canadian jockey, who five years ago was a lumberjack in northern New Brunswick, has been assigned to ride Tom Rolfe, rated among the three or four top three-year-olds which will start in the Kentucky Derby May 1.

Turcotte, who has never seen a derby except on television, thinks he has a good chance to wind up in the winner's circle.

Tom Rolfe is from the stable owned by Raymond Guest, U.S. ambassador to Ireland.

Last Saturday at Laurel, Tom Rolfe and Turcotte came from behind to win the Chesapeake Stakes, making it three victories for Tom Rolfe in four starts this year. As the other derby starters, Guest's three - year-old will run 1¼ miles for the first time May 1.

DANCER WON

Last year, E. P. Taylor's Canadian - bred Northern Dancer won the race and captured the Preakness before being beaten in the Belmont Stakes, the third of the famed triple - crown events for three-year-olds.

Taylor has two nominees this year — Native Victor and Victory Myth. But neither is likely to start.

Nor is Flyalong, nominated by D. B. Weldon of London, Ont., and Tom Hayes of Oakville, Ont. Flyalong finished fourth in the Flamingo Stakes in Florida.

Turcotte has ridden more than 700 winners for purses totalling more than $2,500,000.

The five-foot-one, 110-pound jockey earned about $170,000 in jockey fees and purse shares (the jockey customarily gets 10 per cent of the purse) in 1964.

His first job was with Windfields Farm, owned by Taylor. He was hired to clean stalls and walk horses.

HAD 825 MOUNTS

At Fort Erie, April 9, 1962, he rode in his first race on Pheasant Ring. He had 825 mounts that year, of which 180 won, 146 placed second, and 128 were third.

In 1963 he was up 1,135 times with 263 firsts, 172 seconds and 141 thirds.

He began free-lance riding in the U.S. in the fall of 1963.

In 1964 he rode 1,463 mounts. He was first 250 times, second 229 and third 215 and earned $1,282,264 for the owners of the horses. He had 50 winners last October and November at Aqueduct here.

He went to Florida for the winter and although given only ordinary horses to ride, picked up a number of winners.

Turcotte, 23-year-old jockey from Grand Falls, N.B., has booted home more than 700 winners and earned owners around $2,500,000 in purses in just three years of riding. A former pulp mill worker who broke into the racing game as a stable hand at Toronto Woodbine, he was tied for fourth in wins in the United States in 1964. (CP Photo)

The Tracks

FORT ERIE (CP)—Warriors Day returned to the racing wars Wednesday at Fort Erie in the seventh race and staged a battle royal with Windkin before winning the six-furlong Kenmore Purse.

The victory was the first of the 1965 season for Major Conn Smythe and trainer John (Yonnie) Starr.

Warriors Day, a five-year-old gelding, handled the distance in 1.11 4-5, two seconds off the track mark, and returned $9.20, $4.40 and $3.50.

Clouted Homer

Ron Fairly and Maury Wills led the Dodger attack. Fairly socked a two-run homer in the fifth inning while Wills stole three bases, giving him five in two games.

Ron Santo, with home runs in the fourth and eighth, and George Altman, with one in the seventh, helped keep the world champion Cardinals within less this season. The Cubs' Dick Ellsworth scattered 10 hits for the victory.

Willie Mays hit his second homer in two games, a two-run blast off Jim Bunning in the third inning that started the Giants on their way. Wes Covington slammed a two - run homer for the Phillies.

Houston erupted for four runs in the 11th inning on two errors, three walks, two wild pitches by Larry Bearnarth. Ron Brand's bunt single and Al Spangler's steal of home.

The Mets, who had tied the game 3-3 on Chris Cannizzaro's homer in the ninth, struck back for three runs in their half of the 11th, but that's all they could get.

Willie Springs Spring

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—National League pitchers got the word this week that spring is here and it wasn't robin red breast but Willie Mays who tipped them off.

The 34-year-old San Francisco Giants outfielder is off to another of those patented fast starts. The season is only three days old and he is hitting .417, has two home runs and is chasing down fly balls like a rookie.

The Giants defeated Philadelphia Phillies 5-2 Wednesday for their first victory of the 1965 season after two losses at Pittsburgh. Mays started things in the third inning with a two-run homer off Jim Bunning. He had two hits, drove in two and scored a pair.

The home run was the 455th of Mays' sensational career and sent him one ahead of Mickey Mantle in the career home run derby among active players.

Informed he had passed the New York Yankees star, Willie smiled, then remarked: "That won't last long."

No wheels! Toro's new Flymo handles like no other mower can . . . because it floats on air. A light push and Toro's new Flymo goes where you want it to go. Back and forth. Side to side. Straight ahead. The most revolutionary idea since power mowing began. Flymo floats on a cushion of air, just like the military hovercraft. As safe and easy to use on hills and terraces as it is on level lawns. No other mower can . . . because it floats on air.

FLOATS ON AIR. A whirling impeller spins a ring of air that supports the Flymo only ¾" above the ground. Floats so low . . . it glides under shrubs and bushes. Height of cut easily adjusted for ¾, 1 and 1¾ inches.

New Toro mower floats on air!

Manager Once Paid Station To Put Welk on Air

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Just 11 years ago, Sam Lutz, manager of Lawrence Welk, paid a local television station $200 to put the Welk band on the air.

Now Lawrence Welk, who has missed but one Saturday night on TV since, grosses $4,000,000 a year.

That puts Welk up among the titans of show business—along with Frank Sinatra, Jerry Lewis, Cary Grant and others.

"And everybody who associates with Welk makes money," says Lutz. "Myron Floren and his accordion gross better than $100,000 a year on personal appearances. And The Lennon Sisters average around $350,000. Welk is a Hollywood oil well."

"I was a special service office in Chicago and Lawrence was playing at the Aragon Ballroom. Every time we put on a show for servicemen, Welk was the first to volunteer his band.

"I could see how popular he was in Chicago and the midwest. After the war, I brought him out here and put him in another Aragon Ballroom at Santa Monica.

'WAS A NATURAL'

"The crowds came. Television, in those days, was just getting good. I figured Lawrence was a natural for TV.

"But it was tough selling him. Big bands were passe and I couldn't get Klaus Landsberg, head of channel five, on the phone.

"Finally, one day he got on the phone. He said he would try Lawrence for one show provided we paid the musicians—about $200.

"The Welk band was only on the air 15 minutes before the KTLA switchboard started lighting up. Before the show was finished, Landsberg was ready to talk business.

French Girls Start Using Perfume at Age of 16

By JACK RUTTON

"Girls have noses, you know. Why shouldn't a fellow put shaving lotion on his face — even if he isn't shaving yet?"

"When should girls start wearing perfume? Well,every French mother I know starts teaching her daughter to use fragrance before the age of 16."

The above two opinions were offered to your faithful reporter this week by a lady who should know, Miss Herta de Kreith, a French-Swiss blonde with an international reputation as an expert on perfumes.

A graduate of L'Institut de Beauté de Paris, Miss de Kreith now spends all her time travelling around North America for a large company, offering training courses to the ladies you see behind the counters.

FOLLOWS HIS NOSE

Curious to find what Miss de Kreith thinks of the rising generation, I sought her out moments before her evening course was due to begin. (It wasn't difficult. I simply went to the most pleasant-smelling woman in the room.)

"I'm delighted every time I meet a college or high school girl at a perfume counter," said Miss de Kreith. "Their instincts and basic tastes are always good."

Miss de Kreith turned her right hand palm upward in a Gallic gesture and I was conscious of a gentle wave of scent as she continued. "The way some girls dress today they have to use perfume to set them apart."

"After all, blue jeans or slacks aren't exclusively feminine. But a woman who wears perfume is feminine, regardless of what she is wearing. And girls instinctively know that. A Parisienne girl of 16 wouldn't dream of leaving her house without applying perfume."

FOR THE BOYS

What about the fellows, I asked. How long would a 15-year-old fellow last on the basketball team if he took her advice about wearing scent?

"Ah, but don't misunderstand me," said Miss de Kreith. "Of course a male does not wear perfume. But I see nothing wrong with cologne for men. If I had my way, every man would use cologne or some type of shaving lotion.

"And the world would be a better smelling place for it," she added.

"I visited a class recently," said Miss de Kreith, "where the boys were obviously prepared to laugh at the idea of scent. I asked how many of them were shaving. Two put up their hands then a third. Finally, a fourth boy, whom I didn't believe, put up his hand too.

GOOD GROOMING

"I asked whether they used shaving lotion and all four looked startled. Then they began to ask questions and the whole class joined in. I think I convinced them that using a watered-down scent like cologne isn't sissy. It's simply a question of good grooming.

"And why shouldn't they put on a bit of shaving lotion before they're actually shaving? They are not hurting anyone and they are certainly making things more pleasant for others."

Miss de Kreith, I discovered, has a way of using history to back up her points. I hadn't known, for instance, that the word "perfume" is derived from Latin — "per" meaning "through" and "fumum" meaning "smoke."

She went on to early days when perfume meant incense burned to give a pleasant odor.

CLEOPATRA

Cleopatra (no, not Elizabeth Taylor) is given a great deal of credit for spreading interest in perfumes. She used fragrant ointments and liquid oils in her bath, a habit which spread to Greece and Rome.

Queen Elizabeth of Hungary is supposedly the woman responsible for the type of perfume we know today — perfume oils blended with an alcoholic solution. It was created at her command in the 14th Century.

And a final note for science-minded readers. How is fragrance created? How does it get into flowers? That, like the charm of a woman, is still one of the secrets nature has kept to itself.

MADOC

Many Items Discussed At Meeting

MADOC — The regular meeting of Madoc council was held in the council chambers. Present were: Reeve Thomas Burnside; councillors Bruce White, Olive Asbe, R. F. Dafoe, C. R. Hagerman.

A number of items were discussed and included:

"That all accounts have been signed by the respective chairmen, that they be paid, also those paid during the month be ratified.

"That the clerk be authorized to write the Bell Telephone Co. Ltd., and issue voucher to move poles as per letter from J. D. Lee Company.

"That the following correspondence be read and filed: Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Madoc Community Centre, Deputy Minister of Highways, J. D. Lee and Co. Ltd. (3), Ontario Water Resources Commission.

"That council adopt daylight saving time in the village of Madoc as of April 25th, 1965, to October 25th.

"That council request the local Hydro Commission to remove the street light at the east end of Seymour St., moving it to the opposite side of the street."

Reeve Burnside reported at length of a meeting he recently attended in Toronto with the Minister of Health, Dr. Dymond and the Minister of Municipal Affairs, W. J. Spooner, and Mr. C. T. Rollins, MPP Hastings East.

Meeting was adjourned.

NEED SECOND JOBS — There is an active artists colony on the West Coast but most of the young artists can afford only part-time devotion to their private studio work. Dennis Badgley, 27, (left), completing an oil at home, works a full shift in the CBC's television graphics department. Larry Foden (right), displaying prints, augments his income by teaching art. (CP Photo)

Artists' Dilemma
Work-a-day Problems Take Inspiration Toll

VANCOUVER (CP) — The young artist on the West Coast is no gaunt Bohemian toiling in poverty, consoled in his attic studio by the girl he cannot afford to marry.

Most young artists pushing into prominence here not only have wives but one or more children as well.

The catch is that they must work for a living, at jobs that take a varying toll of inspiration and energy.

Of eight who talked about themselves in recent interviews, five had been fortunate enough to find jobs closely allied to their art.

Dennis Badgley, 27, says the CBC's television graphics department is the "only place I know where I could have complete freedom." The drawings he produces for the screen complement his studio indulgence in oils.

Yet Badgley had to struggle for three years waiting for the opening in graphics while he lugged props from set to set, sometimes getting home so late and so exhausted that for weeks he would lose the desire to paint. He now has his bold works in two important private collections.

Victor Miles is another reasonably content artist working for the CBC, where set-designing helps his artistic sense. Miles creates his studio by rolling back the living room carpet after his three children are asleep.

MATERIALS EXPENSIVE

Horse Zander, 31, turns from 40 hours a week of hairdressing to bleak, surface-obsessed abstracts in his basement studio.

Winnipeg-born David Mayre than $800, about average for the group.

Clive Daly has given up a full-time design job but still needs part-time work to support his wife and children while he concentrates on canvases closely related to certain aspects of pop art.

None of the eight would hesitate to quit their jobs if they could earn a living as artists. That is their goal.

"Sure, my job means eight hours a day of being creative," says Dennis Badgley. "But it's creating for someone else, not for myself."

Students Kept Home By Parents

SASKATOON (CP)—Children kept from Saskatoon separate schools to protest a Saskatchewan law which says classroom instruction must be given in English will remain out until the act is amended, a spokesman said Wednesday.

Ernest Bourgault, 45, one of 6 French-speaking group which kept its children home Wednesday, said "there may well be penalties for taking children out of school, but we will have to risk it."

Separate school officials said 62 students were kept home Wednesday. Most of the children were in primary grades.

The Saskatchewan School Attendance Act provides a possible fine of $10 a day for parents who refuse to send children between seven and 16 years of age to school except for reasons of health or disability.

The local attendance officer has the authority to decide whether such action should be taken.

No protest has been received from the group, Education Minister Trapp said Wednesday. He said he cannot condone the method used by the parents to gain recognition of their protest.

"I have always thought it to be wrong to use children to obtain an objective of this kind," he said.

FOREIGNERS ONLY — The finest supermarket in Moscow is out of bounds for Russians, including this shopper. In top photo she leaves the store as the request of a guard inside the door. At bottom she surveys the variety of goods that seldom find their way into ordinary Moscow shops. The "dollar store" sells only to people with one of 14 non-Russian convertibe currencies. The aim is to capture some of the foreign exchange spent in export houses abroad by foreigners based in Moscow. (CP Photo)

Decadent Capitalists Only!

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — The little Muscovite women with the shopping bags they always carry approach the smarty-appointed grocery store and gaze at it in wonder and uncertain expectation.

They watch foreigners step out of diplomatic limousines and swagger into the store with a proprietary air. But if the Muscovite women try to enter themselves they are motioned away by a sharp-eyed man posted just inside the door, whose job it is to separate foreigners from Russians.

If they don't get the message their attention is drawn to a sign in the vestibule of the store listing 14 convertible currencies accepted there. Russian money is not one of them.

The women, in a cloudy way, now begin to understand and they go away.

This is Moscow's swankiest shopping establishment, opened Feb. 10 and already dubbed "the dollar store." It represents an attempt by the Soviets to capture some of the hundreds of thousands of dollars in foreign exchange spent annually by Moscow-based foreigners in export houses abroad, notably in Copenhagen, Stockholm and Helsinki.

BUY FOR MUCH LESS

To compete, the store offers prime Russian foods at a fraction of the amount they cost Soviet citizens. For exemple sugar in the dollar store costs 21 kopecks for a half-kilogram —just over a pound—whereas in Russian stores it costs 47 kopecks.

Rice costs 34 kopecks a kilo compared with 88 kopecks in Russian stores; 200 grams of butter—just under a half-pound —77 kopecks compared with 72.

Under the official exchange rate a Canadian dollar is worth 94 kopecks. That is the rate at which a Canadian living here buys Russian money to meet his day-to-day expenses.

Yet at the same bank where he purchases local currency at this disadvantageous rate, the Canadian, with dollars, can buy coupons good only at the dollar store. These coupons implicitly recognize the superior value of the dollar by giving the holder access to the specially priced goods at the store, located just off Kutuzovsky Prospect in Moscow's west end.

SERVICE IS POLITE

The customer can also pay for his purchases with currency or with travellers' cheques.

Many products are available at the store—such as bananas and fresh pineapple—which are seldom seen in city shopping places. In addition to Russian products the establishment also sells foreign liquor and tobacco; American cigarettes cost 20 kopecks a pack.

The sales girls, smartly dressed in blue-and-white or pink-and-white uniforms, are polite and accommodating. At most Moscow stores, rudeness is a trademark of sales personnel.

Though the store is for foreigners, a few Russians find their way into it. These are Russians whose work brings them into association with foreigners, such as interpreters, or the occasional Russian correspondent for foreign publications who gets paid in dollars.

"Such a variety and so cheap," exclaimed one Russian working woman on first seeing the fare displayed in the shop. "Look at the quality . . ."

RED RIVER EDGES TO FLOOD LEVELS

Crewman Dead, 47 Injured In CPR Derailment

Crack Passenger Train Hits Track Washout

TERRACE BAY, Ont. (CP)—The Canadian Pacific Railway's crack passenger train, the Canadian, was derailed early today when it hit a washout three miles east of this north shore Lake Superior community.

A railway baggage man was killed and 47 passengers were reported to have suffered some injuries. Four were admitted to hospital here.

Names of the injured persons were not immediately available.

ROLLS DOWN BANK

A report from the scene said the derailed cars rolled down a bank about 125 feet deep. The accident occurred about 1:15 a.m. EST.

A CPR spokesman in Winnipeg said the two diesel locomotives and nine cars, including a baggage car, left the rails and all but one car rolled down the bank. Five cars remained on the rails.

An auxiliary crew with a crane and flat car was sent from Fort William, about 110 miles west of here. Cars remaining on the tracks were towed back to Schreiber, nine miles west of Terrace Bay.

Work crews, using cutting torches where necessary, did not get the last of the passengers from the smashed cars until about 7 a.m. They were hampered by deep snow, remnants of a heavy winter fall which remains in the northern bush.

Engineer Austin Cosgrove and Fireman Harold McFarland, both of Schreiber, were uninjured.

Doctors, nurses and ambulances were called from the nearby communities of Schreiber and Marathon. Corridors of the Terrace Bay Hospital were lined throughout the night with passengers awaiting treatment for injuries mostly cuts and abrasions.

DOCTORS HELP

Rescuers reported aided by several doctors among the train's passengers.

The CPR spokesman said it is hoped to have the tracks repaired by Sunday night. CPR crews will be rerouted on the Canadian National Railways lines in the interim.

He described the cause of the derailment as a cave-in, apparently caused by melting snow.

Cpl. W. M. Duncan of the provincial police at Schreiber said about 70 feet of track was washed out.

Cpl. Duncan said "by the looks of the derailment it came out lucky. It was very fortunate that injuries were as few as they were."

Cpl. Duncan said there were between 350 and 375 persons on RIVER RISING — The Red River, swollen by spring run-off, edges towards homes at Morris, Man., 30 miles south of Winnipeg. Premier Duff Roblin said "very serious" flooding might force the evacuation of two-thirds of the community of 1,400. Residents have already started moving furniture, grain and livestock as a precaution.

200 Held In Seoul After Riots

SEOUL (AP) — Scores of policemen and demonstrators were injured today as riots continued for the fifth straight day in opposition to establishing diplomatic relations with Japan.

More than 200 youths were arrested. A series of street battles began after 10,000 persons poured into the streets denouncing President Chung Hee Park's alleged concessions in his efforts to establish normal diplomatic ties with Japan.

Growing concern was felt in government circles over the worsening bloody demonstrations, in which hundreds of police and students have been injured. The death of one student served to intensify the violence.

Police used clubs to disperse one group of about 500 black-uniformed students who staged a sit-down in front of the Capitol, where Park has his office.

Tear gas was used to break up an attempt by another group of 1,500 boys to march downtown.

National police announced that 290 policemen were injured in Friday's rioting by more than 6,000 university students. Police said 40 of the injured were in serious condition.

Students and opposition politicians claimed the dead student was clubbed to death by police. Home Minister Yang Chan-wook said Kim was injured in a student quarrel.

Two-car Crash Kills 2 Teens, Injures Six

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Two teen-agers were killed and six persons injured in a two - car crash that followed a high speed chase in Owen Sound Friday night.

Dead are: Garry Marshall, 19, and Faye Thomson, 18, both of Markdale about 20 miles south of here.

Kenneth Smith, 27, of Oakville, was in critical condition in General Marine Hospital.

Also in hospital and in serious condition were Robert Harvey, 21, Oakville; Lawrence Calce, 22, Toronto; Glen Hill, Markdale; and Sharon Rae, 17, of Holland Centre.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A mixture of wet snow and rain will continue from the Dakotas to Lake Huron this morning and will continue moving across southern Ontario today. As storms move eastward below Lake Erie the unsettled nature of developing weather picture will continue. Showers are likely to mar the Easter parade on Sunday in lower lakes regions although the extreme southwestern corner of this part of the province could very easily move into quite warm air. Near Lake Ontario, however, off-lake breezes will keep the weather chilly. Elsewhere in the province, mostly cloudy, cool weather may be expected Easter Sunday.

Workers Charge Police

BOGALUSA, La. (AP)—Charges from civil rights workers that police failed to control insults and harassments of pickets and that men wearing Ku Klux Klan hoods were seen at a jail have contributed to racial tension here.

Negro leaders accused police Friday of failing to control insults and harassment of civil rights pickets at midtown stores.

A. Z. Young, 43, president of the Bogalusa Civic and Voters League, said he complained that a city ordinance forbidding unnecessarily loud, offensive, insulting language was not enforced against the whites.

Police Chief Claxton Knight said an investigation of the complaint showed all reports were negative.

Negro leaders rejected a plea by Mayor Jesse H. Cutrer that an Easter recess be called in the picketing.

A Negro civil rights worker, Charles Williams, 23, of Bogalusa, said Friday he had encountered men wearing Ku Klux Klan hoods when he was jailed Thursday on charges of vagrancy and disturbing the peace.

A three-judge federal court at Mobile ordered Sheriff James G. Clark of Dallas County (Selma, Ala.) to cease using civilian members of the county posse to police racial matters.

In separate orders, U.S. District Judge Daniel H. Thomas dissolved a state court injunction banning illegal meetings, obstruction of justice and assembly of three or more persons on a public street or in a public place in Selma. Thomas also dismissed charges against

Observance of Passover Comes in Easter Season

By AP-Reuters

Christians around the world prepared today for a joyous Easter while Jews continued the observance of Passover, the most ancient of Jewish festivals.

Holy Saturday services were held in many churches throughout the world.

Pope Paul, spiritual leader of some 500,000,000 Roman Catholics, was to preside today in Rome, where more than 50,000 foreign tourists have gathered, at a long East vigil service in St. Peter's Basilica.

Some 15,000 pilgrims and tourists were in Jerusalem.

More than 200,000 foreigners, mainly Britons and Germans, were spending the four - day, Friday - through - Monday Easter weekend in Paris.

Starting from a British bomber station, the marchers will turn up at a U.S. Air Force base at Ruislip in the London suburbs Easter Sunday and will wind up in London's Trafalgar Square for a rally Monday.

Similar marches are expected in other countries.

More than 92,000 West Berliners visited relatives in East Berlin Friday under the current passes program.

Good Friday saw pilgrims and tourists in Jerusalem follow a procession in the footsteps of Christ along the Via Dolorosa to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. There was a brief sermon at each station of the cross.

No Settlement in Sight Of Airline Routes Problem

OTTAWA (CP) — One year ago this month, Canadian and American negotiating teams sat down to work out a new agreement on the exchange of airline routes. It's still on the way, but don't hold your breath.

Informants here say the new agreement is about 90 per cent completed. But one "rather large" problem is holding it up and no early settlement in sight.

The negotiators are reported to have agreed on a continental approach to the sharing of air traffic between the two countries, giving Air-Canada its long-sought direct access to Los Angeles and Miami.

Canadian Pacific Airlines, the country's only other international carrier, would also get its first entry to the U.S. market with a service linking Vancouver and the U.S. northwest coast.

The U.S. has requested a number of return concessions and Canada has agreed to all but one. This is what is holding up the whole agreement.

"The Americans are holding out for a point that we're not going to yield on unless one or two additional benefits for Canada are added," a source close to the situation said.

No further meetings of the negotiating teams are planned. The discussion is strictly at the top political level from here on.

Two-car Crash Kills 4

MANCHESTER, Ont. (CP)—Four persons were killed early today in a two - car head-on crash about half a mile north of here.

The child was taken to Port Perry Hospital by a passing motorist but was dead on arrival. The three adults were dead at the scene.

Police said the three members of the Toole family were thrown from their car by the impact. They said Foster was alone in his car.

Manchester is 12 miles northwest of Oshawa.

Defence Heads Will Convene This Summer

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence ministers of the North Atlantic Alliance are expected to get together this summer for an informal, feet - up discussion of strategy.

The meeting will follow by some weeks — date and place haven't been fixed yet — the May 11-13 conference of NATO foreign ministers in London.

Defence Minister Hellyer has been pressing for such an informal gathering for a strictly off-the-record talk on the differences in strategy which tend to divide the alliance.

The United States favors it and Canada is supporting this strongly—a "flexible response" strategy whereby Western response to any Communist aggression would be no stronger than needed to contain it.

Precautionary Measures Being Taken

Premier Declares State of Emergency

WINNIPEG (CP)—Residents of the fertile Red River Valley began taking precautionary measures Friday as the swollen river edged toward flood levels.

Hard - hit by devastating floods in 1948 and 1950, Manitoba has been declared in a limited state of emergency by Premier Duff Roblin, who toured parts of the valley Thursday and was expected to visit Winnipeg's dike system early today.

Residents in low - lying sections of Winnipeg began throwing up sandbag walls as the murky water slowly rose. It was 20.1 feet above the average winter ice level at the city's James Avenue pumping station at midnight, 2.1 feet above a foot higher than 24 hours earlier.

A peak of 24 feet is expected April 24 and volunteers were concentrating on raising the 24-foot secondary dikes in Elm Park, a narrow peninsula in the metropolitan city of St. Vital.

Today, a reception centre was to be set up to begin handling evacuees expected from rural areas south of Winnipeg. Premier Roblin said while it was hoped most people would stay with friends or relatives in the city, accommodation would be available for several thousand.

RISES SLOWLY

At the border town of Emerson, 70 miles south of Winnipeg, the water was rising slowly Friday night and the crest was expected to hit Wednesday. Mayor Leonard Careless, 63, said U.S. weather officials are more optimistic than Manitoba officials.

He cancelled a special council meeting Friday—"we don't think it will be serious."

Manitoba officials predict the water will be five feet over the banks when the crest hits. Frank Muirhead, a provincial flood co - ordinator, has been stationed at the border to watch the expected emergency.

Mr. Muirhead said three or four families in the community of 930 have moved out.

At Morris, a town of 1,400 midway between Emerson and Winnipeg, farmers were delivering grain to elevators for shipment out before the expected flood crest hits Thursday. Plans were being made to evacuate residents. The Morris River, which flows into the Red at Morris, washed out a bridge Friday 30 miles southeast of Winnipeg, blocking Highway 1.

CREST FORECAST

As at Emerson, the river was expected to crest Wednesday, a bit higher than the banks.

Both the Morris and Emerson hospitals are receiving only acute cases and plans have been made for evacuating the balance of the patients should it be necessary.

Premier Roblin has said the Assiniboine River, which meets the Red at Winnipeg, will probably not pose a widespread problem this spring. However,

Mississippi Flood Slowed By Weather

CHICAGO (AP) — Thousands of volunteer flood workers braced to battle the highest Mississippi River waters in history have been given a few days of reprieve by cold weather that slowed the melting of snow and ice along the river's northern reaches.

The river, which has flooded scores of waterfront communities from Minneapolis-St. Paul to south of Hannibal, Mo., had been expected to crest at 27 feet today.

But the weather bureau said the freezing weather could delay the peak waters as much as another week.

Workers were expected to use the added time to strengthen dikes.

Flood waters have streamed from the Mississippi, Minnesota, Red and Crotz rivers, driving an estimated 25,000 persons from homes and causing 12 deaths and millions of dollars in damage from North Dakota to Illinois.

Hardest hit was St. Paul, Minn., a city of 350,000 that has as much as six feet of water inundating lowland sections. Some industries, a city airport and railroad station have been forced to close.

Civil Claim For $3,840 Is Dismissed

TORONTO (CP) — A civil claim for $3,840 against a Sydenham, Ont., couple has been dismissed in Ontario Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice E. G. Moorhouse heard evidence last week that a woman had been tricked into signing 60 promissory notes by stone-siding salesmen.

The suit was filed against Mr. and Mrs. Percy Switzer by Nordic Acceptance Company Limited of Montreal, which claimed it took over the Switzer's debt with L. and L. Home Improvement Company in February, 1964.

Mr. Justice Moorhouse said Nordic manager David Manson produced no documents to prove that his firm paid for the note.

Evidence during the trial showed that Mrs. Switzer was visited by two strangers who identified themselves as Ross and Douglas of the L. and L. Company in January, 1964.

They claimed the house needed stonework and promised her it would cost her nothing. The house was being fitted with siding at the time.

The men had Mrs. Switzer sign 60 promissory notes saying they were vouchers for payments she would get on future sales. They gave her a cheque for $250.

A man then came to the Switzer home, applied some stone and presented another form for signing, explaining that he would not be paid unless Mrs. Switzer signed.

Bombers Blast North Vietnamese Targets; Drop Leaflets

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. fighters and bombers hammered at North Vietnamese targets again today and two Vietnamese Skyraider bombers dropped 250,000 psychological warfare leaflets over the city of Dong Hoi in North Viet Nam.

The leaflets had a picture of President Johnson and remarks by him on the Vietnamese war. They also included an endorsement of the remarks by South Vietnamese Premier Phan Huy Quat. Dong Hoi is about 50 miles north of the 17th parallel, separating North and South Viet Nam.

The leaflets quoted from Johnson's April 7 address in Baltimore and outlined his proposal to contribute $1,000,000,000 for an aid program to develop Southeast Asia.

Last Wednesday the U.S. Air Force dropped 3,000,000 leaflets over Dong Hoi and three other North Vietnamese cities, in effect calling on the people to overthrow their Communist government.

Days of round-the-clock American raids culminated in the destruction of six bridges in the north Friday.

A total of about 150 planes participated and the six bridges were the biggest number hit in the North in one day to date.

In search - and - destroy missions against the guerrillas, government troops claimed 31 Communists were killed in Binh Dinh province 280 miles northeast of the capital. One South Vietnamese soldier was reported killed and 31 wounded.

In Bangkok, Thailand, Patrick Gordon Walker, Britain's special Southeast Asia peace envoy, said a proposed international conference on Cambodia may be the best way of seeking a Viet Nam settlement.

Elsewhere, an Indian government spokesman in New Delhi said the government will take action when necessary against an Indian Communist labor movement's decision to send volunteers to fight alongside the Viet Cong.

Leaders of the Communist-led All India Trade Union Congress directed its 1,300 affiliated unions to recruit up to 10 volunteers to be sent into South Viet Nam by way of North Viet Nam.

Tom Kent Tagged as Boss Man in Govt's. New Plan

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Tom Kent, Prime Minister Pearson's pipe-smoking idea man and behind-the-scenes negotiator, has been tagged as the boss man of the government's war on poverty.

Main lines of the campaign will be set out by a committee of cabinet ministers with Mr. Pearson at their head. But the job of following them through will be that of the 42-year-old Kent, a former newspaper editor.

His appointment was announced Thursday by Mr. Pearson who said he has never served, as a civil servant or a cabinet minister, with anybody of greater ability and devotion than Mr. Kent.

Mr. Kent, $25,000-a-year policy planner for Mr. Pearson, will head a special planning secretariat being established in the Privy Council office.

JOB MAINLY PLANNING

The secretariat's job will be largely planning and co-ordination. Government departments will remain responsible for the individual programs.

The fact that Mr. Pearson selected Mr. Kent, the man on whom he has relied heavily since coming to power two years ago, was taken as an indication that the war on poverty is to be the government's major consideration in coming months.

Mr. Kent has been serving as a kind of chief of staff to Mr. Pearson.

His secretarial responsibilities have been to keep the prime minister informed of programs and developments in the various government departments and to ensure that Mr. Pearson's policy ideas were carried forward in the various government branches.

He is one of two men—Gordon Robertson, Privy Council clerk, is the other—who have a standing appointment daily with the prime minister. He sube for Mr. Pearson on many inter-departmental or inter - cabinet planning and policy groups.

Some people regard Mr. Kent as among the most powerful men in government but he has described himself as "essentially an extra man who comes into operation when needed."

OXFORD GRADUATE

A noticeably English accent testifies to his birth in Stafford, England, and his years at Oxford University where he graduated in philosophy, politics and economics. This was followed by a period with the Manchester Guardian and the London Economist.

He came to Canada in 1951 as editor of the Winnipeg Free Press and became a Canadian citizen in 1959. After five years with The Free Press he turned to politics.

He is credited with some of the more liberal of the federal platform planks at the party convention in 1958 which elected Mr. Pearson leader. He aired his ideas in a paper to the Liberals' so-called thinkers' conference at Kingston which he joined Mr. Pearson full time in 1961 as one of the key advisers to the then opposition leader.

Mr. Kent's one bid for elective office failed. In the 1963 general election he lost to T. C. Douglas, New Democratic leader, in the British Columbia constituency of Burnaby - Coquitlam.

Woman Killed At Brockville

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Mrs. Ronald Sanderson, 34, of Montreal was killed and four other persons were injured early Friday in a crash involving two cars and a transport truck.

Mrs. Sanderson, 37, was reported in critical condition in hospital at Kingston.

Also injured were John Tucker, 28, and Diane White, 23, both of Montreal and Alvin Hynes, 45, of Ottawa, the truck driver.

Police said the crashes occurred when a car driven by Jean Louis Dube, 21, of Toronto, struck the front of the truck while passing it.

Board Will Reconsider Its Suspension

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal Roman Catholic school commission announced Friday it will reconsider its suspension of Brother Rene Lahaie, a teacher who criticized Premier Duplessis and Hitler in the classroom.

The commission, in a brief statement, also said it will reconsider its suspension of Brother Lahaie's two superiors: Brother Victor Austin, principal of La Mennais School, and Antonio Gerard, director of studies.

Brother Lahaie put up pictures of Premier Hitler in his classroom and told his grade 7 pupils that the two men had exceptional qualities, then using them for good, the other for evil.

McNichol St. Sewer May Not Be Built

TRENTON — The Trenton Public Utilities Commission has withdrawn its name from a petition asking that a sewer be installed on McNichol street.

Other petitioners, owning land on the street, withdrew their names when they found it would cost them $79.50 for a 50-foot lot, over a 20-year period.

However, Mayor MacDonald has hopes of putting the installation job up for bidding, and coming up with a contractor who would do the job for less than the figure arrived at by the town's engineering department.

When and if another petition is raised, the PUC will reconsider its present stand.

As the commission chairman, C. A. Baker pointed out, "the petitioners have to build a transformer station on its McNichol street land, and you don't need a sewer for a transformer station."

MAYOR CUTTING GLASS

Commissioner James Page phoned the mayor's hardware store. He came back with a message for the commission.

"The mayor's cutting glass."

"This is ridiculous," said chairman Clifford A. Baker.

"Do you think he might be cutting glass?" queried Commissioned Charles Hilton. (He was.)

Assoc. Would Like to Acquire PUC Land

TRENTON — Bart Boers, the president of Trenton Rehabilitation and District Association for Retarded Children has asked the Trenton Public Utilities Commission to either sell or donate land in Murray Township area where the PUC has wells, to the association.

Here would be built a home for retarded adults. The association feels the land would be suitably located, "in a wooded area, away from traffic and far enough away from the highway for safety."

Actually, the site might be too near water for comfort, as it is in this area the commission plans to build a water storage pond.

Not only this, the commission feels this is a matter for council and Mr. Boer's letter will be sent on.

ACCEPT BIDS

The Trenton Public Utilities Commission voted Thursday to accept the bid of Maloney Electric for the supply of transformers, at $322.38 each, as being the lowest bid.

Other firms bidding were: Canefield, Waterloo, Northern, $483.75; General, $403.76; Westinghouse, $369.77; Ferranti-Packard $350.47; Pioneer $328-37.

Thieves Blow Store Safe, Get $2,000

TRENTON — Thieves who broke into the upstairs offices of Couch and Newton on Dundas Street West, Thursday night or early Friday used nitro-glycerine to blow open a safe and make their escape with about $2,000 in cash.

Ross Burke, an employee of the firm, discovered the theft when he was checking the store yesterday afternoon. He found the safe had been blown.

Entrance had been gained through a stairway at the rear and through a roof hatch.

Chief D. J. Rutherford described the robbery as an "expert job".

The chief and plainclothesman Sidney Vickers are investigating. Police throughout Ontario have been informed.

PUC Passes Capital Budget Of $138,343

TRENTON — The Trenton Public Utilities Commission, meeting Thursday afternoon, passed a capital budget for the electrical division of $138,343 which had been reduced from the original figure of $215,623.

This means the commission will do very little in the way of capital works this year.

What commission chairman C. A. Baker described as a "rhubarb" waterwork' division capital budget of $104,450 was passed also.

The commissioners are going all out this year to keep down the hydro and water rates in Trenton. They hope by keeping capital expenditures to a minimum to do so.

Actually, the budget would not have a bearing on rates this year, but if it were high, might have next year.

As an economy measure, two linemen will be laid off and not replaced immediately.

However, a suggestion that one employee "on the inside" might be let go to balance the two men laid off from the "outside," met with very little enthusiasm from Mr. Page and Howard Hallick, head of engineering. Mr. Hallick said he and two men under him would be hard pressed to get all the work done they had to do. Mr. Page could not hear of letting office employees go as the billing required a certain number of employees.

Mr. Hallick said the men working under him were doing all inspection work in connection with water main installations this year, rather than hire an outside consulting engineer.

Under the circumstances, Mr. Baker and Mr. Hilton decided to "accept the revised budget and let nature take its course."

Planning Board Refuses To Recommend Re-zoning Of Dundas St. Properties

Belleville and Suburban Planning Board has refused to recommend re - zoning of four properties on the corner of Dundas St. East and Dufferin Ave. from "A" to a "B" residential district. The Board announced after a public hearing held Thursday night in Council Chambers, City Hall, that its refusal of Dr. H. J. and Dr. E. Williamson's application was based on objections from Dufferin Ave. property owners who want to keep their district residential.

The alternative, spot re - zoning of 260 Dundas St. E. to permit operation of a medical clinic on the site, was also turned down by the Board. It said spot re - zoning would be "inopportune in advance of proper land use studies, and would create more traffic in an already heavily congested area."

Owners of property in the vicinity of the proposed clinic appeared before the Board to voice their opposition to zoning changes. Most residents felt rezoning would lower the value of their properties and start a trend toward commercialization of Dufferin Ave. They claimed a parking area at the rear of the Williamsons' lot would result in loss of privacy for owners of adjoining land.

VOICE OBJECTIONS

Mr. C. N. Nicholson and Mr. L. W. Latham, for grading for the parking lot has caused flooding of their cellars. Both seen fear parking the parking area will further alter the natural drainage and increase flooding.

Contractor William Tatham explained the intent of owner Mrs. Bedore's property to the Board. Mr. Tatham designed and built the structure now at 262 Dundas Street East for Dr. Williamson. Last year plans and specifications showing medical offices on the upper floor and two apartments on the ground floor were submitted to the Building Inspector. A building permit was granted. At this time the ground floor apartments are unfinished. Because he thought it "impractical and uneconomical" to build residential suites next to a commercial district, Mr. Tatham asked the Williamson to stop construction pending a re-zoning application. Under the "B" district would allow all four suites in the building to be used as doctors' offices.

OBJECTS TO REPORTS

Mr. Tatham objected to press reports, intimating there was "something underhanded" about the application. His company had not and would not enter into any agreement contrary to existing by-laws, he said. Any damage done adjacent lots by land-fill operations at the south of 260 Dundas St. would be corrected by his firm.

Belleville lawyer, Mr. R. Cameron, spoke on behalf of Dr. H. F. and Dr. E. Williamson. He said most of the objects to re-zoning stemmed from the fact the application included three lots, 258 Dundas St. E. and 117 and 121 Dufferin Ave. as well as his clients' property. The three lots were added to the application when his client was told the Board would be more likely to consider area re-zoning than spot re-zoning.

Dr. Williamson would be happy to amend his application to exclude the three lots.

Mr. Cameron said re-zoning wouldn't lower property values. "B" district by-laws provide adequate safeguards. The high cost of land in the area rules out further commercial issues. Cause of traffic congestion in the district is the nearby hospital. His clients' will provide ample parking on their lot. Last year Dr. Williamson bought a parcel of land 77 feet deep at the rear of his property to serve as a buffer zone between his parking lot and adjacent houses. This buffer zone will not be paved or graded.

"Anyone can see that the nature of the area has and is changing," Mr. Cameron stated. Properties to the east and south of his client's lot are zoned commercial and planning consultants consider the immediate area a commercial district, he said.

Mayor Ellis asked Mr. Cameron if Planning Board staff told him there was intent to re-zone the area. Planning Director F. J. Beavis explained that Mr. Cameron was referring to amendment six to the proposed Official Plan for Belleville. This amendment was not recommended by Planning Board staff and was later withdrawn.

Planning Board's recommendation to reject re-zoning will be sent to City Council. Council can grant or refuse the Williamsons' application as it sees fit.

Gift of Repartee

—Former U.S. vice-president Richard Nixon has the lawyer's gift of repartee. He may have lost out to John Kennedy in the famous television debates of that campaign, but in off-the-cuff exchanges he has few peers.

There was for example his famous "kitchen debate" with former premier Khrushchev at the U.S. exhibition in Moscow, when the pair discussed the merits of modern home appliances. Now we see he has been engaged in another fray in Moscow—this time with Nikolai Belyezov, vice-rector of Moscow University.

Selyezov told Nixon he had had difficulty answering students' questions about the United States, including why the Ku Klux Klan is allowed to exist and why President Kennedy was killed? Nixon is reported to have countered by asking why the Russians shot former police chief Laventri Beria and by recalling Russia's brutal suppression of the Hungarian uprising in 1956.

In other words Nixon adopted the silly-answer-to-a-silly-question technique, which was correct in the circumstances. Selyezov's questions were silly because they were loaded with malice and were virtually unanswerable.

It is easy for the two big powers to misunderstand each other, to misconstrue the motives of each, but in Russia it is particularly so because the people get only the Soviet and Communist viewpoint and have no opportunity, either through travel or reading of western newspapers, to obtain a balanced account of world affairs.

The Fashion Scene

Paris critics designer Coco Chanel's spring-summer collection indicates that skirts will be an inch shorter this year. Interesting, but will it make any difference to the staid Canadian fashion scene?

We wonder, because we are inclined to agree with the remark of a colleague (male of course) who glanced at a fashion supplement recently and observed sagely, "what's the use, they won't wear them anyway.

If women are the real force in this world, as so often claimed, why don't they give the humble male something to whistle about? But it seems they are reluctant to look smart, sophisticated (there's that nasty word again) and well-groomed lest they should appear different—and to be different in this world is the cardinal sin.

Or look at the youngsters. A goodly proportion of our teenage girls look as if they had been hit by a tornado, with their unkempt hair (or worse still, in curlers), parkas that have seen better days, (and faded scarves. The boys are no better, most of them appearing on the scene looking as if they had been shot straight from a circus cannon.

We may say that the many folk, including youngsters, who quite obviously and happily don't fit into any of these categories are the exceptions that prove the rule. But where, generally speaking, are the well-groomed citizens that we seem to see only in the magazine ads?

Summer is approaching and all of us will have a chance to spruce up. The girls can make like Coco Chanel and the boys can climb into their smart tropical apparel.

No Solution

W. D. McFarland, Alberta superintendent of child welfare, suggests a homemaking test be required before a marriage licence is issued.

There are doubtless some types of psychological tests which would indicate the couples with the best chances of staying happily married.

However, when Mr. McFarland suggests that this would be one way to prevent the occurrence of an increasing number of unwanted children, his reasoning is difficult to follow.

Making marriage licences difficult to obtain might reduce the number of marriages, but human nature being what it is this would be more likely to increase, rather than to decrease, the number of children whose arrival was not precisely a reason for celebration.

The economic interpretation of history does not necessarily mean that all events are determined solely by economic forces. It simply means that economic facts are the ever recurring decisive forces, the chief points in the process of history.—Edward Bernstein in Evolutionary Socialism.

Ottawa Offbeat
Continuing Crisis May Bring Confederation Coalition

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—It has taken smost a year of continuing political crisis, but the idea first thrown out early last Spring by Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson just might be catching on.

Not exactly the way he suggested it, but, if it comes about, essentially serving the same purpose.

Mr. Thompson, appalled by the prospect of deepening crisis, certainly in the political level and in sections of the Provincial strata, particularly Quebec, suggested that a National Government could save Confederation from what many people then feared could be a crack-up.

Well, clearly, as the Liberal Administration and the Conservative Opposition continue struggling in the political stalemate of Parliament, there is going to be no National Government, recruited by Prime Minister Pearson, as Mr. Thompson perhaps naively hoped, from what he calls "the many men of talent" in all five parties.

But word seeps down from High Places now, that after the next election, come when it may if the prime minister should win and still find himself in an uncertain minority position, there could be a coalition.

The way you hear how it, it would be a union of what, for a better description, could be called middle-of-the-road-men, ready, even anxious to forget political partisanship in the interest of national unity.

NOT AGAIN

It long has been public knowledge that the prime minister has said he won't willingly, again lead a minority Government.

And from what you have seen in the front row view through your newspaper of national affairs and the frustration and futility of minority rule, you can't really blame him.

Not being willing again to lead a minority regime does not, the prime minister two alternatives: retirement or coalition.

It wasn't because he hesitated to accept a hard challenge that he wholeheartedly fought on, orderly, cozy world of diplomacy where he had made an international name for himself to plunge into the raucous, often wild and always bruising realm of national politics.

So to a man who clearly sees what he obviously thinks is plainly an obligation for national service, retirement, even in the very late 60's, is out.

In seeming physical trim, wonderfully balanced emotionally—he has no "bad" days, no great peaks of exultation of dreadful plunges into depression—at the peak of his intellectual powers, he really has no choice.

He must go on.

And falling short of a majority in the next election—as is very possible in this era of fractured politics and splintered parties—coalition might be the only sure way out of the ordeal of walking the minority tight-rope of day-to-day disaster.

You don't have to be an MP to know that there is real and deepening trouble at all points of the political compass.

THE WHOLE MESS

For trouble there is in the fiscal field and the continuing war - between - the - governments over the division of the tax dollar, in Federal-Provincial relations or the lack of them, in foreign policy, defence, trade, social security, pensions, bilingualism, and trouble even with Parliament itself. Or, as some MPs speak of it, in "the whole mess."

In the current national mood of disenchantment with all parties, left and right, and dissatisfaction with Parliament and the way it doesn't do the public business, even the MPs have become alarmed and are frantically working to do something about it.

The idea is to re-write the book of procedural rules, streamlining Parliament's operations and speeding the business of Government from the Victorian era to the Space Age.

It must be ludicrous to the taxpayers listening in the public galleries of the Commons to hear the Honorable Members referring back to some procedural decision of 50 years ago—or even longer if they're dredging the ghosts of ancient precedents in the House at Westminster — when arguing how best to get on with the nation's business.

And it must be maddening for a prime minister, facing today's emergencies at home and abroad to be in a minority position and unable to do what must be done about Parliament and what he regards as the basics of Confederation" — or at least do it decisively, and rapidly enough.

So in this crunch, if another should be returned by a confused and bewildered electorate, don't be surprised — even perhaps expect — that in the emergency this prime minister may recruit troops from the now-enemy political camps in a "Confederation coalition."

Eight years of exposure to such fumes in a small, poorly ventilated workshop most decidedly could cause permanent liver damage.

It isn't the cellulose, but the pungent liquids used to dissolve the cellulose. These evaporate so quickly that a very considerable amount will be present in the air around you in a short time. If anyone wants to test this out, pour an ounce of, say, acetone, in a saucer, set it in the backyard and see how quickly it evaporates. Do it outside to avoid any chance of being poisoned.

From this experiment you can see how much of such a solvent would evaporate inside a stuffy, small shop. The solvent (any of several that are used) may evaporate and disappear, but it is still in the air, and you breathe it.

It's only a month or so since my last warning against "glue sniffing" meaning the sniffing of fumes from tubes of these quick-drying glues. (Ordinary glue, of course, isn't dangerous.)

In factories where such stuff is used, blowers, hoods or other effective ventilation are necessary. A worker may detect the smell but not breathe air heavily laden with the stuff.

Today's letter comes from a man at one of our Air Force bases, obviously a young man who has airplanes in his blood, and more power to him. But he mustn't get these "dope" or "glue" solvents in his system.

In his case, I'd suggest abstinence from alcohol now. His liver has been damaged; from now on avoid the risk that someone else could take with impunity. Alcohol can damage the liver. Strong doses of these solvents can do it faster. Faulty diet can do it. Don't let these various factors add up and increase total damage.

While I'm at it, here are two more warnings. One: Working in an atmosphere of such fumes carries a risk of explosion. They can be set off by the smallest spark.

Two: Many insecticides also are dangerous — garden sprays and such. So stay to windward when you spray. The particles of stuff, whether solid or liquid, will soon be dissipated in the open air, but don't spray against the wind, because then the insecticide will blow back in your face.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that hydrophobia means fear of water? Is a dog with the disease afraid of water? — C. I.

Yes, hydrophobia means fear of water, but rabies is a much better name for the disease. In latter stages of rabies, muscles of the throat are paralyzed making it impossible to swallow. With people, hydrophobia means a morbid fear of water.

Dufferin Residents Answer Clinic Owner

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,

Dr. Williamson has cleared up some of the confusion regarding his new clinic, but we feel in rather a one - sided way. We, as some of the residents involved, would welcome the opportunity to make our point of view known through your columns.

The key to the confusion lies in parenthesis in his phrase: "Reclassification of the property at 300 Dundas Street East as Zone B (which it truly is) would permit improvement of the area". This property is zoned "A" residential and yet it is apparently to be used as multiple family dwelling. Surely a contravention of city by - laws is no justification for excessive re-zoning.

Along the same lines, is there any cause for re - zoning pleasant residential areas simply because they are adjacent to zone "C" commercial? There is no stretch of the imagination can Dufferin Avenue logically be considered to conform to the standards of a "B" or "C" district and yet Dr. Williamson has included three lots in this area in his application for re - zoning without so much as a hint of his intention to the owners. However extensive the re - zoning, somewhere there will be a house that finds itself overlooked, perhaps by an apartment block or adjacent to a parking lot. The owner of the house is not likely to agree that the value of his property for residential purposes is unchanged.

These then, are some of the logical and legitimate objections of many of the neighboring property owners.

Although we have never suggested that "devious methods" or "clever evasion" have been practised, it seems to us that the Dr. Williamson would have stirred less public feeling had they applied for re - zoning in the true spirit of the by - laws and not presented local residents with a nonconforming fait accompli to be legalized later. To be sure, no one objects to the principle of having a clinic near the Belleville General Hospital, but those of us who read and sympathize with Mr. Greig cannot help being a little upset at the sight of a building that, by all respect to the architect, has about as much charm as the end view of an orange box erected on end by cheek with one of Belleville's potentially attractive old houses. Please believe, we just have them built on the proper sites with the minimum of causes for objection!

Endorses Council's Zwick's Is. Decision

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

I would like to commend city council for its decision in accepting the services of professionals to draw up development plans for Zwick's and Zwick's Island. This is certainly a step in the right direction and one I'm sure they can go and relax in beautiful surroundings and solitude after a busy work week. I'm sure the majority of these citizens do not want to be disturbed by being surrounded by ball diamonds. There are plenty of other ball diamonds and locations for ball diamonds in our city. Let us keep Zwick's Island a park. If there's sportsmen/women already has endowed with a certain amount of beauty.

And last but certainly not least let us not be haggled and harassed by the oddballs and offbeats who always insist on renaming everything any anything because their family tree is not represented on any fancy name for Zwick's Island.

We like Mr. Churchill, we like our heritage, we like our flag, but we love Zwick's Island. There are many Queen Mary schools across the country, many Winston Churchill memorios and many Royal Canadian associations, but there is only one Zwick's Island. The name Zwick's Island as well as having a history behind it is a name of charm, dignity and grace, and perhaps above all, it arouses curiosity. What a lovely and outstanding name. Of course in our park and we're proud of it. (we hope)

...In closing I would like to suggest that the entire city council charter a bus and make a trip to Waterloon, N.Y., and view their park before making any final decisions. I am sure their wives would let them go and I'm sure the citizens would not begrudge them their expenses. Once the city council has viewthis a park I'm sure they will come away with a feeling of satisfaction as I can assure you this is a park that is a park. It's not a recreation centre (except for the children's facilities) but a park for relaxation and rest and solitude. This park incidentally is visited by people from all over the U.S.A. and Canada and they don't go away disappointed. This is what we want and need for Belleville. Right or wrong Mr. Mayor and City Council?

To Your Good Health
Liver Damage Can Stem From Use of Cellulose

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: As an avid model airplane fan, I have spent many hours in building and spraying planes with various cellulose dopes. This has been done, for the last eight years, in a small, poorly ventilated workshop.

Now I hear that permanent damage can result from heavy concentrations of these fumes. A recent examination showed that I have fatty degeneration of the liver. The doctor assumed it is from overindulgence in alcohol, but I have always been quite moderate in drinking. Could it be a result of the fumes?

I am not looking for an excuse, but would like to steer other modelers on a different course, if this is the case. — D. C. H.

A keen interest in rehabilitation problems of the post-war era insofar as they affect men of their own calling and those desirous of taking up their work as a life vocation, has prompted several young men of the Trenton Air Station personnel to inaugurate an organization known as the R.C.A.F. Sales and Advertising Club.

Sanctioned by R.C.A.F. headquarters at Ottawa and with the wholehearted approval of the station commanding officer, the newly formed club has adopted as its aims and objects, assistance for repatriated and service R.C.A.F. personnel who have decided to turn to the sales and advertising field for their life work.

These aims and objects have received the approval and cooperation of the Dominion Association of Commercial Travellers.

Pay-Later Speech

Ottawa Journal

The Speech from the Throne gives a broad hint of social security everywhere. Farmers, fishermen, veterans, displaced workers and scientists all may look for a better day. Depressed areas, cultural organizations and those concerned with the financing of major new industrial developments have their hopes raised. What is more good does not say is how these additional programs, added to the pension plan, are to be financed by citizens already groaning under the burden of taxation. The speech reflects the attitude that it is old-fashioned to speak of how bills are to be paid.

Duo-pianists Appear For Concert Association

Canadian Duo-Pianists to appear here. . .

Two of Canada's most outstanding musicians, the husband and wife duo-pianists, Margaret Parsons and Clifford Poole, will appear here April 21, under the auspices of the Community Concert Association. They have recently completed a successful series of recitals in the British Isles where they played to critical acclaim. At present the London, Ontario, team is engaged in an extensive tour of North American cities.

Both accomplished soloists, Mr. Poole and Miss Parsons first undertook two-piano work at the University of Western Ontario in London, where Mr. Poole headed the Western Ontario Conservatory of Music, with his wife as consultant. Together they have achieved an enviable reputation. An appearance they made with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra was cited for "remarkable unanimity not only in ensemble, balance and dynamics but also in approach and feeling." (Toronto Globe and Mail) Mr. Poole is also a conductor and composer of note. The team's recital programs often include compositions or arrangements by Mr. Poole.

The Belleville Community Concert Association has recently completed one of the most successful membership campaigns in its history. New members are invited to attend the Parsons-Poole concert as a special bonus, to the limited capacity of the collegiate auditorium.

Children's Aid Society Provides Adoption Service

DEAR DORIS — My husband and I have no children of our own and we would like to adopt a child or two. Could you please give us the names of some of the responsible adoption agencies who offer children under the age of one for adoption?

We thought of seeing our family doctor for advice but a cousin of mine said that it took several years before they could get a child through their family doctor. — HOME TO OFFER.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR HOME — Adoption from a private person is far too risky; we know that from sad experience. The Official social agency knows the hazards and bends over backwards to "match up" parents with the little ones who need their loving care. Most doctors now work with such an agency.

Where you are the adoption service is the Children's Aid Society of Belleville and Hastings County, 63 Moira Street, Belleville.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am a teen-age boy of 17 years and after reading your answer to "Bewildered" I couldn't agree with you more. I think that this business of personal measurements is very personal and that no boy should ask a girl he is writing to for this kind of information. — AGREED.

* * *

DEAR AGREED — Agreed.

DEAR DORIS — How can my ten-year-old son learn to write letters for himself? He is having a very hard time learning how and always ends up crying and angry. I can't always write them for him. — WIT'S END.

* * *

DEAR WIT'S END — Don't do it for him. But don't scold.

Most ten-year-olds are self-conscious about letter-writing. The thing to do is give him an idea or two and encourage any single sentence he puts on paper. Even a small triumph now can make the next effort easier.

I'm sending you the leaflet "How To Get More Mail," which includes the name of a booklet of ideas on letter-writing. (Available to readers for ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

(Are you in doubt about the proper etiquette to use for your special occasion? Ask Doris, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for her reply.)

BRIDGE

". . . the best card game ever invented." — Lord Brougham.

* * *

Here's a good bridge tip:

"Read books on bridge. Study them."

So Mrs. J. E. Pugh advises the members of her weekly bridge class at the YMCA. She says:

"With the Second World War . . . there arose a new star in the bridge world, a star named Charles Goren, who devised an easier bridge system which is based on this day, and whose system has almost entirely replaced Culbertson's.

"In the last fifteen years from 1950 to 1965 the names of writers of bridge books are legion. Among them are Charles Goren, of course, — all the books are based on his system — also Sheinwold, Mallon, Karpin, Albert Morehead, Helen Sobel, Sam Fry — to mention only the Americans, and there are many more across the Atlantic."

"Alan Truscott, the English-international, is among the latter, and writes a daily bridge column for the New York Times. His recent research on the part "any of the hands of the bridge family" play in thickening literary plots of well-known writers is most interesting. For example, the first major literary figure to deal with cards in his writings was Charles Lamb, was one discovery.

"Another was Edgar Allan Poe, a whist enthusiast, whose discussion of the ethics of the game in "The Murders in the Rue Morgue", meets the disapproval of today's bridge lawmakers.

Poe writes: "Our player . . . makes deductions from things external to the game. He examines the countenance of his partner, comparing it carefully with that of each of his opponents. He considers the mode of assorting the cards in each hand; often counting trump by trump, and every variation of the face as the play progresses . . ."

Comments Mr. Truscott: "Examining the countenance of partner, and considering "the mode of assorting the cards" is not. Drawing inferences from partner's countenance or behavior is at all times improper."

W. Somerset Maugham who maintains one cannot read, write or converse all the time, has a bride a life-time admiration for a game of bridge which, he says gives one's life a happy balance.

His short story about a bridge-mad, diet-ridden feminine trio, upon playing with a fourth, a slim, slender, aquiatic thing, who consumes delectable quantities of calorie-loaded food without dire reprisal, finds their concentration "shot to pieces." Is a classic. It is entitled "The Three Fat Women of Antibes."

Tournament bridge triggers the action in H. S. Friedman's recent novel "Yarborough" wherein an original method of hand valuation is invented by the hero as a 23-year-old boy, who becomes a national champion at the age of 17; though this is not the end of the story.

Bridge so combines tales of mystery that Don von Elser used a Regional tournament setting in his native Hawaii in "How to Succeed at Murder Without Really Trying." Agatha Christie's novel "Cards on the Table" gives Hercule Poirot a clue via the score pads, where bridge is crucial to the plot.

Thus to find James Bond chargening his wit and skill at the bridge table "between missions" is not too surprising. He is equipped with "knowhow" by his famed creator, the late Ian Fleming who often frequented the Portland Club in London "where the stakes are believed to be the highest in the world."

The Portland Club is the famous club, where a member tips on his return from Cairo joined a rubber of whist one evening and introduced a new game, "where the last card was not turned up, but the dealer nominated the trump suit after looking at his cards." It was an autumn evening in 1894. From that day onward, bridge replaced whist at the Portland Club and spread like "wildfire" to the general public.

". . . the best card game ever invented," the introducing member, Lord Brougham described it. A charming, however playful, way to capture Posterity's memory, don't you agree?

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Trading was active and prices strong to higher on all classes and grades of slaughter cattle at the Ontario public stockyards this week.

Good and choice grades of slaughter cattle received preferential demand and sold steady to slowly at barely steady prices on fair demand. Veal- calves sold steady. Hog prices were lower, sows firm. Feedlot lambs closed at higher prices, while spring lambs sold steady.

Because of the four-day week, cattle receipts were 2,100 head less than last week, and were head fewer than the same week in 1964. Western cattle receipts, 1,064 head, 61 less than last week, included several loads of well - finished slaughter cattle. Western steers 1k calf receipts were down 69 head from last week at 246 head. No cattle were shipped to Eastern Canada for slaughter; 51 calves were sold off the market for slaughter in the United States.

Trading on all classes and grades of cattle was active all week. Over-all quality was fair. Despite the lack of Eastern Canada orders, good cows sold actively at steady to strong prices. Lower grades of cows were active, and full prices were generally unchanged.

Industrial gains were widespread. Algoma Steel and Jefferson Lake Petrochemicals each rallied on ¼ to $1 and 16¼ and Interprovincial Pipe rose ¼ to 91.

Precautionary

it has been plagued by ice jams.

About 20 families near Portage la Prairie, 33 miles west of Winnipeg, had to be rescued Thursday after the Assiniboine backed up behind a massive jam. Residents of Elkhorn Winnicfred said anothac had formed Friday night.

Along with the jam, water was backing up rapidly and officials said it was within two feet of the top of dikes at midnight. There was danger of the Trans - Canada Highway being flooded.

CONSIDER RAISING DIKES

Premier Roblin was to meet with Winnipeg municipal officials today to consider raising the 26 miles of primary 26.5-foot dikes to 30 feet—the level of the 1950 flood which caused $28,000,000 damage in the Red River valley.

Premier Roblin said conditions comparable to the 1948 flood—when a crest of 24 feet hit the city—were expected this year. However, the city's elaborate diking system, built after the disastrous 1950 flood, was expected to soften the blow.

Metropolitan Winnipeg municipalities are bolstering sandbag defences. Ex - West Kildonan Mayor C. N. Kushner said his council had already authorized a $25,000 expenditure for flood control.

Weather conditions were expected to be favorable during the weekend—cloudy and cool. Occasional snow flurries or showers have been predicted but weather officials said precipitation would be negligible.

No Settlement

The present air agreement was negotiated in 1949 on a tit-for-tat basis. Each U.S. route obtained by Canada was swapped for U.S. entry to a Canadian centre. When the smoke cleared, the U.S. had a line into every major Canadian market.

Airline spokesmen have long argued that Canada was taken to the cleaners that time because no provision was made for Canadian access to the rich Miami and California travel markets.

In Washington, Benjamin O. Davis Jr., was nominated for promotion to lieutenant-general in the air force. He is the first Negro to reach that high a rank in the U.S. military.

At Selma, Ala., the city council endorsed an advertisement run in 21 Alabama newspapers by Chamber oh Commerce organizations urging equal job opportunities for Negroes and whites.

Color-matching will be easier in future. After 20 years of research, a British chemical company says it has perfected a computerized color - matching system for dyes.

Manitobans Watch Floods, Others Prepare for Easter

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Southern Manitobans spent a tense Good Friday watching rising water levels in the Red River and weekend weather forecasts.

While most of Canada carried out its pre-Easter activities in either cloudy or rainy weather, Manitoba had mostly sunny conditions with temperatures from 40 to 45.

The forecast is for clear weather and 40-degree temperatures today and Sunday.

A flood crest of 24 feet is expected April 24 in Winnipeg. Premier Duff Roblin said flooding predictions are based on the assumption there will be no heavy snow or rain for the next two weeks.

Despite gloomy weather in most of Canada, many took advantage of their day off and went boating and camping in British Columbia, where temperatures hit 70 in the south, and skiing in Alberta, where nearly a foot of snow fell with more expected.

CHURCHES BUSY

Most businesses were closed today but church doors were wide open for the first of services marking the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ.

Friday night at sundown, the Jews of Canada celebrated the first night of Passover, an eight-day religious festival marking the exodus of the Israelites from Egypt.

Transportation services prepared for increase traffic, with Air Canada scheduling 175 flights throughout the country with seats for 11,500. Extra train and buss services were provided in all provinces.

In the first day of the three-day weekend, 118 persons were killed accidentally, 11 in highway mishaps.

Roman Catholics are worshipping with the new liturgy and choirs in all provinces will be singing English masses Sunday only on Good Friday in Catholic churches, with the devotion of the Way of the Cross Friday night.

In British Columbia, sports fans will celebrate part of their Easter weekend with the return of professional baseball. The Vancouver Mounties play their first game of the season today in the Pacific Coast League.

The Shriners and the Pacific National Exhibition will hold a sunrise service Sunday morning in Empire Stadium, with 8,000 persons expected.

Weather in Alberta and Saskatchewan was generally sunny, but cool. Alberta's temperatures were 15 to 20 degrees below normal with a further drop forecast.

Ontario's weather was expected to remain cloudy and cool in most regions Saturday, but train service from Toronto has been tripled for an expected outing of 25,000 persons.

At Sharbot Lake, Ont., 45 miles northeast of Kingston, 100 Protestant and Roman Catholic high school students joined in a re-enactment of Christ's walk to Calvary, carrying a 100-pound cross a mile through the village streets to a Good Friday public service.

It rained most of Friday in Montreal, while Roman Catholic, Anglican, Presbyterian, Orthodox, Lutheran and Baptist churches joined in a bilingual ecumenical service conducted by laymen.

The Atlantic Provinces reported rain, cloud, snow and dropping temperatures Friday, but there were good turnouts at church services.

Although Newfoundland's expected warm sunny forecast did not materialize, Anglicans had a special children's service in St. John's Friday morning followed by an evening ceremony of the Blessing of the Lights going with baptism.

Conservation of Heirlooms

MARBLE AND STONE

If you could examine a piece of marble under a microscope you would see why it is one of the hardest-to-care-for household items.

Marble is made up of tiny crystals, with big spaces between them. These spaces act like millions of tunnels that conduct dirt, dust and grease right through from the surface to the underside. If you manage to remove a stain from the top of a piece of marble the discoloration will come bobbing up to the surface again. The dirt, stored in the deep pores of the stone, keeps rising to the top. For this reason, spilled grease and liquids are impossible to remove.

Marble and stone need special care in washing. Use either rain water or commercially softened water. Hard tap water will plug those pores with lime salts, chlorine, iron, and cause discoloration. Put mild detergent and a drop or two of liquid ammonia in water in a glass or enamel container — never a metal one. Use a stiff brush to rub this solution to a froth on the marble. Do a small area at a time, blotting as you go with a towel. Rinse with lots of soft water.

Marble is like a photographic film. It will pick up the image of any organic material left in contact with it for a long period, just as a film in a camera photographs the image you see in the view finder.

Recently, one museum worker saw a marble mantelpiece that had been protected for some years with a doily. Even after scrubbing, there was the lacy pattern, clearly permanently printed on the marble. Such stains can't be removed, only prevented. Never use paper, cloth, felt, leather or any organic material on marble.

Here's a jealously guarded museum secret. The pristine whiteness of most of the marble statuary you admire in museum galleries is not marble at all, but blackboard chalk! Just rub the chalk over the stained marble and repeat as often as the discoloration shows through. For veined or vari-colored marble, you'll have to buy a set of colored chalk and experiment.

A caution — soapstone and sandstone used in Eskimo carvings is very soft. Too-stiff brushes will scratch their surfaces.

Research proves that lacquers and protective costings on marble and stone speed up aging and "weathering." Now you understand why museum workers sometimes wish the craftsmen who worked with marble had left it in the quarry!

Next week — Ivory and Bone. Send any questions to the Curator, Hastings County Museum, telephone 962-3731.

U.C.W. Meetings

MARSH HILL UCW

MARSH HILL — The Easter thank offering meeting of the Marsh Hill United Church Women was held at the home of Mrs. David Little with 15 members and one visitor in attendance.

Mrs. Don Irish conducted the worship service which was based on Easter. A number of favorite Easter hymns were sung by the members.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Leslie Finkle during which time Mrs. Harry Lindenfield and Mrs. Charles Ross read Easter poems. Mrs. B. Mitts contributed a reading.

Mrs. Maurice, literature secretary of the Belleville Presbyterial was introduced and gave the mission study on Brazil and illustrated her talk with the use of a colored map and several posters. She stated that Brazil is made up of two classes of people only, the high class, and the slums and that there is no middle class. She mentioned that Brazil exports to Canada coffee, bananas, cocoa, cotton, wool and petroleum. The speaker concluded by saying that there are many problems in Brazil including inflation, inequality, illiteracy and disease.

A number of the members told of various missionaries who are active in this area. Other members told how one could help the church in Brazil and that is to know and understand Brazil and its people. Latin American students can be brought to Canada to study and to learn customs here, thus furthering their own education and their understanding of Canada.

VARIOUS REPORTS

It was reported that 36 cards and five letters had been sent; also that eight house calls and four hospital visits were made. Members were reminded to prepare articles for a bale to be sent in the near future and to bring old nylons to be sent away.

The president, Mrs. Detlor, read a letter from the regional representative of East Hastings, Mrs. Ralph Sills in which she asked members to remember Rev. Young of Five Oaks, both in prayers and with material gifts. Mr. Young had the misfortune to be burned out recently. A letter was also read announcing the regional conference dates at Queen's to be June 18 to 20. This conference is sponsored by the Board of Women of the United Church. Dr. Georgia Harkness and Mrs. Fowler will be the guest speakers at this event.

During business period the minutes of the Belleville Presbyterial executive meeting held March 1 were read. It was also decided to cater to a wedding in June. Clip sheets were distributed to the members.

At the conclusion of the meeting the hostess assisted by Mrs. Mitts served refreshments.

Calypso Music in Trinidad Is Driving Cultural Force

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad—By the time the Pan Am jet arrives at this end of the West Indian line, most of the milk bottle-white tourists have been disgorged at the places with the glamor names, like Barbados and Antigua.

What remains is a strange-looking cargo for the Caribbean. It is an assortment of Africans and Orientals, exotic Creoles and East Indians — Moslem and Hindu — with burning brown eyes and flashing white teeth.

There are mosques in Port-of-Spain and bazaars, and some of the only theatres in the Western Hemisphere regularly showing films made in far-off Hong Kong and Bombay. The Governor General, Sir Solomon Hochoy, is a Moslem. Most of the people have so many different bloods in them that racial discrimination long since has been given up for a bad job.

Thus Trinidad is no ordinary tourist island. Its farmers dozing on donkey carts ply the busy streets of Port-of-Spain, the Caribbean's largest city. There are no beach-front hotels. In fact, until a couple of years ago, there were no hotels at all, just moulderring Victorian - colonial boardinghouses with chintz bedspreads, enough to scare away the most adventurous tourist (if the honeymoon couple at an airport terminal didn't do it).

Today Port-of-Spain boasts not only a hotel, the Queen's Hotel Hilton, but it is also one of the most dramatically situated and designed hotels in the world. Plunked into the side of a verdant mountain, its lobby is above the clouds, and its cocktail lounge and bridges wander all over the place as in a Japanese inn.

TAIL WAGS DOG

Trinidad may be too undeveloped and too far at the tail-end of the West Indies to attract as many visitors as Jamaica or Puerto Rico. But it is a tail that wags the dog, as every West Indian knows.

To thousands in Nevis and Grenada and St. Kitts and St. Lucia, Port-of-Spain is the Big Town, the New York of the islands.

All the fashions and fads are here, all the employment and unemployment but a little violence and labor strife, and a somewhat refreshing — for the Caribbean — air of tourism not being the major industry. It is the only major island in the West Indies that can make that claim.

When sugar workers in Trinidad strike, it sets Barbados to thinking. When there is an election, St. Vincent reads of it avidly in Port-of-Spain's three daily newspapers. When a gendarme breaks down on Dominica, they send to Port-of-Spain for parts.

Then there is an art show in Trinidad, notice-hungry painters and sculptors beg to exhibit. And when it is Carnival time, musicians from British Guiana to the Bahamas and even Bermuda start to see what will be Calypso King.

Carnival in Trinidad is more than a blast. It is what everybody in Trinidad lives for and talks about all year, an orgy of costumed and street dancing and thousand-member steel band parades that is the absolute amount of violence and drunkenness. And leading up to it is the desperate competition for King of Calypso that has not only made and broken singers in the process, but a great deal of art.

Calypso is one of driving cultural forces of the Caribbean, more important than jazz in the United States. In spite of anything you may have heard, calypso started in Trinidad; an evening of listening to it here will remove all ideas about the watered-down copies of Jamaica.

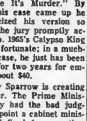
Nearly all calypso songs originate here today. Many are too difficult for artists elsewhere—including Harry Belafonte— to popularize. Inventive and subtle they're also too topical and too idiomatic.

In Trinidad, calypso has elected legislators, toppled governments, and ridiculed unpopular laws until they were repealed. Today's best known calypsonian, a cocky and dashing young man who calls himself the mighty Sparrow (all calypsonians adopt fanciful names), was arrested in a shooting. To explain his side of the story he composed and popularized a song called "Ten-to-One Is a Murder." By the time his case came up he had publicized his version so well that his murder charge was quitted him. 1965's Calypso King was not so fortunate; in a much-discussed case, he has been put away for two years for embezzling about $40.

Currently Sparrow is creating another stir. The Prime Minister recently had the bad judgment to appoint a cabinet minister he had fired from another post three months earlier for some vague efficiency. When the press raised an eyebrow, the P.M. declared that "anyone who doesn't like it can get the hell out of here." In the time-honored manner of bards, that was all Sparrow needed. He took up the line in a devastating calypso satire on the P.M. which may yet result in the P.M. eating his words. Calypso has movie-star prerogatives.

INSULTING BYPLAY

Many tourists believe that the polite spontaneous calypso of the night clubs is the true form of the art. Actually, made-up-on-the-spot calypso originated as insulting byplay among the artists at calypso elimination contests. Their talent for outrageous innuendo and badinage has been known to make strangers blanch.



No one questions that steel band music originated in Trinidad. It first was played by irrepressible but delinquent boys on anything they could scavenge from discarded brake drums to garbage can covers (there was a bitter spate of letters to the editors of Port-of-Spain papers some years ago as long as usual spaces of garbage can covers; of course, this was before the days of the garbage truck).

Steel band music was the same kind of outlet for the slum youth of Trinidad that the rumbles became for similar youngsters in large North American cities a few years ago and associated with violence here too, and still is.

But it has become respectable and artistic, too. The unorchestrated music emanating today from the steel drums of all drums is growing ever wider in its range. Even Handel's Messiah and Beethoven's Fifth have been essayed. The music is unfortunately hard to find except in the first entirely new set of instruments in hundreds of years, but manages to sound like complete orchestration. Its rhythms and tones are subtle and intricate, a complete circle, yet a far cry from the African drums which spawned them.

Few tourists realize it, but

Ann Landers

Plain Jane Frequently Has Sterling Inner Qualities

DEAR ANN LANDERS — This letter is for teen-age boys because they are mainly to blame for the misery of teen-age girls.

At every party, whether at school or in somebody's house, you always see clumps of girls, sticking together, laughing and talking. They appear to be having a blast, but the truth is, they are having a perfectly lousy time and they wish they had stayed home.

ANN LANDERS

Why do you fellows run after two or three of the best looking girls in the crowd? Always it's the same girls who get the big rush. The plainer ones (like me) never get a tumble and it's just rotten.

So what if a girl is a little too thin, or too heavy? What if she isn't the greatest dancer in the world? I'll bet she'd appreciate you more than the doll who is zeroed in on by every guy in the room.

The next time you go to a party or to a dance, ask a plain gal to dance or join you at the refreshment table. You may discover she is great company and that you've been missing something. — BITTER 16.

* * *

DEAR 16 — Thank you for an excellent letter. I'd like to add that the boy or girl who is quick to judge a book by its cover often chests himself out of some fascinating and worthwhile reading.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — What do you think about a husband who carries on a correspondence with a college friend even though he knows his wife does not approve of it?

Edwin and I were married a few weeks ago. He never spoke much about Nanette except to say she was fun and had a terrific sense of humor. They used to work together on the college yearbook but so far as I know it was just pal stuff.

Three years ago Edwin received a letter from Nanette. I opened it by accident. The letter was full of tired jokes, and references to people I don't know. I answered it from both Edwin and me, saying "I'll love to meet you sometime."

I handed him the open letter and told him I had opened it by mistake. I also told him I had answered it because from now on we would be doing everything as a couple.

He said I had humiliated him and that I had no business responding to a letter addressed to him. I say there should be no secrets between a man and his wife. You always emphasize in your column that the more things a couple can share, the stronger the marriage will be. Please comment. — WILTED EDS.

* * *

DEAR WILTED — It is possible to open a letter by accident, but you can only answer a letter on purpose. This was out of line and I don't blame Edwin for blowing his top.

Sharing is important but it's equally important to respect one another's privacy. To be "one" yet to remain separate and distinct entities may seem a contradiction but it is the secret of a good marriage.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am planning on being married this summer. Mother has been married four times. Daddy is now married to his second wife. My fiance's mother is on her fourth husband and his father is on his third marriage.

You may think this is crazy but all the ex'es got along fine together and they see each other socially. Mother insists that we invite all the ex'es to the wedding. What do you think this will look like? — B.B.B.

* * *

DEAR B.B.B. — It will look like the discarded pages from a number of old wedding albums. But don't let it spoil your day. The hooks will probably have a lovely time.

Kiwanis Ladies Complete Bridge Sessions

The annual bridge marathon sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Kiwanis Club ended the season's activities at a delightful party at the Kiwanis Centre on Wednesday afternoon.

There were 14 tables in play during the winter and winners of the marathon were: first, Mrs. Thelma Fitzgibbon and Mrs. Irene Trudeau; second, Mrs. Gene May and Mrs. Hazel Pugh; consolation winners, Mrs. Mary McLeod and Mrs. Ray Cousins who triumphed over Mrs. Pease by and Mrs. Helen Wilson.

The spirited play on party day resulted in Mrs. Ethel Towns-end winning first prize, Mrs. Chris Bodley second prize, and Mrs. Viva Graham, consolation.

Several door prizes were drawn and, though luck instead of skill was the deciding factor, each of the recipients was delighted with the well chosen gifts.

The president of the club, Mrs. Allen Hickson, thanked the ladies for their support of this venture and extended to all an invitation to participate in the marathon next year.

A vote of thanks to Mrs. Carm Mott for her organization and hard work was asked for by Mrs. Hazel Pugh, and all present enthusiastically responded.

Though unable to play in the marathon, Mrs. Ella Trepanier, an ardent worker in the Auxiliary, looked after the scores.

SATURDAY

SUNDAY

(Easter — see Wednesday) Cream of Asparagus Soup; Roast Leg of Lamb (see Wednesday); Mint Jelly (in orange cups — optional); Pan-Roasted Potatoes Quarters (see Wednesday); Yellow and Green Beans Amandine; Perfection Salad (see Wednesday); Walnut Apricot Torte (see Thursday); Coffee.

ANSWER:

DATE OATMEAL TURNOVERS

Turnover Dough:
1 cup sifted flour,
½ teaspoon salt,
⅓ cup shortening,
1 cup quick-cooking rolled oats, uncooked,
⅓ cup sugar,
3 tablespoons water,
½ teaspoon almond extract (optional).

Filling: ¾ cup chopped dates, ¼ cup sugar,
¼ cup water,
1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Sift together flour and salt. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Mix in rolled oats and sugar. Add water and almond extract, mixing lightly. Knead dough 4 or 5 times until it just holds together. Roll out to ⅛" thickness. Cut in 4" rounds. Make filling by cooking together, while stirring, dates, sugar and water until thickened - about 5 minutes. Add lemon juice. Cool. Place a rounded teaspoon of mixture on each round of cookie dough. Fold over and seal edges by pressing with tines of a fork. Prick to allow escape of steam. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 12 to 15 minutes until edges are delicately browned. Makes 12 turnovers.

ALL-TIME FAVORITE BUTTER TARTS

Pastry: Two cups unsifted all-purpose flour, 1 cup best-quality shortening (¼ butter and ¼ lard is good), ½ teaspoon salt, 3 or 4 tablespoons water. Cut shortening into flour and salt with pastry blender until crumbs are size of rice. Mix water in with fork. Turn dough out on well-floured board and knead just until mixed and soft. Roll out on floured board until very thin. Grease tart tins well. Cut pastry out to fit them.

Filling: One egg, 1 cup brown sugar, well-packed, 2 tablespoons milk, ¼ cup raisins, soaked in hot water for 2 minutes and drained and dried, ½ cup chopped walnuts, ½ cup fine cocoanut for 1 cup walnuts and no cocoanut, ½ cup butter (room temperature), 1 teaspoon vanilla, raspberry or strawberry jam (optional). Beat egg with sugar, add milk and plumped and dried raisins and walnuts and cocoanut (if used), butter and vanilla. If used, put ¼ teaspoon jam in bottom of each tart shell, then spoon filling in to half-fill shells. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 8 to 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. until filling bubbles and edges of pastry and tinged with gold. Do not burn.

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN ADOPTION?

THERE ARE INFANTS AND CHILDREN IN HASTINGS COUNTY WAITING FOR ADOPTING PARENTS — IS ONE OF THEM THE CHILD YOU HAVE BEEN HOPING FOR?

Many people believe that to adopt it is necessary to earn a large salary and own a home with a bedroom for each child. This is not true. What is important is that the adopting parents be responsible, mature individuals with the capacity to love a child not born to them.

A Lift for Living

Easter Serves as Reminder Of Many Things Yet to Come

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Reading the gospel story of the first Easter is like stepping out of a stuffy, windowless room into the cool, clean air of April. The Easter atmosphere is good and exhilarating for tired souls. It is a place to breathe deeply, to clear clogged emotions, to unwind a cramped mind, to refresh a lagging spirit.

Much of the time we live in a world of temporal, time-bound things, of perishables such as houses that need constant repair, automobiles that wear out and break down, clothes that at last or become threadbare. But Easter, with its deathless dimensions, reminds us of imperishables.

We feel condemned to perform teaching that, when done, must be done over again, such as dish -washing, bed-making and laundry, bookkeeping, payment of taxes, lawn mowing and weeding, so that life seems like a spiralling of circles which never gets us anywhere. Then comes Easter, and we remember that we have a destiny toward which we travel; we are not on a sickening, circling go-round that takes us nowhere. We are journeying homeward.

On the first Easter Christ's disciples shouted the good news, "He lives!" He is here among us now! He life lived for the crucifixion goes on and on everlastingly. Death had done its worst, but it was not enough. Christ's life was eternal and so was the Christ-like life of His followers. Later when Christians suffered beheading, stoning, crucifixion, burning at the stake and death from the attacks of lions in Roman arenas, they continued to affirm that the Christ-like life has no ending, and that for the faithful, all tombs are sealed in vain.

TWO WORLDS

So after the first Easter the followers of Christ consciously lived in two worlds at a time — dealing with the perishable things of earth, such as daily bread, clothes, houses, bodies that wear out or sicken and die, and the imperishable things of heaven, such as the fellowship of man and God, love of goodness, truth and beauty, and loyalty to the Highest.

Living in two worlds at once seems impossible to some people. Henry David Thoreau, the poet, philosopher and naturalist, during his last illness was asked by a friend about his faith in a hereafter. The New Englander replied, "One world at a time, brother, one world at a time!" But Thoreau himself had no practiced his motto, for all his days he had lived in two worlds, the one of visible, measurable, weighable, perishable things, and the other of everlasting things.

The Easter truth is that we are not meant solely for present moment, nor are we intended for heaven exclusively. Both earth and heaven are God's and we have a place in His plan for us. We are meant for here as well as the hereafter. It was never intended that we love the hereafter and hate all that is here or that we escape from present opportunities to serve God and men by fleeing to fantasies of glories yet to come. Nor are we meant to merely endure this world with stiff upper lips while we are here. Eternal life is a glad quality of living that is ours both now and forever, if we will accept it.

THE MEANING

Anyone who has lost a loved one and has reflected long and tenderly upon the meaning of it ced appreciate what the death, resurrection and disappearance of Christ into Heaven must have meant to the disciples. Such an experience makes us aware that we are of two worlds and that the world beyond is as real to us as the earth on which we dwell. Although the death of someone dear is grievous to us, it bestows at least this one blessing; it blends the New and the Forevermore; it brings the Here after closer to the H e r e. It makes Heaven homelike, bestowing upon the l i f e beyond death a consoling and satisfying familiarity.

Home is not where we are, as any traveller knows. Where we are at any given moment may be a highway, an airplane, a depot, a motel room, a camping site. Home is where our loved ones are, and w h e r e our thoughts linger lovingly. When we have loved ones There as well as Here, we are at home in two worlds, the Future a n d the Present, in Heaven and on Earth.

In Kenya, East A f r i c a, a gravestone marks the burial place of Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout movement. The grave marker is inscribed: "Lord Baden-Powell, Chief Scout of the World. Born February 22, 1856, died January 8th, 1941." Beneath the inscription there appears a symbol that many a scout has cut into the bark of a tree, or made in the dust of a woodland path. It is a circle with a dot in the centre, which is scout sign-language meaning "I have gone home."

Thinking of life may m e a n many things, but especially this: possessing eternal life means being at home and feeling at home with God, both now and forever.

Campbellford

Mrs. Pearl Rutherford
38 Ranney St. 653-3122

CAMPBELLFORD — One of Seymour township's oldest residents, Mr. George Potts celebrated his 90th birthday on April 8th. A reception was held on Sunday, April 11th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Stephens. Over 100 friends and relatives called, among the many receptions was a telegram from Premier Robarts, a letter from opposition Leader John Diefenbaker and a telephone call from Dr. Pauline Jewett M.P.

Mr. Potts was born , in Brighton township in 1866, son of Stephen J. Potts and Harriet Stollery. Mr. Potts' family moved to Potts' Island when he was ten years of age and he has lived in the immediate area ever since.

In his early life he worked winters in the woods, later in spring-would help in river driving to bring logs from the northern parts to the Trent River where the logs were booned.

Following the river drive Mr. Potts would trap and fish, his ability as a fisherman was almost legend and his hunting skill for ducks and fox almost the same.

Later Mr. Potts bought a farm and at the age of 39 married Caroline Adam of Belleville, deceased in 1937.

ACTIVE IN POLITICS

In politics Mr. Potts is a staunch Conservative and says he has voted in every provincial and Dominion election that he can remember and still takes a keen interest in politics.

Asked as what he attributed his long life and unusual good health he said he had tried to be temperate in every way he had never worried and his married life had been exceptionally happy.

Although he walks with the help of a cane and a slight stoop Mr. Potts' mind is keen and alert, he is a most interesting conversationalist, his eye sight is remarkably good, he reads and watches television, he is especially interested in the present hockey playoff games. His handwriting is exceptionally clear and artistic.

Those who know him best admire his kindly humor, his generosity and his consideration for others, he is a favorite among the children of the neighborhood.

Mr. Potts makes his home now with his nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Stephens. His brother whom he refers to as his "kid brother" is also living and will be 92 in May.

Friends were present from Alma, N.Y. and Toronto as well as local towns.

Lines on Life

Man Must Retain Human Values in a Push-button Society

LIGHTING THE WAY

By Walter S. Crowe

MONEY DOESN'T MAKE HAPPINESS

Three years after the TV scandals involving the programs, "64,000 question" and "21" had broken into the news, one of the notorious winners was broke. In addition to earning $50,000 a year as a television consultant, and working as a professor, he admitted to having received $129,000 dishonestly, over a period of three years.

It was a case of "easy come easy go." When interviewed by newspaper reporters, he admitted to being in debt. In other words, his liabilities actually exceeded his assets. He also said, "I would give everything I have, if by doing so I could erase the last three years of my life."

True happiness is not to be found in the possession of money . . . or things. The Master taught this when He said, "a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." Human experience proves that the happiest people in the world are those who work and honestly earn their incomes; those who give a day's work for a day's pay. There is no substitute to be found for clean hands and a clear conscience. What this world needs is men and women with cleaner minds, and dirtier fingernails!

Madoc

MADOC — Vimy Night was held in the Legion hall and sponsored by Madoc Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion last Saturday night. Mr. and Mrs. Ross Fleming have left to visit relatives in Ireland.

The Madoc branch of the Canadian Cancer Society will hold their first canvass this Monday night throughout the district.

Advise Against 'Heil'

BONN (Reuters) — People were advised Friday that handclapping and shouts of "Heil!" will not be considered in good taste when Britain's Queen Elizabeth and her husband, Prince Philip, make their state visit to West Germany next month. The German Dancing Teachers' Association issued a booklet saying that with memories of the universal use of "Heil Hitler" as a substitute for "hello" only a generation ago, the word 'heil' as an expression of joy should be barred on grounds of tact."

The Golden Years

Best Place to Find Cookie Might Be the Cookie Jar!

By THOMAS COLLINS

A fellow named Gardner Foster ran into a couple of problems when he retired — money and boredom.

He looked around for a job for three months, found one, and five months later converted the job into a business of his own. Now, at 67, he's netting about $3,000 a year and is having quite a time for himself.

Mr. Foster was launched on his adventure at an unexpected place . . . one most retired people don't know about, and would not bother with if they did. It was at a branch office of his National Employment Service.

All provinces have such services, which in effect are free employment agencies. City phone books can usually put you in touch.

Mr. Foster, according to an Employment official, had been a disbursing officer at a department store. He came to the office seeking the same sort of job because it was all he knew. No jobs of that calibre were lying around.

"We began to question Mr. Foster about his other talents, which is our normal procedure," the official said. "He had none we could find, except that he was a nut on yard work . . . mostly evergreens, hedges, trees and such. And he was quite expert at it.

LOW-PRICED EXPERT

"We had a job for a low-priced yard expert. From a small subdivision builder who wanted variety plantings in front of some box houses he was building. Mr. Foster took it for — I think — $12 a day, plus the help of a laborer our office supplied . . ."

Mr. Foster learned in a short order that the money in this business lay in selling the evergreens and trees, not in planting and planting them. He made a commission deal with a nursery and started planting his own stuff. Then he moved to other jobs. It wasn't long before he leased a vacant lot near his home and started developing his own nursery.

He became seller and supervisor, hiring labor from the Employment office to do the work.

"Most offices such as ours have jobs for retired people," the Employment man said. "They aren't the best — there's no big money to be had. But they are jobs which people with Mr. Foster's imagination can turn into something good . . ."

Among other jobs this particular employment office has found recently for retired people: as housekeeper in a home where the mother became an invalid, as night clerk in a motel, as part-time bookkeeper in a small construction firm, as receptionist in a law office. And there are always jobs as salesmen.

A GOOD BET

The person seeking a job in retirement should probably go first to one of the recognized commercial employment agencies, which usually can be contacted through the want ad section of the paper. If the agency doesn't place people over 65, or has no openings, then the National Employment office is a good bet.

Now there is going to be some embarrassment in this. You don't know how to ask for a job — if you're like most retired people you haven't had to practice in 30 years. You're touchy about letting anybody know you need a job. And worst of all, you're going to have to sit down in a straight chair beside a cheap desk and let some whippersnapper ask you silly questions. While all sorts of lowly creatures are all around you doing the same.

But the Joneses won't be there. Your neighbors won't be. Your rich friends won't be. Nobody who matters will be there to see you. And anyway, who told you it was easy?

Madoc Junction

MADOC JUNCTION — A number of students and their parents from this community attended the Students' Spotlight for '65 presented by Stirling-Rawdon District High - School Boys' and Girls' Athletic Association at the Stirling Theatre on Thursday and Friday night.

Mrs. Milton Reid was a recent visitor at the home of her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Blakely of Tweed.

Miss Alma Parks of Marsh Hill was a visitor last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Prest.

Several from here attended the hockey match at the Stirling Arena, between the Port Elgin and Stirling teams on Saturday night.

Mr. Harold Reid had the misfortune to fracture his leg last week.

Mrs. W. Harlow, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fitchett from Eggleton appointment attended communion service at West Huntingdon United Church on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Maurice Clancy was guest speaker at the April meeting of the Marsh Hill United Church Women, held at the home of Mrs. D. Little last Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Miller and children of Belleville visited Mrs. H. Ashley, recently.

Board Plans New Addition For School

NAPANEE — At the April meeting of the Napanee and District Secondary School Board a motion was passed to build an additional to the Napanee and District School, and to have Mr. H. H. Roberts who designed the present structure, draw up plans for general possibilities of the new wing, while a committee studies the needs and requirements to be included in this addition and reports back to the board.

The results of grade 13 examinations will no longer be published in the newspapers. The students are notified of the results by mail and further publishing of the results leads to faulty comparisons and faulty conclusions.

Second year occupational students have been sent to firms in the area for practical training and experience for a short period recently, to date the reports from this venture have all been favorable.

A committee has been set up to make a study of student accident insurance, as some of the students are covered by two or three policies when one should be sufficient.

RESIGNATIONS REVIEWED

Resignations were received and accepted from Mrs. E. Pod. granski, Mrs. J. Symington, Mr. Arthur Warren, Mrs. A. Warren, Mrs. Dorothy Miller, Mr. W. Gorissen, Miss E. Svensk, Mrs. D. Turpin and Mr. T. Brady.

With the three resignations received last month the total is 13 teachers who will be leaving. Four are moving to other schools, four are going to further education and four are leaving the profession, all but three positions have been filled.

The milk contract for next year has been given to Wilmot's Dairy.

Permission has been granted for rental of the auditorium to the Department of Agriculture Extension for a 4-H project, and to the Jaycees for a variety show April 23.

A motion was passed to send a recommendation to the township councils to have Deseronto accepted into the Napanee and District School Area.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, APRIL 17, 1965

OSC Director Sold Windfall Shares Short, Made $29,145 In Profit Commission Told

By GORDON GRANT

TORONTO (CP) — John Campbell testified Thursday he and his wife made $29,145 from trading shares of Windfall Oils and Mines Limited last July and August while he was director of the Ontario Securities Commission.

He told a royal commission hearing the profit was realized through trading in five accounts, all under different names, at the brokerage house of Tom and Sarnia.

He said the trading was done because his wife had sold Windfall short and he was trying to get her out of financial difficulties.

Mr. Campbell was suspended from his securities post Aug. 25 for possible conflict of interests and resigned Sept. 26.

SOLD SHORT

Testifying under the Canada and Ontario Evidence Acts which prevent his evidence being used against him in any subsequent action, he said the profits were made by selling shares of Windfall short.

A short - seller is a person who sells stock in anticipation that its price will fall. He hopes to sell the stock at a high price and buy it back at a low price, thereby making a profit.

Last July shares of Windfall rocketed to $5.40 from 56 cents in summer the company had struck ore on a property near Timmins. It fell to 50 cents July 31 when the company said no ore had been found.

Throughout this period, Mr. Campbell was in close contact with Windfall President George MacMillan and his wife, Viola MacMillan, the company's promoter and major shareholder.

Mr. Campbell told the royal commission the MacMillans were enthusiastic about Windfall's chances of finding a mine.

FELT RUMORS FALSE

Asked why in the face of this he sold the stock short, he said he felt the stock's price had risen on "false rumors."

He said: "It was my expectation the stock should sell around $2.50."

The royal commission was appointed last August to investigate the circumstances which made Windfall stock fluctuate so wildly in price.

Commissioner Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly of the Ontario Court of Appeal asked Mr. Campbell how he viewed his position with the Ontario Securities Commission in the light of his trading in Windfall.

"There were two persons involved, one a husband and one a director of the Ontario Securities Commission," Mr. Campbell replied.

Commissioner Mr. Justice Kelly asked Mr. Campbell what the duties of director of the Ontario Securities Commission were.

"My duty as director of the OSC was to protect the public —and that's what I did," Mr. Campbell said.

BRINGS OUT DETAILS

The royal commission brought out details of Mr. Campbell's trading in accounts under the names V. L. Sherwood, Mrs. E. Berry, Mrs. B. Campbell, Colin Hunter and Ed Boyer number five.

Asked why he switched trading from one account to another, Mr. Campbell said he did not want his name to be made public because he had been criticized by the Toronto Daily Star for an alleged conflict of interest over the ownership of a local restaurant.

Most of Mr. Campbell's short selling was done in July and his buying early in August after the stock's collapse on the stock market.

His short selling resulted in his getting further into debt when his goal was to erase his wife's stock market loss of about $400. Asked why he continued his involvement, he said: "Having chosen the course I had to continue it."

GOT 5,000 SHARES

Reviewing his activities during July, Mr. Campbell said he got 5,000 shares of Windfall from Viola MacMillan July 12, two days after his wife had sold the stock short.

He said he was given the shares at a time when he was trying to keep Windfall from being suspended from trading by the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Mr. Campbell said he regarded the transaction as a loan and he gave the shares back around Aug. 4.

Mr. Hartt said: "You gave her shares which were worth only $5,000, but they were worth $20,000 when she gave them to you, what did she say?"

"It didn't mean anything to her because she had to keep some shares in order to maintain control of Windfall," Mr. Campbell replied.

TRIED PERSUASION

Mr. Campbell said Mrs. MacMillan handed him the shares at a hotel here, where he had gone to try to persuade her and her husband to provide additional information to the exchange.

The exchange was threatening to suspend the stock unless the company furnished information to justify its phenomenal rise.

The former official said he partly convinced the MacMillans to provide the additional information, but Mrs. MacMillan began "backsliding" and saying she didn't owe anything to the stock exchange.

He said he told her:

"For God's sake, Viola, you've got to be a little reasonable. After all I'm working against my wife's own best interests."

DIGS OUT 3,000

With that, he said, Mrs. MacMillan went back to her hotel bedroom and dug out 3,000 shares — he could not remember whether from a drawer or her suitcase — and gave them to him. He said that was not enough and she made it 5,000.

Mr. Campbell told of a series of efforts — which he said he made on his own initiative — to prevent Windfall from being suspended from trading.

Mr. Sinatar, July 26—the day he got the shares—he visited exchange president Howard Graham and received the understanding that a statement Windfall had prepared in response to exchange demands was unsatisfactory and the stock would be suspended next day.

That evening he met Mines Minister George Wardrope at a hotel here and told him the "whole story," except for his own receipt of Windfall shares. The minister relayed it to Gen. Graham and Deputy Attorney-General W. B. Common.

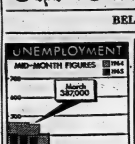
Mr. Campbell said he and Mr. Wardrope "worked on a memorandum" which was read to Mr. Common, who seemed to think it was "all right."

RECALLS TESTIMONY

Mr. Hartt reminded Mr. Campbell that the minister of mines previously had testified that he just took notes and the witness said it was his recollection that he and Mr. Wardrope worked on it together. He said they came up with an "acceptable document."

As produced by Mr. Hartt, the "document" turned out to be mostly in Mr. Campbell's handwriting. He said there were some pencilled additions whose authorship he did not identify.

Asked whether the document contained any more information than what had already been supplied the exchange, Mr. Campbell said it was a great deal. But it was "warmer."



Later, Mr. Campbell said, he told T. F. C. Hunt, exchange full solicitor, found the statement acceptable to William Somerville, exchange vice-president, with one amendment concerning the rumors, and trading was not suspended.

Next day, he had told the whole story ("scared for my trades") to Attorney - General Arthur Wishart and John Kimber, chairman of the securities commission, and suggested a meeting between the exchange and security officials.

Mr. Campbell had suggested that he himself not attend, since he was "upset" over a conversation with Gen. Graham.

As he recalled it under questioning, the exchange head had told him he had a hard time

18 Fatalities On First Day Easter Weekend

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Accidents took at least 18 lives in Canada during the first day of the Easter weekend.

The Canadian Press survey since 6 p.m. Thursday local times showed that 11 persons died in road accidents, five in fires, one by drowning and one was killed by a train.

Ontario reported seven traffic deaths and two killed in fires. British Columbia had three fire deaths and one road death.

A drowning.

The survey continues until midnight Sunday. During Easter weekend last year there were 42 road deaths and 16 other fatal accidents in Canada. There were a record 76 traffic deaths in traffic in 1957.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council has predicted at least 40 traffic deaths during the 78-hour weekend.

understanding his interest in keeping Windfall from being suspended and he said he was taking the kind of interest that might be shown by a company official. Mr. Campbell had bumped up on the telephone conversation.

The 9hrear-old former securities commission member said his only interest in the situation was getting the stock exchange and the MacMillans together.

He said he thought suspending the stock would be a mistake by the exchange because it would then trade on the unlisted market where nobody would have control over its activities.

Mr. Campbell said he "was annoyed" the exchange would take such a step without consulting the securities commission.

Lord Caradon Warns

'Poverty, Not Cold War Is World's Big Problem'

By CARMAN CUMMING

He has helped to put down rebellions but has a certain admiration for rebels.

He spent 30 years trying to eliminate his profession—colonial officer.

And he resigned as a matter of principle from Britain's United Nations delegation in 1962, only to come back two years later as its head.

Lord Caradon, better known still as Sir Hugh Foot, governor of Cyprus during the bloody years before independence, often is called "the governor who ran out of colonies."

He himself quotes the phrase with relish, pointing out that every colony he governed in during three decades as a colonial officer has reached independence.

"I've been fortunate in my life to be in at the end of colonialism and to see the beginning of a hope of an international authority," he says.

That attitude, and his own actions growing out of it, account largely for the remarkable popularity Caradon enjoys at the UN. Probably no other delegate from so small a power commands such widespread respect.

ELEVATED TO PEERAGE

African and Asian delegates admire him particularly for his decision three years ago to resign because he could not agree with the Conservative government's policy on Southern Rhodesia. He felt London wasn't acting forcefully enough to prevent political rights of the Negro majority.

Last January, after the labor election victory, many delegates were openly delighted when he was made a peer, named to the cabinet and put in charge of the UN delegation.

A tall, solidly-built man of 57 with rugged features dominated by bushy eyebrows and warmly humorous eyes, Caradon talks quietly, smiles often and avoids pedantry.

Occasionally, when tempers rise in the Security Council or in committee he is quick to try to soothe feelings and talk about areas of compromise.

As a cabinet member—he is minister of state for foreign affairs—he has more latitude than he enjoyed previously to react to unexpected situations by repeating old policy. Caradon doesn't.

He tends to be more concerned about the underdeveloped world than about cold war fencing.

"It's no good telling starving people you're keeping the peace," he says.

"Many people maintain—and I'm amongst them—that the greatest danger in the world doesn't arise from the cold war between East and West but from issues of race and poverty and population.

"It is in these issues that the UN may have its widest role to play."

One of his most - quoted ripostes came after a Soviet delegate said, tauntingly, that many of the Commonwealth prime ministers had once been prisoners of the British.

Caradon snapped back that it was "better to make prime ministers of your prisoners than prisoners of your prime ministers."

A trained public speaker—he once toured the United States with the Cambridge debating team—Caradon enjoys speaking and is considered one of the most articulate men in the UN.

To an aide who once cautioned him about talking on too many engagements, he replied that making speeches was one of his favorite pastimes.

One forthcoming speech will be at the annual dinner of The Canadian Press, Canada's national news-gathering co-operative, in Toronto April 27.

His father, the late Rt. Hon. Isaac Foot, was a Liberal cabinet minister in the early 1930s. A brother, Sir Dingle Foot, sits in the Commons with him as solicitor-general, and another, Michael, is a writer and Labor MP.

SERVED IN PALESTINE

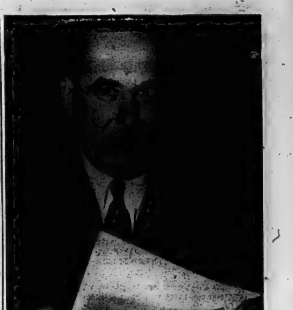
Michael, Dingle and a third brother, John, a lawyer, all were presidents of the Oxford Union. Hugh, something of a rebel, went to Cambridge and became president of the Cambridge Union.

After graduation he entered the colonial service and arrived in Palestine in 1929 just at the start of its long pre-war period of turbulence and revolt. He was ordered home in 1938—still in his 20s—because his name had reached the top of the rebel assassination list.

In his autobiography, A Start in Freedom, he wrote that he learned in Palestine to "admire rebels and had often "idly wished to be on their side of the barricades" instead of the side of authority."

Asked about that now, he says with a deprecating smile that he supposes "all right-thinking people would feel the same way."

At the outbreak of the Second World War he went back to Trans-Jordan, where he once had a close escape after his staff car was struck by a shell.



Later he moved on to Cyprus, Jamaica and Nigeria, where an assassin once tried to stab him in the back but managed only to graze him.

He was on a speaking tour of Canada in 1957 when a cable came from London saying he was being considered for the Cyprus governorship but asking assurance he would not resign on grounds of policy. He refused to give such assurance but got the job anyway and spent three years helping bring the island out of a morass of rebellion and civil fighting.

After Cyprus he turned to the UN, first as a delegate, later as a staff member.

His first months as head of the British delegation have been marked by the continuing pendulum crisis that forced abandonment of the recent General Assembly session. But he is impatient with those who suggest the UN is paralysed or finished because of the cold war.

"The UN hasn't failed. It has scarcely started on its big tasks."

HEADS BRITISH DELEGATION—Lord Caradon of St. Cleer 57, is the quiet-talking articulate head of the British delegation to the United Nations. A tall solidly-built man with an extensive background in Britain's colonial service, the former Sir Hugh Foot feels the UN can play its greatest role in resolving issues of race, poverty and population. His concern with the underdeveloped world makes him popular with African and Asian delegates. As foreign minister in Britain's Labor government, his cabinet rank gives him more latitude than most delegates have in UN (CP Photo)

Boy Burned To Death in Barn Fire

STOUFFVILLE, Ont. (CP)—One boy died and his brother was severely burned in a barn fire Friday near this community 20 miles northeast of Toronto.

The body of 12-year-old Douglas Hisey was found by firemen almost an hour after they extinguished the blaze.

Paul Hisey, 9, suffered severe burns to his back, legs and head.

A third boy escaped from the blaze and turned in the alarm, police said.

Paul told police he and the other boys were playing in the barn through hay bales in the barn when they became lost. They lit a match to find their way out and the hay caught fire, he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bruce Hisey, parents of the boys, live with their seven children on the farm which belongs to Douglas Clark, the victims' uncle.

SPORTS SLICES

Back in the days when Hitler's blood hawks were battling the Western all-stars for the Civilization Cup, an old soldier was "pegged" for the umpteenth time.

"Smith," snapped the commanding officer, "I have taken just about everything away from you that is possible—rank, pay, leave and whatnot. Have you anything to say?"

"Yes sir—pardon me sir—I have. There is one thing you can never take away from me."

The CO raised his eyes and barked, "What's that?"

"Me military appearance, sir."

Thursday night a cup-hungry haggle of Black Hawks crushed the double-glory hopes of Detroit's proud National Hockey League champions with a thrilling, but decisive 4-3 victory.

Howe, a battle-scarred warrior and veteran of many Cup frays, led his wings to a first-period 2-0 advantage. Later with the blanket of defeat mantling Olympia, he spearheaded gallant but futile counter-attacks.

Hull, his Hawks back on their haunches from the relentless Detroit first-period onslaught, rallied his forces in the second frame, his blistering slapshot goal wadging the opening to ultimate victory.

Aided by the brilliant Nesterenko, and the Hawks smelling victory, Hull set up the winner for Miklta, with Nesty clinching the last nail in the Detroit coffin.

But while the Hawks took the cup finals gold and glory from the Red Wings, they failed to remove the hockey Excalibur from the throne of the National League championship. That, like Smitty's "military appearance" can never be taken from them.

In the minds of many, the mark of true greatness in the National Hockey League belongs to the club that takes home the Stanley Cup, regardless of in what position it finished in the regular league standing.

The six golden gods of the NHL Olympia sit in their gilded cages counting loot and clipping coupons while the four leading horses in the Schedule Stakes play a sawed-off series for bonus handouts and Lord Stanley's $50 silverware.

I've said this before—and I say it again. Ask the average hockey fan who won the Prince of Wales Cup in 1960 and five gets you ten he answers "What's the Prince of Wales Cup?" But ask him how many times Toronto or any other club has won the Stanley Cup and he'll come up with the answer quicker than an over-age chorine to a marriage proposal.

So while second and third places teams battle it out for what some think is hockey's greatest honor, the Detroit Red Wings hang up their gear, disappointed naturally at the turn of events, but content with the fact they are the best club the National Hockey League produced this season. Amen.

Now the glorious dead is buried, what is going to happen in the battles for the survival of the proven fittest? Tonight Montreal Canadiens and the fired-up Black Hawks go to the mat for the silver mug garnished with the golden generosity of the Serene Six.

The Hawks are on edge, their morale high after their elimination of Detroit. The Canadiens should be well rested and "raring to go." The Habs have the "hometown" ice tonight, but both clubs have proven the fallacy of invincibility on home ice.

Be that as it may. My guess is that the club that wins the first game on "foreign ice" will ready the clubhouse mantel for the Stanley Cup. Both the Habs and Hawks won three of the semi-final sets on home pasture—and both won the clinchers on faraway fields.

Hull is back at peak form—or nearly so. Nesterenko, the second star of the Hawks' win over Detroit is flying high. Mikita is showing some of his scoring ability—and the "scooters" are scooting.

While the Habs have no Gordie Howe, Maleus Bellveau, Henri Richard, Claude Provost, Bobby Rousseau, et cie, will make it mighty interesting for the Chicago flock. Should go seven.

Whip Wings 4-2 * * * Howe Brilliant

Hull Leads Hawks To Cup Finals

DETROIT (CP)—One would hardly believe from listening to Chicago's Bobby Hull, Stan Mikita, Doug Mohns and Eric Nesterenko that they had put the Black Hawks into the Stanley Cup finals.

Each scored a goal here Thursday night to offset Gordie Howe's fourth of the series and Norm Ullman's sixth and give the Black Hawks a 4-2 win over Detroit Red Wings in the seventh and deciding game of their best-of-seven semi-final.

"The shot was like most of the others," Hull said. "It was at the line and I just let it go."

Hull's second-period goal—his eighth of the series—was a whistling 70-foot slapshot from just inside the blue line that handcuffed Detroit goaltender Roger Crozier and put the Hawks back in the game after being down 2-0.

"It was just a backhander, an easy shot," laughed Mohns. "Crozier was on the other side of the net. I think he might have been down. I know he was low, and the puck caught a high corner of the other side."

DREW SMITH OUT

Mohns didn't explain that the goal had tied the game 2-2. Mikita had started the play down the centre, pulled his check, Floyd Smith, out of position and passed to Mohns, coming down the left side.

"When we got that one, we were back in it," said Chicago coach Billy Reay. "I really thought that the rest of the game belonged to us."

The second-period markers by Hull and Mohns set the stage for Chicago's third-period onslaught.

"It was just lying there at the side of the net," said Mikita, the National Hockey League scoring champion. "I never thought I would make it to the puck but there was nobody to stop me."

Mikita's goal, his third of the series, was the winner. The talented centre, who pivots Chicago's Scooter Line of Mohns and Ken Wharram, had actually caught a pass from Mohns, who was standing behind the Detroit net.

He batted it into Crozier's pads from point-blank range, caught the rebound before the goaltender could smother it and flipped it into the net.

"Bobby (Hull) had taken the Detroit defence out of the play," Nesterenko said. "I just picked up the puck and fired. Everybody's back except Crozier's was turned to me."

Hull had dashed down the middle on the play but dropped the puck about 10 feet in front of Crozier. Nesterenko, who had trailed Hull all the way, beat the goaltender on a partially-screened shot.

The loss left the Wings with $1,000 a man, while the Hawks picked up $1,200. The Hawks are assured of at least another $1,000 from the finals and could boost that to $2,000 by defeating Montreal.

The Wings had opened strongly, completely controlling the play during the opening period to register the 2-0 lead.

Detroit continued the onslaught into the second period, holding the edge even during Chicago power plays until Hull broke the ice while Chicago enjoyed a two-man advantage just before the eight - minute mark.

"Bobby (Hull) had taken the Detroit defence out of the play," Nesterenko said. "I just picked up the puck and fired. Everybody's back except Crozier's was turned to me."

Then the Wings wilted.

The game marked the finale of a brilliant career for 15-year veteran Ted Lindsay, who had returned this season after a four-year retirement. The 39-year-old left winger, traded by Detroit to Chicago in 1957, had ended his career the way he preferred—in a Red Wing uniform.

'Pushed Players Past Limit'

Bathgate Puts Blame On Imlach

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP)—The Times and Conservator quotes Toronto rightwinger Andy Bathgate as blaming coach Punch Imlach for the Maple Leafs' failure to win a fourth straight Stanley Cup.

"There is a limit to a player's endurance," Bathgate said in an interview with The Times and Conservator. "I might have pushed a few of the players past that limit physically and mentally. . . . We played some of our best games in practice."

Bathgate also told the newspaper the coach rarely spoke to him or star left winger Frank Mahovlich.

"When he did it was to criticize and Frank usually got the worst of it. We are athletes, not machines, and Frank is the type who needs some encouragement."

Bathgate also told the newspaper he will not play next season if he is confined to a utility role.

'And In This Corner From Montreal..'

First Round Tonight

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) — Billy Reay, Chicago Black Hawks coach, has a simple prescription for winning the Stanley Cup — a prescription which his team has failed to fill in the last three years.

"Keep the puck out of your own net and stay healthy" is the solution Reay offered following his arrival from Detroit Friday.

However, the Chicago coach already has seen the "stay healthy" half of his formula disappear in smoke.

Reay lists defenceman Pierre Pilote and winger Kenny Wharram as doubtful starters for tonight's opening game of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final series against Montreal Canadiens at the Forum.

Pilote is hampered by an injury to his left shoulder, while Wharram — the little right-winger on the Scoreboser line—is nursing a sore right knee.

Both players picked up their injuries in the rugged seven-game semi-final series in which the Hawks ousted Detroit Red Wings. Hawks closed the door on the 1965 champions Wings with a 4-2 victory Thursday night at Detroit ice.

"SHOULD BE RESTED"

Reay pronounced the rest of his squad healthy. He said the Canadiens, who have been idle since ousting Toronto Maple Leafs last Sunday, should be rested for the final.

"They've been off from Tuesday to Saturday. . . . That's about the right length of time. . . . A week's too long," Reay said.

Coach Toe Blake said the key to his Canadiens' winning the cup could be summed up in three words: Stop Bobby Hull.

Blake said he will use Claude Provost against Hull for Canadiens' home games, "but Reay may have some other ideas when we get to Chicago."

Blake, as coach of the home team, will have the final say in aligning line-against-line at the Forum. In Chicago, the last line shift will be up to Reay.

Hull currently leads the play-off scoring parade with 13 points on eight goals and five assists. His eight counters tied the playoff record for a single series.

Reay said he will use rookie Doug Jarrett, up this year from St. Catharines Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association, if Pilote has to stay out.

Blake plans to use Noel Picard as a fifth defenceman to replace all-star Jacques Laperriere, sidelined in the final Toronto contest.

Reay said he will not name his goaltender until just prior to game time.

Terry Sawchuk (Denis) DeJordy in the second game against Detroit to give (Glenn) Hall a rest. We always treat them about equal," Reay said.

Canadiens will open with Jacques Plante in the net. Blake said following Friday's practice that County Jewish, Montreal-based Hodge for the final four games against Toronto, had not as yet elected because he had the flu.

"However, even so I would start Plante in the first game because he was our regular goaltender all year," Blake said.

While home ice is considered an advantage in the playoffs, both coaches said they're on the road during the regular season. The Hawks won two and tied one in Toronto, with Canadiens netting three wins and one tie at Chicago. The overall record for the 14 scheduled games had the Canadiens ahead 6-5-3, but the Hawks outscored them 44-36.

The second game also is at Montreal Tuesday night. Third and fourth games of the final are scheduled for Chicago Stadium next Thursday and Sunday nights.

The Memorial Cup

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Oil Kings are showing signs of following the path that won them the Memorial Cup two years ago.

Oil Kings, Western Canadian junior hockey champions a record consecutive years, trounced Regina Pals 9-3 Thursday night before 2,885 fans to take a 3-2 edge in a best - of - seven western semi-final.

It was their third consecutive triumph after dropping the first two games in Regina. The quintet game is scheduled tonight at Regina, with the seventh, if necessary, in Edmonton Monday.

Ron Anderson slapped in three goals to pace Oil Kings to their third victory and set up two more by linemate Graham Longmuir. Brian Kennedy scored twice and Ted Rogers and Craig Cameron completed Oil Kings' scoring.

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Lachine Maroons picked up their second straight win in the double round - robin Eastern Canadian Memorial Cup semi-final tournament here Thursday night, defeating Sydney Cape Breton Post 8-1 in a game that ended in a wild melee.

The victory gives Lachine a 2-0 win-loss record in the three-team tournament. Smiths Falls Bears have a 1-1 record and Sydney is 0-2.

George Norton led the Maroons' consecutive years, trounced Regina Pals 9-3 Thursday night before 2,885 fans to take a 3-2 edge in a best - of - seven western semi-final.

Dresden Wins Juvenile 'C' Hockey Title

Dresden captured the Ontario OMHA Juvenile "C" hockey championship and wound up the hockey season for Belleville Memorial Arena last night.

Dresden defeated Bancroft 5-3 in the second game of their titular series, taking the championship—two games to none.

The game was closely contested and in doubt until Dresden's final goal wrapped it up. Bancroft held a edge in the early going but the visitors exploded in the second and third heats.

Will Mean Year-Round Club Operation

Country Club Plans Curling Facilities

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Don't look now—but a "sports wedding" in the city and district may be in the offing.

Curling and golf may say "I do" in the not too distant future.

The above stems from a report given the Bay of Quinte Country Club president Everett Fairman and his board of directors by the planning committee chairman.

The report stated: "Favorable progress is being made in the planning for future expansion of curling and golfing facilities, making for an all-year operation of the club."

The report added that more details will be made public at a later date.

COURSE READY

The club's golf professional George Balazs, who has signed for another term, stated that the course will be available for play the first of next week, Wednesday at the latest.

In passing it is noted that Mr. Balazs also has been named the club's "Course Superintendent". His has been voted to all other term as a director of the Professional Golfers' Association.

For the past two weeks, the pro and his staff have been readying the course for play.

He stated the course has wintered very well. The greens have been top dressed, bunkers repaired and ten new benches installed.

The clubhouse has been given a new look from top to bottom. New electric golf carts are now available to members.

Last fall it was announced that due to the upsurge in interest in golf, membership for 1965 might be restricted. At that time it was rated at over 500.

Directors have accepted 50 new members to date but state they may have to close membership shortly.

FIRST OGA TOURNEY

It was announced that for the first time in the history of the club the Ontario Best-Ball Tournament, sanctioned by the Ontario Golf Association will be held on the course June 18th.

This was held in North Bay last year and won by the Morland brothers who also took it in 1962. It attracted 92 pairs of Ontario's best golfers.

Bay of Quinte directors anticipate the event will draw over 100 "roughers" here in June. An effort will be spared to make the club's first tournament of this kind a success.

The Ontario Golf Association has also given its sanctional blessing to the Second Annual Golf Festival scheduled for the Civic Holiday weekend.

The first "Festival" held last year was an unqualified success attracting over 400 amateur and professional golfers.

Names of the best professionals in Ontario were included in the field of 56 money players. Moe Norman won the tournament from a star-studded field.

Experience gained from the operation of the 1964 Festival will enable directors to make the 1965 tournaments an even greater series of successes.

Many outstanding professionals, brought here through the efforts of George Balazs, were very favorably impressed with the club's course and tournament arrangements.

Not a few, including Norman, Whibly, Breen, Noble, Dugnan, Tucker and others including Vic Hadfield, the hockey star, told this writer they liked the course and club—and here will count on the pros' overall scores.

Chelsea Blanks Champs

LONDON (Reuters)—Chelsea slipped smartly into top form at the start of Easter holiday program Friday and hammered the reigning English League soccer champion, Liverpool, 5-0.

The victory put the London club back into a challenging position for the title, only one point behind Leeds United, which did not play Friday.

Leeds, which is bidding for the English League and Football Association Cup double, has 38 points from 37 games and Chelsea, 55 points from 38 games.

Chelsea quickly shook off the effects of its 3-2 defeat Monday by English Cup - holder West Ham United, and Liverpool had no answer to its speedy attack at Stamford Bridge Friday.

Quinte Hockey League

Ter-Haar Are Champions

Ter-Haar Daubers defeated SACO in the seventh and deciding game of the Quinte Hockey League finals Thursday night. The score was 4-1.

Daubers scored two goals in the first period without a reply, made it 3-0 after two heats and split a pair of goals in the final chapter.

The Ter-Haar victory prevented SACO from sweeping league honors. SACO won the regular-season pennant.

The championship teams and individual award winners will be honored at the league banquet, scheduled for Club Canara next Friday night.

"Bomber" Kellar opened the game scoring on a three-ply play with Jack Donovan and Al Ruttan. Hubert Pointer took a pass from brother Ron to make it 2-0 later in the period.

Kellar teamed up with Ruttan and Donnie Moore for the second goal and a 3-0 lead in the middle frame.

Referees Gord Gregory and Bob Boyle doled out only five major penalties, three of them going to the winners. Four of the total came in the final period.

Yankees Win First; Tigers Undefeated

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Johnny Keane has his first victory of the year, which puts him one up on the world championship baseball club he managed last year.

While St. Louis Cardinals are still looking for their first victory since their World Series triumph last October, Keane got New York Yankees on to the right path for the first time in three tries Thursday night as the Yankees whipped Los Angeles Angels 4-0.

And the man who did the job for Keane was Mel Stottlemyre, the same pitcher who was tagged with the defeat when Keane and the Cardinals wrapped up the seventh and deciding game of the Series against the Yankees.

Despite Stottlemyre's seven-hit shutout, the day's pitching honors belonged to Bennie Daniels of Washington, who held Chicago White Sox hitless for 7 2-3 innings as the Senators came up with a 3-1 victory.

STAY ON TOP

Detroit Tigers stayed on top of the American League with their third straight victory, a 6-4 decision over Minnesota Twins, and Kansas City Athletics downed Cleveland Indians 7-3.

A homer and a single by Roger Maris, good for two runs, supplied all the support Stottlemyre needed as the Yankees helped him out with three double plays and permitted only one Angel to reach third base.

Daniels hadn't allowed a ball to be hit out of the infield when Washington shortstop Ed Brinkman let Ron Hansen's slow roller skip through his legs with two out in the eighth inning for an error. Pinch-hitter Smokey Burgess then singled solidly to right and J. C. Martin singled home a run, giving the White Sox a 1-1 tie.

Al Kaline hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning for the Tigers to break a 4-4 tie created by team-mate Norm Cash's three-run shot in the fifth. Dave Wickersham pitched down after permitting the Twins seven hits in the first three innings to grab the victory.

A double and three singles by Bert Campaneris and a two-run double by Ed Charles gave Kansas City enough power to offset a two-run homer by Rocky Colavito, whom the Athletics traded to Cleveland last winter.

Robert Lansing Jettisoned From '12 O'Clock High'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Robert Lansing, the firm-jawed General Savage of 12 O'Clock High, has been jettisoned from the television series, but he says that no tears be shed.

Lansing's departure has aroused a storm of complaint from a growing number of fans. The action apparently stems from a network's concern with images, markets and other Madison Avenue terms.

It seems that next season ABC is shifting the show from its 10 p.m. Friday spot to 7:30 p.m. Monday. That, according to the network brass, means a younger audience that will not be able to identify with an aging air force general.

"That's the way it was explained to me," said Lansing, who trained on Broadway for TV leads. "They said they needed a younger squadron leader with whom the kids could identify. So here I am—obsolete at 37."

They wanted me to come back next season on a guest basis now and then. I don't think so. They made the decision to go for an audience of boys and their fathers. It may be a good decision, there is room for a good air-adventure series.

"But that isn't the series that I signed up to do. I know that at 7:30 12 O'clock High wouldn't be able to do a story about religion or extra-marital love or a full love story on a leave in Scotland—subjects we did this season. There were others, too, that dealt with adult subjects in an adult manner.

Lansing, who previously had a season's run in 87th Precinct, plans to leave the series routine to his wife—she's Emily McLaughlin, star of the daytime General Hospital series.

"I've had enough of the clean-shaven roles," he said. "I'm going to find some second-lead heavies in big movies and have myself a ball."

AT THE BELLE — Peek-a-Boo Cindy Russell turns the tables on a "detective" in Walt Disney's "Emil and The Detectives". Walter Slezak stars in the Technicolor comedy thriller.

AT THE PARK — One of Britain's most popular rock singers, Cilla Black is among the actresses and funnakers in Brian Epstein's Gerry One, the Movies, United Artists release starring Gerry and The Pacemakers opening Monday afternoon at the Park Theatre for its first Belleville showing. On the same program "The Beatles in "A Hard Day's Night". Complete show starts at 1.45 p.m. [illegible]

Grab Series 4-1

Flyers Heave Marlies

NIAGARA FALLS (CP) — It took Niagara Falls Flyers just five games to prove to Toronto Marlboros that they were the best team in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

The Flyers, who finished first in the league with a late-season spurt, finished the Marlboros in fine fashion Tuesday night, spotting Toronto one goal, then coming back for a 3-1 victory.

Niagara Falls defeated the Marlboros 6-1 in games in the best - of - seven league final. Marlboros took only one game, a 3-1 win Tuesday.

Jim McKenny, Marlboro defenceman, scored the first goal of the game in the third period Thursday, with a point direct that zoomed past goalie Bernie Parent, who was screened by six players.

Brian Bradley put Niagara Falls ahead from the faceoff after Sanderson's goal and put the game on ice four minutes after that when he knocked in a pass from Ted Snell for the final goal of the game.

Niagara Falls finished off Toronto by outplaying the Marlboros throughout the contest and outshooting them by a 32-16 margin.

Look Down at World Champions

Mets Set Record; Climb Out Of Cellar

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Good Friday break in the National League schedule couldn't have come at a better time for New York Mets. It gave them an extra 24 hours to cherish a landmark in their brief career.

For the first time in their four-year existence the Mets are out of the league cellar. And, what's more, they're running a full game ahead of the 1964 world champions.

The miraculous situation came to pass Thursday when Casey Stengel's heroes staggered to a 5-4 victory over Houston Astros in 10 innings for their first victory in three starts while St. Louis Cardinals, proud conquerors of New York Yankees in the 1964 World Series, were whomped 10-4 by Cincinnati Reds.

So the Cards, who have lost three straight after tying Chicago Cubs 10-10 on opening day, dropped to the bottom of the heap while the Mets soared to the dizzy heights of a three-way tie with Houston and San Francisco Giants for seventh place.

BRAVES WON 5-5

Milwaukee Braves downed the Cubs 5-1 in the only other National League game played as rain washed out the Giants at Philadelphia and Los Angeles Dodgers at Pittsburgh.

The Dodgers, all alone in first place with a 2-0 record, have two more games scheduled against the Phillies during the weekend with the key one coming up Sunday when Sandy Koufax tests his arthritic elbow for the first time in regular action.

The Cards made the most of five hits against John Tsitouris Thursday, two of them run-batting doubles by Ken Boyer and Dick Groat and a third Curt Flood's homer. But Gordy Coleman's four-run blast in the fifth inning put the game out of reach.

The Mets started out illustriously against Houston by splitting the third triple play of their career in the second inning. Jim Wynn flied to right-fielder Johnny Lewis, who nailed Walt Bond at the plate. Catcher Chris Cannizzaro's relay to shortstop Roy McMillan was in time to beat Bob Aspromonte trying to make second.

The Braves, playing their last home opener in Milwaukee before their move to Atlanta next season, got four-bit pitching from Bob Sadowski, who also started a three-run rally with an infield single in the third inning and put another man in scoring position with a sacrifice bunt.

'The Man's A Marvel'

Spahnie Loves Casey

NEW YORK (AP) — They call them the sunsin' Mets. But everybody knows the only thing really sunsing about them is their manager.

Warren Spahn hasn't been around the club very long but there's no doubt in his mind who is the most amazing Met of them all.

"I knew Casey Stengel years ago," said the pitcher - coach. "More than 20, in fact. I was just a green kid then trying to make good. Casey was my first big-league manager, you know. But I was too young to understand him then.

"Now, that I've become associated with him, I can understand why he's become an image. Why he's so believed. Why he's the greatest ambassador the game has ever known.

"That man is a marvel. He's got the players to play for him old he is. He's got all those young fellows beat a mile.

"I've never seen a more understanding person. Or a more dedicated baseball man.

"Sure, he's a comedian. Sure he double-talks. But he's plenty deep. And nobody knows more about this game. If you listen to him carefully, and concentrate on what he's telling you, you can learn plenty. A fellow can get an education just being around him."

This comes from one who has won 356 games in 19 years and experienced 13 seasons winning 20 or more. Casey is not the only one who is amazing.

At 44, Spahn is the oldest major - leaguer practising his trade. He's also taken on the additional chores of pitching coach.

"Casey's been good to me, in that respect, too," said the indestructible left hander. "He lets me run the pitchers and he's never second-guessed me."

Change Date Fourth Game Stanley Cup

MONTREAL (CP)—The fourth game of the Stanley Cup finals will be played in Chicago Sunday, April 25, and not Saturday, April 24, as originally announced.

A Black Hawks spokesman said Friday after the team arrived here for tonight's opening game against Montreal Canadiens that the change of dates had been decided on by the Chicago management.

Under playoff rules, the dates of weekend games in United States cities are up to the home team. The National Hockey League, however, has asked the teams to play Saturdays to help accommodate CBC television coverage.

The Hawks originally announced they would go along with this and play their next weekend home game of the best-of-seven series on Saturday.

WILL EXTEND AID

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has agreed to extend $1,000,000 in aid this year to British Guiana, the external aid office said Thursday. The money will be spent in Canada to provide both technical and capital assistance for the Commonwealth country, now undergoing a five-year development plan.

Umpires Get Into TV Act

That's the major question that should get its first answer today when the American Broadcasting Company lifts the curtain on its televising of major league baseball with three in a nations — isolated cameras, stop - action shots and an umpire wired for sound.

The Saturday games—today's has San Francisco Giants visiting New York Mets — are being carried by the CBC.

This comes from one who has been a popular feature on pro football telecasts.

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC announced Thursday it has negotiated a deal with American Broadcasting Company for carrying ABC's Saturday major league baseball telecasts on the CBC network.

The CBC had to make new arrangements this year because CBS, from whom it formally took the Saturday games, this year is carrying the Saturday games of New York Yankees, which it now is the major stockholder.

Both the isolated cameras and stop-action techniques have

Cancer Hazards Lurk in Food

ARTICLE 11
By PAT McGRADY.

While much of the world is still stalked by hunger, the United States is richly fed—perhaps overfed.

The North American food industry spends more than $100 million a year to develop new food products.

Chemicals protect animals and plants from disease, predatory insects and pests. Food products are preserved against decay by freezing, canning, packaging and organism - resisting chemicals. Two-thirds of the seven or eight thousand articles on supermarket shelves did not exist 15 years ago. Their natural beauty is maintained with anti-aging compounds and enhanced with dyes.

By contrast to the protection afforded domestic plants and animals, the wild creatures of the North American continent have begun to disappear. Pesticides and other chemicals considered essential to modern farm management have poisoned them.

A few years ago rainbow trout became the beneficiaries of advances in the science of nutrition.

In United States hatcheries, they were given a cleverly concocted diet containing traces of arsenicals designed to destroy disease-causing amoebae, sulfa drugs to do do away with other infections, oxidized fatty acids, vitamin supplements, and cheap vegetable protein instead of more costly meat protein.

In 1960 scientists were appalled: 20 or 90 percent of the trout kept in hatcheries for three years had developed liver and lung cancer. Fish as young as six or eight months old were coming down with the disease.

At this writing, the responsible agent has not been identified. The epidemic could be due to a combination of dietary chemicals, each by itself incapable of producing cancer to any great degree.

Scientists say something like this could happen to humans exposed en masse to untested technical "advances" in nutrition.

The fight to monitor the contents of the U.S. food supply has been a long one — dating to Reconstruction days and a federal "poison squad" that found such contaminants as formaldehyde in milk and cocaine in soft drinks.

A NO MAN'S LAND

Commissioner of Food and Drugs George P. Larrick, in 1957, urged strengthening and modernization of the U.S. Food and drug law. He said:

"We have had some very narrow escapes because of the use of additives that had no place in food. It is inconceivable that this country should continue to expose itself indefinitely to the risks inherent in the present scheme of food control."

He insisted the law should require adequate testing of a chemical before it is used in food although, he said, there is no evidence that any food distributed in the United States "produces cancer when it is eaten."

There is undeniable evidence, however, that some substances in human food cause cancer when injected into animals.

Commissioner Larrick estimated a few years ago that about 400 chemicals were being used for various purposes in food production. He divided the additives into three categories—about 150 of them known to be harmless, another 700 considered "safe" in the quantities normally used, and the remaining 150 "a scientific no-man's land — our scientists do not know whether they are safe or not, but they suspect some of them ought not to be in use.

In 1958 and 1960, Congress legislated amendments to the Food

Drug and Cosmetic Act which placed a ban on old and new risky additives in food and on substances shown to be carcinogenic when eaten by animals.

The food industry, fearful of a "hard" enforcement policy, resented the indefiniteness of the law. Some scientists, sensing too "soft" an interpretation also were concerned. No one seemed completely happy.

What are food additives? Most simply, they are anything added to food.

Some additives are unintentional, more or less unavoidable and deplored by producer, seller, and consumer; these include pesticides, insecticides, fertilizer residues, and bacterial and viral contamination.

Many additives are intentional and beneficial, like vitamins occasionally added to compensate for vitamins lost in processing food. Some are controversial, including many suspect substances which increase production, improve marketability and serve the producers' and sellers purposes but are of doubtful value to consumers.

Then there are widely advertised "miracle ingredients" which often serve no purpose other than to enrich the producer at the expense of credulous consumers.

A LINK WITH OVEREATING

Few of the adulterants or additives are ever in such concentration as to produce an immediate toxic reaction more serious than a transient digestive disturbance; but meal-after-meal exposures to traces of 10, 20, or 30 different toxins very conceivably could result in a variety of chronic conditions.

Tannic acid, which has caused cancer when injected into experimental animals, is a natural component of tea, coffee and cocoa. Safrol, a now-banned ingredient of some soft drinks, has induced animal cancers.

Antibiotics, a few of which have been shown to cause animal cancers and many of which can put a sensitized person into shock, are commonly used to enhance the growth of livestock and poultry and to protect chilled and canned meats. Despite the law, antibiotics used against bovine mastitis do get into the human milk supply.

Male and female hormones are used liberally to enhance the growth and tissue texture of livestock and poultry; and these in large and regular doses, have caused cancer in experimental animals.

Even cooking meat at high temperatures for long periods has raised suspicions of cancer dangers. Meat oils and fats at extreme temperatures (over 615 degrees F.) protein at least two hydrocarbons of the kind known to induce cancer in animals.

CANCER VS OVEREATING

Curious too is the link between cancer and overeating. Excess weight leads to early death from many diseases, including cancer. Lean animals and people are the longest lived.

Simple dietary restriction has reduced the incidence of disease in colonies of cancer-susceptible mice. A few human studies have indicated that proneness to cancer increases with weight; international observers have reported that among the rare advantages of living in wartime German-occupied Europe and the consequent reduction of calories was a reduction in cancer.

There is growing public attention to the problem of cancer and man's environment, including his food.

Thanks largely to the late Rachel Carson and her eloquent "Silent Spring"—an indictment against the indiscriminate use of pesticides— several official bodies have begun to look into the consequences. So far little concrete action has been taken.

Attention has been centred on the acute and immediate toxity of pesticides. Scarcely investigated and largely ignored are the very real possibilities that the chronic effects of pesticides — and of other additives, pollutants and contaminants — may be just as lethal as the acute effects.

In various combinations over long periods, they might cause cancer.

ASIAN PISA

NEW DELHI (AP) — India has its own leaning tower dating as far back as the one at Pisa in Italy, but not tilting as much. Experts have found that the 71½-centuries-old Kuth Minar, a 238-foot cylinder of pure, non-rusting iron near Delhi, is two feet off perpendicular compared with Pisa's 17-foot list.

Deadline Near For Income Tax

OTTAWA — Deadline for filing of 1964 T-1 Short and T-1 General Income Tax returns is April 30th.

The National Revenue's massive computer complexion Ottawa is already working 24 hours a day processing the six and one-half million income tax returns expected to be filed this year.

The Taxation Division is somewhat concerned that some 28 to 30 percent of the individuals filing 1964 returns are not using the labelled returns sent to them. The result, of course, is a slower handling of the unlabelled returns.

Think of all the small economy cars that will cut your motoring costs.
Now consider this:
Doesn't it make sense to choose the one with looks you'll be proud of?

Viva Sedan

That's the 1965 Vauxhall Viva by General Motors
Gold Medal winner at the 1964 London Motor Show.

It's one thing to be proud of the low price you pay, the economy you get and the handling and roadability you enjoy in an economy car . . . but it's another thing again when you're forever apologizing for its styling. Of course it doesn't have to be that way. Not when you buy a Vauxhall Viva. You can be proud of its looks. Its coachwork won a Gold Medal at the 1964 London Motor Show.

And consider how much more Viva gives you besides good looks . . . like a 50 hp engine, fully synchronized 4-speed transmission, Roll-control suspension, up to 45 mpg economy, Magic-Mirror finish, 10.76 cu. ft. of trunk space. The list goes on and on.

So if you want a small, low price economy car with looks you can be proud of, go see the man who sells Viva. OK?

DIRKSEN BACKS CONTINUAL RAIDS

Weather Slows Flood Potential Of Red River

Precautionary Measures Still Being Continued

WINNIPEG (CP)—Cool, drying weather and retreating tributaries have combined to reduce the flood potential of the surging Red River in southern Manitoba.

"Very good drying weather of the last few days has had a marked effect on the water situation," Premier Duff Roblin told a Sunday press conference after an automobile tour of threatened areas.

He said the favorable conditions have reduced expected flood crests—by six inches in Emerson, 70 miles south of Winnipeg, two feet in Morris, 30 miles south of here, and by one foot in Winnipeg.

But Mr. Roblin warned that despite reduced flood - crest forecasts, anticipated peak levels of the Red could still result in fairly heavy flooding at Morris and Emerson.

The key to the situation is the weather, the premier said. Crest expectations may be adjusted lower if cool weather continues.

The weather office said Sunday a weak storm was moving across the Prairies and may bring a fractional amount of rain in the Red River region.

TAKE PRECAUTIONS

Flood headquarters in Winnipeg announced that 475 Indians on Roseau reserve near the Dominion City, 10 miles north of Emerson, would be evacuated from their low-lying land near the Red. A special train was to leave Dominion City today to take the Indians to the Macdonald air station near Portage la Prairie, 33 miles west of Winnipeg.

Plans were going ahead today to transfer 12 patients from Emerson Hospital to Altona, 15 miles to the northwest.

In Emerson, a community of 850, only three families in low-lying areas had been forced to leave their homes. Most of the town is on relatively high ground.

HONEY RAISE DIKES

With the crest at Winnipeg now expected to hit only 23 feet above normal, instead of 25 feet, Mr. Roblin said officials have decided not to raise the level of the 26-foot primary dikes protecting the city.

But in low-lying areas of the city and home dikes and the sewer system, sandbagging was in full swing. These areas included Elm Park in Winnipeg and Scotia Street in suburban West Kildonan.

Army personnel joined civilian volunteers in sandbag operations Sunday. Dike - building was to begin today in a new area in West St. Paul, where 20 homes may be flooded.

Mr. Roblin told Emerson town council the government would give serious consideration to construction of a dike to

6 Coaches Derailed, Man Killed

TORONTO (CP) — The lights went out, everything was in confusion and "the next thing we knew we were damn near upside down."

That's how Joseph A. Kennedy, a separate school trustee at Terrace Bay, Ont., on Lake Superior 140 miles east of Port Arthur, described what happened when the CPR's transcontinental passenger train, the Canadian, was derailed early early Saturday near Terrace Bay.

One man was killed and 47 persons were injured when the twin-diesel locomotive and nine cars of the 14-car train tumbled from the tracks after hitting a cave-in on the line.

Mr. Kennedy had boarded the train at Terrace Bay headed for a convention in Toronto. He was talking to two other Terrace Bay residents when the cars jumped the track about 1115 a.m.

"We found ourselves at the upper end of our car. The other end was nose-down in the gully."

ROLL DOWN BANK

None of the other passengers and crew members was injured seriously. Of 10 admitted to hospital here, eight were still being treated Sunday. There were 375 passengers on the train, which runs from Vancouver to Toronto and Montreal.

Mr. Kennedy said the lights went out when the accident happened.

"We knew we had to get out

Prisoner Commits Suicide

MONTREAL (CP)—Gilles Legault, one of four persons charged here in connection with a plot to destroy U.S. national monuments, hanged himself in his cell at Bordeaux jail Sunday with a leather thong from his artificial leg.

Prison officials said his death near the upper hour set off prolonged but harmless demonstrations of chanting and banging on cell doors.

Legault, 31, a typewriter repairman, had attempted Saturday to kill himself by slashing his wrist. The wound was closed in hospital by 12 stitches and he was returned to the jail.

Legault was awaiting trial on charges of conspiracy to provide dynamite to persons planning to blow up the Statue of Liberty, the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia and the Washington Monument in the U.S. capital.

NO "BINGO"

Questioned about the shouting Sunday night, a spokesman for the Quebec attorney-general's department said: "There is no bingo at Bordeaux." There had been speculation there had been a prison riot, often referred to here as a "bingo."

There were reports that prisoners played with matches in attempts to provoke guards.

Others in the trial ward include Raymond Sabourin, 21, an office clerk, and Jean Giroux, 20, a post office worker, both of whom have been charged in the same conspiracy. There have been reports of feeding among prisoners in the trial ward.

Officials did not disclose how Legault killed himself.

Below-normal Temperatures Add Wintery Touch to Easter

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Snow and below-normal temperatures in some centres across Canada added a wintery touch to the Easter weekend while mishaps at other points brought an abrupt end to activities.

In Alberta and Saskatchewan, weather was cold and skies grey. Edmonton received more than four inches of snow overnight Sunday. Churchgoers in Lethbridge braved 60 - mile - an hour winds.

Between two and four inches of snow fell in Toronto Saturday and remained overnight in 12-degree temperatures, a record low for the date. But by mid-day Sunday, temperatures in the high 30s had melted most of the snow.

A train derailment near Terrace Bay, Ont., about 140 miles east of Port Arthur, killed one man and injured 47 persons on the Canadian Pacific Railway passenger train, the Canadian.

Near Dorchester, N.B., crews worked Easter Sunday clearing the Halifax-Moncton Canadian National Railways line of the wreckage of 24 freight cars which had jumped the tracks Friday.

In southern Manitoba, the flood watch continued. Soldiers and civilians were on the alert Sunday but cool, dry weather was diminishing the Red River flood threat. Sandbags were flown in Winnipeg from Toronto and Ottawa by two RCAF transport planes.

Marchers gathered in the slush in Toronto and Montreal Saturday to urge a peace settlement in Viet Nam. David Gauthier, a University of Toronto professor, led 572 marchers through soggy snow to Ontario's government buildings.

Sunday marked the end of religious services for most Christians but left a little more than a week before Eastern Orthodox Christians began their observance of Easter. Following of the eastern church still use the Julian calendar, which is 13 days behind the Gregorian calendar.

Jews entered the third day of their Passover observances, commemorating the exodus of the Israelites from Egypt more than 2,000 years ago.

There was a variety of church services, including surprise gatherings, the first Easter service in English in Roman Catholic churches and music and added frills in many fundamentalist churches.

With Parliament adjourned until April 26, most members had left Ottawa. Prime Minister Pearson spent the day with his family in his Gatineau Hills cottage north of the city.

The helicopters were hit by small arms fire as they were shooting up suspected Viet Cong positions prior to a helicopter assault by South Vietnamese troops 10 miles north of Qui Nhon.

Enemy ground fire hit another armed helicopter, killing the co - pilot, but the pilot brought his craft back to Qui Nhon.

Fulbright Fails To Win Support For Suspension

Foreign Affairs Chief Wants Pause in War

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen sided today with State Secretary Dean Rusk and Defence Secretary Robert McNamara against a proposal by Senator J. W. Fulbright for a temporary suspension of U.S bombings of North Viet Nam.

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, made his proposal in an interview. He said such a suspension would encourage the opening of peace talks.

The Arkansas Democratsaid d he supports President Johnson's policy in Viet Nam, but added:

"Within the near future, before the escalation goes too far, a temporary cease-fire might be advisable in order to give the people a little time to contemplate the future.

"No one knows, if a temporary cease-fire, just to give opportunity for reflection and possibly to go to discussions as proposed by the president, might be possible. Maybe there are reasons why this is not feasible, but I'm judging from the press reports, the action of the Russians, and some of the others, that would indicate that the prospects for discussions might be enhanced by a temporary cessation of bombings.

COULD RESUME ANY TIME

"We don't have to make any commitments. We could resume bombing at any time there is no response. I don't see where there would be any great, very serious loss of position on our part. Anyway, it's something that I think could be considered."

(Canada's Prime Minister Lester Pearson suggested in a Philadelphia speech April 14 that a pause "at the right time" in the bombing of North Viet Nam might be conducive to peace negotiations.)

Mansfield, who has strongly supported Johnson's course in Viet Nam, said he disagreed with Fulbright's proposal for suspension of bombings. The Illinois Republican said the Communists have given no sign that they are willing to negotiate.

"We have no indication that a cessation of the bombing would move the North Vietnamese to discussions leading to termination of their aggression against the South."

SEES BAD EFFECT

"It is clear, however, that termination of the strikes against the North without similar termination of the aggression against the South Vietnamese would discourage and disheartem the people of South Viet Nam.

Rusk issued a statement Saturday saying that even a temporary halt in the air strikes "would only encourage the aggressor and dishearten our friends who bear the brunt of battle."

After Rusk's statement, Fulbright said the secretary's view didn't change his own position.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and his administration have not made clear whether they are talking about temporary or permanent solutions for South Viet Nam.

He says he wants peace there and a truly independent South Viet Nam, and he was promised the United States will clear out when that independence is fully guaranteed.

This could mean a neutralist South Viet Nam whose safety from attack is agreed by a combination of larger powers. But in time it could be captured by Communism without outside attack.

Johnson has said the people of South Viet Nam want their country independent. But how does he know? The South Vietnamese leaders with whom the U.S. is dealing may truly want their country independent.

But recently, it was reported,

White House Pickets Dwindle

WASHINGTON (AP) — A small band of young people continued to picket the White House today after weekend demonstrations by thousands of students protesting U.S. policies in Viet Nam.

Through the night, some marched and sang peace songs and civil rights hymns. Others huddled beneath blankets against the White House fence as the temperature dipped into the 40s. A handful of police kept vigil all night.

The group's spokesman, George Woywood of Indianapolis, said the young people would stay until they could present to President Johnson their plea that the United States withdraw immediately — without conditions — from Viet Nam. The president was expected to return from Texas today or Tuesday.

Woywood said he expected only 42 per cent of the people support their American-backed government, with 47 per cent supporting the guerrillas and more than 50 per cent sitting on the fence, are indifferent.

GO BACK?

With the U.S. withdrawn, South Viet Nam might truly establish ties with China to the north. Would the U.S. attempt to go back in if this happened?

It would be interference then with South Viet Nam's internal affairs.

Russia Warns U.S. Use Of Napalm, Phosphorous, Gas May Bring Retaliation

From AP-Reuters

MOSCOW (CP)—Premier Kosygin warned the United States today that it is nearing a "dangerous deadline" in the Viet Nam and said the use of gas and napalm and phosphorous bombs there "may invite retaliation in kind."

Kosygin made the remark during a bitter attack on American policy in South Viet Nam which he said was "fraught with unforeseen consequences."

Kosygin, speaking at a Soviet-Mongolian friendship rally for visiting Mongolian President Yumzhagin Tsedenbal, denounced the use of napalm (jellied gasoline) and phosphorous bombs and "poison gases" by anti-Communist forces in South Viet Nam.

"Excuses that poison gases were used in Viet Nam without the White House sanction only aggravates our anxiety," he said.

"Can the American militarists, of their own will, use any other type of arms?

"If this is really so, then such a situation is fraught with unforeseen consequences.

"It should be borne in mind that today the United States has no monopoly on modern types of weapons.

"The use by aggressors of these or other means of warfare may invite retaliation in kind."

The United States has denied that it has used poison gas in South Viet Nam. It says it has furnished the South Vietnamese non-lethal riot control gases like tear gas.

Kosygin was the first Soviet leader to publicly reject President Johnson's offer of unconditional discussions on Viet Nam. He called the offer valueless as long as the U.S. continued to bomb North Viet Nam.

Kosygin said North Viet Nam would enjoy Russia's "fraternal help" as necessary to defend the independence of the country.

A joint communique with a visiting North Vietnamese delegation contained the Kremlin's first formal rejection of Johnson's offer, made 12 days ago in a speech at Baltimore.

"This is not the way to solve the problem," the Soviet leader declared.

The "insane policy" of the U.S. in Viet Nam may have the "most dangerous consequences for the world.

"They are now talking about unconditional discussions but in fact this is not so.

"What is the use of promises if at the same time they keep bombing North Viet Nam and say they will resolutely carry the war to a triumphant end?"

Kosygin accused the U.S. of working toward further expansion of hostilities in Indochina.

Family Groups At Churches Easter Sunday

Now Easter finery was the order of the day Sunday as family groups turned out in numbers for annual Easter Church services.

The weather was anything but Easter-like and the ground was still covered with the up to two inches of snow which fell over the district on Saturday as winter made one final kick.

Starting Saturday morning with light flurries, the snow by mid-afternoon had all the appearance of a real February blizzard.

Streets and sidewalks were soon slush covered and early Sunday morning the blanket of snow was transformed into a winter wonderland.

The snow didn't last long and by early afternoon had all but disappeared.

Everyone's Learning to Fly —So Can You

An increased interest in aviation has swept the country over the past few years with hundreds of men and women of all ages taking flying lessons. The Quinte area this is the newest boom. Entire families are becoming flying enthusiasts — dads, mothers, sons and daughters are getting their licenses and are flying in fleets of flying trips together.

There are a number of reasons for this increased popularity in flying a light aircraft as a hobby.

First, and most significant, the public has discarded its old, conventional fear of owning, flying and discovered it to be really easy, safe and just plain fun! One needn't be a mechanical genius, an athlete or an adventurous daredevil to pilot an aircraft successfully. Recently, a man of 90 in the United States obtained a pilot's licence after taking up flying for evenings one and that anyone can learn. Another misconception was that flying is difficult and mechanically minded — yet thousands of people skillfully drive cars without knowing the difference between a distributor and a carburetor. Modern aircraft are so easy to handle in the family car and flying instruction is presented in such a way to understand, non-technical terms. Most people learn to fly nearly in half the time it took them to learn to drive.

Many local businessmen have found flying a most profitable asset as a fast, relaxing means of transportation. Whether for pleasure or business, flying during their own or a rented aircraft requires less intense concentration and is much safer than driving their car through city traffic.

There is sometimes told that learning to fly is expensive. Actually, flying is within the reach of most people's budget, being no more costly than boating, golfing or curling. Most people pay for only one lesson at a time which can amount to less than ten dollars. Whilst they will tell you is the best bargain in pleasure they have ever had for their money.

An important aspect of learning is the selection of a reliable, well-established school or flying club. The finest in all those respects is the Prince Edward Flying Club at Picton who have been teaching flying to men and women of all ages for more than ten years. Thorough and complete training for pilot's licences is given by experienced instructors using modern, reliable aircraft. Anyone enrolling in the spring flying course now will be flying safely alone this summer!

Don't let any more time slip through your fingers without learning more about this fascinating hobby. You'll always welcome at the Prince Edward Flying Club at Picton (including Sundays) to look over their facilities and talk with others who are learning to fly. Try just one lesson . . . we know you'll enjoy it!

African-Asian Parley Will Be New Battleground For China-India Dispute

By CONRAD FINK

NEW DELHI (AP)—Though the guns are silent, China's dispute with India is moving into a new phase that is important for both countries.

The battleground will be the African-Asian conference in Algiers in June. Peking will try to develop an anti-India campaign it started with the 1962 border war.

Pro - conference manoeuvres by Chinese diplomats indicate Peking is out to isolate India from African-Asian countries it once led, and which it must influence again if its non-aligned foreign policy is not to be consigned to the diplomatic dustbin.

India today relies for financial, military and diplomatic support on Washington, London and Moscow.

Asian and African leaders who once flocked to New Delhi to sit at Jawaharlal Nehru's feet now go to Peking, bypassing his successor, Lal Bahadur Shastri.

HAS ONE FRIEND

In Asia, India has only one friend, the Soviet Union, and no formal allies.

The Chinese at Algiers will have other cards to play.

Most important is the economic setback India has endured since the 1962 conflict got it into an immensely expensive armaments program.

Asian and African leaders who once saw India's democratic socialism as a model for the underdeveloped world now see a giant less able than ever to feed itself.

Many of these leaders look hungrily at the economic progress and military power of the Chinese system.

India's problem is that its leaders feel required to allocate the lion's share of the country's expenditures to defence, in an effort to build armed forces capable of meeting Chinese forces.

Of the $4,200,000,000 in the 1965 - 66 budget, $1,700,000,000 will go for planes, tanks and rifles—not farm tractors power plants or health programs.

Compared with diplomatic and economic victories won since 1962, the territorial advantages China gained in combat are, for the most part, insignificant.

Territory gained in the North-East Frontier agency largely was given back when the Chinese withdrew. The Chinese retained militarily important high ground and strategic passes, however.

In Chinese eyes, the most important ground gained — and held hotly—is in the Aksai Chin area of Ladakh. The Chinese built a road through this area to link their northwest Sinkiang province with Lhasa, capital of Tibet.

Much of the long India-China frontier is tense. Each side frequently charges the other with border incursions. Patrols from both sides have stumbled across each other in the mist-shrouded heights of the Himalayas, but no shooting has been reported.

Defence Minister Y. B. Chavan of India says the Chinese have at least 19 divisions in the border areas. India is beefing up its forces in Sikkim and other frontier sectors.

Indian strategists do not consider China's nuclear potential a military threat. But New Delhi's politicians seem to think Peking's explosion of a nuclear device was a propaganda defeat for India.

Member Outlines Stand On Capital Punishment

Last week's parliamentary debate on the speech from the Throne saw some comment on remarks by Robert Temple, MP for Hastings South, in which he definitely outlined his stand on the capital punishment issue.

The following is part of that address, as reported in Hansard:

"I do not believe capital punishment is any deterrent to murder. I will not take the time of the house now by going into statistics; we shall all have an opportunity to do that at a later date. But I am unable to find any states or countries where the abolition of capital punishment has led to an increase in the ratio of crimes. I am not saying it leads to a decrease; I am saying it has no effect at all.

"What we are doing when we put someone to death at a definite hour on a certain day is this: We are debasing all of ourselves, all of society . . . If it were not so why do we do it so furtively, at midnight behind closed walls? If there is to be a real deterrent effect, bring the whole thing out into the open and let us have a real circus; sell the beer and the hot dogs and have people jumping around waving flags, whatever they might be, and let the condemned man say his last prayers.

Alex Patterson (SC, Fraser Valley): That's plain stupid.

Reid Scott (NDP Danforth): What is?

Mr. Patterson: What he is saying.

Mr. Temple: If the hon. member for Fraser Valley wishes to express his views he will have an opportunity to do so.

Mr. Scott: It is a good speech. Keep it up.

Mr. Temple: I am not saying that capital punishment is not a deterrent. . . . Any time a man puts forward a new idea there will always be others to say he is stupid and knows no better. That may be—I do not profess to know all the answer, but I do know how I feel.

In closing, I would say on this subject of capital punishment that life imprisonment should mean life imprisonment. If someone is sentenced to life imprisonment because of a capital crime, it should mean exactly that.

Some hon. members: Hear, hear.

What are Little Boys Made Of?

Sugar and spice and all things nice, that is what little girls are made of.

Well, most of the time.

But Mother Goose must have had her tail-feathers caught in a boy-powered revolving door when she described little boys as being made of snakes and snails and puppy dogs' tails.

Which is why you could have knocked us over with a Mother Goose feather when Mrs. Janette Thompson of the Children's Aid Society walked into the office and announced that, like the old woman in the shoe, she had so many children she did not know what to do—and most of them were little boys.

"Boys need parents, too," said Mrs. Thompson, whose job is to find them. Indeed they do, and parents need little boys.

There is a certain justice to the existing situation. From time immemorial it has been little boys for whom about-to-be parented papas and mammas have prayed. They have, of course, taken what they got, and most of the time been happy about it.

Now, though, in the pick-and-choose parenthood department store which the Children's Aid Society operates, it is little girls who are meeting with the greatest degree of consumer-acceptance. When this sort of thing happens in other realms of merchandising, the consumer research department goes into action and comes up with a voluminously documented report which purports to explain the existing preference. One of the decisive factors, in many cases, is price. Surely, though, nobody in this day and age really believes that little girls are cheaper than little boys—not with the going prices of lipstick and Beatle records and hairdos and the impossibility of wearing a "formal" more than once?

Sometimes, though, consumer preference rests on performance. Outwardly, little girls may have an advantage here. They take readily to loving and almost any kind of a bedtime story is rewarded with a kiss flavored with chocolate, ice cream or butterscotch. Little boys are more niggardly in the gratuities they bestow upon their faithful retainers, with a "Ne-yah" spurning of osculatory exercise and, at the very best, a twisted grin from beneath a sheltering arm.

Still, there used to be a time when a son and heir was precious beyond all the wiles of adolescent timidity. Dads, who have a special affinity for little girls, have a yen for the first-born to be a son. Surely this was not based solely on some purely selfish desire to get a little free help in tilling the family acres.

Prospective adoptive parents ought to give some consideration to end results. An adopted daughter remains an eventual son-in-law, an adopted son brings with him the built-in promise of a future daughter-in-law. Now which would you prefer as a gift in your old age, snakes and snails and puppy-dogs' tails, and of a strange make at that, or sugar and spice and all things nice, imported no less?

Boys—they are wonderful. Ask any girl.

Some Men are Good Fathers

A Toronto woman, who has left her husband, writing in the Globe and Mail, recounts how her lawyer told her "he had not yet heard of a mother who lost her children simply because she could not afford the services of a lawyer."

That is resuring, but it also conceals a fact which is not such a certain source of satisfaction with the operation of our family courts and welfare organizations.

The basic reason why a mother who cannot afford a lawyer does not lose her children is that she rarely loses them under any circumstances.

In theory, the courts award custody on the basis of the best interest of the child. In practice, they almost invariably adjudge these best interests to be met by awarding custody to the mother. Most of such decisions are made by men. Their faith in motherhood is purely testimony to the faith which men place, often mistakenly, in women. Women, being human, differ widely in their virtues and vices, and in their qualifications for rearing children. The law often suggests that many husbands would provide better homes for their children than their estranged wives.

The only way the almost-automatic awarding of custody to the mother will be altered will be by appointing more women to the bench—and making sure that these women have some personal experience with the problems of parenthood. Such judges would be much more realistic than men in deciding between the parental capabilities of husband and wife.

Made His Son Face Music

Hamilton Spectator

There's a lesson in the action a British diplomat took to push common sense into his nineteen-year-old son's head. It could well be memorized by thousands upon thousands of today's parents who let their children get away with almost everything short of murder.

The diplomat, a counsellor at the British embassy in Washington, stripped his son of diplomatic immunity and made him apologize to the police and turn in his license for driving offences.

The son had been given tickets for speeding, ignoring stop signs and going through red lights. Ordinarily members of a diplomat's family cannot be prosecuted or made to pay fines unless they agree to appear voluntarily.

How many Hamilton parents would force a child of theirs to face the music, especially if there was a legal loophole to scramble through to immunity?

Too many of today's young people are over-protected. Doting elders interpret parental love as an emotion that demands as discipline but only full attention in the way of giving.

It's difficult to blame impressionable children when over-indulgent or just-plain-lazy parents allow them to have their head, come what may. Who wouldn't take advantage of a pair of soft touches?

That British diplomat had the right idea, it bears repeating. He was thinking of his son's future when he made the boy accept some of the responsibilities that go with the freedom to drive a car. If he'd thought only of the present, as many modern-day parents do, he would have taken the easy way out, treasuring his son's favor more than his fibre.

Roundworms Revealed by Cramps and Other Symptoms

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: A friend has been told he has roundworms. What are these? Are they fatal? Can they be removed? How can they be detected?

He underwent a complete physical a few months ago. Why weren't they discovered then?
— John S.

Roundworms are intestinal parasites, just as pinworms are, but larger. While they aren't fatal, they can make a person rather sick and miserable and weaken him.

These worms can be found almost anywhere geographically, but are more prevalent in warm or tropical climates. Food or water becomes contaminated with their eggs, the eggs are swallowed, and hatch out into worms. It takes about 10 weeks for the eggs to hatch and for the worms to produce symptoms, sometimes less.

This individual must have acquired the worms after his physical examination. Alternatively he may not have had any symptoms, or he may not have made clear what his symptoms were.

A stool examination (to find roundworm eggs) is the positive method of diagnosis. Such a test is not ordinarily made a part of an examination unless the patient's history indicates a possibility. In some instances a blood test will show a characteristic increase in one type of white blood cell — eosinophils — and thus give a clue to the trouble, but this increase can result from other conditions as well.

Cramps, colic-type pain, diarrhea, bowel obstruction, jaundice, and even bronchial involvement are all possible symptoms, along with swollen eyes, cough, fever and irritability. The patient, in fact, usually is quite sick when the trouble first develops.

Medication can be given to rid the intestine of these parasites, but it doesn't guarantee that more eggs won't be swallowed.

To avoid getting them again, the first step naturally is to find out the source. A report should be made to the Department of Health. In addition, boil drinking water, and cook all fruits and vegetables.

Dear Dr. Molner: If tests show you have pernicious anemia and you take Vitamin B 12 shots for about three months, and then another test shows that the blood is back to normal, do you have to continue with the shots? Once you have pernicious anemia, do you always have it?
— Mrs. J. F.

Yes, once you have it, you will always have it, but don't be alarmed. Discovery of the use of Vitamin B12 was one of the great strides of medicine. In the 1920's the disease meant that death was inevitable within quite a short time. Today, periodic injections keep the blood up to the correct count for as long as necessary — for the rest of your life, until you die of old age, being run over or whatever fate has in store.

The fact that your blood count is normal means that your last B12 injection is still at work. When it wears off, another injection will bring it back to normal. The frequency of injections depends on how well your blood count holds up.

Dear Sir. I have chronic bronchitis. One doctor suggested that I take drops of iodine per day. It tastes terrible, and therefore I do not take it every day.
— M. M.

Better check back with the doctor. Are you certain he didn't say 10 drops of a saturated solution of potassium iodide? This is used to loosen thick mucus. Some patients take it in a glass of milk, juice, etc.

'Nova Scotia Salmon' Was A Big Hit

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Speaking of the power of names to influence us, as I just was, reminded me of a survey made seven years ago by an advertising agency, which wanted to find out why consumers didn't buy the kippers made by one of its clients.

On direct questioning, many of those asked replied that they simply did not like kippers. Then, with a more subtle questioning approach, the interviewers learned that at present, those who "don't like kippers" had never tasted a kipper in their lives!

I have never eaten calves' brains or sweetmeats or a veal kidney, because of their (to me) unappetizing names. Most Americans won't order snails or frog's legs unless they are cunningly disguised in French menu terms.

Not long ago, the cherry growers in that part of Wisconsin where I grandly own a cherry farm were dismayed at the falling sales of their annual crop. It turned out that they advertised their cherries which the public was loathe to buy. When the name was changed to "tarts" for cherries, sales climbed up again.

When Mike Romanoff opened his silk restaurant in Beverly Hills, he put "lox" on the bill of fare, and nobody ordered so plebeian a dish at those prices. He then switched to "Nova Scotia salmon," which is essentially the same fish, and sold them by the ton.

One of the popular parlor games we used to play in adolescence was giving the real names of movie stars and asking the others to guess to the screen names. The latter, of course, were all glamorous and appealing, like Myrna Loy, while the real names were something like Mabel Schlumph or Asa Klinker.

(One of our favorites, I recall, was Florence Howard, that paragon of all the British virtues, whose true family name was none the less genteel for the combination of throat-clearing consonants.)

There are those in advertising today who insist that a large share of the responsibility for the failure of the Edsel car was due to its unfortunate name; and that, correspondingly, the Ford Co. is doing so well with its new Mustang because of its name. In merchandising, however, it is impossible to separate the factors that bring success or failure to a product.

The Mustang, however, a name is absolute magic. It was the Kennedy name, and little more, that sent Sen. Keating to defeat in New York last fall. In Illinois the name of Stevenson (Adlai's son) although no two men could be further apart in political views and personal characteristics. If the Capulets and Montagues were on a ballot, Juliet wouldn't have asked that silly question at all.

British Bees Recuperate

St. Thomas Times - Journal

That Britain is recovering from a disaster 50 years ago that wiped out the country's entire bee population is evidenced on reports that more than $100,000 worth of natural honey is expected to be exported this year. Roy Marlborough, Wilts., beekeeper alone, with 2,000 hives expects to export nearly 50,000 worth annually, mostly to the United States Canada, Sweden, Denmark and France.

Beekeepers are seeking the permanent removal of the 10 per cent import duty which has hampered recovery since the Isle of Wight disease struck 50 years ago. The duty was lifted temporarily last year after half the British population died because of severe winter weather, and queen bees were rushed in from many parts of the world to re-populate the hives. The busy bees did the rest, and the export trade has been restored. As well as exporting honey, Britain's 50,000 beekeepers support a minor secondary industry supplying hives, hive guards, bee smoke, jars, tins and labels.

Regrets Bus Subsidy Not Paid to Rawson

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I note with interest an article in your April 8th edition where in the Belleville Transit Commission is seeking advice on how to financially improve its local bus operation. Few people seem to recall that not too long ago our former bus operator, Mr. Fred Rawson, requested a $15,000 annual subsidy from city council in order to continue operating his franchise, and he guaranteed no increase of this subsidy for a number of years. In addition, if granted, he would immediately purchase five new buses.

Despite heated discussion and little knowledge of transportation, councillors flatly denied such an unheard of request and Rawson decided to do it themselves. Little did they realize they were losing one of Ontario's most economical bus operators and were entering a field they had no business to be in. Time has proved this and I note sadly, as a taxpayer, that last year's bus operation brought a $43,000 deficit to our city.

Ironically enough this is the exact sum, $43,000 that the city paid Mr. Rawson for the entire bus system. Imagine, we lost it all in one year. And now they want advice. The best advice I can provide is that when competent private enterprise, through keen and competitive bidding, can make its services available to the city, such services should be accepted. Had such been the case with Mr. Rawson the city would have saved $28,000 this year. It is also extremely unfortunate that the present day council, in addition to its current problems, have to be saddled with such costly mistakes of past councils. Let this be a lesson to city councils of the future to depend, wherever possible, on people who specialize in their respective fields.

Thinks Advertising Is Being Abused

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

I want to take a firm stand and say "I'm for freedom!" You might say, "So what? so am I"! But are you really?

I don't know about you, but I'm fed up with being told what to eat, what to eat, what to drink, what to buy.

The beauty of words and music and pictures are being suddenly become a tool in the hands of people in search of one thing only — money.

My eyes and ears are bombarded day after day and apart from taking the time to do so, far north, or going blind and deaf, it is impossible to avoid its attack.

Advertising is, I suppose, necessary, but it is being abused, and so are we, by the effect of persistent and insidious advertising on our young people in obvious to us all but those concerned.

Are we really free? I think not. We are slowly but surely being viciously brain-washed.

I say "Strike a blow for freedom of thought!" What do you say?

Haircut Price Boost To Pay Union Dues?

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer

Re the increase in the price of haircuts announced in your issue of April 9, Mr. Rivard, the International organizer, listing the reasons for the increase, omitted what must have been the main incentive—namely the dues which will become payable under the new union set - up and which, inevitably, will absorb a goodly part of the increase.

The "international" flavor of the union is very evident from the "Stars and Stripes" which adorns the certificates of membership now hanging in member shops. It seems silly that our local barbers should find it necessary to pay for the privilege of giving Uncle Sam a cut. Was their case too shaky to stand on its own (local) feet? And is it just possible that their main benefit will appear later in the form of outside-directed, strong-arm pressures against any non-conformists among them?

Catholic Asks Easy Divorce

Vancouver Sun

"My own church does not recognize divorce for people of our faith. But when I'm making laws for all the people it's different then when I'm making them for people of my own church". — Laurent Desjardins, Liberal member of the Manitoba Legislature.

Mr. Desjardins, when he spoke the above words, was explaining why he and other Roman Catholic M. L. A.s intended to vote for a resolution placed before the Manitoba Legislature asking the Federal Government to extend the grounds for divorce.

The Manitoba resolution is a broad and liberal one. It would extend the grounds for divorce, now restricted to adultery, to include desertion without cause for at least three years, cruelty, incurable insanity, guilt by the husband of rape, sodomy or bestiality and legal separation for more than three years.

The resolution is an all - party affair and is overwhelmingly supported.

British Columbia's Legislature at the session just ended also gave an all-party support to a divorce reform resolution.

But under conditions which have traditionally prevailed, the eminent fear of offending Roman Catholic Quebec which recognizes no divorce at all, probably will reject it.

But it is believed in some quarters that the force of Mr. Ostiguy's refusal is in process of disappearing. If Quebec wants constitutional concessions from the rest of Canada it is unlikely to get the other parts of Canada this boon, which as many legislatures have asked.

Mr. Desjardins, a French - Canadian Catholic has set the correct example of Christian liberalism.

Quebec Premier Lesage's much - discussed speech in which he talked about Quebec's power to veto Federal-Canada's constitutional amendments could be turned on himself if English Canada wanted to be mean about it.

However, there is evidence that even in Roman Catholic Church circles in Quebec a new spirit of liberalism is stirred. It should be tapped, and a good way to tap it is for other legislatures to follow the example of Manitoba's and British Columbia's.

Educated Will Slave?

Victoria Colonist

A short time ago a New York economist visiting Victoria predicted that not very far in the future, only 10 per cent of the population—the super-educated—will be gainfully employed and the remainder unemployed. This, Mr. Robert Theobald said, will be the result of automation.

Now Mr. Joseph Morris, the executive vice-president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, presents a similar prediction in slightly different form. With the fulfillment of automation, Mr. Morris suggests, the work necessary to maintain the present standard of living may be done by five per cent of the people, but a constantly changing five per cent so that all will make their contribution and take their responsibility to society. A man may work for only two years of his lifetime.

Mr. Theobald's theory seems to overlook that there are hundreds of varieties of human employment that are not likely to be eliminated by machines, nor will need the services of the superannuated. We are not going to call a computer when the plumbing is blocked or the car breaks down. And spare us the day of the universal, unbeeding, robot salesman, or waitress, or policeman.

Mr. Morris' forecast likewise appears somewhat unrealistic, for another reason. The system he envisages would surely call for too fast a changeover of workers for any degree of efficiency except in the simplest of labors. And it is difficult to imagine many people willingly undergoing the rigors of intensive study or training in preparation for a two-year career in a skilled vocation.

WANTED IN U.S.

The Montreal college psychology teacher is also wanted in New York on a charge of conspiring to damage federal property. The charges were drawn up after Michele Duclos, another Montrealer, and three U.S. Negroes were arrested in New York Feb. 18 in an alleged plot to blow up the monument.

Legault and Sabourin refused to testify against each other at preliminary hearing on the grounds they were "political prisoners" and "fellow citizens of the independent state of Quebec."

Charges of mutual incrimination were reported recently in the trial ward among prisoners accusing each other of giving evidence to the Crown.

The provincial prison, built in 1912 to accommodate 700 prisoners, now houses some 1,200. About 20 provincial police officers have reinforced jail guards since the Rivard escape.

Boy Suffers Leg Wound While Hunting

A 15-year-old boy was admitted to Belleville General Hospital today with a leg wound after he accidentally shot himself while hunting.

Injured was Brian Killeen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Killeen, 27 Stanley Park Drive.

The boy was believed hunting in the vicinity of the Halg sideroad when his .22-calibre rifle discharged.

Detain Youth After Attack

ALMA, Que. (CP) — Police said Sunday they are detaining a 15-year-old youth in connection with an attack on municipal police headquarters.

A Molotov cocktail was pitched into an unoccupied office of a policeman Thursday night but did not explode, police said.

Several minutes later, a gasoline-soaked carton was placed under the gas tank of a police cruiser parked near Alma city hall but burned out before causing any damage to the vehicle.

Both incidents followed terrorist threats to police. The youth was detained the next day.

protect the town from future floods.

But Agriculture Minister George Hutton warned a dike could also be a trap. He said if a dike gave way under water pressure, water would be able to come in but would not go out again.

LED TO FLOODWAY

Mr. Roblin said this was the reason for Winnipeg building a floodway to divert flood waters. "We can't trust the dikes because they are potential traps." The floodway is due for completion in 1967.

Premier Roblin also announced that conditions on the Assiniboine River, which so far has caused most of the flooding in Manitoba because of ice jams, have brightened. The river flows west to east across the province and joins the Red at Winnipeg.

Provincial engineers, farried in by army helicopter, dynamited an ice jam near a bridge 12 miles east of Portage la Prairie, which is 33 miles west of Winnipeg.

The helicopter lowered an engineer by rope to set time-fused charges that crashed down the ice. Several hours later the ice had moved and the level of the river dropped four feet.

Robert Adrain, reeve of Portage rural municipality, said late Sunday that roads that had been covered by water earlier in the weekend were open.

Thousands of acres of farmland east of Portage were still under water but it was a matter of time before it drained away.

Mr. Roblin said the provincial cabinet no longer will meet daily to consider flood developments, only things take a turn for the worse.

"The situation is looking quite bright."

Brake Sparks Said Cause

Belleville Fire Department made two trips to the Canadian National Railway yards on Saturday and Sunday and a fourth on Monday following outbreaks in railcars. Both occurred in railcar washrooms — one as the result of brake sparks — and both had been extinguished before the firemen arrived.

The department also dealt with a rubbish fire on the first occasion and a mattress fire Saturday and a faulty space heater on Greer Street on Saturday.

Firemen were called to Norfolk Street early today following a report of a fire in a garage used for storage. The garage, owned by J. W. Hamilton and occupied by Lou's Transport, was burned out.

Pastry Pros Bombard Ann With Sure-fire Recipes

DEAR READERS — All my life I've been selfconscious out of my pies and left the crust. When even the dog refused to good pie-crust and I've never been able to do it. When I confessed this in print and asked for a "sure-fire" recipe I got more than I bargained for. Now I feel like an idiot. More than 3,000 women wrote to say, "It's simple!" — and they sent me their "sure-fire" recipes to prove it. Here are some random samples:

ANN LANDERS

From Marge O. of Haywood, Calif.: "I struggled for years till my neighbor gave me her secret. Use cold milk. It can't fail."

Mrs. J.D.R. of Wilmette, Ill.: "I'll bet you're been having flops because some moron told you to use cold milk. Use boiling water."

Alice of Wichita, Kan.: "For years my family ate the filling out of my pies and left the crust. When even the dig refused to eat the crust I decided to do something about it. I made up my own recipe by trial and error. Since I switched from shortening to vegetable oil I've never had a failure. Now my family eats the crust and leaves the filling. Do you have a good recipe for a 'sure-fire' filling?"

E.V. of Nampa, Idaho: "So your pie-crust is bulletproof? Well, mine is foolproof. The secret is to add one teaspoon of vinegar. My mother-in-law taught me this trick."

Mrs. A.R. of Newark, N.J.: "You gave me some very good advice four years ago and now it is a privilege to help you. I have never told anyone this, but the secret of my light-as-a-feather pie-crust is that I do not roll it with my hands. I use my elbows. It takes longer but it's worth it."

Adelle of Yonkers, N.Y.: "I'll bet you can't make a good crust because your religion prohibits the use of lard. If I am right you should give up already because lard is the only thing to use and nothing else can take its place."

Mrs. D.W.L. of Port Arthur, Ontario: "Don't forget the egg. It's very important."

Helen R. of Miami, Fla.: "Don't forget that pinch of salt. It makes all the difference in the world."

Mrs. L.P. of Davenport, Iowa: "I certainly hope you are using double action baking powder. It took me years to catch on to this trick."

Mrs. Phillips W. of Owensboro, Ky.: "My great-grandmother bought this recipe from a chef in a fine New York restaurant for $50. I am sending it to you because I enjoy your column so much. Don't balk when it comes to the lemon juice. That could be the secret ingredient."

Aunt Lottie of Burlington, Vt.: "I'll bet you've been washing your rolling pin. Well, don't! Wipe it with a damp cloth. This may be what is spoiling your crusts."

Mrs. R. of Birmingham, Ala.: "Throw away your rolling pin, Ann, and use two stainless steel knives."

Mrs. H. L. of Seattle: "If you live in or near Seattle, please call me. I will show you how to make the most wonderful pie-crust you ever ate in your life. I can't send you the recipe because I don't measure anything. If you watch me, Ann, you can guess the measurements and I'm sure you'll get the hang of it."

Dear Mrs. H.L.: Airfare from Chicago to Seattle and return is $286.34. It would be a fairly expensive afternoon, but thank you for the invitation.

From No Name Please of Grand Forks, N.D.: "For years everyone raved about my pie-crust and begged for the recipe. I couldn't tell them my real secret but I'm going to tell you, Ann, because you are my friend. The secret is rolling the crust with complete freedom of movement. I put my whole body into it. This means I must take off everything and bake in the nude. You may print this if you want to."

Dear No Name: I am printing it, but with no personal recommendation. I haven't received word from the women who did their house cleaning in the nude!

SOUTH EAST DISTRICT

The Guides of Captain Mrs. R. Hagerman's Company, No. 1, recently held a meeting that will long be remembered.

The Rev. J. Smith of Christ Church was present and in an appropriate talk to the Guides he retired the Union Jack and dedicated the new Maple Leaf flag. He promised on his return to Australia in the near future to look up a Guide Company No. 1 and bring them greetings from Canada. He presented Guide Pamella Thornton with her religion and life badge. He explained its meaning and its responsibilities.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation to Company Leader Kathleen Handley of her gold cord by District Commissioner Mrs. T. R. Colden who explained to all present that the gold cord is an award of the highest standing and not an achievement.

On behalf of the division Mrs. D. Stewart presented Kathleen with a gold tenderfoot pin. Captain Hagerman gave her a first class pin for the service she has performed for the company and Guide Sandra Clarke presented her with calf links with the Guide emblem. Mrs. Colden also presented a gift on behalf of the local association.

Other badges awarded by the captain were:

Child care, Sue Boyce, Joy Longstaff, Pam Thornton, Cathy MacDonald; cooks, Cathy MacDonald; second class, Pam and Thornton; hostess, Sue Boyce; swimmers, Pam Thornton.

Refreshments were served to parents and guests by three Guides trying for their hostess badge and everyone enjoyed a delicious cake with congratulatory message for Kathleen.

Susanna's Family Fare

ART OF NECESSITY

Here, my friends, is a darling hint — one of those that leave one with the feeling of: "Why didn't I think of that!"

Dear Susanna: There you are with a button to sew on, and only a short piece of thread in the right color.

What to do? Sew the button well with whatever thread you do have, and fasten. To fool the public, use the matching thread to finish off.

If necessary, feed it in and out of the button holes only, until the mis-matched thread is completely covered. In this way you don't waste it by going down and back through the material each time. — Harold Brown

Bachelor buttons Mr. Brown? — SUSANNA

Dear Susanna: If you happen to be using liquid shoe polish with long handled daubers, don't discard them when the jar is empty.

Wash them out well and they are fine for lettering large brown envelopes and packages for mailing. Children sometimes find them a pleasant change to use with their paint sets instead of brushes. — "New Idea Nan"

(If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped self - addressed envelope when requesting pamphlets.)

CLUB 4-H NOTES

REDNERSVILLE — The Albury Juniorettes met for their fourth meeting at the home of Miss Ronnie Murray. The topic for the evening was milk for everybody.

There was a discussion on meal planning (meals on a tray).

Rebecca Hatfield and Tanya Anderson made a soft custard. Nancy Weese and Beverly Demstator made a baked custard with whole milk. Evelyn Peck and Bernice Rogers made a baked custard with skimmed milk. The girls also had a practice in menu judging.

Successful Living

Unwanted Children Need Not Lack a Loving Home

DEAR DORIS — It has recently come to my attention that two young people I know are soon getting married. This is supposedly because she is five months pregnant and he is the father. She is 16 and until this morning was in grade eight. He is 18 or 17.

Other than their parents, neither seems to have any visible means of support. Since she no onlonger goes to school, plans may have been made to hold the wedding very soon. It is hoped that you can contact them immediately to inform them and their parents of the wrong they are doing and the future results.

I hope you can successfully urge them to stop their plan and advise them of other ways of dealing with their problem, e.g., foster homes. I speak with only the deepest sincerity and concern. — AN ANONYMOUS FRIEND.

DORIS CLARE

DEAR FRIEND — Even social workers have to wait until they are asked! If any in the same situation and with the same intention read this, my message is as usual: seek the help that awaits you at your child care agency. There are married couples waiting with open arms to give unwanted babies loving homes.

Marriages of persons of 16 years have just one chance in six of being successful.

(My leaflet "Unwed Mothers and Their Babies" is available to anyone writing in, for ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. It sheds light on this whole question.)

DEAR DORIS — You sure gave the wrong advice in regard to that woman stealing. Now would you like someone to tell your husband that you steal? What would he think? Perhaps this man steals too!

I don't think that women needs a doctor any more than you or me. And she is not mental either. I have known people to steal until the store just sends the bill and it is paid.

I know a mother who left a store because the storekeeper told her small boy to ask for the candies instead of taking them and as far as I know he is stealing yet.

A good court case might do her good. — H.S.

DEAR H.S. — In the general belief that most people are dishonest if they can get away with it (which is not true, thank Heaven!) and that she does it on purpose?

When a person with plenty continues to pilfer from store shelves, something different from dishonesty is likely to be wrong. The cure is not a court case.

Would you imprison a person for having heart trouble or rheumatism? The kleptomaniac is just as sick in his own way, and needs medical treatment.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I'm a 17-year-old girl, and I think I am fairly tall enough. I stand around five feet four inches. But the girls are always telling me I'm too short for my age.—SHORTY.

DEAR SHORTY — Pull yourself up to your full height and ignore their teasing. It's unkind, unreasonable, and shows how short in mental stature they are.

C.N.I.B. Home Teachers Hold Conference

Miss Myra Vipond, home teacher from Kingston, represented this area at the recent two - day annual conference of the Ontario Division, National Institute for the Blind Home Teachers held in Toronto. Also in addition to the Toronto members home teaching staff from across the province were represented.

Blindness can be an asset to a: social worker and the profession has chosen." Mrs. Gloria Sewell, Family Counsellor at the Children's Aid Society, St. Catharines, speaking to CNIB Home Teachers at their recent conference pointed out how a well - adjusted, well - trained blind person can make a real contribution to the solving of problems which can and do break up homes. "The client is rarely aware of the fact that I am blind and it isn't until we actually meet that they realize they are talking to someone with a handicap. The impact of the discovery in most cases has a healthy effect. They immediately compare their problems to mine. For many, the comparison helps them to believe that their problems may not be insurmountable."

Mrs. Sewell, a former Home Teacher with the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, joined the Family Counselling Service in St. Catharines, seven months ago following her graduation from the School of Social Work. University of Toronto, where she earned her MSW. This comparatively new counselling Service is an extension of the services presently provided by the Children's Aid Society. It provides counselling to youngsters over 16, as well as for married couples whose accumulated difficulties and misunderstandings have led them to consider the drastic step of disester. Mrs. Sewell has been blind since early childhood. She thoroughly enjoys her work and regards it as one of the most interesting challenges she has yet faced.

FUTURE PROGRAMS

The conference representatives reviewed current and future programs of training for the blind. In addition to the role of teaching, the group of CNIB specialists, frequently find themselves regarded as counsellors. The conference stressed the importance of knowing the services provided by other agencies in order that they might encourage blind persons to utilize and benefit from other community resources.

During the proceedings the group honored Miss L. D. Cowan, National Director of Welfare Services and Home Teaching, by presenting her with a sculptured Yakimo head by Mr. Florence Wyle, A.R.C.A., O.S.A., S.S.C. Miss Cowan, as Ontario Supervisor since 1946 and as National Director since 1961, has greatly influenced the growth and development of Home Teaching.

The Experts Say Give Youngsters a Say Choosing Summer Camp

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — A good way to decide which camp to send your child to may be to let him choose it himself. If he has friends who go there, or has heard glowing talk about it fondly, he will at least leave for camp eager and ready to enjoy himself.

If you don't know anyone who can recommend a camp, and the advertisements don't fill the bill, in most provinces you can get a list of member camps from the provincial camping association. Mrs. J. H. Ebbs of Toronto, public relations chairman of the Ontario association, says the associations do not recommend camps, though. The list is strictly a membership listing.

Consider the personality of your child first when you are shopping for a camp, also the personalities of the people who run it, she says.

"The philosophy behind a specific camp and the personality of the camp director reflect the camp atmosphere more than the number of canoes or sailboats they have.

"And there are two extremes in the attitudes of children. One wants competition, particularly athletic competition. He thrives on this motivation. There are camps that, for instance, train their swimmers for competition. The other extreme is the child who is hesitant about going to camp. I believe there are some children who aren't ready until they have reached their early teens. Swimming, coping with other people in strenuous challenge for some children.

"People say an only child should be sent to camp. But he may not be ready for 100 children, to be plunked in a room with four or five others.

"He may need a gentle atmosphere, perhaps a small camp under the control of the right kind of director."

CHECK ON STAFF

Besides being assured of the safety and sound medical and sanitary arrangements at a camp, Mrs. Ebbs says you should ascertain that the staff is able.

"Find out what the source of staff is and how experienced the staff members are. No matter what people say about mature 15- and 16-year olds, I don't think many of them are mature enough to have complete supervision of children."

Plan to send a child to a camp for at least two weeks. "Anything less than two weeks is a confusing experience. But a month is plenty long enough for a number of children. If the family is having a holiday the other month, the child should go with them.

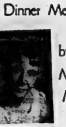
She says fees range right from at a token payment or nothing for people who cannot afford full costs.

There are several things you can do to help your child adjust to camp. If you can, go see it with him while there are people there. If not, the director will probably have slides or a movie to show you or be able to put you in touch with people whose children have gone to his camp.

Be sure you talk enthusiastically about the camp and, once your child is there, write cheerful letters.

"The type of letter a parent writes is terribly important. You have to be very conscious of what you say to discourage homesickness.

"You should be prepared for homesick letters from camp and by the time the letters arrive, hope the child is over the mood and enjoying himself.



"If you are really worried, contact the camp director, but don't go to the camp."

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Sauteed Hamburg Meat in Cream of Vegetable Soup-sauce; Mashed Potatoes; Buttered Green Peas; Sliced Tomatoes and Cucumbers Vinaigrette — Vanilla Ice Cream with Toasted Coconut; Chocolate Cake; Coffee.

OVEN IRISH STEW (serves 4 :

1½ lbs. lean shoulder lamb, cut into 1¼" pieces, 4 potatoes, 4 onions, ½ tsp. salt, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ½ tablespoon flour, shake of pepper, 1 cups boiling water.

Into a medium-large baking dish, for which you have a lid, put the lamb pieces. Mix together the flour, salt, seasoning salt and pepper. (If you do not have Lawry's seasoning salt, dissolve a chicken bouillon cube in the boiling water.) Sprinkle them over the meat and turn the meat pieces over to coat them a little. Wash, pare and cut potatoes into eighths. Place over the meat. Peel and slice the onions and place over potatoes. Bury the bay leaf in the centre. Pour the boiling water over all, put on lid and place in oven of 400 deg. Fahr. and bake for 45 minutes, then reduce heat to 300 deg. Fahr. and bake 1¼ hours longer. This does not need to be stirred.

NOTE:

If you cannot be in the kitchen to reduce the temperature, bake the Oven Irish Stew at 325 deg. Fahr. for 2½ hours.

I served this with fresh whole wheat bread and a tossed salad.

I made apple Scotch froth for 2 of us from the lamb bones by putting them on to cook in 3 cups water and simmered them, covered, for 2 hours. I let this cool and then skimmed the fat from the top and discarded it. I stripped the meat from the bones, discarded bones, and chopped the meat and returned it to the broth. Then I added 1 tablespoon pot barley, 1 carrot finely diced, 1 onion chopped and salt and pepper. Be generous with the pepper for it gives quite a lift. I simmered it until the barley was tender — about 1½ hours. Taste this for salt, and serve piping hot. This stew and soup are extra economical.

Clackety-clack . . . 'Oops! A Story . . . Clackety-clack . . .

By CARMAN CUMMING

NEW YORK (CP)—As a 19-year-old miner in Quebec, Paul Molloy bought a second-hand typewriter after a night on the town.

A month later he decided to try it out.

"I had dared myself to write something and I figured I should follow through."

After a quarter-century, he still beats and pecks with two fingers, but the pace is considerably faster after countless news stories, columns, articles, short stories, television shows and two best-selling books.

The pace of his conversation is also fast. As in his writing, he leaps cheerfully from topic to topic, like a child in a candy store.

Slim, wavy - haired and 44, Molloy was born in St. Boniface, Man., came up through the Canadian newspaper world and moved to the United States with his wife and family 13 years ago.

Since then his active index fingers seem to have tapped unanimously, beating out strong opinions on everything from birth control (which he is against) to spanking (which he is for).

EIGHT CHILDREN

Along the way he has also expanded his family to eight children who, he says, are none the worse for becoming minor celebrities as the heroes of his first book, And Then There Were Eight.

And he has gathered a fistful of awards, including a recent one from a Midwest group called Friends of American Literature saluting his new novel as the best of 1964.

"A crazy little book like that!"

The crazy little book, A Pennant for the Kremlin, is a light-hearted spoof built on the theme of the Soviet Government accidentally inheriting Chicago White Sox.

If that proposition irked Chicago fans, it didn't show in the sales. For a time the book topped best-seller lists in Chicago, where Molloy writes a column for the Sun-Times.

It also cracked the top-10 list in New York, was selected by two book clubs and optioned for a Broadway musical.

PLANS MORE BOOKS

And it led to a contract to do three more books for Doubleday.

One of them will have a time even further out than the "Kremlin" movie — the kidnaping of the Pope in the United States.

A second will be on show business and the third, a little reluctantly, will be a follow-up on his family.

"I don't believe in flogging a thing but, well, we've been talking about it and I think they have a point. . . ."

"They" are his publishers, and the point is that the first book dealt with diaper -to-little league problems, leaving scope for a sequel on teen-age joys and woes. His oldest son, Paul, now is a college freshman—in journalism.

The prospect of three books ahead, plus his daily column and other commitments, doesn't faze Molloy. Aside from his family, writing is his life.

"I don't do any gardening," he says. "I couldn't paint the side of a barn.

"I'm a great believer—and I hope this doesn't sound snobbish —in the view that writers are born, not made."

REASON FOR TALENT

"I think it's a God-given talent. You're given it for some reason, to do some good. Some people abuse it, of course. . . ."

Molloy also credits part of his skill to a good founding in languages.

He was brought up speaking French, the native tongue of his mother, a daughter of Chief Justice Sir Joseph Dubuc of Manitoba. At the Jesuit college in St. Boniface he added healthy doses of Latin and Greek.

When he was 17 his father, Thomas Molloy, a Conservative member of the provincial legislature, insisted on transferring him to the English-language St. Paul's College in Winnipeg.

He has written only in English since then, but says that he still does mental arithmetic calculations—and prays—in French.

At the outbreak of war he tried to enlist, was barred by a rheumatic heart, and went instead to pick-and-shovel work in the mines at Noranda, Que.

LANDED CAREER

There, with the second-hand typewriter and old court cases, he launched his writing career with true detective short stories.

He worked up to Western Canada superintendent in Winnipeg, but resigned to take a public relations job with the Conservative Party—a job that disappeared when the party was beaten in a provincial election.

That setback was partly responsible for his decision to move to the United States—first to a reporting job in Oklahoma, then to Time magazine in New York and finally in 1957 in Chicago.

Since then his column—first on television criticism but now broadened—has won him several awards, including a National Headliner award in 1960 as "the nation's outstanding critic."

It has also given a busy beat stretching from Hollywood to Broadway. He likes it that way.

"I thrive on tenseness," he once wrote. "Too much relaxing tends to knock me off balance."

CANADIAN-BORN AUTHOR — Author-columnist Paul Molloy pauses at his typewriter in Chicago where he writes a daily column for the Sun-Times. Thomasburg

THOMASBURG — Many complimentary remarks were heard from the audience who attended the play, "Singing Saints," presented by members of the senior choir of Foxboro United Church in Thomasburg United Church hall on Wednesday evening, April 7.

Instead of holding their regular meeting, Thomasburg Boy Scout Troop and Cub Pack attended the showing of the religious film "In His Steps," at Roslin Anglican Parish Hall on Thursday evening, April 8.

On Sunday, April 11, at 1.40 p.m. the first Communion service and first Baptism took place in the new Thomasburg United Church.

The Sacrament of Holy Communion was administered to the joint congregations of Thomasburg and Moira Churches, by the Rev. James Payton of St. John's United Church, Tweed, assisted by Mr. A. P. Smith, student minister of Thomasburg-West Huntingdon pastoral charge. The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rollins was baptized Julie Anne during the service. Mr. Smith gave an interesting meditation on the meaning of the Lord's Supper.

Mr. Don Geen and Mr. J. A. Goodfellow are patients in Belleville hospital at the present time.

Mrs. A. W. Brough, who underwent major surgery in Belleville Hospital recently, returned home on Wednesday.

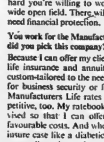
If you want to know what it's like being a doctor, ask a doctor. A policeman? Ask a policeman. What's it like being a life insurance underwriter?

Meet Chuck Lees.



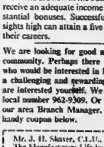
Chuck Lees now manager of our Edmonton Branch was formerly a life underwriter and a good one. In his 8 years as our representative in Prince George B.C. he was notably successful in terms of sales and in the kind of relationships he built with his clients. If there is anything you want to know about being a life insurance man, ask Chuck. We did.

What about life insurance Chuck, is it just being a good salesman that gets you to the top?
Definitely not. I feel that the biggest part of my job is learning. The more I know about all facets of life insurance, the better equipped I am to deal with a client's problem when it arises.

What sort of learning? Personal experience?
Personal experience, definitely. But more than that I mean courses specially designed for the underwriter by the Institute of Chartered Life Underwriters and by the various insurance companies. My company, Manufacturers Life, sponsors courses on Business Insurance, Estate Protection, Employee Benefit Plans and so on. With the wide range of insurance plans available today, you need that kind of specialized training to be able to advise the client on the most efficient way to invest his insurance dollar.

You've brought a couple of very good men into the life insurance business Chuck, what do you look for in a prospective underwriter? Besides the ability to learn.
A man who is going to be successful as a life insurance underwriter must have a capacity for self-discipline. In this job you operate pretty much on your own. You can't expect anybody to keep pushing you from behind. But I like it because you're your own boss. Another thing I look for in a prospective underwriter is the ability to get along with people. Solving people's problems is a big part of this job.

Well now we know what you look for when you're recruiting men. But how do you get into life insurance? How did you get in?



Some of our underwriters we hired directly from school. Others had been in business in other fields when we hired them. I, personally, came from another job. It was a good job and I was doing well at it. But it looked like a dead end to me. Life insurance underwriting isn't a dead end. You can do as well as you want. It just depends on how hard you're willing to work. Life insurance is a wide open field. There will always be people who need financial protection.

You work for the Manufacturers Life, Chuck. Why did you pick this company?
Because I can offer my clients a complete range of life insurance and annuity plans. They can be custom-tailored to the needs of my client whether for business security or family security. I think Manufacturers Life rates are exceptionally competitive, too. My ratebook is constantly being revised so that I can offer benefits at the most favourable costs. And when I run into a hard-to-insure case like a diabetic or a coronary, there's an excellent chance I can get him coverage. The Manufacturers Life is a pioneer in the insuring of these cases.

What about working up in the company?
Manufacturers Life looks upon its top underwriter as being just as important as top management. And they're right. Without underwriters there wouldn't be a company. So when you're an underwriter you are already at the top. But if you're interested in the management side of things the opportunities are certainly there.

Supposing I were to be hired by Manufacturers Life as an underwriter, what would be my chances of being a successful underwriter?

Excellent. First of all you wouldn't be hired unless we felt you had a high potential for success. We have an obligation both to you and to our policyowners to select only representatives who will continue and thrive in the business. Second of all, the kind of training you'll receive as a Manufacturers Life underwriter is second to none.

What income could I expect to receive?
Men who are new in the business and still learning, receive an adequate income plus a chance for substantial bonuses. Successful men who set their sights high can attain a five figure income early in their careers.

We are looking for good men right now in your community. Perhaps there is someone you know who would be interested in Life Underwriting. It's a challenging and rewarding career. Perhaps you are interested yourself. We invite you to call our local number 962-9309. Or if you prefer, write to our area Branch Manager. To save time use the handy coupon below.

of the train," he said.

"It was quite dark but I could see there were six cars in the gully."

Clarence A. Bangs, a brakeman, went back along the track to Terrace Bay to get help. His knee was injured but he said he got there "as fast as a 63-year-old man could run."

A rescue train reached the scene less than an hour after the wreck.

Some cars were so battered it was close to six hours before work crews using crowbars and cutting torches were able to get the last of the occupants out.

The rescued passengers huddled in snow and freezing weather around the rear of the train which was still on the tracks. Most were in their night clothes and without shoes.

Passengers able to continue the journey were taken back west about 85 miles to Red Rock where the Canadian National Railways and CPR lines part company. They travelled on to Toronto and Montreal on the CNR line.

A group of 146 passengers arrived here at 6 p.m. Sunday and another 125 went on to Montreal Sunday night.

A CPR official in Toronto said all trains are running about four hours late but service should be normal by this afternoon.

The scene in Toronto was one of rejoicing as friends and relatives waiting at Union Station saw the group of passengers come through the gate into the concourse.

Mrs. Ben Elyon of Attikokan, Ont., arrived carrying her eight-month-old daughter under her arm. She was met by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John McIlraith of Leaside.

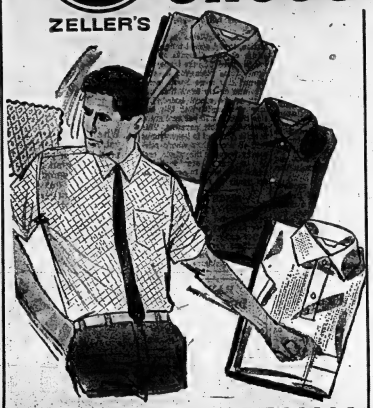
She said the car in which she was travelling went down the embankment and came to rest at a steep angle. The male passengers formed a human chain to help each person out.

Mrs. Jack Olsen of Fort William, who had a two-back cut on her forehead, said her car was nearly upright.

"People helped people get up the aisle. That was the big thing—the way people helped one another."

Walter Nelson of Glentworth, Sask., who came east to visit an old comrade from his Second World War RCAF squadron, said the citizens of Schreiber, a few miles west of Terrace Bay, "were wonderful to us. They fed us and it seemed they couldn't do enough for us."

George F. Bruce of Regina, whose wife received a cut on the head and a minor leg injury, said the train crew was marvelous. "I can't say enough about them. They were everywhere."



VIOLENT WITHDRAWAL

HAMBURG, Germany (AP)—A physician broke into a local bank and believes he is owed money—for damages. He fell through the floor of his apartment above and dangled briefly over the cashier's desk as a result, he claims, of a recent renovation of the bank offices which weakened ceiling supports.

LAID DEEP

MIDDLESBROUGH, England (CP) — When John James cracked open his breakfast egg he was surprised to find a second shell within—with a farm registration stamp on it. An Egg Marketing Board spokesman said that "the outer shell was thinner than usual and it is just conceivable that the ink went right through."

Your Car

Take Care Of Your Automatic

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

When the automatic transmission seems to be acting up, check it out first with your local station mechanic . . . even if he doesn't handle such repair, overhaul or replacement jobs. It might only be a matter of transmission fluid — too little or too much. Or perhaps engine idle speed may be set too fast or too slow. Then again, the transmission itself could be entirely blameless.

And, if a major transmission job is required, this mechanic who knows you and your car, is still the best man to consult before seeking other help. He can serve you in either of two ways: By recommending a good transmission specialist (if you prefer to deal directly) by assuming responsibility for having the job done. In the latter case, you can usually count on him to get the work done properly, by an expert, at a fair price. And don't worry about middleman mark up. Your mechanic will normally obtain a trade price, plus a small compensation for his time and trouble, and present you with a bill equivalent to that of buying the job direct.

From T. L. "Could tires be to blame when the car is hard to steer at 50 or 60 mph?"

Tires of different sizes or with different treads or pressures could cause this.

E. G. writes: "Our car is a standard shift compact — a '63 just purchased from a private party. At some speeds, there's a rattling noise which I'm sure is from the transmission. Otherwise there are no trouble symptoms of any kind."

This could be due to very thin transmission oil which cannot cushion gears adequately as they move back and forth to their clearances.

C. B. asks: "I notice that two of the plug cable sockets in my distributor cap were loaded with corrosion, while the others were clear as a whistle. Why?"

Probably because the two cables were not pushed all the way into the sockets — this leaving an air gap between terminal and socket. This causes arcing and eventually, corrosion.

From R.T.: "Would a putput noise be more likely to to a clogged muffler or tail pipe . . . or a leak in one or both?"

It's often due to exhaust valve leakage, causing final combustion to take place in the exhaust pipe or in the muffler.

CLAIMS SPEED RECORD

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet pilot has established a world speed record of more than twice the speed of sound, Tass said Sunday. The Russian claimed a record average speed of 1,445 miles an hour over a 600-mile course with a payload of two tons. The world record for the distance, held by American pilot Harold Confer, was 1,324 miles an hour.

Great Influx Of Visitors Over Holiday

PICTON — Easter weekend weather was a disappointment to most people. Good Friday saw a drizzling rain and at night there were patches of fog. Snow started falling Saturday morning and increased during the day until the ground was blanketed in white. Those who had planned outdoor activity, such as cleanup and odd jobs, found the weather unsuitable.

The holiday weekend saw a great influx of visitors and town streets were jammed Saturday. Some of those coming from Toronto Friday night reported rain and fog, coupled with heavier-than-bumper traffic, caused them to take twice the usual time for the trip.

In spite of the rain, snow, fog and wet roads, town and provincial police report no serious accidents.

Easter services in the churches attracted large congregations and special music and the spoken word, the glad story of "He is Risen," was again told.

A fitting prelude to these joyous services was the sacred cantata given Friday night in Picton United Church by the combined choirs under the directions of A. A. Benvie. This beautifully-presented story by the choirs was appreciated by the very large congregation.

Mac Hicks Ends Lengthy Service With Township

PICTON Clerk-treasurer of the township of North Marysburgh, H. Mac Hicks has resigned.

He has been treasurer since 1938 and clerk since 1946.

Mr. Hicks handed in his resignation to the council Thursday night. Although he had not been asked for his resignation council in January, decided to advertise for applications for the office with Mr. Hicks eligible to apply. Three applications were received but no action was taken when council was likewise. Into an uproar when two members, David Watson and Harold Harrison were challenged on their right to sit on council. In the election on Monday last, Mr. Watson was returned along with a newcomer, Arthur Frizzell, and once again council was complete. Other members are Reeve Kenneth Hicks, Wilfred Kenington and Mrs. David Barroo.

A special meeting of council was held Saturday to deal with the applications for the position of clerk-treasurer. Council decided to again advertise the positions.

WINTER RETURNS

TORONTO (CP)—Winter returned to Toronto Saturday just long enough to drop two inches of snow and catch the city's sanding crews with their trucks parked. Police and workmen were forced to shovel sand on icy roads because mechanical road-sanding trucks had been put in storage.

A "BOUGH" TO THE SEASON — Mrs. Henry Jablonowski and her 8-year-old daughter, Carol, put the finishing touches on the family's Easter Egg Tree in nearby Guilderland. There are more than 2,000 decorated egg shells on the 20-foot cherry tree. The Jablonowskis have "trimmed" the tree for eight years. (AP Wirephoto)

Conditions in Rhodesia May Force Britain to Act

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The British government, try where representatives of which once hoped it had the Rhodesian problem under control, now is bracing itself against the possibility that open rebellion may break out in the self-governing colony, forcing British political and economic retribution.

The spreading fear in London that it soon may have on its hands a new African crisis is based on the campaign by Premier Ian Smith for return of his Rhodesian Front government with a big majority in the May 7 general election.

There is no doubt in authoritative London quarters that Smith will get what he wants and that his bold ambition may even lead him to risk the uncertainties of a unilateral declaration of independence that could inflame the African race issue and bring the wrath of the Commonwealth on Smith's head.

WHITES RULE

Smith, presiding over a coun-

some 225,000 whites rule some 4,000,000 Negroes, says independence for tobacco-rich Rhodesia is an urgent necessity and that the climate for negotiations with London is more favorable than it has been for months.

But he adds ominously that if he doesn't get independence by negotiation, he'll have to consider other methods. And London knows what he means.

Any move by Smith to thwart the wishes of Whitehall that all elements of the Rhodesian population share in its government will undoubtedly force the British government into counter-action. It could, if it wished, use military power to force the Smith government to withdraw from power.

But the British administration is known to recoil at the thought of blood and death and the prospect of spreading a fire that could engulf all of Africa. The retribution, if necessary, would come in the form of political isolation and trade restrictions that could cripple Rhodesian export trade and halt the flow of London capital to Rhodesia.

For such British action there is likely to be sympathy and support from much of the Commonwealth.

London feels Smith will risk more than he anticipates if he takes the course of bold affront. But there are elements in Smith's cabinet which suggest his supporters will not accept the path of moderation.

Make someone happy.

DESERONTO

Deseronto High School Added to Napanee Area

DESERONTO—It was learned from the minutes of a special meeting of March 25th that the Board of Education requested the municipal council of the town of Deseronto to pass a by-law to discontinue the Deseronto High School and add Deseronto to the Napanee and District Collegiate Institute Board. This motion resulted from a joint meeting of the Board of Education and the town council, at which the school board presented a brief on available education and costs in this area. When the council was asked what steps should be taken, it was the wish of the majority that Deseronto join with Napanee district area school.

A letter was received from the Department of Education stating "the approval of the minister is hereby given to the Deseronto Board of Education to transfer the property and equipment of the Deseronto High School for use for high school purposes to use for public school purposes, and also that the deed should be transferred by the county registrar" and a motion was passed to this effect deciding a request to have the original deed returned as it is deemed a historical document being hand written and bearing the seal of Queen Victoria.

A statement was received from the Napanee and District Board stating that a credit balance of $13,690 exists due to the fact that Napanee operated under the amount budgeted for last year.

FEAR REMOVED

The management committee after studying the assessors' survey as of September last, to ascertain the number of students to be expected in the next two or three years, find that the number is too low, to warrant the addition of any rooms on the Public School. As the present enrolment at the school is a little over its intended capacity, it seemed an addition would be soon needed but this fear has been removed.

Trustee Schell reported on the meeting in Napanee Prince Charles School of the Zone 1B Ontario Public School Trustees Association. Panel discussions were set up on the "New Mathematics" being taught in Ontario, and also " Child Guidance In Public Schools." There were many discussions with members of other boards on school business.

The guest speaker at the luncheon held was Dr. J. V. Basmajian, Chairman of Kingston Board of Education, who spoke on the evils of smoking. Dr. Basmajian urged board members to set ah example for pupils by not smoking themselves.

Trustee McVicker made a motion, to not accept the honorarium of $20. a month as she felt it a burden to the taxpayers. After some discussion it was learned that some board members who devote much time and work to the school board, felt they were entitled to this and also there is a 75 per cent grant allowed on this payment. This is quite different to honorariums paid to councillors where ratepayers support the whole cost as no grants are available, which they seem to accept with no pangs of remorse.

Subject of Birth Control Seen as 20th Century's Vital Question to Answer

Once nearly taboo, the subject of birth control now is of world concern. Some experts predict starvation, revolution, even a third world war unless the ocean of humanity is held in check. Mechanical contraception, sterilization, abortion—all are gaining as the world wrestles with what many see as the 20th century's most vital question.

By SID MOODY

She wore a pair of men's shoes, muddied from the yard with its skeletons of junked cars. She rocked shyly in a tiny, chipped chair as she cradled her youngest in her lap. A safety pin did duty for a broken zipper. The sun, angling through the open door of her cabin, caught her blonde hair when she looked up to speak.

She was a mountaineer's wife in Kentucky, with six children. But she was everywoman, too. A world symbol, a world headache and, maybe, a world heartache.

She did not know it, but she was speaking for many millions when she looked, nervously but with the resolution of a mother's love, across the doorway and told of her harsh decision.

"I thought about it a lot, and I decided it's more of a sin to bring children into the world that you can't take care of than to stop having them."

Her name was Ruby Gray, 25, wife of a man with a game leg who hasn't worked in months and who supports his family with food given by the government. And she is also the child of a gathering world crisis: over-population.

Ruby Gray embodies it all: Too many children, dwindling food for them, no means to buy more. In their despair Ruby Gray agreed to her husband's decision to have himself sterilized. That was their private decision. It will not be the world's. But the problem is the same—and the world with sudden awareness has come to see its immensity, complexity, its urgency.

The problem is an unbalanced equation in which billions of mouths do not equal nutrition, health, work to sustain life to decency. It is a problem that holds in its relentlessness the possible seeds of a third world war.

Can mankind's greatest gift become his greatest curse? It is a heated argument. But now it is being argued.

There is some, but not much —opinion that the unprecedented world burst of population is a basic evil which to build a utopia of consumption and prosperity. Others see it as a burden of such pressing weight as to condemn the world's poor to lives of static fertility—or worse.

And while the argument goes on among experts of economics and demography, the governments of the world have increasingly sucked their heads into the sand, might been moved to action.

The United Nations reflects increased world concern in considering what role it should play in family planning.

Babies are being born faster than a person could name them. There are 182,000 births every day, according to the United Nations, over 60,000,000 a year, more than the population of Britain. At the current two-percent annual rate of increase, world population in 600 years will be one person per square yard. Antihili arithmetic. An impossibility. But where will it stop? And how?

UN projections for the year 2000 show a world population, now 3,300,000,000 of about double that. Mexico, with a current population of 40,000,000, will have 71,000,000 by 1980 at its present 3.5-per-cent rate of increase, one of the world's highest.

The reason for the swift change in population is two-fold: High rates of birth, especially in the underdeveloped countries, and a steady drop in the death rate which accelerated astoundingly after the Second World War due to the development of antibiotics.

Because of this post - war surge, a high percentage of the world's people is young. In Latin America more than 40 per cent of the people are under 15, non - contributors requiring education and food supplied by their producing elders. But it almost half the population is not producing and the country is already poor, as most of the Latin American nations are, how can this huge segment be supported?

And that is the immediate crux of the population problem. How can the underdeveloped nations achieve the promise of rising expectations they feel their new independence entitles them to, but how, in fact, to keep their standard of living even at its present marginal level?

The Food and Agricultural Organization of the UN says that up to half of the world's people suffer from hunger and malnutrition. By 1975, says the FAO, world food supplies will have to be increased by a third "merely to sustain the population at its present unsatisfactory level." A reasonable improvement would require a 50-per-cent increase by then and a tripling of food production by 2000.

Says a UN official: "Food, not Berlin or its equivalent, could be the cause of world war III, unless we get it gets mixed up with the racial thing. It's the white who has the food. It's the yellow who is hungry and who has an empty belly. "That's a heap of tinder sitting over there."

The Far East has 53 per cent of the world's population and produces 57 per cent of its food while North America, with seven per cent of the population, produces 40 per cent of the world's supply.

Can the world feed its swelling members? Almost every expert answers that it can—theoretically. Sir Alan Mudie, an agricultural economist, is quoted as saying the world's population could easily be 60,000,000,000 people in cultivated as intensively as Japan's.

There is little room for hope—the Philippines' food output rose 3.5 per cent annually during the 1950s—and unease — India feeds up to 40,000,000 people on imported grain and 11,000,000 mouths are added each year.

Egypt's President Nasser said as recently as 1961 a nation's population was one of its main natural resources. But overpopulation now is considered by the Egyptian government to be a matter of life and death. Faced with a doubling of population in 27 years, Egypt has begun distribution of birth control pills.

India allocated $56,000,000 for birth control in the first year of its current five-year plan five times the amount in the last years.

Japan, where birth control has been national policy since 1949, has had 30,000,000 legal abortions in the last 15 years as birth rate has fallen sharply.

In Latin America, mainly Roman Catholic, birth control is nonetheless a topic of increasing concern. "Up until very recently," said an Argentinian economist, "we had numerous to talk about the whole issue. Things have changed in the past few years."

Even in the Communist world population has drawn official attention. Marx preached — and the party line still does—that overpopulation is a capitalist plot perpetuated by industrialists to ensure a ready market of cheap, surplus labor. Under socialism everyone works, so the gospel of Marx goes, hence the problem simply evaporates. Except it hasn't.

China, which in the next 15 years will add an estimated population almost equal to that of the United States, has raised the official marriage age and imposed rationing restrictions on parents who have more than three children.

Despite the urgency of the world population problem, a relative pittance is being spent on it.

Yet it is through research, many feel, that some way will be found to the perfect birth control device, one that is cheap, easily used, long-lasting and could meet Roman Catholic church objections that any mechanical interference with procreation is a sin against natural and moral law.

The Church of Rome is frequently cited as the unyielding foe of birth control. It is.

And it isn't.

In recent years the church has softened its position by permitting couples a measure of natural birth control, the so-called rhythm method. And now, confronted with radical new developments in birth control as well as the growing crush of population, the church has shown itself to be anything but a monolith. A dialogue has moved into the open, one in which conflicting opinion is strongly held and remarkable for its outspokenness.

The church has not changed its strictures against birth control. But a papal commission has begun studying the moral area of fertility and population. And, as Pope Paul said last year:

"(Birth control and population) is an extremely grave problem. It touches on the mainspring of human life . . . It is necessary to face attentively, seriously and courageously and this is in fact what the church is doing. But nonetheless we say frankly that up to now we do not have sufficient motive to condemn out of date and thus far not binding the norms given us . . . therefore they must be considered valid at least until we feel obliged by conscience to change them."

The Cardinals of Belgium urged the council last year to "meet the immense problem posed by the present demographic explosion . . . the matter is difficult, but the world is waiting. I beg you, my brothers, let us avoid a new Galileo case. One is enough for the church."

Where its introspection will carry the church is impossible to say. Not one of the factors the church must be aware of is a seeming gulf in certain areas between its theory and the practices of the faithful. Italy, almost universally Catholic and where contraceptives are illegal, has one of the world's lowest birth rates. Why? "There are two things Italians do not regard as a sin—missing Sunday mass and using contraceptives," says a non-Italian priest.

In heavily Catholic Chile a doctor has estimated that between 40 and 45 per cent of pregnancies end in abortion, % sin. In 1951, Pope Pius XII, in declaring the legitimacy of regulation of offspring through the rhythm method, said: "I may hope that science will succeed in providing this licit method with a sufficiently secure basis."

Maybe it has.

Two new contraceptives—the pill and a little plastic curlicue called an interuterine device (IUD) — have launched worldwide population control to the point of possibility. And they have raised profound questions for theologians.

Dr. John Rock, a Catholic gynecologist who was a leading developer of the pill, notes the pill does not kill the female egg but simply interrupts its monthly cycle.

"Should this be stigmatized as temporary sterilization?" Rock asked in his controversial book on birth control. "I think not. Now. What is the difference between a conscious effort to avoid conception by rhythm and use of the pill? Both, he says, are in exercise of the intellect via a wise nature to safeguard the family.

PILL USE WIDESPREAD

Apart from its philosophical implications, the pill has come into widespread use throughout the world. Widespread ignorance, however, has frustrated its beneficent effectiveness.

The IUD is another breakthrough. An official of the population council, a private U.S. organization supported by the Rockefeller Foundation, pulled one from his desk drawer the other day.

"It only costs pennies to make. But I say, and I believe, that this little piece of plastic is going to change the history of the world."

For reasons that medicine does not fully understand, the IUD in 98 per cent effective in preventing pregnancy. It can readily be inserted in the uterus —and taken out should pregnancy be desired.

Because it is cheap, effective, does not require continuous motivation, the IUD is receiving scrutiny from many sides, the world's underdeveloped nations.

The reduction of births will happen, some day, somehow, says Alfred Sauvy, a French demographer.

Fine. A cup holds only so much water. The issue is whether the trend will turn voluntarily because of the efforts of man's intelligence—or because the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse did, indeed, ride again.

Many Laotian Troops Mutiny But Surrender

VIENTIANE (Reuters)—More than half of some 300 Laotian government troops who deserted in a right-wing mutiny Saturday have surrendered, military sources said here today.

One of the units involved was part of a force that attacked neutralist government troops in February in support of exiled right-wing Gen. Phoumi Nosavan.

Phoumi fled to Thailand and sought political asylum. The neutralist government guerrillas have scored successes against the pro-Communist Pathet Lao in Sam Neua, near the North Viet Nam border.

Easter Sunday Celebrated Around Christian World

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Special services, "ban - the - bomb" marches and religious pilgrimages marked Easter Sunday in the Christian world.

In the Jordanian sector of Jerusalem, more than 20,000 persons, many of them foreign tourists and pilgrims, attended Easter Sunday mass at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

Some 17,000 gathered at Hollywood Bowl in California for the 45th annual sunrise service there.

In West Berlin, tens of thousands of citizens of the divided city celebrated Easter Sunday by visiting their relatives in East Berlin, on the other side of the Communist wall.

CHURCHES CROWDED

East Berlin's churches were crowded for the Easter Sunday services, though a congregation attending Berlin cathedral had to hold their service in the crypt. The cathedral proper has been in ruins since the end of the Second World War.

In Rome, Pope Paul appealed for peace among all men in his Easter message before a throng in St. Peter's Square.

In a steady drizzle after the Easter mass, the Pope ended his speech with the traditional benediction "urbi et orbi"—to the city and to the world.

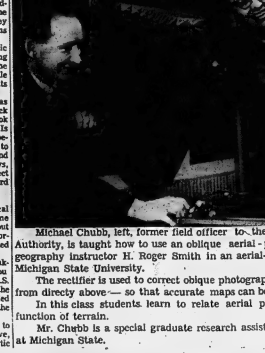
In England, more than 5,000 anti - nuclear demonstrators began the first of two marches to end nuclear armaments.

The demonstrators were on the second day of a six-day protest march organized by Britain's Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament.

The march was scheduled to culminate today with a massive open-air rally in London's Trafalgar Square.

An estimated 750 foreign tourists went to Holland for Easter to see the country's famed tulip fields.

Wants to Keep Military Bases In Philippines



MANILA (AP)—President Diosdado Macapagal said today the United States should keep its military bases in the Philippines and warned that withdrawal would "play into the hands of the Communists."

"As everybody knows, the Communists have been advocating, in and outside the United Nations, the elimination of American bases scattered all over the globe," Macapagal said in an interview.

"It is unfortunate that some opposition leaders have advocated such a step, but this does not reflect popular opinion or the official view of the Philippine government."

Recent incidents involving American bases here have touched off demands for removal of the military installations and the recall of U.S. Ambassador William McCormick Blair Jr.

U.S. guards killed two Filipinos on the bases last winter prompting protest rallies and attacks against the United States in the Philippines press.

Advisory Board to Rule On Mentality of Fawcett Now Confined in Hospital

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Roberts announced today the case of Frederick Fawcett will be referred to the government-established advisory board on the detention of patients for an opinion on whether Mr. Fawcett should be released from mental hospital.

The premier again ruled out the New Democratic Party's plea for a public inquiry into the Fawcett case, saying that the courts had ruled upon Mr. Fawcett's sanity and the government could not act as an appeal court.

"It would be improper for the government to call into question the judgment of the courts or of the magistrates," he said, "particularly when there are recognized avenues open for appeal from any decision.

Mr. Fawcett, a Euphrasia Township farmer, has been held in the Penetanguishene Hospital for the Criminally Insane for the last 3½ years. He was committed after allegedly shooting at two tax assessors and assaulting one of them.

FEELS NO INEQUITY

Outlining the legal steps taken on Mr. Fawcett's behalf since his incarceration, Premier Robarts told reporters he felt both justice and humanity had been served and that no inequity had been perpetrated.

Mr. Robarts said the advisory board on the detention of patients was set up by Health Minister Miss Dorothy Rungeling in October in order that every possible consideration was given to patients in Ontario mental hospitals.

The three-man board is in no way subservient to the government he said. "In this context, I have felt that it would be eminently desirable to review the case of Mr. Fawcett."

Members of the board are Mr. Justice C. D. Stewart of the Supreme Court of Ontario; Dr. E. Boothroyd, a psychiatrist at Sunnybrook Hospital, and Dr. E. Mathews, a psychiatrist in private practice.

One of their duties is to hear appeals for the release of patients from detention in hospitals, Mr. Robarts said. The board would consider Mr. Fawcett case after six months had elapsed since Mr. Fawcett's last court appearance in February.

Premier Robarts also rejected an NDP request to remove the bachelor farmer from the maximum security atmosphere at Penetanguishene and arrange to him to another mental hospital where he would have more freedom.

He said he was satisfied Mr. Fawcett was receiving the best of care and was not being subjected to undesirable influences.

Mr. Fawcett was committed on Oct. 18, 1961, on the weight of psychiatric evidence that he was mentally ill. His lawyer, Malcolm Clive Kronby, applied for a writ of habeas corpus, but this was dismissed Oct. 31, 1961 in the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Mr. Robarts said that on Nov. 3, 1961, five doctors at Penetanguishene diagnosed Mr. Fawcett's mental illness as paranoia. But at his family's urging, the superintendents of three Ontario hospitals considered his case a week later. They decided he was mentally ill and potentially dangerous.

Application for another writ of habeas corpus before the Toronto Supreme Court resulted in a trial on Mr. Fawcett's mental state Dec. 12, 1962. After the four-day hearing he was ruled mentally ill and the writ was refused.

TO HIGHEST COURT

An appeal to the Ontario Court of Appeal was unsuccessful and the Fawcett case was taken to the Supreme Court of Canada June 10, 1964, which also dismissed the appeal. By mid-June Mr. Fawcett had used a number of different lawyers.

The case came before the Ontario Supreme Court March 1, 1965, on application for a writ of habeas corpus. A trial on Mr. Fawcett's mental state resulted in the ruling that he was mentally ill.

Subsequently the case came to the attention of the press and the legislature.

Stephen Lewis (NDP—Scarborough West) told the House April 9 that Fawcett's original lawyer, Mr. Kronby, had signed an affidavit stating he had been told by a Penetanguishene psychiatrist in October, 1961, that Mr. Fawcett was sane in the opinion of hospital doctors.

Four days later the same psychiatrist, Dr. E. F. Hinsten, was one of two doctors who committed Mr. Fawcett, according to the affidavit.

DOCTOR DENIES

Premier Robarts, questioned about this at his press conference today, said that Dr. Hinsten denied Mr. Kronby's story. "There is room for honest difference of opinion," Mr. Robarts added.

He said 17 qualified doctors had reviewed the Fawcett case, and 12 of these had concluded he was mentally ill.

Viet Nam War No Longer Battle With Communists But Man-for-man Thing

SAIGON (AP) — The superior U.S. jet bombed everything in front of it. Then the U.S. helicopters moved in, and the Communists were routed.

That's the way it used to be, a second-hand account of a battle in the Vietnam war.

Now it's different.

Three passes, then they tore into the dusk like silvery arrows. Down below, Sgt. Robert Schmidt, from Edwardsville, Ill., muttered:

"What a life they lead. Those pilots will be back in Saigon tonight, a couple of drinks, a soft bed.

"What have we got?

"Heat, sore feet. What a helluva life."

Schmidt was expressing the views of infantrymen who have begun. Viet Nam is no better than any of those wars, and probably it is worse than some.

SOME HAVE IT GOOD

Some Americans do have it good in Viet Nam, particularly those in the luxurious Saigon headquarters.

For them, life tends to be a routine drive to and from the office, some paper shuffling, and either a night on the town or the pleasure of the pool at numerous clubs.

But for Schmidt and the 5,000 other Americans with the troops, Viet Nam is an ever wavering, always shifting front line.

The best they can hope for in their year in Viet Nam is a few days at one of the dusty province capitals, sipping tart Vietnamese beer, or a few nights between operations in the division headquarters barracks.

Mostly their life is stalking. In the swamps of Viet Nam, and there are plenty, mud clings to boot and thighs. The going is painfully slow, even when the enemy is not there.

Under cover, you literally have to crawl.

At this level, the Vietnamese war is no longer a battle with the Communists, it's a man-for-man thing. It's a war that seems to be getting more personal and more cruel.

Maybe Viet Nam is one units shoot their prisoners.

Some Americans have turned away in horror at the acts of cruelty. Others have intervened to prevent them. But U.S. advisers are often hard put to explain the need for leniency when the body of a Vietnamese chief disemboweled by the Communists is found, or when women are discovered beheaded and staked out under the hot sun—victims of the Communists.

Americans have reason to believe that capture by the Viet Cong means a slow, horrible death. One prisoner said: "If I knew I was going to be captured, I'd pull the pin on a hand grenade and let it go when they grabbed me," Schmidt said, matter-of-factly.

The publicity take did not thump too loudly for the Georgs Chuvalo-Bill Neilson pugilistic powwow slated for Maple Leaf Gardens tonight. The curtain goes up at 8.30. It doesn't say here what time it will come down for Neilson.

The handsome blonde scion of Scandinavian forebears is the answer to the female boxing fans' prayers. He's 25, stands 6' 1", and tips the scales generally at 200 pounds.

They call him the "Golden Boy"—a "Jack Armstrong" of the ring—and is reputed to be to his fans of the distaff side what the Beatles are to the rock-and-roll scramble of screamers.

The Omaha-born Neilson came up the boxing trail of the Golden Gloves route once trod by Cassius Clay. He was hailed as the Toast of the Tournament in Chicago and was awarded the Joe Louis Trophy for the show's outstanding heavyweight.

In fact he met the Louisville Lip in a Golden Gloves match and lost a split decision to the world champion. The decision was booed while Clay solaced it was one of his toughest amateur fights.

It says here that Mr. Neilson has met some of the world's ranking fighters in the 27 pro bouts he has had to date. His record of 21 wins, five defeats and one draw. He has fought on both sides of the pond, meeting Wayne Bethea, Billy Walker, Brian London and Johnny Prescott. He is considered equally good at in-fighting and fighting at long range.

Neilsen's record indicates that the upcoming hassle with Chuvalo will not have any of the earmarks of the 15 famous—or should it be infamous—"battles" that promoters fed Toronto with the actors in the bird roles being the venerable Archie Moore and one James J. Parker.

Some invisible force held Parker erect for nine rounds. Some sportswriters sat at ringside in tuxedos (courtesy of the promoters) looking like the front row of a penguin convention. Moore finally tired of the exercise, threw the only solid punch of the night to send Parker bye-bye, stuffed $100,000 in a couple of suitcases and took off for south of the border.

The Chuvalo-Patterson fight cleared a lot of the muck from boxing and brought its chin above the gutter. Not only that but it restored some of the lost dignity and prestige to the former world champion, and on his performance rated the little-known Canadian heavyweight as a strong contender for the world title.

There is talk of attempts being made to bring a Chuvalo-Patterson rematch to Toronto. No one of this is the reaction of Canadian boxing fans. Actually tonight's hassle is a "test match" for both Toronto and fandom.

When the announcement of tonight's fight was first made, promoters at a press conference acted the help of the type-mike fraternity to bring boxing back to its former level via headline and tonsil.

They felt, too, that after Chuvalo's showing against Patterson fandom would want to see the resurgent Canadian in action. The small-small type stated that Chuvalo needed fights to keep himself in the condition necessary for the bigger fights that should come his way.

I do not believe the fans will have too much difficulty in getting choice seats for tonight's event. Not any more than Mr. Chuvalo will have in disposing of Mr. Nielsen.

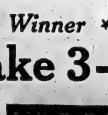
Habs Take 3-2 Squeaker From Hawks

By BILL NEVILLE



MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens own a one-game lead on their Stanley Cup hockey final with Chicago Black Hawks, but guess which coach is doing all the complaining? Not Chicago's Billy Reay, but Toe Blake of the Canadiens.

Blake, anything but exhuberant after the Habs' 3-2 win Saturday night in the opening game of the best-of-seven series, says his club is going to have to improve for the second game Tuesday night.

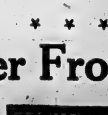
"We'll have to play a hell of a lot better than that if we hope to put them out," Blake said after the somewhat dull opener.

Reay, on the other hand, said he would settle for more of the same from his charges—provided, of course, the final score undergoes a slight revision.

"I'm satisfied with the way we played," he told the customary post-game press conference. "If we keep playing like that, we'll make out."

HENRI RICHARD

The Black Hawks' entered Saturday night's contest hard on the heels of a rugged seven-game semi-final triumph over Detroit Red Wings and minus two key regulars, defencemen-captain Pierre Pilote and left-winger Ken Wharram.



Yet the Canadiens, who eliminated Toronto Maple Leafs in a six-game semi-final and thus had two more days rest, needed a third-period power-play goal by rookie Yvon Cournoyer and some tenacious checking to emerge with the home-ice victory.

With a forum crowd of 14,727 looking on, Canadiens twice blew a one-goal lead, before settling the issue.

With Chicago's Chico Maki in the penalty box, the 20-year-old rookie grabbed a rebound just outside the goal crease and scooped it past Glenn Hall. It was the ninth goal of the playoffs for the Montreal power play.

Centre Henri Richard and left-winger John Ferguson got the other Montreal goals, in the second period.

Latter-used Camille Henry and defenceman Matt Ravlich were the Chicago marksmen with a pair of power-play goals. It was the first of the playoffs for both of them.

JEAN BELIVEAU

If there was a bright light in Blake's window, it was the fine job right-winger Claude Provost did shadowing Bobby Hull. Hull, who scored a record-tying eight goals against Detroit, managed only one shot on goal Saturday night as Provost, with some help from Jim Roberts and Ted Harris, stayed on his stick.

At that, Hull managed an assist on Henry's goal. It gave Hull 14 points for the playoffs and a four-point lodge in the individual scoring race.

Reay said it was too early to tell whether Pilote and Wharram, both of whom dressed, but did not play Saturday, will be ready for Tuesday night's second contest at the Forum. Pilote has a sore shoulder while Wharram is limping with an injured leg.

Following Tuesday night's game, the scene switches to Chicago for games No. 3 and No. 4 Thursday and Sunday.

Victoria Shades Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Gordon Redahl scored in overtime Sunday night to give Victoria Maple Leafs a 4-3 victory over Portland Buckaroos in the third game of the Western Hockey League final.

The victory left Buckaroos with a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series. Next game is Wednesday at Victoria.

Redahl's winning goal came when he picked up the puck after it jumped Doug Messier's stick in the slot on top of Portland goalie Don Head and rammed in the shot.

May Reduce Series

Falls Flyers Swamp Garson 18-3

SUDBURY (CP) — Niagara Falls Flyers scored and scored and scored in the first game of their best - of - seven eastern Memorial Cup semi-final with Garson - Falconbridge Native Sons here Saturday.

The Ontario Hockey Association Junior A champions, who led 9-0 when Native Sons got their first goal, coasted to an 18-3 victory. The score was 18 - 3 before Garson wrapped things up with two goals in the last minute of the game.

As a result of the outcome, there is talk of reducing the series to a best-of-five affair.

The final decision will be made after the Native Sons, Northern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A champions, meet the Flyers for the second game here tonight.

Joe Prendiqui, Garson coach, promised that his team would be skating for this game.

Flyers' coach Bill Long said: "It was just like bowling." he said a too easy series might hurt his team's chances of winning the Canadian junior championship.

"You need competition to play your best."

SCORES FOUR GOALS

Rosaire Paiement, Andre Lacroix, Brian Bradley and Dave Woodley got the others.

The statistician in charge of keeping count of shots on goal came up with a rough estimate of "about 62 for the Flyers and 12 for the Native Sons."

Trevor Boyce, Garson's manager, said it is about time the NOHA and OHA got together and did something "about this farce"!

"Why don't they find another trophy and start a country-wide Junior B championship and then we might have a chance."

Hershey Enters Finals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Spectacular goaltending by Claude Dufour brought Hershey Bears from the brink of disaster to the Calder Cup finals in the American Hockey League during the weekend.

The Bears trailed Buffalo Bisons 2-1 in the best-of-five semi-finals going into the fourth game Saturday night, but the 28 - year - old Dufour had never made it in the National Hockey League, stopped a total of 57 shots in the final two games.

The Trois-Rivieres Que native stopped 28 shots as the Bears edged the Bisons 3-2 in overtime Saturday and turned back Buffalo 4-1 Thursday defeated Buffalo 2-1 Sunday.

Dufour got excellent support from team-mate Bruce Draper in Saturday's game. Draper scored two goals, including the winner at 3:55 of overtime on a 40-foot drive.

BRAVES ACQUIRE OLIVO

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Braves acquired pitcher Chi Chi Olivo from Atlanta Saturday and assigned first baseman Tim Harkness of Lachine, Que., outright to the International League farm club.

3-1 Odds Favor Chuvalo

Chuvalo, Toronto's 27 - year-old Canadian heavyweight champion, is the betting favorite over Nielson, 25, of Omaha, Neb., because of his edge in experience and the calibre of opponents he has faced.

"Don't let the odds fool you," said Gainford, who arrived in town Saturday to help promote the 10-round bout.

"This boy is a very good boxer and if the Chuvalo camp takes him too lightly they'll be sorry come Monday night."

Gainford is manager of five-time middle-weight champion and former welterweight king Sugar Ray Robinson.

But Irving Ungerman, Chuvalo's manager, says he is concerned with the 200-pound, six-foot American Nielsen.

"I knew this boy was a good one when we signed for him," said Ungerman, a Toronto businessman.

"I didn't want to fight him so soon but because I like Floyd Patterson, but he was the only one of the top fighters we could get."

Chuvalo signed to meet Nielsen shortly after he lost a 12-round unanimous decision to former heavyweight champ Patterson in New York City.

One Hit Robs Angels' Rudy May

Rookie Barely Misses 73-Year Record

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Rudy May lost his opportunity to equal a 73-year-old record because of one well placed shot Sunday.

But the rookie wasn't around for the finish as the Tigers beat the Angels 4-1 in 13 innings. Bob Lee replaced the tiring May at the start of the 10th.

Charlie Jones of Cincinnati is the only pitcher ever to hurl a no-hitter in his first appearance in the majors, having accomplished the feat in a 7-1 victory over Pittsburgh Oct. 15, 1892.

May, 20, was on his way toward matching the feat when he ran into Jake Wood with one out in the eighth inning. Wood, batting for rookie Ray Oyler, lined a shot that bounced past centre-fielder Jose Cardenal for a double. On the next play, pinch - hitter George Thomas hit a grounder through second baseman Bobby Knoop's legs for an error and the tying run.

The Angels were the third team in less than two months to own May. Chicago White Sox sent him to Philadelphia last Oct. 15, and the Phillies traded him Dec. 4 to Los Angeles.

In other American League games, New York Yankees whipped Kansas City Athletics 13-4, Boston Red Sox trampled Baltimore Orioles 11-4, Minnesota Twins defeated Cleveland Indians 8-3 and Washington Senators stopped Chicago 4-1 after losing 5-1.

In Saturday's games the Red Sox outslugged Baltimore 12-6, the White Sox nipped Washington 2-1, the Twins blanked Cleveland 3-0, the Yankees downed the Athletics 5-2 and the Angels handed the Tigers their first defeat of the season, 3-1.

The Tigers broke up the Angel game Sunday with three runs in the 13th, Willie Horton racing home with the tie breaker on catcher Bob Rodgers' passed ball.

Mickey Mantle slammed a two-run homer and a double in the Yankees' victory but suffered a bruised right knee sliding into second base in the sev enth. The injury, however, was not reported as serious. Jim Gentile socked a three-run homer for Kansas City.

Tony Conigliaro and Bob Tillman each drove in three runs for Boston. Conigliaro finished with four hits, including a two-run homer. Boog Powell connected with two on for Baltimore.

Minnesota defeated Cleveland behind Jimmie Hall's two-run homer in the fourth and clutch relief pitching by Dave Boswell and Al Worthington.

Two errors by Pete Ward led to unearned Washington runs in the fifth and eighth innings of the second game while Pete Richert stopped the White Sox on seven hits in eight innings. In the opener, Danny Cater contributed three singles and a double to Gary Peters' second triumph.

Canadiens' Shadows Handcuff Hull

But Got Assist

MONTREAL (CP)—The old and obvious strategy still works —stop Bobby Hull if you want to beat Chicago Black Hawks.

Montreal Canadiens proved that again Saturday night.

They assigned two tenacious checkers, Claude Provost and penalty killer Jim Roberts, to shadow Hull. The result was that Hull got only one shot on net, and Habs went on to clip the Hawks 3-2 in the opening game of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup hockey finals.

Even with the lock on him, Hull managed to get an assist on Camille Henry's second-period goal.

Provost, who worked extra ice-time in his job of shadowing Hull, said in the dressing room:

"Just don't let that guy (Hull) wind up. If you do he's gone."

Roberts managed several good body checks at Hull early in the game. But it was Hab defenceman Ted Harris, dumped once by the blond winger on a typical Hull rush, who had the comment.

"You don't stop him, he just runs right over you."

Hull, who scored eight goals as a one-man attacking crew in the Hawks' seven-game semi-final series against Detroit, shrugged his shoulders when questioned about the Habs' suveillance of him.

"It was a good game, very fast. I enjoyed it."

Another surprise Montreal defender was goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley, who was to have sat out the opener in favor of Charlie Hodge.

But coach Toe Blake said he decided to use Worsley after the Gumper reported for duty free of a flu bug that struck him two days earlier.

Blake said he intends to use Worsley in Tuesday's second game.

There was general satisfaction in the Chicago dressing room over the Hawks' play. Coach Billy Reay said the game could have gone either way. General-manager Tommy Ivan said the Hawks missed defenceman Pierre Pilote on the power play, although Reay disagreed.

Pilote and Hawk winger Ken Wharram missed the game through injuries. Pilote, spot right defence was taken by young Doug Jarrett.

Ivan had one complaint: He didn't like the holding penalty imposed on Chico Maki at 7:12 of the third period. While Maki was in the penalty box, Yvon Cournoyer scored Montreal's winning goal.

Belgian Marathon Favorite

BOSTON (CP)—The Boston marathon, downfall of many a long-distance runner, has never held any fear for runners from Hamilton. And they're back in strength for today's 69th running of the event.

In 1900, just three years after the annual classic was inaugurated, J. J. Caffrey of Hamilton was the first to cross the finish line over the 26-mile, 385-yard course.

Since then, Canadian entrants have won the race 13 times and Hamilton runners accounted for four of these victories.

Again this year competitors from the Ontario steel city appear to hold the best chance of a Canadian victory.

Ron Wallingford, 31-year-old professor of physical education from McMaster University and Gerd Dickson, a 32-year-old accountant, appear to be the pick of the Canadian crop.

Two-time defending champion Aurele Vandendriessche of Belgium is favored to win again.

Wallingford was a surprise third-place finisher last year at 2:20:51.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—American Davis Cup hopes for 1965 rose Saturday as Dennis Ralston upset Australia's Roy Emerson 6-3, 2-6, 6-3 in the singles finals of the San Antonio Country Club invitational tennis tournament. The Tracks

NEW YORK (CP) — Flag Raiser, owned by Isidor Bieber, teased an unexpected road-block in Bold Lad's path to the Kentucky Derby Saturday when he won the $31,300 Wood Memorial at Aqueduct here.

Going to the front soon after the start of the 1¼-mile race, Flag Raiser opened up as much as four lengths over Bold Lad, the odds-on favorite from the Wheatley Stable, and held on in a furious homestretch drive for a neck decision over the fast-closing Hall to All, carrying the silks of Mrs. Ben Cohen.

Flag Raiser, ridden by Bob Ussery, was timed in 1:50 1-5. He paid $17.00, $6.00 and $2.40.

Hall to All, ridden by Johnny Sellers, returned $7.20 and $2.60. Bold Lad returned $2.10 to show.

In Albany, Calif., Perfect Sky surged to the front in the stretch and won the $71,150 California Derby as the favored Nasharco ran third.

Perfect Sky, ridden by Eddie Burns and carrying 114 pounds, raced the 1¼-miles in one minute, 48 2-5 seconds.

He won by one and one-fourth lengths over Terry's Secret, with Nasharco another three-quarter length back.

The gelding's first stakes victory was worth $39,900. It returned $22.30, $7.60 and $4.20. Terry's Secret returned $8.80 and $4.60, with Nasharco paying $3.40 for the show in this richest of all California derbies.

Tracy Pratt scored the winning goal with a long screen shot at 14:17 of the third period after Bill Collins had tied the score in the first minute of the third.

Collins also had scored just 11 seconds after the game started, and Jim Miles had given the Rangers a goal at 5:53 of the opening period.

Tulsa fought back to take the lead in the second period on goals by Ed Lawson, Terry Clancy and Nick Harbar.

Trenton Honors Twice Champions

Juveniles Add Tourney Title

TRENTON (Special) — Legion Juveniles added the Milton Tri-County tournament title to their list of 1964-65 accomplishments on Saturday night by topping Weston 3-2 in the championship game.

The tournamest victory, their third, came on the heels of the Trenton club's second OMHA Juvenile "A" Minor triumph in succession.

Arriving back in Trenton at 12:20 Sunday morning, a 50-car motorcade, led by Mayor James MacDonald and a town fire engine, escorted them from the town limits to the Legion where dinner was served to the homecoming champions, in the wee hours of the morning.

Plans call for the town and the sponsoring Legion to honor the club, coached by Gene Poirier and managed by Jack Bonn, with a dinner and dance, plus gifts, in the near future.

Weston gave the locals a real battle in the tourney's titular game. It was 1-1 after one period, 2-1 for Weston after two and tied 2-2 at the end of regulation time.

Ferguson had teamed up with linemates Jim Bonn and Andy Teeple for an earlier 1-0 lead but Bob McCloskey tied it and also scored Weston's other goal for a 2-1 margin.

Chuck Howard rammed home the deadlocking goal, assisted by Poechman and Barry Turner. Ferguson looked after the rest.

It was learned here that Ferguson, 17 years of age, has been invited to the Boston Bruin summer hockey camp. The starry forward collected 58 goals and 63 assists during 47 games this season. Linemates Teeple and Bonn also had over 100 scoring points apiece, according to a team spokesman.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Lebon M. L. made his first start of the season at the Fort Erie race track Saturday and won the featured Victor purse.

The French-bred six-year-old is owned by Max Ball of Calgary, but sickness has kept him racing 'tho way Bell thought he would.

With Jim Fitzsimmons riding for an almost perfect race through snow and mud, Lebon M. L. drew away from King Gorm and President Jim to win by 1½ lengths.

Most of the 8,953 fans who turned out in the snow storm neglected Lebon M. L. and the son of Cote O'Or had paid $18.70 and combined with long shot runner-up King Gorm for a $132.10 quinella.

Koufax Has 5-Hitter, But 'Twas Tough

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

"But it's not about a raise this time, Mr. Bronstad."

Sandy Koufax, Los Angeles Dodgers' arthritic left-hander, learns today whether he's a pitcher or a patient.

Temporarily labelled for use only on Sundays, Koufax went to work for the first time this season against Philadelphia and struggled with his control despite allowing only five hits in a 6-2 victory over the Phillies and Bo Belinsky.

The 29-year-old strikeout artist fanned seven but walked five men—an unusually high figure for him—and consistently ran out the count on many batters. Still, Koufax was satisfied with his performance.

"I was wild, but I've pitched only three innings since March 30," Koufax explained. "I had no pain—no hitch in my arm. But my timing wasn't exactly right. I didn't have that good rhythm. I'll get it back with work."

Does that make Koufax a full-time pitcher or a part-time patient?

IT'S AN 'IF'

"If the elbow doesn't stiffen I should be able to make my next start in rotation, Friday," he said. If it does swell, he'll probably have to keep his only on-Sunday labor.

It was left to two relievers to turn in the day's top pitching performances. Bill McCool striking out all three batters he faced to preserve Cincinnati Reds' 9-8 victory over St. Louis Cardinals and Billy O'Dell hurling blitless ball for the final four innings in Milwaukee Braves' 9-6 victory over Chicago Cubs.

Elsewhere, Gary Kroll's four-hit pitching in a rain-shortened second game gave New York Mets a 7-1 victory over San Francisco after the Giants had started the doubleheader with a 4-1 victory. Houston Astros defeated Pittsburgh 3-1 before the Pirates took the nightcap 5-4.

In Saturday's games the Cards got into the win column for the first time, blanking the Reds 8-0, the Phils nipped the Dodgers 3-2, the Giants whitewashed the Mets 4-0, the Cubs belted Milwaukee 9-4 and Pittsburgh outlasted Houston 3-2 in 10 innings.

An infield single by Tommy Davis that Belinsky couldn't handle opened the door for the Dodgers Sunday. John Roseboro followed with a single. Jim Lefebvre scored both with a triple and came in on a sacrifice fly.

THAT'S ENOUGH

That was enough for Koufax who gave up the Philadelphia's runs on a homer by Dick Stuart.

McCool came on for the Reds in the ninth inning with the bases loaded and preserved the victory for Sammy Ellis by striking out the heart of the Cardinals' batting order — Bill White, Ken Boyer and Dick Groat.

Pete Rose and Frank Robinson each smoked three hits, by Cincinnati, including a homer apiece.

O'Dell, acquired from San Francisco, took over for the Braves in the ninth and retired all 12 batters he faced after Milwaukee had pulled ahead behind the heavy hitting of Eddie Mathews and Dennis Menke. Each counted a homer among his three hits.

HAS THREE HITS

Jesus Alou stroked three hits for the Giants and figured in three runs in the opener. Jack Sanford pitched the first six innings for San Francisco and allowed only four hits.

Kroll, posting his first major league victory, also started the Mets' winning four-run rally in the 6½-inning nightcap with a single in the fifth inning. He scored the tie-breaking run on Ed Kranepool's double.

John Bateman drove in three runs with a pair of homers in support of Bob Bruce's six-hit pitching as the Astros took the opener from the Pirates.

Pittsburgh came back to win the nightcap, breaking a 4-4 tie in the eighth inning on a walk, Joe Morgan's throwing error and a single by Bob Bailey. Jim Wynn drove in three Houston runs with three hits.

'Mr. Bowling' Tournament May 1-2nd

The 14th annual "Mr. Bowling" tournament will be on Saturday May 1 and Sunday May 2.

This tournament, billed as Eastern Ontario's five-pin singles championship, will be held at the Bowl-O-Drome, Belleville. Play will start at 1.00 p.m. both days and all bowlers must have their entry fee paid by Saturday midnight.

A maximum of 108 entries will be accepted and the entry deadline is Sunday, April 25. Post entries will be accepted only if space is available.

Mr. Bowling will receive a wrist watch presented by Gerry O'Connor, plus top prize money. Amounts of cash awards depend on the number of entries.

Those wishing to enter the tournament are urged to do so as soon as possible.

Ontario Wins Bowling

GUELPH (CP) — Ontario teams swept the Eastern Canada Five-pin Bowling championships during the weekend and advanced to the all-Canada championships opening in Kitchener tonight.

Billy Hoult of Toronto captured the men's singles crown for the second year in a row with 2,766 pins after overcoming a healthy lead by Kitchener's George Boxwell.

Shirley Sedell of Hamilton carried a late push by Margaret Walkerd, also of Hamilton, to take the women's singles title with a total of 2,658.

Mary Tipoff and Millie Evans paced the Toronto team to the women's team championship while York-West won both the mixed and men's team titles.

During the final round, Joe Chiki of Niagara Falls, Ont., scored a perfect 430 game—his first and the first such game registered during championship play.

In the women's singles, June Gregg of Kitchener-Waterloo was third and Tody Morgan of Chatham fourth.

Second place in women's team competition went to York Simcoe followed by Oshawa, Scarborough and Kitchener-Waterloo.

Port Elgin Wins Title From Stirling

Stirling's bid to capture the OHA Intermediate "C" hockey championship came to a disappointing ending in Port Elgin over the holiday weekend.

Port Elgin swept both games on home ice, taking the title with a close 3-2 decision on Saturday night.

The clubs had split earlier games in this area last weekend so Port Elgin's twin victories gave them the best-of-five series three games to one.

Stirling had eliminated Trenton RCAF Intersection All-Stars and Port Perry on the way to the Ontario finals.

Nichols Wins Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Bobby Nichols all but blew a four-stroke lead Sunday but held on to score strong comebacks by Bruce Devlin and Juan Rodriguez and win $12,000 top money in the $75,000 Houston Golf Classic.

Nichols had an 11-under-par 273.

He was just one stroke up on Rodriguez, who blistered the 7,235-yard, par-71 course with a 66, and Devlin, an Australian, who tied for second at 274.

Nichols had a final-round 70 that included a par 4 3-hole tie with Bert Yancey, the young Philadelphia pro.

Golf's big three of Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player skipped this stop on the PGA circuit.

Nichols, 1964 PGA champion, clinched the win with a 15-foot par putt on the final green. His earlier rounds were 67, 69 and 67.

Drysdale Whiffs Four In Inning

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Don Drysdale of Los Angeles Dodgers tied a major-league record in a period of Saturday night by striking out four Philadelphia batters in one inning.

Drysdale accomplished the unusual feat after Wes Covington, leading off the second inning, struck out but reached first base when the third strike was wild and got past Dodger catcher John Roseboro.

Drysdale then struck out Tony Gonzalez, Dick Stuart and Clay Dalrymple to end the innings.

Eight other pitchers in modern times have struck out four men in an inning. The last to do it was Lee Strange of Cleveland last September. The last National League to do it was Pete Richert of the Dodgers in 1962.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP)—Danny Song A. romped through the mud at Greenwood Raceway Saturday to win the $4,720 Don Mills Trot Stakes and keep his record unblemished.

The gelding grabbed the lead early and was never seriously challenged in the six - furlong main event.

It was the third victory in a row for Danny Song A., owned by Bruce Smith of Toronto.

Leon Bryant Honored at Brown U.

Wellington's Leon Bryant has been named co-recipient of the Class of 1906 Trophy awarded annually to that player who, through sportsmanship, performance and influence, has contributed most to hockey at Brown University. The presentation was made at the annual Broomhall Dinner, which honors the members of the winter sports teams.

Bryant, a three-year letterman, was an assistant captain this year, and was named to the All-League team for the third consecutive time.

He is a graduate of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, where he received varsity letters in hockey, basketball, football and track.

Bryant will graduate from Brown this June with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Art.

The Memorial Cup

REGINA (CP)—Regina Pats blasted Edmonton Oil Kings 8-1 Saturday night to even their best-of-seven Western Canada Memorial Cup Junior hockey semi-finals at three games each.

Francis Huck led the Regina attack, scoring four goals and adding a pair of assists to boost his series total to 13 goals and six assists.

Dave Rochefort notched Edmonton's only goal.

The victory gave the Bears a 2-1 win-loss record in the three-team tournament that ends Tuesday night. Lachine also is in the group. Sydney Cape Breton Post has an 0-2 record. The winner advances against the Ontario Junior A winner in a Canadian junior semi-final.

Smiths Falls play Sydney tonight.

Sexy Joi Lansing Now One of Top Nightclub Acts

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sexy Joi Lansing took up singing a few years ago during the actors' strike—and now she's a top nightclub act.

"I just had to look for a temporary means of support," recalls the well-endowed blonde. "I had never sung professionally in my life but I figured: Why not?

"So now I'm making more money than I ever have in my life and finally getting noticed here in Hollywood—my home town."

She's been so busy that she hasn't had time for movies. But Frank Sinatra, an old friend, asked her to play Dean Martin's swinging secretary in Marriage on the Rocks.

"Since I've been singing in clubs," says Joi, "producers have started to look at me differently."

Some of her gowns may had something to do with that. Designed by the sponsor of a New York club recently, she wore a gown cut below the navel. It was a slight bosom Miss Lansing, for the statistical minded, measures 39-23-35.

"I'm more sure of my singing now," she says, "so I'm wearing high - necked gowns from now on."

Joi has a great show-business dynamick working for her. Girls who look like her are not supposed to be able to do anything but look like that.

She has just cut her first record album—a group of songs written especially for her by composer Jimmie Haskell and actress Stella Stevens.

Friendly Porpoises, Whales Were Real Stars of Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Just about once a year some TV network has the idea of doing a special program from California's Marineland. Sunday night CBS took us on our annual trivisual visit.

It seems to me that over the years I've inspected Marineland with Ray Rogers and Dale Evans, Lloyd Bridges and the Beverly Hillbillies to mention a few. Sunday night it was the Munster family that had the difficult job of trying to provide some land-locked comedy moments for the youthful audience in Marineland Carnival.

No matter who the human celebrities are at Marineland, the only real stars are those delicate, apparently friendly porpoises, whales, walruses and even octopuses, and they were as usual, quite fascinating. But the Munsters didn't have a chance with them around.

NBC's Profiles in Courage, now coming toward the end of its run, was particularly interesting court room drama Sunday night. It dealt with a bitter difference in viewpoint between president Thomas Jefferson and chief justice John Marshall concerning the 1807 Aaron Burr treason trial.

ABC inaugurated its major league baseball series Saturday with a telecast of the game between Boston Red Sox and Baltimore Orioles. Cameras were in every conceivable location so that the viewers could see more than spectators at the ball park. Jackie Robinson made his debut as a Commentator with a quiet style, proving knowledgeable sidelights and interpretations.

Recommended tonight: CBS Reports, 10-11 EST—The United Nations — beleaguered fortress. Nightlife, ABC, 11:15-1 a.m.—Dave Garroway starts a week as the show's host.

Drugs Are Suspected as Cancer Causers

ARTICLE 12

By PAT McGRADY

Most "miracle drugs" are ushered in on a wave of public and professional enthusiasm.

In time, the enthusiasm ebbs. Perhaps it subsides gradually as the drug's limitations are recognized. Or ill collapses when the dream turns into a nightmare of unexpected side effects.

Dangers have been identified in the sulfas and antibiotics, in fever-fighters and pain - killer tranquilizers, pep pills, thyroid suppressants, anti-malaria pills, muscle relaxants, antihistamines and scores of others.

One question that haunts the researcher who studies the behavior of cancer is this: Can it sometimes be caused by the drugs prescribed to fight disease or by the doctor treating the patient?

A growing number of drugs are suspect. But it is impossible to say with absolute conviction that any drug or procedure causes human cancer. There is no reliable test to determine whether a substance - drug, food additive, or other compound— poses a cancer threat to man.

Some scientists become suspicious of substances which are teratogenic, that is, when given to pregnant animals they cause malformations in the offspring.

If teratogens are indeed cancer-causers as some suspect, a vast number of chemicals commonly found in food, water and drugs would be carcinogenic, or cancer-causing.

Perhaps the strongest case against drugs as causing human cancer could be made against arsenic. Many medical writers have cited instances in which arsenicals have seemed to cause specific cases of human cancer.

A long list of arsenicals — happily shorter now that more effective drugs have been produced—has been used liberally in times past against a variety of conditions, including malaria, epilepsy, burns, cholera, chronic skin conditions, anemia, syphilis and cancer.

Another large group of drugs under growing suspicion are the phenols. Obtained from coal tars or synthetically, phenols are widely used in antiseptics, germicides, disinfectants, escharotics and local anesthetics. Carbolic acid is a well-known phenol. Also, they are widely used as antioxidants, preservatives, and disinfectants. They are in many plastic products and in smoke polluting the air; every ton of rubbish burned yields eight pounds of phenols.

HORMONES UNDER SUSPICION

University of Wisconsin scientists, testing more than 30 phenols, found that over half caused animal cancers, and they concluded "the hazards to man must now be considered."

There is still no definite proof, however, that any member of the enormous populations regularly exposed to phenols ever has developed cancer as a consequence of the exposure.

While there is no clinical evidence to suggest that antibiotics cause human cancer, scientists have reported inducing malignant tumors in experimental animals with a few of these drugs.

Atabrine, the antimalarial widely used by troops during World War II, was said by one scientist to have enhanced the development of rat liver tumors. Others have reported a contrary anti-cancer effect.

So many experimental cancers have been induced by altering the hormone balance of animals that the most cautious investigators are strongly against the medicinal use of hormones for any but well-defined reasons.

Sometimes drug - induced disease passes almost unnoticed. The short-lived offending preparation is recalled, occasionally without even the general medical profession aware of its past dangers and disasters.

Sometimes a drug will do enormous damage over a long period before the word leaks out and the public, as well as the medical profession is horrified at what has happened.

This was the case with the German sleeping pill, thalidomide, which gained popularity as a hangover free sedative. Between 3,500 and 5,000 German mothers who had taken these pills during their pregnancies, delivered monsters, babies with aborted, flipper-like arms and legs.

Dr. Frances O. Kelsey, a food and Drug official, standing alone against industrial and political pressures, blocked thalidomide's production and use in the United States. Dr. Helen B. Taussig of Johns Hopkins University said: "We should be grateful the drug was not dreamed up in this country. It could have passed the Food and Drug Administration under our present laws."

The thalidomide episode, Dr. Taussig said, should teach young women to be cautious about new drugs. "Until new laws become effective," she said, "and indeed until research for the proper tests on pregnant animals has been completed, physicians must bear in mind that sleeping tablets, tranquilizers and other apparently innocent drugs may do terrible harm to the rapidly growing embryo and the unborn child."

While thalidomide may have ceased to menace the unborn generation, other preparations and maternal habits are still killing and deforming babies. Congenital malformations constitute the leading cause of death among the newborn. And sometimes they are accompanied by cancer—possibly induced by the same agents.

EDUCATION NEEDED

The dangers of many drugs are known—widely advertised by their producers, in fact. Nevertheless, some doctors, through ignorance or carelessness, prescribe them when they are contraindicated, or they fail to caution their patients against the penalties of departing from the prescribed dosages.

And the ultimate victims, the consumers, take old, unlabeled drugs from their bathroom shelves or, with drugs bought over the counter, ignore both the large and small print and swallow them on the principle that if a little is good, a lot is better.

It is no wonder than more than a hundred North Americans are known to die annually of overdoses of aspirin and aspirin-type tablets. The chronic effects of ill-advised medication probably are much more common and much less frequently recognized.

Good conscience and common sense dictate that drugs are not marketed until tests have demonstrated their usefulness and short-term and long-term effects; they are not to be given or taken capriciously.

There is a great and urgent need for human experimentation with drugs.

The experiments should be done, however, in research centres where qualified scientists are prepared to undertake time-consuming studies of patients, faithfully record their experimental and control data, promptly reverse any untoward effects of their medications, and freely publish their results and observations.

This right of experimentation does not rest with the ordinary physician. Certainly the layman who treats himself experimentally has a fool for a doctor and a patient.

(THE END)

Silent riding, total performing... This is the way to drive into Summer!

We've put a whole lot of spirit into the new FORDs. There's a new 240 cu. in. Big Six, standard on all Custom, Custom 500 and Galaxie 500 models—more powerful than any other Six in FORD's class. (And even more economical than last year's Six.) The exciting 352 cu. in V-8 is standard on sporty Galaxie 500 XL's and luxurious LTD Hardtops—optional on other models. FORD's ride is right in the thoroughbred class.

Owners call it the sweetest-riding FORD ever. The 3-speed Cruise-O-Matic is FORD's very own. The middle gear gives you better passing acceleration. The Second Driving Range starts you in middle gear for surer take-off on slippery surfaces. We haven't forgotten your comfort. There's more shoulder and knee room, softer cushioned seats and Silent-Flo ventilation on 4-door hardtops. Test drive a new FORD soon.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

FOR APRIL 20

Aries (Mar. 21 - Apr. 19)—In question concerning work, take affirmative position. Attend to affairs close at hand. Don't brood about what might be—or could have been. Be specific, direct. Then results occur.

Taurus (Apr. 20 - May 20)—Don't put off decision in connection with children, basic changes. Member of opposite sex is involved. Secret meetings are apt to be made public. Act according to highest principles.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)—Be aware of your own talents, abilities. Many want to meet you. The "public" is intrigued. There are affairs at home which create controversy. Day to do what you can—and then relax.

Cancer (June 21 - July 22)—Key to success today is diligence. The more determined you are, the more likely you are to succeed. Check routine matters. Work closely with associates. Express appreciation.

Leo (July 23 - Aug. 22)—Ideas are your greatest asset today. If you desire affection—you gain it by attitude of showing it. If you attempt to go it alone you meet with disappointment. Be dynamic!

Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)—Obtain hint from today's Leo message. Probe deep. Come up with answers. Don't be deceived by "sob story." Money question solved if you are very frank. No more delay!

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)—Highlight journeys, communication of ideas.: Activity centres around home base. Marital or business partner wants added guarantees. Spar for time. Refuse to be rushed.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)—Refuse opportunities which feature excess risks. Concentrate on security. Heed warks of those with experience. Flashy individuals lack real knowledge. Know this!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)—Now is time to solidify ambitions. Speak frankly. Put on paper your plans, hopes, programs. Don't permit side issues to throw you off course. Talk to one in authority.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19—Oblique methods gain results. Avoid direct approach. Be tactful, diplomatic. Keep goal in sight and mind. But don't be overly serious. Visit friend who is "depressed."

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)—Have a pleasant time. Don't argue with friends. Your wonderful sense of humor should be brought into play. Tonight you may be caught in dilemma. Smile your way out of it!

Pisces (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20) — Be aware of responsibilities. Investigate various sources. Shrug off suggestions which conflict with principles. Element of luck rides with you. Display confidence. Then you "win."

If Today Is Your Birthday—you have depth of character—your personal convictions can capture imagination of public.

General Tendencies — Cycle high for Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius. Special word to Gemini: Meet people. Don't be shy. Promote spirit of adventure.

CHINA ORDERS 'PREPARE FOR WAR'

Prime Minister Gives Views On World Problems

Answers 6 Questions By Associated Press

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson, although noting continuing co-operation between East and West in world forums, views immediate prospects for improved international understanding as "not encouraging."

Mr. Pearson was replying to six written questions on international matters put to him by The Associated Press, the United States news - gathering agency.

He was asked, in his opinion, if prospects for international understanding are better or worse than a year ago?

These matters, he replied, could not be assessed in time periods of 12 months. In some ways prospects were better, in others worse.

As regards East-West relations immediate prospects are not encouraging particularly because of the Viet Nam crisis.

CONTINUES CO-OPERATION

"Nevertheless, the West continues to co-operate with the Communist state in many international forums and if peace can be restored in Viet Nam I am optimistic that over the long term real progress can be made in furthering East-West understanding."

The past year had seen the first United Nations conference on trade and development and creation of permanent machinery to further such work. This was a "very important move which should lead to greater understanding and co-operation in solving the problems of the less-developed countries."

Another question asked: The Chinese People's Republic now possesses a nuclear weapon. In view of this, do you assess the CPR's role in the world, particularly with regard to its exclusion from UN membership?

Mr. Pearson thought the question needed clarifying.

"Communist China does not at the present time, as far as I know, possess a nuclear weapon. It has successfully exploded a nuclear device, which is a different thing, and which means that Communist China is in the latter stages of a nuclear weapons program which, in due course but presumably later today, will lead to the possession by that country of a nuclear weapon.

HOLE LITTLE AFFECTED

"In the short run Communist China's role in the world is not affected. Certainly, by nuclear explosions. Nor, I think, do nuclear explosions significantly affect the role of Communist China's position vis-a-vis the United Nations."

Peking's exclusion from the UN did not arise from the "military or national weakness of that regime" but from the "effect on the minds of other governments of its apparent unwillingness to recognize and abide by certain principles, the chief of which is the right of the inhabitants of Formosa to self-determination and appropriate international action."

The "aggressive ideological policies of Communist China" made it a "very serious danger- ous when China is a nuclear

SEC Files Suit In Stock Deal

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission has filed a civil suit against 15 executives and employees of the Texas Gulf Sulphur Company, alleging they purchased thousands of company shares while withholding knowledge of a rich Canadian ore strike at Timmins.

The suit, filed late Monday in U.S. district court, claims the defendants took advantage of their "inside" knowledge for personal profit.

The suit seeks reimbursement by the insiders—a Wall Street name for officers, directors and major stockholders—to persons who, ignorance, sold shares to the stockholders.

Texas Gulf last year was the most heavily traded stock on the New York Stock Exchange with a volume of more than 24,000 odd shares. It rose 115.3 per cent for the year and has jumped from 23¾ at the close of 1963 to its high this year of 71¼. The stock closed Monday at 71, up ¾.

Named in the suit were most of Texas Gulf's top corporate officers, including its president, Claude O. Stephens of Pleasantville, N.Y.

NAMES BANKER

In addition, the suit mentions Thomas S. Lamont, former vice-chairman of Morgan Guaranty Trust Company, and Herbert Klotz, an assistant U.S. commerce secretary. Klotz is not named as a defendant.

The SEC alleges that Morgan Guaranty, a New York investment bank, was advised by Lamont to buy 8,000 shares of Texas Gulf. He is a director of both Texas Gulf and the bank.

Stephens said in a statement Monday night that the company is fully prepared to show that the company's conduct has been both legally and morally correct."

He said also that "during the last year the company's officers, directors and a number of key employees have cooperated fully with the SEC in an exhaustive investigation of all aspects of this case."

The SEC charged in its suit that the firm issued a "materially false and misleading" press release April 12, 1964, which discounted rumors of the ore strike in Timmins.

THE WEATHER

A new disturbance is developing west of the Great Lakes and expected to move rapidly eastward across the upper lakes and Northern Ontario tonight and early Wednesday. Snow flurries and showers will occur across the North as the weak storm moves through the area. Southern Ontario will get some cloudiness with this new system but will likely miss out on the precipitation altogether.

Police Rout Teeners

SKEGNESS, England (Reuters)—A youth was jailed for three months here today as officials in this holiday resort cracked down on rival teenage Mods and Rockers gangs who rioted here and in other centres during the Easter holiday.

"We are determined to stamp this out," a magistrate said in jailing one youngster, sending another to a detention centre for three months, and fining two more £30 ($80) each.

Others among the 150 or more teen-agers arrested during the weekend appeared in court at the south coast resort of Brighton.

Hordes of rival "Mods" and "Rockers" on scooters and motor cycles swarmed into the town to join 1,000 other members of the groups who spent Sunday in pitched battles with police following a number of incidents in which 56 were arrested.

Fines imposed in courts Monday brought the total of arrests to nearly 100, of whom 75 appeared in court on Easter Monday on charges ranging from assault and obstruction to possessing drugs and dangerous weapons.

Most were placed in custody pending further hearings after a warning by the court chairman who said: "This campaign of hooliganism and violence has got to be crushed."

A police inspector told the court that in Sunday's riots youngsters had roamed the streets jostling pedestrians and shouting "Block, block, we want blood, rah, rah, rah."

BLAMES DRUGS

"Much of the violence we have been concerned with was drug-taking by these people," the inspector added.

Several of those in court, including a number of girls, were said to have had pep tablets.

Brighton police, aided by reinforcements from outside the town, penned crowds of youngsters on the beach and carried the skirmishers off in black marias.

At the vacation and fishing resort of Great Yarmouth in Norfolk, five youths were arrested after a group of about 300 chased two leather-jacketed youths across the sands. The police fought to fight in which scooters and motorcycles were overturned.

"Rockers" usually ride motorcycles, wear studded leather jackets and prefer rock 'n' roll music. "Mods" regard them as stupid and out of date. They wear "modern" clothes — the latest uniform is casual ski jackets—and ride motor scooters.

Their clashes at holiday times this year, in which thousands were involved and hundreds arrested, led to the formation of a special police mobile squad in southern England to rush reinforcements to trouble spots.

REDS TO CO-OPERATE

CALCUTTA (AP) — Pro-Chinese and pro-Russian leaders of India's divided Communist party have agreed on joint anti-government efforts at their first formal meeting since their split in a year ago. The leaders decided at a meeting Monday to co-operate in a program of anti-government demonstrations and election campaigns against candidates of Prime Minister Shastri's ruling Congress party.

BRIAN KILLEEN . . . recovers from bullet wound

Not-So-Happy Hunting Ground Overcrowded With Youngsters

There's a not-so-happy-hunting ground on Belleville's eastern outskirts today.

In fact, parents have been pressed to discourage armed teenage offspring from the area.

The warning followed the near-escape yesterday of 15-year-old Brian Killeen, now recovering in hospital from a shotgun wound.

The incident occurred in a thickly-wooded area near the Hislg sideroad, which year-after-year drew holidaying school students in search for game.

Many of the youngsters were apparently armed with light rifles and shotguns say police.

It was not known exactly how many there were but "there was quite a few in a small area," said a provincial police officer.

One report said police had the names of nearly 30 youths hunting in the vicinity at the time.

Brian was shot in the fleshy part of his leg above and behind the knee. Luckily the wound was not a serious one, although police say he could easily have lost a kneecap — at least.

Presumably, it was from a .22 calibre rifle, although the slug was never found.

Neither was the unwitting marksman. Police said the number of young hunters in the area at the time ruled out the possibility of discovering who fired the shot.

Say Not Enough Being Done For Exceptional Students

TORONTO (CP) — Education systems are not doing enough to encourage the exceptional student and frequently jam pupils into compartments where they obviously do not belong, two education officials said Monday.

In a keynote speech to the three-day annual meeting of the Ontario Education Association, Lord James of Rusholme, vice-chancellor of York University, England, said education in the democracies is geared too much to the needs of the average student.

"We are so afraid of admitting that anyone is better than we are that we hesitate to bring home to our ablest pupils the responsibilities that go with ability and power. . . .

At the same time, an education system that does not teach a boy or girl as much as he is learning is "failing both the community and the individual."

"Whatever our formal definition of democracy, at the heart of it must lie the ideas of citizens who participate as fully as their abilities allow them to do so, and of decisions that are reached after discussion."

Democratic education must educate citizens who can think, but if the schools in a democracy are too soft, they will produce soft thinkers and a decaying society, he said.

Gordon Finlayson, president of the Association, compared Ontario's school system to the legendary bed of Procrustes—youngsters either fitted logical compartments or they were cut down to size.

"They must at each lockstep fit the next compartment that we have designed.

"Enrolment is offered children with meet particular specifications but there must surely be many who could benefit but who do not have the opportunity."

N. E. Sisco, director of the department of education's technological and trades training branch, said the Ontario government will expand provisions for technicians' courses in schools and industry.

The move will be accompanied by a broader program to train employed persons who may lose their jobs in the future because of technological advancement.

He said the absence of such workers in the Canadian econ-

France To Quit SEATO

By HAROLD KING

PARIS (Reuters) — France may shortly sever its ties completely with the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization—the eight-nation Western defence pact in the Far East, reliable sources said in Paris today.

As a first step Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville will not attend the annual SEATO ministerial conference in London which begins a three-day session May 3.

(France has told the SEATO secretariat in Bangkok it intends to downgrade its delegation to the London conference to observer status, reliable sources said.)

The French decision is said here to reflect President de Gaulle's desire to dissociate France step by step from any commitment in a possible war in Viet Nam.

Officials here say France's diplomacy now would leave it free to remain neutral in the event of a war between the United States and China.

Diplomats in Paris believe President Johnson may be seeking SEATO approval at the London conference for his offer of unconditional talks on a Viet Nam peace settlement, coupled with a $1,000,000,000 economic aid plan for Southeast Asia.

The French government's view is that the aid plan is another facet of U.S. policy in Viet Nam and to support it would be to condone U.S. strategy in Viet Nam with which the French government disagrees.

Bar Bomb Takes Toll In Viet Nam

From Reuters-AP

SAIGON (CP)—The loss of a U.S. Navy Skyraider over North Viet Nam and the explosion of a terrorist bomb today pushed the American casualty toll in the Viet Nam war higher as officials investigated a possible Communist attempt to capture Premier Phan Huy Quat.

Seventeen South Vietnamese were killed, 38 wounded and three American servicemen injured when a Communist Viet Cong bomb ripped through a bar in Bien Hoa, about 20 miles northeast of Saigon, last night.

Air force authorities were investigating a suspected plane sabotage bid which could have led to Premier Quat's capture by the Communists.

Informed sources said Quat's C-47 plane mysteriously developed trouble in both engines soon after taking off from Bien Hoa air base near Saigon last Saturday.

The pilot was able to return to the base and landed on one engine.

Will Send Men To Viet Nam If War Escalates

Move Follows Failure Of 17-Nation Peace Bid

TOKYO (AP)—China called today for "full preparations" to send Chinese troops into the Vietnamese war if the United States escalates the fighting and the Vietnamese people call for help.

A Peking broadcast said the standing committee to the National Peoples Congress (parliament) ordered the preparations in the form of a resolution adopted unanimously this afternoon.

"In the name of the 650,000,000 Chinese people," the resolution said, "the standing committee of the National Peoples Congress of China today solemnly passed a resolution calling on the people's organizations and their people throughout China to make full preparations to send their own people to fight together with the Vietnamese people and drive out the U.S. aggressors in the event that U.S. imperialism continues to escalate its war of aggression and the Vietnamese people need them'."

CAN DECLARE WAR

The legislative body is empowered to decide on the proclamation of a state of war.

"China will continue to do everything within its power to give resolute and unreserved support to the Vietnamese people now engaged in a patriotic, just struggle to resist the U.S.," the resolution said.

"The Chinese government and the Chinese people have solemnly declared that aggression by U.S. imperialism against the Democratic Republic of (North) Viet Nam means aggression against China and that the Chinese people will absolutely not sit by idly without lending a helping hand.

"In accordance with the demands of the Vietnamese people and the requirements of the common struggle against U.S. imperialist aggression, the Chinese people have done and will continue to do their utmost to assist the Vietnamese people to defeat the U.S. aggressors completely.

"The Chinese people have always been infinitely loyal in fulfilling their proletarian internationalist obligations; they have never spared a sacrifice whatever in this respect; they always mean what they say. No one should misjudge and misjudge this."

The Chinese expressed support for a North Vietnamese appeal which called, among other things, for an end to U.S. air strikes on North Viet Nam and the withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Viet Nam.

WOULD FORCE OUT

"We maintain that the necessary conditions for a political settlement of the Viet Nam problem can be created only by putting an end to the U.S. imperialist aggression against Viet Nam and forcing the United States to withdraw all its armed forces from Viet Nam," the resolution said.

Alberta Medicare Honeymoon Ends With Extension Of Services

EDMONTON (CP) — An Alberta government decision to bring hospital outpatient services under its hospital plan July 1 has revealed an open wound in doctor-government relationships.

The conflict, first to appear since the doctors and the provincial government joined forces to establish a voluntary medical care insurance scheme in Alberta in July, 1963, came to public notice Feb. 18.

The government then announced in the speech from the throne in the Alberta legislature that it intended to extend hospital-plan coverage to include outpatient services, such as x-rays.

The doctors, through the 1,600-member College of Physicians and Surgeons of Alberta, said the move jeopardizes the medical insurance plan, which already includes diagnostic coverage.

The medical insurance plan is considered by both doctors and the Social Credit government as a model of government-doctor understanding and co-operation and proof that compulsory government plans, such as in Saskatchewan, are not necessary.

Under the hospital plan, launched in 1958 under a federal - provincial cost - sharing agreement, Albertans pay up to $2 a day while in hospital with the government paying any balance. Benefits are applied across the board to all residents, regardless of means.

In 1959 this approach was used in extending hospital plan benefits to chronic or auxiliary hospital care services and two years ago to include nursing home care, again with a nominal patient contribution or coinsurance fee.

This year the province decided to take advantage of a third phase of the original 1958 agreement — out - patient services, including diagnostic facilities. The patient contribution will be 20 per cent.

Will Move Into Viet Nam Says Russia

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia will move into Viet Nam if the United States escalates the war there, Soviet Defence Minister Rodion Malinovsky said today.

"We are not afraid of anyone," he told a rally in Moscow's Red Square. "If the aggressors unleash war in Viet Nam, we will move into Viet Nam."

Malinovsky's statement was the strongest yet by a Soviet leader on the Viet Nam war.

Premier Alexei Kosygin, in a speech in Moscow last week, said Russia would help North Viet Nam defend itself against U.S. attacks.

Malinovsky said: "We are not afraid of the threats of the U.S. aggressors. We are ready to give a fitting rebuff to the aggressors."

He said Russia was ready to help North Viet Nam "with all the means at our disposal."

Malinovsky's speech was broadcast live on Soviet radio and television.

Fine Housewife For Theft of Newspaper

A second Belleville housewife has been fined $25 for theft of a 10-cent morning newspaper.

The woman pleaded guilty before Magistrate T. Y. Wills who imposed the same fine he did a week ago for a similar offence at the same spot — a Globe and Mail coin-box at College and North Front streets.

Meantime, Hugh Watson, Belleville man who holds the Globe and Mail distribution franchise for the city, says there has been a noticeable increase in his collections since the charges were laid.

Pilfering from the street boxes was a fairly common occurrence, Mr. Watson said.

"You can catch somebody at nearly every box," he added.

The charges were laid by city police after Mr. Watson kept watch on his College Street news box April 1.

The women charged thus morning were given two weeks to pay by the magistrate.

Advertisers Turning More To Printing

TORONTO (CP) — Advertisers are putting more than one-third of advertising and merchandising dollars spent by Canadian advertisers.

There has been a great resurgence of printed advertising because television has not proved effective as it might have been, he said.

"After television was introduced on a wide scale, there was a real breakdown for about two years when television took over a lot of merchandising dollars.

"But TV has not been doing the job it might do—and as a result, I would estimate that TV and radio may have under 40 per cent of the total merchandising dollar."

Chevalier Near 77 and Still Going Strong

NEW YORK (AP) — Two French institutions are the same age, and at times it seems that both will surely endure the longer—the Eiffel Tower or Maurice Chevalier.

Chevalier, who celebrates—he actually will be 77 Sept. 12—recently embarked on a project from which most entertainers would clinch—a one-man show consisting of only himself and piano accompaniment. Knowledgeable audiences are reaffirming the fact that the Chevalier magic is still going strong.

"I feel that I have never been in such wonderful contact with the people," he says in the vivid French lilt that has charmed several generations. "It's wonderful to go across so many years and still go deeper in the affection of the people."

His own happy analysis of the Chevalier phenomenon is sprinkled with words like luck, marvel, wonder and miracle.

CITES LUCK

"First, there's the luck of keeping enough health to do it," he says. "And secondly, I must be that I'm more a personality than an actor. I'm just having fun. I'm not a little bit of the warmth I've always had in my way of living. I go from one to another—three generations—I think that's my luck.

"To be able to be what I am in a profession where things go roaring and roaring and roaring," he sums up with a last raspy French R's, "that's my little secret."

When his four - week New Chevalier will take his show to Montreal, a week before heading home to his country estate near Paris.

Herbert Brown Catholic PTA's New Treasurer

TORONTO (CP) — Instruction in religion and morals at lhes should begin in the home as the responsibility, rather than waiting for parish schools, the Ontario Catholic Parent - Teacher Association was told Monday.

Mary Reed Newland, United States author and lecturer here to help parents interpret the church for children, said this instruction is a full-time job.

And children must be taught to be good out of love for God —not out of fear, she said.

Delegates at the annual meeting of the Federation of Catholic Parent-Teacher Associations of Ontario passed a resolution recommending that the department of education ask the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and private television stations combine to produce a series of programs on the new math system for the benefit of parents.

Another resolution asked the department of education to discontinue streaming or inspecting private high schools in Ontario. Some schools pay as much as $200 for a streaming, depending on the number of pupils.

Gregory Armstrong of Kitchener was elected president of the federation at the business meeting. Mrs. John Robida of St. Catharines and George Ingram of Galt were elected vice presidents.

New treasurer is Herbert Brown of Belleville.

Company Takes Steps to Ensure Paper Control

WINNIPEG (CP)—FP Publications Limited announced Monday it is taking steps "to ensure that control of its vast news newspaper properties in Canada shall remain in Canadian hands."

The company said in a statement it is applying to the secretary of state for supplementary letters patent, for approval of bylaws "which will only permit the transfer of the company's voting shares to Canadian citizens resident in Canada."

The statement was issued by R. S. Malone, general manager of FP Publications Limited which owns the Ottawa Journal, Winnipeg Free Press, Calgary Albertan, Lethbridge Herald, Victoria Times, Victoria Colonist and Free Press Weekly Prairie Farmer and also publishes the Vancouver Sun for Pacific Press Limited.

The statement added:

"Under the requested powers, directors of the company shall be obliged to refuse to register the transfer of any voting shares to any individual who is not a Canadian citizen or to any corporation not controlled by Canadians. Also provided is that no Canadian citizen may hold shares in the right of, or exercise proxies for, any non-Canadian shareholders. Directors of the company have also applied for authority to demand declarations at any time respecting the ownership of its voting shares.

"It is the view of FP directors that the major newspaper properties of Canada should not be allowed to fall under foreign control. This safeguard, they feel, is better instituted by the papers themselves, rather than by any government legislation, which in any way might subsequently be interpreted as a form of government licensing or state control."

Other routine jobs being carried out include the installation of hardware fittings and work on the exterior of the building.

Awesome Fire Peril Added To Flood Woes

LA CROSSE, Wis. (AP)—A tilting chemical tank laden with 107,000 gallons of gasoline added an awesome fire peril today to the woes of La Crosse braced for the record crest sweeping down the Mississippi River Valley.

"God, can you imagine fire mixed with gasoline on the crest," said a police officer assigned to the emergency guard over the tank farm on a hotel of 55,000,000 gallons of gasoline are stored.

A 10-foot rupture in a protecting dike poured eight feet of water over the tank area Monday, and Fire Chief Ralph Forster, said the "potential danger increased with the pressure of the tanks to flood debris.

The Mississippi climbed to 17.4 feet, more than five feet over flood stage at La Crosse, as it swept downstream.

HUNDREDS LEAVE

At Winona, Minn., about 25 miles to the north, nearly 1,000 persons were to be evacuated in an orderly evacuation when water began cresting by midnight along the river after surging under protective dikes.

The Winona crest was expected to crest today at Winona at 21½ feet, 8½ feet above flood level, and then at 18 feet at La Crosse Monday.

Damage in Wisconsin and Minnesota, which have so far borne the brunt, has been estimated as high as $60,000,000 by civil defence officials. The Red Cross said that 40,000 persons have been displaced in a five-state area, and the worst is still to come in Iowa, Illinois and Missouri.

Twelve persons have died in Minnesota and Wisconsin. Minnesota lists 10 deaths and one man missing. Wisconsin also counts a man missing.

Nearly 3,000 homes have been damaged or destroyed in Wisconsin and Minnesota, with 2,428 in Minnesota. Property damage so far has been light in other states.

SEC

posits had been found and continued until April 16, 1964, the SEC said. During this period, the suit alleges, the defendants collectively bought 8,100 shares, made calls on 5,200 shares and received options to purchase 31,500 shares of Texas Gulf securities.

The complaint listed the individual stock transactions of the 13 defendants, plus Morgan Guaranty and Klotz. The commerce department official was said to have received knowledge of the discovery from Miss Nancy Atkinson, a commerce department secretary reported to be a personal friend of Kenneth H. Darke, field geologist for Texas Gulf Sulphur. Darke was named as a defendant.

The suit has filed under a rule which makes it illegal for an officer, director or employee of a corporation to misstate pertinent facts or fail to give pertinent facts when buying the corporation's securities.

Initially, Texas Gulf estimated its find in the Timmins area at 25,000,000 tons of ore—which includes zinc, copper and silver. By June, 1964, after discounting speculative rumors of a greater yield, the company raised its estimate to 55,000,000 tons.

The SEC charged also that those in the group allegedly received stock options from Texas Gulf without having notified the company's board of directors of the discovery of a copper and zinc ore body.

ANNOUNCED LAST APRIL

The vast Texas Gulf strike of ore containing zinc, lead, copper and silver was announced a year ago this month. Estimates of its value have ranged as high as $2,000,000,000.

The SEC asked the court to enjoin the defendants from further violations of the act, and called for cancellation of the stock options and asked that those defendants who bought the shares on the basis of their inside knowledge be required to sell them back at the same price.

The complaint stated that in early November, 1963, the company began exploratory drilling on a mile near Timmins and obtained specimens indicating a substantial body of high grade copper and zinc ore.

The SEC said company officials arranged for the camouflaging of the drill to prevent others from becoming aware of the discovery, and set in motion measures to acquire further ownership of mineral rights in the area, while absolute secrecy was maintained.

On Nov. 12, 1963, the SEC continued, one party purchased 300 shares at a price slightly below $18 on the New York Stock Exchange, and others in the company made subsequent purchases at increasingly higher prices through the middle of the following April, without advising the public of the existence of the increasingly favorable reports from the drilling site, the complaint said.

NOTIFY OTHERS

Some of the defendants notified others, and some of the latter in turn notified friends, the SEC said. It added that it was in this way that tips got the tip to buy Texas Gulf.

None of those who merely received a tip from company officials or employees and acted on them was listed as a defendant.

The charge against the company itself grew out of an episode which followed the publication by the New York Times on April 11, 1964, of a report of a rumor that Texas Gulf "had discovered a good deposit" 10 miles north of Timmins.

The SEC said Fogarty and a public relations man prepared a release which described the rumors as exaggerating the scale of operations and stating that the complaint to the site, described the ore find, and insisted that the story be kept secret pending action on the authorized the release on April 15. The story appeared in the Canadine publication on April 16, describing the discovery in glowing terms.

On the same day, a press conference was arranged in New York City at which the company released a statement giving what SEC described as the first material facts available to the public on the discovery.

The report of the ore discovery in a section of Kidd Township near Timmins set off the wildest boom in modern Canadian mining history.

The Toronto Stock Exchange went on a trading binge that set a North American record for volume of stock traded—28,700,000 shares in one day.

SWARM IN

Prospectors swarmed into the Timmins area to stake out claims. Buying and selling of mining stocks reached a fever pitch.

Texas Gulf Stock sported on the New York Stock Exchange.

Curtis Publishing Company announced that it owned timberlands adjacent to the Texas Gulf discovery area, and others, too, rose sharply.

In June, Texas Gulf's engineers and an independent mining consultant made a new estimate of 55,000,000 tons of ore with an average grade of 4.85 ounces of silver, 1.33 per cent copper and 7.08 per cent zinc per ton.

Initial plans for development of the property were estimated at $25,000,000 including an access road, a facility for open pit mining and processing 6,000 tons of ore a day.

Must All Work Together President Tells Employees

TRENTON — Company president Hubert Campbell said he considered the employees of Miller Bros. (1962) Co. Ltd., a family compact whose success will continue only if we all work together." Mr. Campbell addressed 100 papermakers, their wives and guests attending the Papermakers and Paperworkers Union Local 489's annual Easter Monday banquet and dance held at the Legion hall here last night.

Papermaking still requires the skill of men in the plant in spite of the progressive research bureau maintained by the company, Mr. Campbell told the gathering. "You are doing a very important job in a very competitive industry," he said, pointing out that there are 30 mills producing paperboard in Canada vying for the markets. While the demand for plant production increases packaging with components made of plastics has entered the battle of economics, he noted. Quality, service and price, the three requirements imperative for survival in this business today concerns every employee, he explained. Miller Bros. sell products all over the world, the president said.

In recognition for long service with the company Murdock Campbell and George Wickens received appropriate gifts. Local president Elmer Wickens who acted as banquet chairman and toast master introducing consultant made a new estimate of 55,000,000 tons of ore with an average grade of 4.85 ounces of silver, 1.33 per cent copper and 7.08 per cent zinc per ton.

Initial plans for development of the property were estimated at $25,000,000 including an access road, a facility for open pit mining and processing 6,000 tons of ore a day.

Bylaw on Wages Rescinded by 4-2 Vote

TRENTON — At a special meeting of council earlier this month, the salaries of several town employees, who are not members of the municipal workers' union, were increased by by-law.

At last night's council meeting, and at the insistence of Councillor Ross Burtt, the by-law was rescinded and Mayor James MacDonald and the councillors will sit down and discuss the matter.

Councillor Burtt claimed that he had been called on the telephone and told council was holding a budget meeting. He said there had been no mention of salaries. The councillor referred to a by-law passed last year which laid down that any item subject for which a special meeting was called could be discussed at a special meeting. Councillor Burtt did not attend the special meeting.

Mayor MacDonald said the discussion on salaries was part and parcel of the budget discussion.

However, the veteran councillor's request to have the by-law rescinded was honored by a four to two vote, (Councillors Tripp and Graham voting "Nay").

Councillor Tripp Proposes Town Parking Authority

TRENTON — Councillor Paul Tripp placed before Trenton council last night a proposal that a Parking Authority be formed. The councillor, who is chairman of county industrial and economic development committee and a downtown businessman himself, told council the business community would flourish if the authority were created and pointed to Belleville as an example of what an authority can do.

The authority, said Councillor Tripp, could handle parking problems much more effectively than council, which has other matters on its mind.

The authority would issue debentures for the purchase of empty lots for off-street parking. Such debentures would not affect the capital debt and therefore would not be charged against the home owners, the councillor said. The debentures would be liquidated by parking lot revenue, which would be collected by the authority.

Councillor Tripp said increases the value of commercial property that is not on the main street. The town would receive higher realty taxes and higher business taxes. The businessman would derive benefit from the parking lots and could afford to pay higher taxes. This would "relieve the small bond owner's tax."

Councillor Tripp suggested that one of the first moves of the proposed authority might be to buy from the town the present fire hall, and the space between the market square and Cobbler's would be made into a parking lot. The town would then be able to re-locate the fire hall. The present market space would serve shoppers weekdays, and members of St. Peter's and Bridge Street United Churches with off-street parking on Sundays.

BURTT OPPOSED

At last night's meeting, Mr. Tripp was told by clerk comptroller O. W. Larry that it was not true a parking authority could raise money by debenture by itself. The town would have to issue debentures, he said.

Councillor Ross Burtt said he wasn't in favor of the idea. He said that creating an authority would be a long, more lucrative stance of "taking the affairs of council out of council's hands." In addition to this objection, Councillor Burtt had another. He said that there had been a plan to make the next municipal parking lot on the east side of the river, rather than the west side.

Councillor Tripp and the other members of council were told by town treasurer Peter Degroot that there are 425 parking lots in town and that the gross revenue from parking last year was $25,000, of which $17,000 went to operate operations. The remainder went to pay off debenture debt in connection with the parking lot location. Mr. Degroot said the parking debenture debt is reserved fund of around $7,000 at the moment.

Council, however, will examine Councillor Tripp's suggestion at length, weigh all the pros and cons and come to a decision later...

should try to get one from another source, thus hastening that the remaining services would be installed as promised.

W. Sidor Replies To Critic of Sub-division

TRENTON — Local developer, Wm. Sidor, came before Trenton council last night to dispute statements made at council meeting earlier this month by Eric Kaltus, a resident in Mr. Sidor's sub-division, Westmount Park. Mr. Kaltus said on April 5 that Mr. Sidor had not lived up to the terms of agreement in the development of services for what he said had "been advertised as a fully serviced lot," when he bought it. Mr. Kaltus complained specifically about the lack of curbs in front of his property and the state of the roadway.

Last night, Mr. Sidor termed Mr. Kaltus' statements "completely false".

Mr. Sidor said he had lived up to the terms of his agreement with Mr. Kaltus, "one hundred per cent." He said council had agreed with him last year that the curb work should be postponed until this year.

MATTER OF BOND

Councillor Ross Burtt brought up the matter of a "performance bond," which would guarantee that services be installed in the subdivision within a specified time limit. The councillor said the developer had failed to produce such a bond, even though this was one of the terms of agreement with the town.

Mr. Sidor said he had produced a bond to the corporation. Clerk comptroller O. W. Larry, brought into the argument, said that Mr. Sidor had produced a bond, but that the bonding company had subsequently recalled this bond, claiming that it had misunderstood the type of bonding wanted when the bond was issued.

Mr. Larry said the bonding company was evidently of the opinion that the town, as "engineering and supervising performance bond" from Mr. Sidor, the contractor. What the town actually received was a "subdivision" bond, and the company was not interested in supplying such a bond, he said.

Mr. Sidor then took exception to the bond having been sent to the bonding company without his knowledge. As this had been transacted in January, Mr. Larry and Mayor MacDonald told Mr. Sidor he was a little late in complaining.

"Have you made any effort to get another bond?" Mr. Larry wanted to know.

"Nobody asked me to," replied Mr. Sidor, pointing out he installed $100,000 worth of services without a bond."

The upshot of last night's hour and a half discussion with Mr. Sidor is that the public works' committee will sit down with the developer and discuss the matter further. It was suggested that a new agreement with the town calls for a performance bond, he

Broadcasting Magna Carta

A few days ago J. Alphonse Ouimet, president of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, made a plea for a moratorium on investigations of the CBC. M. Ouimet wants a charter which will let the CBC go about its business, secure in the knowledge of where its money is going to come from, and how much it has to work with.

Like M. Ouimet, we are getting a little tired of the attacks on the CBC, especially when so many of the critics denounce the corporation for precisely those things for which we consider it deserves praise. Coming to the defence of the CBC on this or that specific charge is tiresome and unrewarding. We were, therefore, delighted to discover a statement of general principles which, it seems to us, provides an adequate shield behind which the CBC can shelter from the more petty and misguided of its many critics.

Recently, Sir Hugh Greene addressed the International Roman Catholic Association for Radio and Television in Rome. His talk, reported in "BBC London Letter," should provide an excellent guide for the proper conduct of a publicly-owned broadcasting system—or of a privately-owned network which wishes to be considered as something more than a device for extracting as many dollars as possible from advertisers.

The main purpose, said Sir Hugh, should be "to make the microphone and the television screen available to the widest possible range of subjects and to the best exponents available of the differing views on any given subject."

Already, by doing no more that stating a first principle, Sir Hugh has erected a needed roadblock against many of the policies followed by private networks in the United States. Obviously, if you are going to deal with a wide range of subjects, you cannot allot all your best listening time to a number of weekly shows, which differ little from each other in content and are always faithful mirrors of themselves.

It is obviously much simpler for the BBC to apply this principle than it is for private networks, which must depend on advertising revenue for their life-blood; and even the CBC cannot act as independently as can the BBC, for although it receives a government subsidy it also derives much of its revenue from advertising.

Bearing that in mind, though, let us further consider Sir Hugh's advice.

In everything it undertakes, he says, a broadcasting organization must recognize an obligation towards tolerance and towards the maximum liberty of expression for serious thought. Censorship, overt or disguised, must be resisted. . . "I see it as the clear duty of a public-service broadcasting organization to stand firm against attempts to decry sincerity and vision, and in the field of public affairs or in the less easily judged world of the arts, including dramatic art."

This liberty must not be conceived as total licence; the broadcaster has access to every home, to people of all ages and of varying degrees of sophistication. But Sir Hugh argued that program plans must be made on the assumption that the audience is capable of exercising intelligence and choice. He did not believe that any subject could be excluded simply because of what it was, but discretion was necessary with respect to the time of showing the program, the treatment of the subject and even the tide of opinion in society. "Outrage is wrong. Shock may be good. Provocation can be healthy and indeed socially imperative."

Our difficulty in Canada, of course, is that so often what only provokes the intelligent man with an opposing opinion does not merely shock but outrages every nincompoop who is convinced that the CBC should devote all its efforts to furthering the dissemination of the views held by "every right-thinking Canadian"—that is by every Canadian who holds the same opinions as the outraged person in question.

Many politicians are in the habit of laying it down as a self-evident proposition that no people ought to be free till they are fit to use their freedom. The maxim is worthy of the fool in the old story who resolved not to go into the water till he had learned to swim.—Macaulay.

I think this retiring business is over-rated. A lot of 65-year-old men are still in complete possession of their faculties. Boredom kills more people than anything else.—Finlay Currie, 87, the world's oldest living actor.

Fewer Want To Be Doctors

London Free Press

It is a falling off in medical recruits rather than a shortage of class-room space in Canadian medical schools which forms the major basis of alarm over a possible doctor shortage in Canada, according to two authoritative viewpoints heard in recent days.

Dr. John F. McCreary, dean of medicine at the University of British Columbia calls on practising doctors to increase their efforts to interest young persons in the profession. At the same time he suggests that new incentives be considered for prospective medical students.

In another approach to the same subject, a research study for the Association of Canadian Medical Colleges concludes that the space shortage in Canadian medical schools "may be smaller than claimed last fall."

Here again the ACMC report maintains that the need for a recruiting campaign remains.

Dr. McCreary points out that the ratio for student-to-population ratio for all students in Canada has been on the increase, the proportion entering medical schools has shown a decrease. Students, he says, have been pulled into other fields. In part this is due, he feels, to the fact that greater subsidization has been made available to students in the physical sciences than in health sciences.

These things take on more significance as Canada considers a national health plan. Mr. Justice E.M. Hall, chairmen of the royal commission on health services, states already general practitioners must find better ways of meeting the demands on their services if unhealthy administered health plan is hardly likely to reduce this work load, while its effect on recruitment of medical students is uncertain. The supply of doctors is thus a question to be carefully considered in the drafting of future health programs for this country.

To Your Good Health
Woman of 71 Is Senile, Needs Daughters' Help

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother is 71.

She always taught us to be clean, honest and truthful.

Now the only time she is clean is when my sister or I bathe her and wash her hair. She won't even take her clothes off and put on a gown at night, and she wears hose until they are ready to fall off.

She never tells the truth, and when I asked the doctor if others were like her, he said, 'Yes. The reason is that some of them can't remember—can't remember such things as being truthful and keeping clean.' Do you hear of many like this? — Mrs. E. E. D.

This doesn't happen in all people when they grow old, but it does to some.

It is senility. It can involve emotional changes, reversals in personality, forgetfulness, loss of interest in self or the surrounding world and its people. In general it is an aging, and failure of the brain cells.

Some of us, in age, become lame, some feeble, some infirm in other ways. So it is that for some, the infirmity is in the mind. Others live to be 100 without this mental deterioration.

Nothing can be done to reverse these mental changes. Just take care of your mother and try to encourage her to help herself. This may relieve some cases, but be futile in others.

Dear Dr. Molner: Should a person with varicose vains wear elastic stockings, or will the tightness slow up circulation? — Mrs. J. B.

Elastic stockings very often are beneficial. You should read my booklet, "How to Deal with Varicose Veins." (For a copy send an unstamped, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents in coin to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.) The booklet explains the problem in detail. But briefly, the elastic hosiery won't interfere with blood flowing down through the arteries. It will help because it will give some support for the walls of the veins which have become weakened and enlarged, resulting in more or less stagnant accumulations of blood and thus impeding the return of this blood to the heart.

Dear Doctor: I have diabetic neuritis. What is the treatment and how long does it take? — Mrs. R. B.

This is one of the complications which sometimes develop with diabetes. Strict control of the diabetes is essential. In most instances Vitamin B complex or B 12 is used. The problem may be stubborn to clear up, but it can be improved.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a retired kindergarten teacher, age 64. For years I have had sore bones under the breasts. The diagnosis is Tietze's disease, part of the arthritis syndrome. I have suffered with osteoarthritis for years, but it is better now that I am not under tension.

I have had one injection for Tietze's disease, which did not seem to help, and physical therapy including ultrasonic treatments. This helped, but the pain came back in a few weeks.

Please tell me what to do. — Mrs. G. L.

Tietze's disease is a condition involving the joint of the first rib and the breast bone. The cause is not known — there may be more than one. Since it is an ailment of the joint, it may properly be called part of the general picture of arthritis, although numberless people with arthritis do not have trouble with this joint.

An injury to the breast bone also can cause prolonged discomfort of the nature you describe.

Often the trouble subsides spontaneously — but not predictably. I presume that the injection you had was of steroid drugs (cortisone type). It may have had a delayed reaction and helped more than you realize. I regret that I have no panacea to offer, but I suggest a repetition of what helped you before. Another injection, plus the physiotherapy. What was done often works a second time.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

April 30th, 1943

Commencing with the early appearance of spring, records in the commencement of spring farming operations continue to be broken in the Bay of Quinte area according to district farmers.

One farmer in the Oak Hills district south of Stirling reports completion of seeding operations before March had ended, while a prominent orchardist of Prince Edward County states that if warm weather continues, spraying operations will be in progress within the week. Also northern lights made their initial appearances last Thursday. This, according to observers being an all-time record for early appearance.

Mr. David Hollinger of the Oak Hills district, has practically completed his seeding operations having sowed his first field on March 24th, and sowing other fields the following week.

30 YEARS AGO

April 29th, 1933

Mr. and Mrs. Mackenzie Robertson of Bridge Street east, have returned home after a very enjoyable holiday. On March 5 they left Belleville and motored to Boston, Mass., from which report they sailed on March 8 on the steamship Lady Somers for Hamilton, Bermuda; Nassau, Bahamas, and then to Kingston, Jamaica, where they spent 17 days on the island. During their car with them they spent much time motoring.

In response to an invitation from President Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt, Mr. W. Burt McGregor, well known barrister, and formerly of this city, was an overnight guest a recent day at the White House in Washington where he gave a concert in connection with the reception of officers of the Army and Navy, one of the most colorful events of the season at the White House. Mr. McGregor, Mrs. McGregor and son Graham, are residing temporarily at Washington with Mrs. Henry Graham, Forin Street.

40 YEARS AGO

April 29th, 1923

It was thought that spring was here; gardens were being prepared for the expected warm weather, but alas such was not the case as we had a real snow storm yesterday. At times the snow fell so fast as to cause an obscure vision for some distance. About a foot of snow fell. Several awnings in the street were destroyed, gone shopping for even more trouble.

He engineered inter-service integration—and to everyone's astonishment, Parliament's and probably the country's greatest surprise, seems to have got away with it.

And then venturing in where most other Cabinet Ministers fear to tread, he bolted out his anguish—and in the Armed Forces, of all unlogical places.

FUTILE LEADER

But he did it with exquisite skill, going just far enough to keep rebellious and resentful French Canada under but not so far as to rouse reaction in wondering and worried English Canada.

The Opposition has made a point of leading Hellyer alone. He does his homework, knows his stuff and has good, hard facts to back his contentions. Opposition questions. With so many easy Cabinet marks around, why bother with a Minister, who usually gives as good, kid often better than he gets in the political tooth-and-claw of the Parliamentary Question Period?

But on bilingualism they thought they had him cold—was it true you couldn't get a promotion in the Armed Forces unless you spoke French, they demanded?

Untrue, he said. But it "helped" if you spoke French. "The more skilful our people are, the more talent they have, the more useful they become, the more likely they are for a promotion," he noted, adding, "and bilingualism is a talent."

But was it a promotional "must?"

No, just a "factor," explained Paul Hellyer easily, "we point out to our young people, the Cadets at Royal Military College and Royal Roads that it would be a good idea for them to learn both languages, especially if they want to become admirals, or generals, or air marshals 10 or 15 years from now."

Just the two official languages, pressed the Opposition?

"Two, three, four, five—and indeed, we have some who speak five—the more they know, the more valuable they become."

Was the Defence Minister practising what he preached?

Well, he was taking French lessons; and "in response set me to be was using French in speeches in Quebec.

In his organizational talent, his flexibility, his facility for accommodation of varying viewpoints, many of the younger Liberals see in Paul Hellyer, now 41, a future Liberal leader.

They could do worse.

Ottawa Offbeat
Hellyer, Soul of Diplomacy, Gives Superb Performance

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Did you happen to hear anything about Defence Minister Paul Hellyer's performance in the Commons just before the House packed it up for Easter?

You have seen and heard it is to know that he's skilful it was.

It even reads well in Hansard.

And that is surely something — for this tediously-detailed official word-for-word report of Parliament's deliberations usually manages, through sheer drabness and the studied use of the "soft" word, to take the zing completely out of the bounciest of Commons capers.

Massiveness like the 11,000-000 words put on Hansard in the marathon session wound up just a week ago after 15 breathless months of incessant "soft" words like "oh, oh," routinely used to cower even the most outrageously scandalous things that increasingly get said in the House.

So Paul Hellyer had to be pretty good to read well in Hansard.

He was more than that.

He was better, without possible question, than any other Member of the Cabinet has been in this Parliament.

TOUCHY STUFF?

And on not a few political spot as there could be in this capricious Commons — bilingualism and the Armed Forces.

Other Cabinet Ministers have burned their Parliament a ry fingers on each of these electrical issues separately.

Only Paul Hellyer could handle both at the same time and make it look almost ridiculously easy.

But this kind of applause-winning performance — even the Opposition gave his political artistry an appreciative hand—has become expected of him since, as the Liberals' "Organization Man," he took charge of the Party's 1958 confusion that gave us the present Minister Pearson the leadership.

He handled that affair — leadership conventions can be as unpredictable as politics can get—as if he had written the script.

Other Members of the Liberal Cabinet, with less difficult departments, by far, than Defence, have made a career of getting into trouble in the House.

But not Paul Hellyer.

He not only has a department with an historic potential for trouble—Defence is a Big Spender with nothing in it for the taxpayer except the hope of national security in time of war—but has seemed to have deliberately gone shopping for even more trouble.

FUTURE LEADER?

But he did it with exquisite skill, going just far enough to keep rebellious and resentful French Canada under but not so far as to rouse reaction in wondering and worried English Canada.

The Opposition has made a point of leading Hellyer alone. He does his homework, knows his stuff and has good, hard facts to back his contentions. Opposition questions. Strictly Personal
Business Chief Opposed to Job Tests

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A friend of mine, who happens to be the president of a large business firm, was asked by his personnel department to permit giving "projective tests" to applicants for executive jobs. He turned down the request, saying, "If I had taken such a test 20 years ago when I came to the company, not only wouldn't I be his president now, but I wouldn't even have been given a job."

He is absolutely right. The use of psychological tests for business and industry are a fad that seems limited value, but not in predicting who will make a good and successful manager.

I am not talking here about the older types of "aptitude" tests for determining specific skills, such as those given to airline pilots, bus drivers, and so forth, to determine their dexterity and co-ordination. In such cases, we know what we are looking for in the job applicant.

But nobody really knows what it is that makes a good manager good. One of the leading books on management and industrial psychology, Dr. J. A. C. Brown, makes this point emphatically in a recent book entitled "Techniques of Persuasion." He writes:

"If it were possible to know every single detail of a person's private life, we would still not have the faintest idea of whether he would make a good sales manager in a particular firm. These are absurd fallacious assumptions," he goes on, "which blind the use of 'personality tests' industry are based. We do not know what makes an individual a good manager, and (b) that the normal person is more efficient than the abnormal.

"The facts, however, are quite otherwise; for many executives are that most of the greatest leaders in industry have been definitely neurotic. Extreme neuroticism which gives them their drive and energy, coupled with a truly 'normal' individual without mental conflicts would simply s l t down and do nothing."

Because some neuroses make people incompetent at work, he explains, we tend to assume that those without a neurosis would be competent, "whereas the truth is that a neurotic business is socially defined, he ignore the great bulk of brilliant people are unsuccessful precisely because they are neurotic."

The modern projective tests are highly scientific, and can tell us a great deal about the individual tested, but when used for a grossly unscientific purpose, it is precisely the one thing we want to know that they are incapable of telling us.

The federal government, and perhaps the provinces, too, could take a great stride toward national unity by investing adequate sums of public money in the encouragement of large-scale travel between east and west. We do the same sort of thing in winding friends abroad. We could obtain still better returns by helping Canadians to see and know and understand their neighbors of other provinces.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Oil issues lost ground in profit-taking in moderately heavy stock exchange trading this morning.

The oils advanced sharply Monday but declined fractionally today. Banff led the decline with a drop of $1 to $8.25.

Central-Del fell ¾ to 10¾ and Canadian Export Gas 14 cents to $1.91. Canadian Homestead lost 50 cents to $1.70 after the firm said it knew of no reason for the stock's rise Monday.

Industrials were higher. Bank of Nova Scotia rose ¾ to 78¾ and Royal Bank ¾ to 79¼. Steleo gained ¼ to 34 and Massey - Ferguson and Aluminum ¼ apiece to 34¼ and 30¾.

Metals rose slightly. Inco and Noranda each added ¼ at 56¼ and 56¾.

In golds, Giant Yellowknife rose ¼ to 14¾.

On index, industrials gained .16 to 173.99, the Toronto Stock Exchange index .13 to 165.28 and base metals .10 to 83.85, each at its high. Golds rose .28 to 198.34 and western oils fell .31 to 108.08. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,295,000 shares compared with 1,327,000 shares traded at the same time Monday.

On Monday heavy buying sent western oils rocketing ahead on the exchange, with the volume breaking the 5,000,000 - share mark for the first time in more than a month.

Volume was 5,151,000 shares compared with 4,973,000 Thursday. It was the heaviest since March 16 when 6,319,000 shares were traded.

Banff again led oils, gaining $1.05 to $9.25 after selling as high as $9.70. It sold as low as $1.30 in January, but rumors of encouraging results from the company's exploration program in northwestern Alberta have made Banff the dealing of speculators in the last three weeks.

Many smaller issues were also ahead as speculators rushed to buy companies with properties in western Canada.

Meanwhile, speculative mining issues, with one or two exceptions, were quiet. Chibougamau - Kayrand lacked 50 cents to 35 cents on more than 415,000 shares. Realm sagged 6 to 10 cents on more than 275,000 shares.

Refining oils and banks were standouts in the industrial list. Imperial Oil was up ¾ to 56¾, Pacific Petroleum ¼ to 12¾.

Base metals were strong with the index climbing .56 to a high

Indian Govt. Feels LBJ Snubbed Premier Shastri

By CONRAD FINK

NEW DELHI (AP)—The Indian government feels President Johnson deliberately snubbed Prime Minister Shastri when he asked him to postpone his scheduled visit to Washington indefinitely.

Many Indian officials feel the U.S. president was impolite or even arrogant in the abruptness of his request.

Shastri is deemed to have been disgraced publicly and thus to have "lost face"—and in Asia that's serious.

Foreign Minister Swaran Singh told Parliament today that Shastri would "adjust to his convenience" before accepting another invitation from Johnson.

Shastri said he would visit Canada, but that no dates had been set. The prime minister had been scheduled to spend three days in Ottawa prior to going to Washington.

Reports from neighboring Pakistan indicate there was much the same reaction there to Johnson's request that Pakistani President Mohammed Ayub Khan also put off his visit.

Ayub was scheduled to travel to Washington April 25 and Shastri June 2.

The White House announced Friday it had requested the postponements. Administration spokesmen said Johnson would be too busy with the Viet Nam crisis and a heavy congressional workload.

Many government officials and almost the entire Indian press do not believe the explanation.

Singh told Parliament the government had informed the U.S. government there is likely to be "misunderstanding" in India over the postponement. Members shouted "nonsense" when Singh said the foreign minister suggested India should accept Johnson's explanation that he would be too busy to meet Shastri.

It is generally believed Johnson wanted to show displeasure over Indian criticism of U.S. foreign policy. Indian officials, particularly Singh, have been highly critical of Johnson's Viet Nam policy. The belief is widespread here that Johnson took offence at Indian efforts to pressure the United States into negotiations.

Soviet Missiles Purchased by Greek-Cypriots

NICOSIA, (AP) — A Greek Cypriot newspaper said Monday President Nasser of Egypt will send Egyptian military technicians to Cyprus to man Soviet anti-aircraft missiles.

A Cyprus government spokesman declined comment, but pointed out that Greek-Cypriot President Makarios had announced April 10 that his government had purchased a number of Soviet anti-aircraft missiles.

The UN peace force, meanwhile, found itself in the middle of a growing crisis along the line in Nicosia dividing the capital's Turkish - and Greek-Cypriot sectors.

Turkish - Cypriots have taken up new positions there and a blockade of the Turkish sector by the Greek-Cypriots was in its fifth day Monday. The Makarios government said the blockade would remain in effect until the Turkish - Cypriots moved back.

In Istanbul, Turkey announced two anti-Greek moves resulting from the Cyprus dispute.

A government announcement said Turkey plans to expel "without exception" the representative of Greek nationals still living in the country and that the activities of the Eastern Orthodox Patriarchate in Istanbul would be investigated.

The patriarchate is the seat of Athenagoras I, spiritual head of the world's 150,000,000 Orthodox Christians.

Deputy Premier Turkish Premier Suleyman Demirel told reporters that the patriarchate also would be expelled without hesitation if necessary.

The patriarchate is to the orthodox what the Vatican is to Roman Catholic.

PROVE IT YOURSELF

WITH A KU HOME WIRING CHECKING KIT

That home wiring is seldom sold by the TRUTH.
That separate circuits are often overloaded and heat.
That POOR WIRING is often called HEAVY DUTY WIRING.
That FAULTY WIRING is usually ABUSED WIRING that was misrepresented to quote what appeared to be the lowest price.

That most homes have some UNREALIZED HEATING WIRES concealed in the partitions.

That many new home owners will have to pay up to or more than fifteen (15) times of a new "KU" INSTALLATION to rewire, if they attempt to enjoy the unrivalled SAVINGS, SERVICE and SATISFACTION offered in LIFETIME CERTIFIED "KU" LUXURY HOME ELECTRICAL INSTALLATION.

That many new and older homes should be checked to detect if unrealized heating wires are causing unnecessary high electric bills, appliance failures and possible personal injury.

Investigate — particularly before the TRUTH makes it a CERTIFIED "KU" QUALITY CONSTRUCTED HOME or a LIFETIME CERTIFIED "KU" LUXURY HOME ELECTRICAL INSTALLATION that receives the following and many more exceptional advantages.

1. Only LISTED CONSCIENTIOUS BUSINESSES permitted to be employed.

2. The builder to sign an unconditional guarantee accepting equal responsibility with every sub-trademan for material and labor for a specified number of years (the first years being two years).

3. All work must be satisfactorily completed to satisfy all agreements signed and the CERTIFICATION granted before the final payment.

4. A specified sign must be erected in front of a new CERTIFIED "KU" QUALITY CONSTRUCTED HOME. The way this sign is erected and inspected is your proof of the type of workmanship to expect.

5. Anyone proven to betray the confidence of a LISTED EXPERT AVOIDING WAGE EARNER will have their membership and CERTIFICATE taken from them. This agreement will be unqualified for future employment in association with anything connected under the "KU" NAME.

6. "KU" STANDARDS apply to any type of product or service the TRUTH applies to BY GOOD WILL AND FRIENDLY CO-OPERATION.

power." Such possession would also increase Peking's prestige "especially among Asian and African states."

It would also give strength to the argument that it should be admitted to the UN "so that it can be forced to explain and defend its policies before the world assembly and take its share of responsibility for international efforts toward disarmament and security."

He was asked, as one closely-associated in the past with solutions to dangerous international crises, notably the Suez affair, if he thought there is a prospect for peaceful solutions in Indochina or in the Indonesia-Malaysia dispute?

COULD BE SOLVED

The prime minister said there is always the prospect for a peaceful solution for every international dispute. Although these two "seem intractable . . . with a minimum of goodwill and trust they could be solved."

The Viet Nam conflict was complicated "by its exploitation by international communism and the intervention of the U.S.A. to help South Viet Nam resist aggression."

A solution in Indochina would involve "arrangements for ensuring the independence, neutrality and territorial integrity of the countries forming part of the region." Laos, Cambodia and South Viet Nam "should be permitted to pursue their goals in peace and security, free of the threat of aggression and subversion promoted by authorities outside their borders."

"Any 'solution' based on capitulation to aggression would be neither honorable nor lasting." The basic requirement in Viet Nam would appear to be a decision by North Viet Nam "to desist from their present policies and to leave their neighbors alone."

CANADA CONCERNED

In the Indonesia-Malaysia dispute, Canada was concerned and worried "by the policy of confrontation adopted by Indonesia against her neighbor."

"Canada will extend to Malaysia $4,000,000 in military air transport equipment and training facilities in Canada.

The UN General Assembly, Mr. Pearson was asked, has been unable to vote its 1965 budget for fear of forcing the issue of Article 19 on penalties for non-payment of arrears by some nations, and a former president of the UN, how do you view its future as a peace-keeping organization against the background of this issue and others, including last year's Congo crisis?

Mr. Pearson: "You should remember that the framers of the UN charter assumed that the great powers would have the primary responsibility for keeping the peace. In the light of the history of postwar disagreement between the great powers the UN has compiled a remarkable record of keeping the peace despite such disagreement."

However, a point had been reached where "some return to the charter assumption of great power co-operation, even if only in a negative way, seems to be required."

He was confident that pressure from the smaller countries will be successful in "persuading the great powers to arrive at the necessary compromises and the UN will be able to carry on as the world's peace-keeper."

ASKED OF ICC

Canada is a member of the International Control Commission, another question asked, to supervise the 1954 Geneva agreements. What is your opinion of the usefulness and effectiveness of this commission at the present time?

The commission in Viet Nam, Mr. Pearson said, was to supervise the 1954 cease-fire between France and the so-called People's Army of Viet Nam. On the whole it performed effectively although it was not able to prevent the military build-up in North Viet Nam nor to ensure democratic freedoms to the People of North and South Viet Nam.

When war broke out the commission was "no longer supervising, a cease-fire between two parties who were prepared to observe the provisions of the agreement; it was on the contrary attempting to maintain peace when one party—North Viet Nam — had deliberately embarked upon a policy of aggression against its neighbor."

Camp Umpire calls two strikes on the young batter—but we'll bet that he won't strike out. The determination of children with a physical disability is a wonderful thing—and their attitude and the help given by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children because of Easter Seal contributions, have meant that every day crippled children are overcoming their handicaps to the best of their ability. Your Easter Seal gift is important to some crippled child.

Mr. Pearson, therefore, did not think the commission should be "judged too harshly because it has been placed in a situation with which it was not designed to cope."

QUERIES CRITICISMS

The final question noted that while there seem to be no outstanding problems between the U.S. and Canadian governments at the present time, there have been criticisms by Canadians of U.S. policies in Viet Nam, and by Americans of such things as Canadian trade with Cuba and Red China.

"Will you comment on the present state of Canadian-U.S. relations, whether they are improving or deteriorating or whether they have been hurt by such issues as Viet Nam, China and Cuba?"

Mr. Pearson: "They are close and friendly and I am sure will continue that way. But they are never easy. They are too important—especially for Canada —to be easy: They should never be taken for granted."

Canadians were concerned about everything the U.S. does because they were affected by it and often involved."

"So we give good advice and strong support and—on occasions — honest disagreement. But we try to understand the world responsibilities of the United States and appreciate the burdens it is carrying, even when we disagree with some aspects of U.S. policy."

The "essence" of the relationship is that "we can disagree and remain good neighbors, close friends and loyal allies."

ELIMINATE ALL DRIPS

Dear Susanna: I have scrubbed and rubbed like mad with water and cleansers and everything else, in an attempt to remove the rust stains from the plumbing fixtures in our new home where the taps have been left dripping. I'm ready to give up. Help! Glub, glub. — "Cinderella"

W-a-a-l? Reach for this life line and put on your surgical mask (I'll tell you why later) while I explain how to remove these marks completely without exertion.

This method is 20 times as effective (and as potent) as scrubbing with salt and vinegar or polishing with powdered pumice. All you do is let the following solution sit there for a 11:11 minutes and you'll wonder where the yellow went.

Run water into the basin, sink or tub, 'til the stains are covered. Start by adding LAT a cup of toilet bowl cleaner crystals and the same amount of liquid household bleach. Increase quantities depending on how much water you use and how deep the stains are embedded.

. . . and I wasn't joking about the mask! The a scarf or a large double hankie over your nose and mouth, before you start so that you won't breath in the fumes from the bleach, as these are rather acrid, and not too pleasant. Then proceed as above.

Later on, before you open the drain, replace your mask. You could also swish a long handled dish mop or brush all around the stained areas to loosen stubborn marks. Then release the plug and all your problems in this connection will go sailing down the drain. Say! That tap's not dripping again is it?

Successful Living

Two-year Nursing Course Available in Two Centres

DEAR DORIS — I have heard of a hospital in Toronto which has a two-year nursing course. I would like to know which one it is, and what education you need for entrance. — LOVE NURSING.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR LOVE — It is the Nightingale School of Nursing, 221 Elizabeth Street, Toronto. This school follows the principle of the first school of nursing founded by Florence Nightingale in 1860. An independent institution, it uses the facilities of a hospital to provide clinical experience for its students but is free from hospital control.

Graduates are eligible to write the nurses' registration examination in the Province of Ontario and therefore may become registered nurses. Entrance requirement is Grade 13.

A similar two-year course is now being offered by the Hamilton and District School of Nursing, Box 590, Hamilton, Ontario.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — You are my last hope.

I am 19, considered very pretty but I have one very bad disfigurement: I have bowlegs.

I dread the thought of summer and wearing bathing suits, shorts and so on. I'm getting so bad that I hate to go out the door anymore. I don't even bother getting my hair done or buying a new dress because I think what's the use anyway.

Is there any operation on the leg bones which can correct this? Please don't tell me to wear simple shoes, or stand gracefully, or exercise, because this doesn't work. — BOWLEGGED BESSIE.

* * *

DEAR BESSIE — If the bowing amounts to a deformity, an orthopedic surgeon may advise an operation.

But you aren't the first person to tell me what not to tell you; and then to manage an improvement by less-than-desperate means. Posture, clever dress styling, exercises, can and do help.

So does your mental attitude. If you are giving up on basic grooming you are really asking for it. A pretty face and friendly manners can leap great obstacles. Has it never occurred to you that every single person has some sort of handicap to overcome?

* * *

DEAR DORIS — About a year ago I was engaged to a wonderful boy. When we broke off our engagement it was because of me.

He has phoned and asked me out. I think he still cares for me but how can I make him believe I really love him? I am 18 and he is 21. I never think of anyone but him. — DESPERATE AND IN LOVE.

* * *

DEAR DESPERATE — Steady now! If you are mature enough to know your own mind, you are also poised enough to keep a little dignity. Enjoy your date without throwing yourself at him.

* * *

Confidential to MIXED UP — Better to forget about going out with him. No reason why you should not speak to him when you meet, and perhaps talk to him when you see him at school.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — My son is engaged to a young girl whose widowed mother has married again. This girl kept her own father's name.

My son's father and I are divorced. He has married again but I have not, so still have his name. We both live in the same city.

The girl's parents will of course be putting the notice in the paper but we have all wondered just what is correct to do in this case. — PROPER WORDING.

* * *

DEAR PROPER — It should read about like this: "Mrs. John Widow of 21 Black Street announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Merry Jones, to Mr. Ernest Suitor, son of Mrs. Ive Suitor and Mr. Didn't Suitor. Miss Jones is also the daughter of the late Mr. George Jones."

* * *

Confidential to PLEADING FOR HELP — Let him go. Concentrate on looking your best, being your best and learning how to make friends. There'll be others along.

CHRIST CHURCH PARISH GUILD

The April meeting of Christ Church Parish Guild was held recently at the home of Mrs. Horace Wright who, each year, entertains the Guild members and provides a most enjoyable afternoon. Work was the order of the day as members prepared and sewed numerous pretty and useful items which will be sold at the Centennial Tea and sale in June.

The business portion of the meeting was conducted by president, Mrs. J. Cousins. Various items of business included the donation of money toward a bus for the Junior Auxiliary and discussion of a suitable parting gift for Reverend James Smith. Members who had attended the Cancer Clinic, visited Hastings Manor and helped in various ways were thanked by the president. The Guild will cater at two wedding receptions during the month of May.

Following the business session, Reverend James Smith presented the devotional. The good wishes of all were extended to "Father Jim" as he leaves Christ Church for his homeland in Tasmania.

Reports were given by the rectory, property, vestry and Centennial Tea committees. The latter showed plaques, with a picture of Christ Church, done by a local artist, were on display and are now ready for sale as the Guild's special celebration item for the Centennial. Mrs. M. Boyd reported for the cent-a-meal committee.

Tea was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. James Wright and Mrs. G. Livingstone.

U. C. W. Meetings

ELMBROOK U.C.W.

The April meeting of the Elmbrook U.C.W. was held April 14th at the home of Mrs. Reg. Moore with an excellent representation. A Scripture reading was given by Mrs. Gerald Merton. Mrs. Allaby reading and prayer were rendered by Mrs. Arnold Ackerman, president. Minutes of the previous meeting were read by Mrs. Orval May, in the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Gladys Lister.

The May 12th meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Marian Stone, with Mrs. Reg. Moore having charge of the worship service, Mrs. Arnold Ackerman the lunch, and Mrs. Orval May the Contest.

Letters were read from the Belleville Presbyterial regarding the fall meetings of interest to women in the Province of Quinte area.

A highly interesting reading was given by Mrs. Arnold Ackerman. It was decided to donate $25 to the Parsonage fund. This was followed by prayer. Sick calls reported were 14; combined regular and Easter thank offerings were 47.

An amusing contest on flowers and trees was conducted by Mrs. Arnold Ackerman.

A social period followed, with a tasty lunch served by the hostess. A vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Reg. Moore by Mrs. Arnold Ackerman and Mrs. Orval May, on behalf of those present.

Ladies' Club Hears Talk On Easter

The Prince Edward-Belleville Ladies' Club held the monthly meeting at the Recreation Centre recently with 26 members and two visitors present.

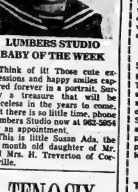
President Mrs. Baird opened the meeting and read an Easter poem.

Minutes of the March meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. A. Mitchell.

The treasurer, Mrs. L. Fox, gave the financial report. Mrs. Myrtle McKinnon, Pine Street, was reported ill. Several thank-you letters were read.

After some discussion it was decided to have the Centre UCW cater to the club for the annual party.

Mrs. Gorsline's and Mrs. Pierson's group had charge of the program. Mrs. Morris read a poem on Easter lilies.



A past member, Mrs. Rorabeck was present and played and sang two hymns with all joining in the chorus.

Mrs. Gorsline introduced Mrs. Packman, who gave a talk on Easter. "Many years before Jesus was born people who lived in the British Isles and northern Europe worshipped a mythical goddess, whose name was Easter. She was called the goddess of spring. After the grey cold of winter was gone and upon the arrival of Easter, accompanied by spring all the lands revived and life was resurrected. Later the Roman carried the name of Easter to Rome and all the surrounding countries. The Easter theme of death and resurrection arose spontaneously and independently in different lands."

Mrs. Maitia contributed a reading and Mrs. Gorsline and her group served lunch and a social time was enjoyed.

MENU Magic from the BEST KITCHEN

Forecast . . . Showers

Happily, the April showers we welcome in this month are those gay events designed to fete the brides-to-be — occasions frequently calling for fancy little sandwiches. A dash of dry mustard, a sprinkle of celery salt, garlic salt, savory seeds or celery seeds creamed into the butter will work wonders to perk up the flavor of those dainty sandwiches.

Salad Switch

Prefer salads to sandwiches? The tuna casserole "makes" the salad in most cases, and dairy fresh cottage cheese "dresses" the dressing for a variety of salads. Sweeten it with a little honey and add a pinch of curry. Or, preserved ginger and chopped pecans for crunch . . . perfect for chicken or fruit salads.

Time Saver

If the salad calls for a mayonnaise dressing, mix it half and half with sour cream. It makes it much lighter and creamier. For fruit salads a little marshmallow cream juice adds a touch of color and a bit of extra flavor.

Hot Salad

Chicken salad, the perennial favorite, gets a new twist when served hot. Just turn your very best salad mixture, dressing and all, into a pretty casserole dish and bake in a 350°F. oven for 15 minutes. Sprinkle with a cup of shredded Cheddar cheese and cheese and return to the oven until the cheese melts.

Sweet Treat

Chocolate bon bons disappear from the cookie dish very quickly. The smooth creamy centers are made by boiling a 5-ounce package of semi-sweet chocolate pieces over boiling water. Then stir in a small can of evaporated milk, and cook over boiling water, stirring frequently, about 20 minutes. The mixture should be very thick. Cool thoroughly, as the chocolate is easy to handle, shape into small balls and roll in coconut.

BB Is Showing Results Says Lone Woman Member

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The only woman member of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, now writing formal briefs in the second stage of its inquiry, says she believes it has already achieved a great deal.

"I think there is much more awareness throughout the country of the realities of the situation," Mrs. Bayley said during an interview in Toronto.

"Statements made in the early stages showed quite a degree of difference from statements made by the same groups now. There is more sensitiveness to the problems, more awareness."

Gertrude Laing, who was born in England and grew up in Winnipeg, is a slender woman with an attractive smile. She and her husband and two grown sons have lived in Calgary for about 12 years.

English - speaking by birth, she said she became bilingual because she liked French. "It is love at first sight. The first time I took lessons, I felt that was it, and it was."

Mrs. Laing studied French at the University of Manitoba and then privately after her marriage.

SEEKS AS CHALLENGE

A young-looking 59 with a touch of grey in her hair, Mrs. Laing also is known as active in concern with social problems. She has been president of the Calgary Local Council and is a member of the board of the Canadian Welfare Council.

She was appointed to the commission in July, 1963, two months before it began its work.

Mrs. Laing said she accepted the position as an honor and a challenge. "I felt it was an important undertaking at a vital moment in Canada's development. I felt I could contribute something with a background as a teacher and in welfare."

She said she had not given French - English relationships any special thought before her appointment.

"Before I became a member of the commission, I knew what reasonably well-informed people in Western Canada knew. I knew there was a serious problem. The size and nature of the problem I wasn't aware of. Therefore I had a great deal to learn.

"I didn't have fixed opinions, and I still don't. The chairman of the commission has reached any conclusion."

IN SECOND PHASE

On its first round of inquiries, the commission visited 22 centres to hold open hearings which were the base of its preliminary report at the end of February.

Now in the second stage we are hearing formal briefs. That will probably go on until the end of 1964. Then we will start getting information from the very extensive research program which is being done in various areas—education, social structures, inter - cultural relations. This material now is being accumulated and will have to be studied."

Discussing the progress of the hearings, Mrs. Laing said: "The very process of public inquiry should make solutions easier. Solutions proposed before problems are understood are not likely to be effective.

"When the commission has finished its work, the research will remain as a permanent addition to factual knowledge, not only in Canada. It is being viewed with interest by countries in other parts of the world with similar problems. This is not something very much research has been done on. . .

"There isn't any 'solution' to a situation as complex as this. We will be required to name steps that can be taken—some things that can be done which might be better than other things. This is really an inquiry into the state of the Canadian nation."

Because of the long-term aspects, Mrs. Laing said she is especially glad that "young people, everywhere we go, seem to be deeply involved and concerned with the future of the country."

COMMISSION MEMBER — Gertrude Laing, English-born Calgary housewife who learned French because she liked it, is the only woman member of the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism. She has a refreshing 59 with a touch of grey in her hair. She thinks the commission has resulted in a greater awareness of the French-English problem.

Past President of Federation Addresses B. and P. Women

"Modern women must reach out and grow to meet the challenges of today's world," Mrs. Maude Bayley, past president of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women, said Monday night. Mrs. Bayley was the guest speaker at the celebration held at the Belmont restaurant.

Mrs. Bayley's grandmother's time a woman had a life expectancy of 47 years. Today, statisticians believe the average woman will live to be 80, Mrs. Bayley said. "We can't be too tired at 65, because at that age we're not nearly finished. If we're too tired, either we're not well, or we have a hangover from the days when people expected to die at 47."

"Occupational boredom can make you ill, especially if you're a housewife," the speaker continued. "If you house the 24 hours of the day you will be tired. If you use them well you will never tire."

Mrs. Bayley said a woman must go on learning and accepting responsibilities if she wants to make a fuller, richer life for herself. Business and Professional club membership gives her the joit she needs to get started. She will get training in leadership and organizational work. She will gain confidence in herself and find the courage to express her opinions.

"Today, no life is full enough. Don't stop short of doing the most you can," the speaker concluded.

MARK BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Margaret Booth conducted the birthday celebrations. The president, Mrs. Marie Huffman, and six past presidents of the Belleville club lit the 15 candles on the birthday cake. Letters of greeting were read from three past presidents unable to attend: Miss Norma Arkles (Mrs. Emmerton) from Tasmania, Mrs. Simone McFedden from Washington, and Miss Mildred Hall (Mrs. Scarrott) of Winnipeg.

Past president, Miss F. Fitzgerald, and Mrs. Huffman initiated eight new members, including the club's first honorary member. She is Mrs. M. Brancombe, a long-time friend and supporter of the club in Belleville.

Plans were announced for the club's annual coffee party to be held in May, at the home of Mrs. Graham, Trent Road.

Queen Wilhelmina.

NEW TRENDS

Mr. Cousins' topic for the evening was "New Trends in Education." He gave detailed examples of how the Board of Education functions and the responsibilities of the School Boards. The High School Board is elected, but the Public School Board members are elected and work without pay in the interest of students and public. Mr. Cousins stressed the need for greater support of these members.

Contrary to beliefs, Mr. Cousins said, the cost of education has not increased in the last 50 years. In the 20's it was 3.2 to 3.8 and today it is 3.5. The Board of Education finds many ways to keep education within the reach of the public and ease the tax load.

Mr. Cousins pointed out the need for better understanding between pupils and teachers. It is the wish of parent and teacher and principal that a student obtain the best possible education and by working together this goal can be achieved.

Mr. Cousins reported that students now entering Teachers' College must have what is required to have grade 13. A teacher works long hours, including regular school work and auxiliary courses, one such course is being held this summer at Harry J. Clarke School. Mr. Cousins stressed the importance of mental health, noting that there are emotionally disturbed children in every school, ranging from grade 9 and 10. There are 12% with an emotional problem and the need for a psychiatric clinic in Belleville area is great.

In closing Mr. Cousins reminded his audience that education is changing everyday and the help of parents is needed to insure children of a good, sound education.

Mrs. Cavelier thanked Mr. Cousins on behalf of the executive, teachers and parents.

The meeting closed with refreshments.

TASTY ONION DISHES

Don't read this if you are stubborn about serving onions.

I will persuade you to serve some, for dinner if you read on. For I've glamorized this scented and humble vegetable. Why? Because I like them, and besides we have a surplus in Canada. Take advantage of their low cost now and in the new season's vegetables are available.

SCALLOPED ONIONS:

4 medium-size onions, sliced ½" thick, 1 cup cubed Canadian process cheese, 4 slices buttered toast, cut in ½" cubes, ¼ cup butter, 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, 2 cups milk, 2 eggs, well beaten, nutmeg.

Cook onions in a little boiling salted water until tender, stirring occasionally to separate into rings. Drain and place half the onions in buttered medium-large casserole. Add half the cheese and half of the toast cubes. Repeat layers of onion and cheese. Melt butter in heavy saucepan; blend in flour, salt, pepper and mustard. Gradually stir in milk until thickened. Add a little of the hot sauce to the eggs then stir back into the hot mixture. Pour sauce over onions. Top with remaining toast cubes and a sprinkle of nutmeg. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes.

Ann Landers

Topless Car and Driver Add Up to Borderline Case

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Several weeks ago the greatest kid I have ever known came by in his convertible to pick me up. I should tell you we live in Winnetka, which is a suburb of Chicago. It was freezing weather and Jamie had the top of his convertible down. I wouldn't say it was snowing, but a few flakes were flying.

When my mother looked out the window she screamed, "You are not going any place with that imbecile. He is naked!"

I tried to explain that Jamie is a member of the Polar Bear Club and the club was going to take a dip in Lake Michigan. He was not naked. He was wearing his swimming trunks. I also tried to explain that some of us girls were going along just to watch but we were not going in the water.

ANN LANDERS

My mother walked out on the porch and shouted, "Put on a shirt or Mary Alice is not coming out."

With that Jamie pulled away and I haven't seen him since. I am heartsick. My mother says he is crazy. I say just because a person is a little nonconformist does not mean he is crazy. Please print my letter and your answer so our whole family can see it. My dad is on her side. — HEARTBROKEN M.A.

* * *

DEAR M.A. — If Jamie is not crazy, he is such a show-off that he may be a borderline case.

Polar Bears (or anyone else) who wants to take a dip in Lake Michigan in freezing weather are not necessarily nuts. In the Scandinavian countries this is quite a sport. But, for a kid to drive a convertible around Chicago in freezing weather, with the top down and wearing swimming trunks — well, like I said, if he's not crazy, he's close.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am nearly 50 years of age and share a home with my widowed mother. The problem may not seem important but I must get this off my chest.

My older sister comes to visit mother at least five times a week. She always stays too long. They can yak for three hours without coming up for air. But the thing I am writing about is a habit which drives me insane. Just when you think the sentence is finished they say "ande" — and that's the start of another sentence.

Since this house is half mine do I have the right to tell my sister she must telephone before she comes so I can be elsewhere? If I listen to any more "andes" I'll have to be carted off. Thank you. — S.B.I.

* * *

DEAR S.B.I. — If you are nearly 50 and your sister is older, then your mother must be in her 70's. You are not going to change their visiting habits.

By now you must have a fairly good idea when "Ande" will be coming over, so plan accordingly. (Anda lotsa luck.)

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband and I have been married seven years. We have two sons. My husband's parents were born in Poland but he was born in the U.S. Whenever he has to fill out a form and he comes to the word "nationality" he puts down "Polish."

Our two sons were born in Cleveland. He says they are Polish, too, because the children always take the nationality of their father. I have tried to tell him he is wrong about the boys, but he says I don't know what I'm talking about.

He thinks you are a smart woman. Maybe if you tell him he will believe it. Please help me straighten this out before the kids go to school. — GRATEFUL

DEAR GRATEFUL — Nationality means "the nation of your birth." Your sons are Americans — and so is your husband.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Power Service Disrupted by Fallen Aerial

CAMPBELLFORD — Power service was disrupted in some areas of the town for over an hour on Saturday forenoon and completely off for a short period of time. Two men Alfred and Ronald Ford who were removing a television antenna from a roof lost control of the mast and it fell on a primary power line. A tall green flame and sparks shot from the wires burning the mast of the TV aerial. The nature of the impact was such that the men escaped electrocution.

P.U.C. officials are concerned that should another such accident occur it could be most dangerous to those working and are considering the possibility of stopping any one from erecting or removing an aerial without a qualifying permit.

They Want to Run Their Own Affairs

"We'll Remain Indians Until the End of Time"

By ED WALTERS

HALIFAX (CP)—Several centuries ago the Micmac Indians were masters of an oceanside wilderness now called the Maritime provinces. Today they are beginning to learn the ways of a different kind of wilderness created by white men.

A desire for financial independence has begun to enliven the debates of chiefs and councilmen, many of whom dream of turning the methods of the white man's economic jungle to their own advantage.

Some of their plans for industrial development and employment schemes are impractical, Indian agents say. Others have merit and a number of small efforts have proved successful.

But for all these dreams and plans could well affect some 8,000 Indian people who now live mainly on their 65,850 acres of land, sliced into 70 reserves throughout the Maritimes.

Indians on reserves are under the jurisdiction of the citizenship and immigration department's Indian affairs branch. The department is charged with carrying out the white man's original promise to the native Canadians "to take care of the Indians until the end of time."

In practice this promise is fulfilled by a stream of welfare cheques, family allowances, clothing orders, free housing and education, among other benefits.

OPPORTUNITY PASSED

Most important benefit but one apparently least taken advantage of by Maritime Indians is free university education. If an Indian student is able to pass university examinations the federal government pays the cost of tuition, clothing, books, lodgings, food and $10 a month spending money.

One department spokesman said he believes there is only one Indian student in the Maritimes attending university this year.

Chief Simon Nevin of the Micmac reserve near Shubenacadie, N.S., is one who dreams of better things for his 550 residents. The chief, an amateur electrician who operates a modest fuel business, has installed street lighting along the single, rutted road that runs through the settlement.

Most homes in the community are not fit to live in, the chief said in an interview. Only three families had sewer and running water facilities. The houses were warped and sagging "because green wood was given us to build them with."

Chief Nevin said his reserve could be improved only by building modern, decent homes and finding some way to provide steady employment.

He urged more business be encouraged to build a factory there to employ other Indians. "It would go a long way to raising the standard of living."

CITES DRAWBACK

An industry could be persuaded to locate on the reserve if it was assured by the government that the exemption for the first five years, he said.

Fr. Clench, Indian agent at the reserve, said later this would be impractical because, Indians do pay no taxes, would have an unfair advantage over white, tax-paying manufacturers.

John Bernard, one of the chief's four councillors, admitted this was so. However, "if they encouraged instead of discouraged everything you try to do, we could get somewhere."

He said the main discouragement was stopping of all welfare assistance as soon as an Indian took a paying job.

Chief Nevin, Mr. Bernard and Mr. Clench all agree that education is the greatest need. But this need is complicated by the Indians' nomadic habits. Every September hordes of them travel to Maine to work as blueberry and potato pickers.

Big families sometimes make more than $100 a day. Chief Nevin said his family made $2,000 in six weeks' work two years ago. So many return as destitute as when they left.

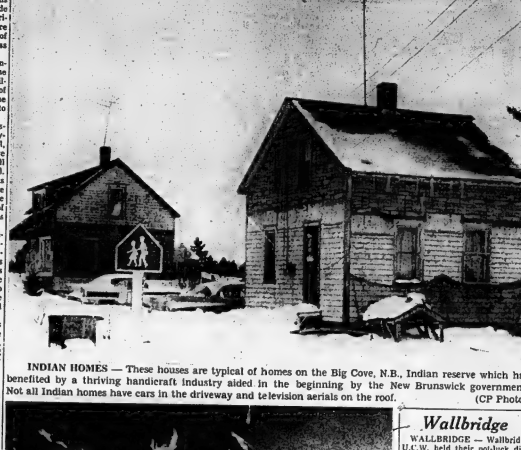
The lure of the money and travel always leaves with the school year. Children miss almost two months of school. Chief Nevin's suggested cure is that the children be kept in school most of the summer to make up for lost time.

He said if this can't be done at least those schools which Indian children now attend, special schools should be built on reserves with an academic year lasting from November to mid-August.

There appears little interest among the Indians toward assimilation with the white people. "We want to handle our own affairs," Chief Nevin said. "We'll remain Indians until the end of time."

Meanwhile the federal government has announced a $2,500,000 community development program for all Indians. This will cover little more than the salaries of a proposed task force of 62 development officers who will work on reserves across Canada, offering advice, criticism and assistance to chiefs and councils in developing their communities.

Two now are working on reserves in New Brunswick's Miramichi area to Eel Ground and Red Bank.



Last year a meeting of the Indian - Eskimo Association of Canada in London, Ont., decided that an economic development agency was needed with a fund of $25,000,000. The meeting agreed that something of this scope was needed to break the cycle of self - perpetuating poverty on the country's Indian reserves.

Most Indians prefer to deal with the federal government. There is some mistrust of provincial governments which they fear may some day try to take their land for industrial or civic development.

This is not the case at the Big Cove reserve in New Brunswick's Kent County where the provincial government's finance and industry department helped residents establish a thriving handicraft industry.

Despite efforts to help Indians to help themselves, their problems appear likely to cost the Canadian taxpayer plenty. The treaties made with Indians by the British after the French were defeated in the Seven Years War promised free education, a simple matter 200 years ago.

Kahn-Tineta Horn, a shapely, 22-year-old fashion model of the Caughnawaga Mohawk reserve near Montreal, told a Halifax audience during the winter "The Canadian taxpayer will have to pay $1,000,000,000 to educate us in the next 35 years." She was referring to the cost of educating all Canadian Indians, now numbering about 200,000.

MELROSE

P. S. Pupils Enjoy Day in Sugar Bush

MELROSE — An unusual experience was enjoyed by the Grade 1 to 4 pupils of the Douglas Atkins School when they visited the sugar bush on the farm of Mr. Charles C. Bates last Friday afternoon.

Mrs. E. McGhee, a former teacher at Melrose School, arranged the outing. Two buses were engaged to transfer the children to and from the farm.

The boys and girls made a tour of the woods and Mr. Bates showed the method of tapping a tree. Later they visited the sap - shanty (in groups of ten or more) and saw how the sap was boiled from the clear watery - like liquid and transformed into the thick brown delicacy known as maple syrup.

Mrs. Bates treated the group to a later stage of the syrup when it appeared in the form of solid, maple sugar.

This is one industry which continues on this farm in much the same way as was practised more than 40-years ago. It is not hard to explain to the children how the pioneers boiled the sap in a giant kettle slung over a blazing fire, with no shanty to act as a protection from wind and rain.

Teacher and pupils expressed appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Bates for their kindness.

Car Loans Cheaper In Canada's Banks

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian bank charges for certain areas of service are significantly lower than in the United States, a year-long comparative study conducted in Niagara Falls, Ont., and Niagara Falls, N.Y. A comparison between Toronto and Buffalo also was made.

Banks in both countries offered lower-cost automobile financing than auto dealers. Personal unsecured bank loans also were cheaper than the cost of buying consumer durables such as washing machines on instalment credit.

Personal finance companies in both sides of the border charged more for loans than banks did.

The study was conducted by Allen F. Jung, an associate professor of marketing at the University of Chicago's graduate school of business. His report appears in the official publication of the U.S. comptroller of the currency, which does not necessarily agree with the article.

Jung reported that banks in Niagara Falls, Ont., offered significantly lower rates" than Niagara Falls, N.Y., banks on automobile financing and unsecured loans and personal chequing accounts.

FEWER BANKS

Jung does have contended that because of the limited number of banks in Canada due to country-wide branching, competition is lessened and the consumer pays more for services.

But this hypothesis does not appear to hold true on the Niagara frontier. In a spot check he revealed that charges for similar services in Buffalo banks were "often higher" than for the same services at Toronto banks."

Jung notes that since the study, which he inspected, 10 of banking services, Niagara Falls banks in Ontario and New York state aren't in direct competition.

He posed as a potential borrower for capital and for an unsecured personal loan to finance a vacation, contacted by mail the commercial banks in the New York state city and the 10 in Niagara Falls, Ont. He then rechecked with main offices for each bank at Buffalo and Toronto.

COMPARED DEALERS

He called at five auto dealers in each Niagara Falls community and at seven U.S. finance companies and six Ontario. He also approached 11 automatic washer dealers in each community.

Some findings:

All three New York banks offered 36-month maximum repayment terms on new car loans exposed $1,500 loan for a new car and four Canadian banks did the same. Two others offered 30 months and another 30.

Canadian interest rates varied considerably—from six, per cent to 11.1 in simple annual interest. This compared with a range of 11.6 to 11.8 per cent in the U.S.

Auto dealers offered an average rate in Canada of 13.5 per cent against the six-bank average of 8.8 and the comparison in Niagara Falls, N.Y., was 13.7 per cent by dealers against the bank average of 11.7. There was little variation in the latest charges by auto dealers in either country.

U.S. HIGHER

Jung shopped for an unsecured 12-month bank loan of $500 and found the average New York state rate was 14.1 per cent against 9.8 per cent in Canada. The average Canadian range was six per cent to 13.4 and the American variation was less than one percentage point.

Appliance dealers in Niagara Falls, Ont., quoted rates varying from 11 per cent to 22.2 per cent but the U.S. dealers had a flat 18 per cent.

Canadian banks charged less on personal chequing accounts and more on current accounts.

The U.S. regular account charge was 75 cents a month, plus six cents for every deposit and withdrawal. The charge on special accounts was 15 cents a cheque.

Canadian banks charged 10 cents for each personal-account cheque and 10 cents for every deposit or withdrawal from current accounts. The charge on savings accounts was 15 cents a cheque.

New Liberal Member Had Few Setbacks

By RON MacDonald

HINTON, Alta. (CP) — When Liberal William Switzer won an upset victory in a provincial byelection in Edson riding March 29 it wasn't the first time he had come out on the winning side in a scrap.

On July 17, 1944, he was flying one of eight RAF single-engined Typhoon fighter-bombers on a sweep over occupied France in the Second World War.

Sighting a column of German vehicles, including a staff car, the Typhoons attacked. In the staff car was Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, the Desert Fox, commander of German troops defending Europe against invading Allied forces.

"Later it was confirmed that Rommel was seriously injured in that attack," says Mr. Switzer, now a druggist in this pulp and paper town 175 miles west of Edmonton.

Rommel had just recovered from these injuries when he was ordered forced to take a fatal dose of poison for his part in the July 20 plot against Hitler's life.

Mr. Switzer has also had setbacks in both his military and political careers.

He was leading 193 RAF Squadron on a Typhoon mission against German troops and armor concentrations in the Falaise pocket Aug. 15, 1944, when ground fire brought down his aircraft.

CAPTURED IN ATTACK

"I was picked up by German patrols. We were attacked by American aircraft and in the confusion I escaped. I had suffered a broken leg when I parachuted. Later I crawled back to American lines."

Earlier, June 13, 1944, he had been shot down by ground fire on another sweep over France but managed to crash-land behind Allied lines on the Normandy beachhead.

In the political arena, William Switzer was unsuccessful in two attempts in the early 1950s to win the Edson provincial constituency, and in 1963 he ran unsuccessfully as the Liberal candidate in the Jasper-Edson federal riding.

With his byelection win he joins three other opposition members — two Liberals and a Coalition member in the 63-seat Alberta legislature. Premier Ernest Manning's Social Credit followers hold the other 59. The byelection was caused by the death of Lands and Forests Minister Norman Willmore in a traffic accident.

Mr. Switzer, 44, was born in Edson, largest centre in the Edson riding 200 miles west of Edmonton, in 1920 and grew up there. He graduated from high school before joining the RCAF in 1942, transferring to the RAF later that year. He flew 128 missions in Typhoons.

After the war he attended the University of Alberta in Edmonton and graduated in 1947 with a pharmacy degree. He worked with his father in Edson until 1955 when he moved to the newly - incorporated town of Hinton. He was town councillor in Edson for six years and mayor of Hinton for six years, twice winning election by acclamation.

THERE ARE INFANTS AND CHILDREN IN HASTINGS COUNTY WAITING FOR ADOPTING PARENTS — IS ONE OF THEM THE CHILD YOU HAVE BEEN HOPING FOR?

Many people believe that to adopt it is necessary to earn a large salary and own a home with a bedroom for each child. This is not true. What is important is that the adopting parents be responsible, mature individuals with the capacity to love a child not born to them.

POPULATION SOARING — By the year 2000 the world will have 6,600,000,000 mouths to feed, the United Nations predicts. This would be double the present figure. The sharp rise that started around 1900 is attributed to a high birth rate and longer life expectancy. Graph traces the rise in world and Asian population since 1650 and gives the population density of selected areas. At the current growth rate, 500 years from now there will be one person per square yard. (CP Special)

Wisdom and Wit Compiled at UN

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Alex Qualson-Sackey of Ghana says he knows from his experience as president of the United Nations General Assembly that, in the words of an Ashanti proverb:

"When it is the unanimous wish of a people that you dress your hair in a certain way, you are compelled to do so."

He has come up with two other Ashanti proverbs also "in the light of my experience as president of the current session of the General Assembly." They are:

"When you fear to take part in public disputes, your share of fees (for attending such 'palavers') is small."

"All men would like to be chiefs, but when they cannot get what they want they declare that even to rule as a chief has its worries."

Qualson - Sackey has contributed the three proverbs to a new book of such sayings compiled by Lt. - Col. Victor de Guinbourg, an American who is liaison officer to the UN Security Council's military staff committee.

The 128-page book is a supplement to a compilation of more than 500 pages that the colonel published in November, 1961, under the title: Wit and Wisdom of the United Nations.

Carlos Sosa - Rodriguez of Venezuela, 1963 president, contributed two, "hoping that they can be applied to political-diplomatic matters of interest:"

"If a man is born bigbellied, you can catch him in from baby food and it will do no good."

"The man who stands under a good tree gets good shade."

TIME COUNTS

Mongi Slim of Tunisia, president of 1961, wrote de Guinbourg in French that diplomacy "does not escape the general rule" that time and opportunity count in everything, as expressed in his proverbs:

"A real horseman is the man who can ride a horse this very day."

Zafrulla Khan of Pakistan, who presided over the assembly in 1962, contributed a Punjabi proverb:

"Neither hope for friend, nor fear for foe."

He said that was "applicable to a state that is so anxious to conciliate its enemies that it continuously neglects its friends," thereby losing all around.

Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit of India, assembly president in 1953, tendered this "bit of the wisdom of my country:"

"If you would establish peace in the world, look for it first in your own heart."

Artificial Ice For Arena Is Planned

MADOC — The Madoc Community Centre committee has held several meetings to discuss artificial ice for the arena. Last year's committee did a lot of work securing information on the various types of plants, piping, the best location for the engine room and other information required before a plant could be installed.

This year's committee is most enthusiastic and they would like to be able to install artificial ice before next winter. During March, this year, it was necessary to close the arena as the ice was covered with water. As a result, play-off games had to be taken to Tweed and Marmore. Madoc and Cooper are now the only rinks in the area without artificial ice. Next year the hockey season will be starting in November and the teams without artificial ice will pay $10 an hour for ice time for practice and games. The committee feels that with artificial ice is installed the teams involved might just as well forget hockey.

PRICE RANGES

The committee has been approved receipt of a grant of $19,000 to $20,000, used equipment prices up to $20,000 with plastic pipe for the ice surface.

The treasurer reported that $4,281.56 is on hand in the bank. The committee will receive a $1,000 grant from the Lions Club as the work commences, and $2,000 from the Madoc Athletic Association, making a grand total of $7,281.53.

In addition a Provincial government grant will be received on money spent on improvements last year, a donation from the Ivanhoe Women's Institute, besides individual commitments of $5,000 as soon as work starts.

On May 5th a monster Mago will be held in Pigden's Garage to raise more funds; the Madoc Kiwanis Club plans to hold two dances this year, one in June, one in June and the other in July. Another community auction sale is planned for July 3rd with a 50-50 split on articles sold.

At the ball park, Charlie Hamilton has taken on the job of caretaker. The $75 system from the arena will be moved to the ball park for the summer season. The committee and I make announcements and to report various activities. Volunteer labor will repair the bleachers, install light bulbs and other odd jobs.

When work begins at the rink the fill that will have to be removed will be placed on the ball park to fill in the back. This, the committee feels will help to drain the rink and the park much sooner than if fill had to be purchased.

Income Tax Explained

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER
Income Tax Department

LEGAL SEPARATION DEFINED

A separation of husband and wife is not recognized for income tax purposes unless such separation is of a legal nature. Separations by mutual consent are treated for tax purposes, just the same as if the parties concerned were residing together and their exemptions are determined by the income of the wife.

A legal separation is one where a written separation agreement is signed by both parties and witnessed, or a court order from the family court or other tribunal of competent jurisdiction directing the husband to make periodic payments to his wife and children.

When the separation is of a legal nature, the husband is taxed as a single person but he may deduct from his income the amount of the separation payments he has been directed to make to his wife and children. He may only deduct the amounts he was ordered to pay. Any amount in excess of what the court ordered him to make, may not be deducted. To be able to deduct such payments; he must substantiate such amounts by acceptable receipts.

When a wife is separated from her husband by written agreement or court order, and is in receipt of separation payments from her estranged husband, such payments are taxable income in her hands and must be reported on her tax return. She not only must include any amount received for herself but also any amounts received on behalf of the children. If there are children, she may claim the equivalent to married ($1000) on one and the ordinary child's allowance for the others.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

QUESTION 1: My wife and I have agreed to live apart. There never has been court action of any nature. I pay her $100 per month. She is employed full time. Can I deduct the $100 per month I pay her.

ANSWER: No. If her earned income from employment is over $1250, you are treated as a single person with just $1000 exemption.

QUESTION 2: I am separated from my husband by court order. He pays me $120 per month for myself and one child. Can I claim the child?

ANSWER: Yes. You must add to your income the amount received from your husband. Claim the equivalent to married, that is $1000 for the child. Your total exemption is $2000.

New Rank Nomenclature Advocated for Air Force

OTTAWA (CP)—A long concealed agitation within the RCAF for adoption of a new rank nomenclature has come out into the open—in the RCAF's own magazine, the Roundel.

"If integration of Canada's armed forces does nothing more than eliminate the rank titles in the air force it will have achieved much," writes Sqdn. Ldr. L. C. (Mo) Morrison, RCAF information officer at North American Air Defence Command headquarters, Colorado Springs, Colo.

He points out that there are wing commanders who don't command wings, group captains without groups, squadron leaders who have never been near a squadron and "folly of follies, a pilot officer who is a navigator."

Canadian airmen serving abroad have for years been irked by questions, not only from civilians but from NATO and other military personnel, about the meaning of their rank insignia and titles. The RCAF's insignia and titles are taken from the Royal Air Force.

Officials say integration may eventually result in a uniform rank nomenclature as well as a single uniform for the Navy, Army and RCAF but that such a move isn't imminent.

Such a move might go down hard in the Navy if Army ranks were chosen to set the pace. The Navy appears well content with its insignia and titles though naval captains are sometimes be upset by being confused with Army captains who are three ranks below them and naval commodores mistaken for lowerranking naval commanders.

Ldr. Morrison says he has spent nearly half his life in the RCAF "but I get as tired of answering the question 'What's a squadron leader?'"

Not only were titles confusing, they were "too blasted long." A lieutenant - general could be properly addressed as general and a lieutenant-colonel as colonel but what do you call a squadron leader, group captain or air vice-marshal?

Protest March To Trafalgar Square Orderly

LONDON (Reuters) — Nearly 20,000 anti - nuclear demonstrators wound up a protest march in Trafalgar Square Monday to cheer a leading Labor peer as he denounced Britain's support for United States policy in Viet Nam.

The demonstrators, who included a delegation of 30 American students and their families, packed the London square to capacity.

Many of them had spent three days marching from a British air base 45 miles away for the annual rally organized by Britain's Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament.

Lord Brockway—best known as Fenner Brockway, a leading left-wing former Labor member of the House of Commons—told the demonstrators: "We are disappointed, dismayed and humiliated by the support which the (Labor) government has given to America in Viet Nam. . . ."

Standing on the base of the towering Nelson Monument, Brockway told the crowd:

". . . our government's hands have been tied by the unqualified acceptance of the Washington view that the war is entirely an act of aggression by North Viet Nam on South Viet Nam."

NEED CEASE-FIRE

"The immediate necessity is an all-round cease-fire," he said. "The obvious step to peace is a truce agreement which will stop the fighting on both sides."

The marchers flooded into the historic square to the sound of folk tunes and "freedom songs" sung by groups of guitar - strumming youths, while hundreds of uniformed police ringed the square.

Fifteen Labor MPs, a Belgian Roman Catholic priest and an Anglican minister joined the marchers on the final stage of the trek Monday.

In contrast to previous years in Britain, the march was orderly and virtually without incident.

Hecklers in the crowd in Trafalgar Square retaliated with shouts of "What about the Chinese?" and "rubbish" as a succession of speakers condemned the United States for bombing Viet Nam.

SEEKS JOBS

VANCOUVER (CP)—A United Church of Canada minister has arrived from Japan to seek jobs for 14 men who were orphaned during the Second World War. Rev. B. T. Murata, a graduate of the University of Toronto who helps operate a social centre for homeless youths in Tokyo, said Monday the men are between 22 and 26 years old and have trade training.

Gang of Six Youths Held After Killing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A sudden hail of bullets poured from a car speeding past the Tic Took bamburger drive-in at lunch hour Monday killing one youth and critically wounding another.

Police said a gang of six youths was captured in the car shortly after the violence. Patrolmen said units were led on a high-speed chase through crowded streets for more than a mile.

The car was described as a rolling arsenal that included a shotgun, a .22-calibre gun used in the shooting, and a number of spent and live shells including a big bore .30-30 shell.

FORGE CERTIFICATES

SINGAPORE (AP) — Racketeers are doing a thriving business in forged medical certificates for government employees who want to take sick leave, the corrupt practices investigation bureau reported Tuesday. The going rate is 33 cents a day. Sick-leave certificates that come in by the hundreds will be checked.

Another Body Found in Rear Unit of Diesel

TERRACE BAY, Ont. (CP)—Workmen clearing the wreckage of a passenger train which was derailed during the weekend near this northwestern Ontario community unexpectedly discovered the body of a man in a rear diesel unit Monday.

It brought the death toll in the derailment of the CPR's transcontinental passenger train, the Canadian, to two.

Charles Kanegeisser, 38, of Fort William, a CPR baggageman, was killed and 47 persons were injured, none seriously, when the train jumped the tracks in early morning darkness Saturday three miles east of Terrace Bay, 140 miles east of Port Arthur.

Provincial police in nearby Schreiber said the man found Monday was in his 50s. Taken to a funeral home in Schreiber, his identity was withheld.

The twin - diesel locomotive and nine cars of the 14-car train tumbled from the tracks after hitting a cave-in on the line. The diesels and six cars rolled down a 100-foot embankment.

Proposals by Pearson Continue to Draw Support

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prime Minister Pearson's proposals for a measured pause in United States air strikes against Communist North Viet Nam at "the right time" continue to draw some support.

Democratic Senator J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, chairman of the influential U.S. Senate committee on foreign affairs, echoed the idea Sunday in an interview.

George F. Kennan, former senior U.S. career diplomat now continuing his appraisals of the Communist world at the Institute of Advanced Studies at Princeton, termed the idea constructive at Montreal. He said he hoped the U.S. would implement it soon.

The idea is that the pause in air attacks would make it easier for the Communists to come to the conference table.

OPPOSED BY JOHNSON

But the three most senior government spokesmen in the U.S. on Viet Nam—President Johnson, Defence Secretary McNamara and State Secretary Rusk —have reiterated opposition to any air-strike pause.

Johnson spoke in a special Easter message from his Texas ranch.

Rusk said in a special statement that an air-attack pause had been pondered but that it would "only encourage the aggressor and dishearten our friends who bear the brunt of battle."

McNamara, replying specifically to Fulbright, took a similar line and said the U.S. has "no indications that a cessation of the bombings would move the North Vietnamese to discussions leading to termination of the aggression against the south."

The international leaders who have picked up the Pearson idea are Prime Minister Shastri of India and Foreign Minister Ali Bhutto of Pakistan. During the weekend, on grounds of pressing domestic and Vietnamese problems, President Johnson postponed scheduled visits from Pakistani President Mohammed Ayub Khan and Shastri.

The statements by Johnson, Rusk and McNamara also coincided with public demonstrations in the United States against the American presence in Viet Nam—conducted near the Johnson ranch in Texas and by an estimated 15,000 in front of the White House in Washington.

One speaker at the White House demonstration was Democratic Senator Ernest Greuning of Alaska, who has been one of the few vocal congressional critics of U.S. Viet Nam policy.

MUTED CRITIC

Fulbright, while at odds with U.S. policy in several fields, has been relatively muted on the Viet Nam while not hiding his concern. He said Sunday that, while he hoped for a two-day cease - fire, "I believe there might be some value in stopping the bombing temporarily."

Kennan's chief fear, though, as he said again in Montreal while answering reporters' questions, is that there is a risk of "needless" loss of Russia's relations with the U.S."

In other words, Kennan fears that the Soviet Union, now deeply embroiled in its ideological fight with China, will feel itself increasingly forced to take a harder line against the U.S. to keep from losing more ground in the Communist world.

Woman Killed In Car Crash Near Cardinal

BROCKVILLE (CP)—Thelma Valleau, 41, of Toronto was killed and her husband injured in a three-car collision Monday on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway near Cardinal, Ont., 19 miles east of here.

Injured were her husband Douglas, 39, the driver of the car; their two daughters, Jennet, 10, and Benita, 12; Maurice Boyman, 69, also of Toronto, and his wife Ester, 46. Mr. Boyman was driving another car.

Sarah Garland, 44, of Etobicoke in suburban Toronto was the driver of the third car. She and her husband Kenneth were not injured.

Board to Hear Fawcett Case In Six Months

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts said Monday it is the government's wish that Frederick Fawcett be released from the Penetanguishene mental hospital "at the earliest possible moment."

Fawcett, 50, an Owen Sound district farmer whose 3½-year detention has raised heated controversy in the legislature, was committed after allegedly shooting at two tax assessors.

As he was found mentally ill, the charges were never heard.

Commenting on his decision to refer the case to a government - established advisory board for an opinion on whether Fawcett should be released, Mr. Robarts said:

"There are responsibilities both in Mr. Fawcett and the public that must be met. I am confident this procedure will meet these responsibilities."

The Advisory Board on the Detention of Patients was established last October to hear appeals for release.

SIX MONTHS SUITABLE

The board could meet in about three months, the premier said. But a period of six months since the last court decision would be the most suitable time, he said.

Its members are Mr. Justice C. D. Stewart of the Ontario Supreme Court, Dr. W. E. Hoothroyd, a Toronto hospital psychiatrist and Dr. Elliott Markson, a Toronto psychiatrist.

Opposition critics said the premier's announcement was inadequate because it didn't bring Fawcett's immediate release.

The peemier again ruled out the New Democratic Party plea for a public inquiry, saying:

"It would be improper for the government to call into question the judgment of the courts or of the magistrates."

Previous medical examinations by 17 doctors have resulted in 12 declaring Fawcett mentally ill.

The Supreme Court of Ontario has since twice ruled Fawcett mentally ill, the last time in a hearing Feb. 1.

Mr. Robarts' announcement followed Fawcett's transferral Wednesday from the hospital's maximum security section and an agreement Sunday allowing him freedom of the grounds.

HUSBAND FILES SUIT

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP)—Actress June Allyson's husband, Dr. Dr'ean A. Maxwell, charges in a suit for divorce that she has caused him mental anguish during their 18 months of marriage. Maxwell, 33, a banker, asked in the suit filed Monday in Superior Court that he be awarded a share of the 40-year-old Miss Allyson's salary, which he said was $20,000 a month. He said he is under a doctor's care for tuberculosis.

Weather Was a Poor Bet For Casualty Insurance Companies in Past Year

OTTAWA (CP) — When it came to making a dollar, the weather was a poor bet for casualty insurance companies last year. And aircraft liability insurance was even worse.

Details of income and claims on different classes of insurance were released Monday, and they showed claims ration that varied from zero at hospital types including earthquake insurance up to 108.3 per cent on aircraft liability. Weather insurance had a ratio of 102.7 per cent, based on premium earnings of $17,862 against net claims of $18,374.

The aircraft liability ratio was based on earned premiums of $2,374,236 against net claims of $2,571,225.

On the other end of the scale —apart from the zero claims— were explosion insurance with a ratio of 16.2 per cent and surety insurance with a ration of 16.4. Forgery insurance also had a low claims ratio, 19.1 per cent.

IS BIGGEST ITEM

Automobile liability insurance was by far the largest item in the report, accounting for premiums earned of $243,477,849 and net claims of $139,063,068 for a claims ratio of 81.3 per cent.

Premiums from fire insurance brought in $204,045,625, and claims took out $110,502,201. This provided a ratio of 54.1 per cent.

The weather insurance, which resulted in a net loss for the companies, does not include hail and windstorm insurance. Premiums from hail insurance totalled $4,325,422, and net claims were $2,535,018 for a ratio of 51.4 per cent.

Windstorm insurance brought in $112,460 to the companies during the year, while they paid out $115,476 in claims for a ratio of 37.5 per cent.

Among the higher ratios was personal accident and sickness group insurance. This 81-percent ratio arose from premium earnings of $122,227,247 and claims of $129,516,896.

Sprinkler leakage insurance also showed relatively high claims ratio, 78.9 per cent, but the money involved hasn't been. Earnings from premiums totalled only $398 and claims $314.

Theft insurance brought in premiums of $8,261,448 against net claims of $4,054,836 for a ratio of 49.1 per cent.

The over-all claims ratio for fire and casualty insurance was 65.8 per cent based on earned premiums of $644,733,349 and claims of $644,721,258. This compares with a 1963 ratio of 68 per cent.

First Soviet Ship Enters Seaway System

MONTREAL (CP) — The freighter Mitchurinsk became the first Soviet ship to enter the St. Lawrence Seaway system today, but her departure was delayed two hours when a mooring cable snapped.

The 10,000-ton freighter was inching towards the St. Lambert locks entrance to the seaway at 7 a.m. EST when the cable gave way.

Adrift, the vessel swung to the side of the narrow canal and bumped the retaining wall on three times. With the anchor dragging, the vessel was hauled back into the centre of the channel.

An inspection showed only minor damage.

Earlier, Stefanov Vasily, the Soviet ship captain, was presented with a gift of two books —one in French and the other in English—on seaway history.

Rene L'Heureux, the seaway's eastern regional director, made the presentation, expressing a hope Russian ships will make further use of the seaway.

The Mitchurinsk cleared St. Lambert at 9 a.m. en route to Toronto and Hamilton.

Government inspectors cleared the vessel for seaway passage after a stem-to-stern inspection Saturday.

The Soviet ship won't dock at any United States ports, but will travel through U.S. territory around Massena, N.Y., via the Snell and Eisenhower locks.

Time Growing Ripe to Pay Income Taxes

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The time is growing ripe to pay final 1964 income taxes, and in the language of the electronic computer, that's prefiled R(IP-E).

R(IP-E) is part of the formula the revenue department has worked out for employers with large payrolls who use electronic computers to figure out the amount of tax deducted at source.

But whether you're working for a large organization or small, or working for yourself, final payments on 1964 income taxes are due in the revenue department before May 1.

This is the department sent 6,500,000 individual taxpayers what it called "personalized" income tax forms. They were personalized by having the taxpayer's name already pasted in the form, with a seven-digit code number.

The revenue department has already been computerized, as they say in the language of the computer age. With the numbered taxpayers it should be possible to process forms more quickly and send back cheques to taxpayers for overpayments where they have been made.

The formula for the next three years ago for payroll computers is simply that the amount of tax deductions to be taken off cheques is equal to the rate of tax times income less exemptions. less a constant figure in correct for taxable income, all of it divided by the number of pay periods in a year.

In algebraic terms this is: T earnings E (IP-E)-C all over P.

And when the revenue department gives the definitions they spell — literally — TRIPE. T is the amount of tax deductions. R the highest applicable rate of tax. I the gross income for the pay period, P the number of pay periods in a year, and E the annual personal exemptions.

C is the constant correction figure.

But while the computers may figure this out for you and take the government's share of your income before you get it, you still have to fill out the income tax form and send it in not later than April 30, along with a cheque to the receiver-general of Canada if you still owe some tax.

There are a good many factors affecting the individual's tax that the computers can't figure out in advance— such as your contributions to church or charitable institutions and your medical bills.

Revenue Minister Benson said recently that most misunderstanding seems to be about the claims taxpayers can make for charitable purposes.

You cannot claim for donations to charitable organizations outside Canada, donations to individuals, donations of old clothes or furniture, or amounts paid for card parties, bingos and lotteries even if the games are held for the benefit of charity.

The maximum that can be charged for a charitable donation is 10 per cent of net income and you must have receipts to show the revenue department.

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Medical Association today announced that three honorary memberships — highest award's the association can bestow—will go to a newspaper man, an industrialist and a leader in medical research.

The awards will be presented to Ken MacTaggart of The Toronto Telegram—first newspaper man to be so honored; Col. R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, chairman of General Motors of Canada, and Dr. Ray Farquharson, chairman of the Medical Research Council of Canada.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

(Ed. Note:—This is the second of the two-column series on sport in New Zealand written by staffer Barry McCullagh.)

By BARRY McCULLAGH

Saturday in New Zealand sees constant traffic in teams on their way to do battle. Trim Maori girls in short tunics and black stockings, standard British garb for field hockey, crowd bus terminals with their pakeha (European) sisters.

One day I covered a soccer match which had been transferred from another ground because of rain (a winter hazard in Auckland). On a neighboring pitch a girls' hockey game was in progress. This was distracting, to say the least, and I think I saw more hockey than soccer. Watching the girls at play I wondered how their counterparts in Canada plan to spend their Saturday afternoons (some 15 hours later because of the time difference). Sitting in a coffee house? Or is cheer leading the best our girls can muster in the way of exercise?

New Zealanders are skilled yachtsmen, and once a year (in February) some 500 craft crowd Auckland's Waitemata harbor for the "biggest one-day regatta in the world. Golf is played the year round on picturesque courses like Manukiekiehie, Titirangi, Akarana, and Remuera—all Maori names. Lawn bowling is extremely popular with the older folk. The last national tournament in Auckland, in January, attracted 1,200 entries and 79 greens were used.

The Maoris, incidentally, have their own golf and tennis tournaments each year and also compete in open events with other New Zealanders. One of the country's leading amateur golfers, Frank Malloy, is a Samoan, and last year he was a member of an exhibition foursome that included American woman professional Marilynn Smith.

Rugby is the country's most honored sport and every youngster aspires to become an All Black, one of New Zealand's elite fraternity. The All Blacks, 15 men and two, natchas and Maoris, regularly do battle at home and overseas. Last year they returned from a tour which included Canada, to a heroes' welcome comparable with the return of the Canadian Guards from U.N. duty. This year they meet the Springboks (South Africans.)

From Auckland again comes news that one of New Zealand's all-time Rugby greats has retired. He is Don Clarke, fullback on the All Black side for the last nine years and better known as The Boot, because of his goal-kicking ability.

In his first-class career of 226 matches (28 of them Internationals) Clarke amassed 1,814 points, made up of 21 tries, 358 conversions (of the tries), 314 penalty goals, 26 dropped goals and three goals from marks. Now, at the age of 31, Clarke has retired because of a recurring knee injury.

The impact of Rugby is illustrated indirectly by a story of the Beatles' visit to Auckland last June. It was decided to hold a mayoral reception for them and one councillor—a Rugby executive—asked what effect this would have on absenteeism in the schools. Mayor D. M. Robinson demolished this silly when he said: "I gave it the same consideration I give to mid-week Rugby matches."

A Nazi general whose men were facing the New Zealanders in Italy is supposed to have said: "Give them a football and they'll kick themselves to death." But the Kiwis didn't oblige. Instead, they helped kick the Nazi troops out of strategic Monte Cassino.

No record of New Zealand sport is complete without mention of such sporting personalities as Peter Snell, one of the greatest track men the world has known. Snell has announced he will retire after a European tour this summer, but Canadians have a treat in store when he races in Toronto in June, renewing his rivalry with Bill Crothers who finished second in the New Zealander in the 880 metres at Tokyo.

And there's Danish-born Helmer Pedersen, and Earle Wells, gold medallists in the Flying Dutchman class sailing event at Tokyo, Davis Cup players Lew Gerrard and Ian Crookenden (who beat Chuck McKinley and Dennis Ralston of United States in last year's Wimbledon quarter-finals) and golfer Bob Charles, the first left-hander to win the British open and a leading contender on the American circuit.

They are New Zealand's champions, but there is a host of others not far behind them.

Enter Western Junior Final

Oil Kings Oust Regina

EDMONTON (CP)—A crushing four-goal assault in the third period Monday night carried Edmonton Oil Kings to a 6-2 victory over Regina Pats and gave them a berth in the Western junior hockey final for a record sixth consecutive year.

The Oil Kings combined muscle and hustle to take the best-of-seven western semi-final four games to three.

They open the best-of-seven Memorial Cup semi-final at home Wednesday against Winnipeg Braves.

Centre Fran Huck, who dazzled the 6,505 fans with brilliant stickhandling and shifty skating, was credited by both Regina goals, his 16th and 17th of the series. He also had six assists and was easily the top scorer on either club.

The teams were tied 1-1 after 20 minutes and 2-2 after 40. The Oil Kings unleashed their winning drive in the final period by taking advantage of miscues by the pressing Pats.

Edmonton, which cannot strengthen for the playoffs until it reaches the national final, is almost sure to pick up Huck if it gets by Braves in the western final.

Calls For Fillings * * *

Reay's Section Has Most Cavities

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) — While coach Billy Reay checked his mounting injury list and stars Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita were being hounded for autographs by a horde of hockey-minded youngsters, a well-dressed young man emerged unnoticed from Chicago Black Hawks' dressing room.

The Hawks had just completed their final workout Monday afternoon in preparation for tonight's second game of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final. They will entertain Canadiens 1-0 after the Habs squeezed by them 3-2 in Saturday night's opener.

One year ago, Doug Jarrett, a 20-year-old native of London, Ont., was performing in the Ontario Hockey Association as a junior for St. Catharines Black Hawks.

Now, a year later, he finds himself thrust into a position of two-time Norris Trophy winner Pierre Pilote at the blue-line in a Stanley Cup final.

Pilote has suffered a shoulder injury and remains a doubtful starter for tonight's game.

PLAYED IN CFUL

Jarrett, in his first year of pro hockey, played 17 games with St. Louis Flyers of the Central Pro League before getting the call to the parent club in December of last year.

In 46 games with the Hawks he had two goals and 15 assists. During the Detroit-Chicago semi - final series he dressed for every game, but as he said later: "I didn't get much chance to play."

Just what is the big difference in performing as a junior a minor pro and the National Hockey League?

"The difference is not only the speed, but the heady hockey they play in this league," Jarrett said.

The youngster said the emphasis on speedy thinking and movement was clearly demonstrated to him in Tuesday night's opener when he gave the puck to Canadiens' left-winger John Ferguson at the Chicago blueline.

CANADIEN SCORED

Ferguson made no mistake with the gift and wheeled in and skated to Chicago netminder Glenn Hall nearly for his second playoff counter.

"I could have just as easily missed him, but it hit him and look what happened," Jarrett said.

His only worry at the moment is moving back to the bench to gather splinters, the youngster said.

However, the Chicago club's book on Jarrett is good.

Reay said he started the game with him on defence "so he could gain confidence," and knowing he would be called on to take a shift, "wouldn't get nervous" before hitting the ice.

Reay said earlier he thinks Jarrett is a hockey player, and added most defencemen do not make it to the NHL at the tender age of 20.

However, Reay, plagued by injuries to three key players, called for help from another source Monday.

STRENGTHENS DEFENCE

He strengthened his blue-line brigade by the addition of John Mizuk and Don Johns. He also has centre Gerry Melnyk and left-winger John Stanfield ready for tonight. All four are from Buffalo Bisons of the American League. John Stanfield is an older brother of the Hawks' rookie centre Fred.

Melnyk has two full NHL seasons behind him, while Mizuk and Johns have limited experience in the big league.

Jolanti, 5 foot 6 and right-winger Kenny Wharram on the injured and doubtful-starter list is Bill (Red) Hay. He came up with an injured left elbow Monday and had x-rays taken, but results were not conclusive. It will be near game time before general manager Tommy Ivan and Reay decide whether he can start.

Wharram is nursing a sore knee, but Reay will answer the opening whistle.

Commenting on Hay's injury, Reay said he didn't know about the ailment until Sunday night and "we believe there's a chipped bone in the elbow."

"Wharram should be able to play, but Pilote is very doubtful. Hay I'm not sure of."

He indicated Mizuk could see some action if Pilote remains on the sidelines and John Stanfield probably would join brother Fred's line on left-wing in place of Hay.

"You'll notice I said 'probable,' because things may change by game time," Reay said.

Canadiens will go into tonight's contest with the same lineup as Saturday, coach Toe Blake said.

He agreed with Reay on one point—it will be a tough series.

Blake said his club played its best game against Bobby Hull Saturday night. The Canadiens limited Hull to one shot on goal as Claude Provost and Jim Roberts came up with big performances in containing the blonde bomber.

However, Reay said he doesn't think it is possible for any player in the league to stick with Hull.

"Hull should be skating a lot better along with the rest of the Hawks," Reay added.

If the Chicago coach's prophecies come true, it could indicate a tough night for Canadiens. Blake said earlier that Hull averaged 50 or 60 shots on goal in games against his club.

We defended well against him Saturday night, but it's pretty hard to keep it up, and you still have to watch the Mikita line," Blake said.

The Montreal coach said he will keep the Beliveau line checking Mikita unit, company "as long as it works."

Reay's counterpart remarked at Laurentian resort until a few days ago with the Hawks bedded down for a midnight snack.

Third and fourth games of the series are scheduled for Thursday and Sunday in Chicago.

Riteways Ousted at Brampton

Belleville Riteways were eliminated from the big Brampton Novice tournament's "B" division crown by the superior strength of a sudden-death overtime goal.

Richmond Hill edged the Riteways 2-1 in the first of their two-game, total-goal series.

In the return match, Belleville scored two goals in the last two minutes of regulation time for a 4-3 margin, tying the series 3-3.

Richmond Hill scored the winning marker at 2:05 of the sudden-death play, getting rebounds from Cronkwright, to capture the series.

In the first game, Kevin Brown scored for Richmond Hill in the first period. Brown made it 2-0 in the second. Barry Lopenette got Riteways' marker in the third period by Jim Richardson. There were three penalties apiece.

Danny Lopenette scored first for Riteways to open the second game, with Dave Smith assisting. Edwards made it 1-1 at the end of the first heat.

Jim Richardson gave Riteways a 2-1 lead, with Terry Dales and Lopenette helping, early in the second. Broun scored for Richmond Hill and it was 2-2 at the end of the second.

Dunkley made it 3-2 on the game and 5-3 on the round early in the third before Belleville came back for the late pair to even the series. Blake Reeves got the first with Dales and Danny Coulson assisting, and Grant Goegon fired the last one, aided by Richardson and Coulson in the final minute.

Then came the heart-breaking overtime setback.

Riteway coach Moe Hunter said this morning that the tournament was "terrific. "Every series in both the "A" and "B" division victories were decided by only one goal," he said.

Wally Dever, league secretary-treasurer announced today that the meeting will be held at Belleville's C.P.R. Freight Office, on South Georges Street. It will get under way at eight o'clock sharp.

All of last year's entries, Canniton, Desseronto, Foxboro, Latta, Read and Shannonville, have been invited to have representatives at the meeting.

"And we will be more than happy to have new entries, such at Stirling, Wellington and Trenton also represented", added Dever.

Sherbrooke Downs Woodstock

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Sherbrooke Beavers picked speed as their weapon against Woodstock Athletics Monday night and it paid off with a 5-2 win.

The Beavers now lead the best-of-seven eastern Allan Cup finals 1-0.

Next game in the senior hockey playoffs will be here Wednesday night with the series then shifting to Sherbrooke for games Friday, Sunday and Monday, if necessary.

The Beavers, fleeter than the Athletics who just finished a series with Rouyn-Noranda Alouettes last Friday, outskated and outplayed Woodstock through the first two periods, building up a 4-0 lead.

Only in the third period did the Athletics revive, outscoring the Beavers 2-1, but by then it was too late.

HAD WON 10

Until Monday, Woodstock had won 10 consecutive playoff games. Their home ice lead was kept alive, however. Of the seven playoff games the Athletics have dropped, five have been in the Woodstock arena.

A goal post may have spelled the difference between a late surge by the Athletics and Sherbrooke's three-goal cushion.

With the Beavers ahead 4-3, captain Gerry Striagle of Woodstock hit the post with Sherbrooke goalie Serge Aubrey was out of position. About three minutes later, the Beavers scored to salt away the win.

Claude Cardin scored two goals for the Winners with Skip Borchuk picking up a goal and two assists. Other Sherbrooke goals went to Simon Nolet and Rene Pepin.

Art Sullivan, leading scorer for Woodstock, picked up his 12th playoff marker and Gus Mortson netted the other.

The game was the eighth in two weeks for the tired Athletics, who are slated to open the Allan Cup finals for the second consecutive year. The winner of the Woodstock - Sherbrooke series will meet the western champion for the Canadian senior championship.

Farmed to Waterloo, Iowa

Bosox Sign Latchford

BILL LATCHFORD

Bill Latchford, former ace hurler of the Belleville Kenmore, will do his throwing in an American uniform this summer.

So if you're around Waterloo, Iowa, this spring, drop into the baseball park, and you'll likely see Bill in action.

He has been signed by the Boston Red Sox and will make his professional debut with the Class "A" Club, a farm team.

Bill has been training with the Red Sox at Ocala, Florida since the Citrus League opened.

The Boston rookies break training camp this Friday and Latchford will report to the Waterloo club immediately.

Latchford impressed the Boston scouting coaches and they groomed him carefully.

The rookies were put through their paces, pitching three innings at a time. Bill started the first exhibition game and at the end of the first three-play stint allowed no hits and no runs.

He repeated in his second three-frame effort. In his first all-out game Bill struck out eight, walked none, for two runs and four hits.

The Waterloo, Iowa, club is a member of the ten-team Midwest League. Other cities are Burlington, Cedar Rapids, Clinton, Decatur, Dubuque, Fox Cities and Wisconsin Rapids.

The 22-year-old hurler is the only Canadian on the Waterloo team and as his signing by the Bosox indicates he is regarded highly by the parent club.

Ahearne Ogles NHL TV For Europe

Reaction Cool

LONDON (CP) — John F. (Bunny) Ahearne, Britain's leading hockey figure, said Monday he has applied for European television rights to National Hockey League games but that initial NHL reaction has been cool.

Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, said he expects to reply to a letter from the NHL's television committee perhaps today and "the matter is not yet closed."

"It could be a pretty big thing if it went through," Ahearne said in a telephone interview, adding at one point that prospects did not look good. His "attitude" to the NHL had been questioned, he said.

An IIHF meeting last May decided that any European ice stadium permitting the performance of professional hockey players would be barred from staging any IIHF amateur games.

The Ahearne TV plan envisaged that the NHL would take a percentage of the proceeds from European showings.

Games in Canada and the United States could possibly be relayed across the Atlantic by communications satellite, or else rebroadcast in Europe from film or video tape.

Meanwhile in Montreal NHL President Clarence Campbell, recuperating from an ulcer attack, said Ahearne's letter has been received.

"No formal action has been taken of it," he said, "and there is no suggestion of doing anything before next season at the earliest."

All Off the Yankees

'Silent' Jim Gentile Blasts 3rd Homer

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim Gentile, who used to put his foot in his mouth, now leaves it in the batter's box. He hits better that way.

Gentile, 30, the slugging Kansas, City first baseman, revealed his change of stance Monday night after belting his third homer of the season and lifting his batting average to .412 as the Athletics walloped New York Yankees 8-2.

The left-handed swinger was benched when the season started after he asked to be traded because of what he termed unfair publicity given a spring training incident that cost him a $500 fine.

But the outspoken Gentile has changed his mind.

"I decided the only way to get back in their good graces was to keep my mouth shut and just meet the ball," he said.

"Always in the past I'd get sore at myself and keep myself in a slump," he continued. "I could control it a few games, then it would get the best of me. I've been playing 13 years now and it's about time I learned to forget the strikeouts."

And so Gentile, who has never been able to match the 41 homers and 141 runs batted in he produced at Baltimore in 1961, has curbed his temper and cuffed the ball for seven hits in 17 trips while becoming the first player in the American League to hit three homers.

He wound up his shelling of the Yankees—8-for-11 with all three homers in the three-game set—by collecting a single and a towering homer off Whitey Ford that hit 45 feet high on the scoreboard, which is 422 feet from home plate.

TIE LEAGUE MARK

While the Athletics were pounding the Yankees, Chicago White Sox located their home-run touch for the first time and clipped Baltimore Orioles 7-2 as they tied a league record by using five pinch hitters in one inning.

In the only other game played Marcelino Lopez posted his first major league victory with a seven-hitter in Los Angeles' Angels' 4-2 victory over Detroit Tigers.

The Athletics pounced on Ford for four first-inning runs that turned out to be enough for Diego Segui, who kept eight Yankee hits well scattered.

Bert Campaneris led off the first with a bunt and scored on Ed Charles' double. Charles drove in Charles with a single and Tom Reynolds' triple and a grounder wrapped up the rally. Ford was chased in the fourth after his earned-run average had ballooned to 7.80.

Rookie Ken Berry, Danny Cater and Moose Skowron homered for the White Sox, who had gone six games without one. But it took considerable managerial manoeuvring by Al Lopez to put Chicago ahead to stay.

The White Sox trailed 2-1 in the seventh inning when Lopez went to work. His first two pinch hitters, Don Buford and Cater, didn't produce but regulars Ron Hansen and Berry stroked singles, so Lopez went to the bench again.

He tapped John Romano, who tied the game with a run-scoring single. Dave Nicholson was next but never got to bat. When the Orioles changed pitchers, Lopez sent up pitcher Gary Peters instead of Nicholson and he singled in the lead run.

Marcelino Lopez had a shaky start but did not allow a Tiger batter first base after the third inning. The Angels, meanwhile, posted their first victory against Mickey Lolich in six decisions with a three - run fourth inning.

Nielsen Had Nothing

Chuvalo Wins Workout

By JERRY GLADMAN

TORONTO (CP) — George Chuvalo of Toronto, who feels he is "ready for anybody in the world", needed almost eight full rounds to dispose of out-of-shape Bill Nielsen of Omaha, Neb., Monday night.

The scheduled 10-round bout, before a small crowd of 5,980, was stopped at 2:47 of the eighth round when referee Jackie Silver ruled that Nielsen, 199, was in no condition to continue.

While leading throughout the match, Chuvalo, the 27-year-old Canadian heavyweight champ, was unable to put his unranked opponent on the canvas.

"He's a rugged, tough guy," said Chuvalo, listed No. 5 by the World Boxing Association, "but I had no trouble with him."

Nielsen, 25, offered no trouble in the form of punching power, his sharp left jab had the 209-pound Chuvalo's nose bleeding from the first round to the end of the match.

STALKS OPPONENT

Chuvalo's strategy was evident from the opening bell—to stalk his opponent and try to wear him down with a crushing body attack. While the body punches took their toll, Chuvalo was unable to put over anything resembling a knockout blow until the eighth round.

Nielsen, whose plan was to stay out of range of Chuvalo's punching power) backpedalled throughout the fight, offering little more than his jab. In the second and fifth rounds he showed some good combination, but did little damage.

"He is a very tough guy and I'm only sorry I ran out of steam," the handsome, curly-haired Nielsen said in the dressing room after the bout.

His souvenirs from the fight were a closed right eye and a small cut under the left. He said he had trained only five weeks after a seven-month layoff.

GEORGE CHUVALO

Both fighters were warned on separate occasions for hitting low.

Second in Last Three Appearances

Reds' Jim Maloney One-Hits Milwaukee

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Add Deuis Menke to Jim Maloney's collection of hoodoos, which already includes Ellis Burton and Joe Christopher.

Menke got the only hit—a leadoff single in the eighth inning—off Maloney as the Cincinnati's 2-0 triumph over Milwaukee Braves Monday.

The one-hitter was the third for the Reds' 26-year-old right hander in the three seasons. It also got him back into the regular pitching rotation.

In his first two one-hitters, Maloney was the victim of early singles. Burton got one for Chicago Cubs as the second batter of the game July 23, 1963. Christopher singled for New York Mets with one out in the second inning last Sept. 25.

The 1964 performance came in Maloney's next-to-last start, giving him two one-hitters in his last three appearances. He sat out the first week of this season because he hadn't convinced manager Dick Sisler he belonged in the front line.

In spring exhibition games, Maloney had a miserable 8.40 earned-run average in 30 innings.

BLANK THE ASTROS

In other National League games, Philadelphia Phillies drubbed Houston Astros 8-0 and Chicago shipped St. Louis Cardinals 7-3.

Besides Menke, three Braves favored Maroons out of the running. A Lachine win, however, would force a playoff game between the Maroons and Smiths Falls.

The Reds won the game on Deron Johnson's two-run homer off Wade Blasingame in the second inning.

A four - run third inning, started by Bunning's single and highlighted by Johnny Callison's two-run single, helped end Farrell's six - game winning streak against his former teammates.

Doug Clemens drove in three runs with a single and a homer, while Ernie Banks clouted a two-run homer as the Cubs handed St. Louis its fifth loss in six games. Clemens' two-run single was the key hit in a four-run first inning that chased starter Ray Sadecki.

Eastern Memorial Cup Play

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—Sydney Cape Breton Post showed signs of coming to life Monday night and Lachine Maroons could be the ones to suffer.

Sydney could play the spoiler's role tonight in the double-round - robin Memorial Cup eastern junior hockey tournament. Smiths Falls Bears downed Sydney 5-3 in the fifth game of the three-team fourney Monday night but the host club —now eliminated—showed that it may be inhospitable from now on.

The Bears jumped into a 3-0 lead in the first period but Sydney came back to tie it 3-3 before Smiths Falls went ahead late in the third and put the game away with an empty-net goal with 30 seconds left.

ASSURES TITE

It left Smiths Falls with a 3-1 win-loss record and assurance of at least a first-place tie. Lachine, with a 2-1 record, and Sydney (0-3) meet tonight and a Sydney victory would put the favored Maroons out of the running. A Lachine win, however, would force a playoff game between the Maroons and Smiths Falls.

Why do we sell a hand-built premium tire for around $25.00 when it has more rubber, deeper tread, contoured shoulders, new low profile and different whitewall styles on each side?

Frankly, we shouldn't.

But Canadian Petrofina Limited is determined to make the best possible values available to the public — not only in petroleum products and automotive parts or accessories, but also in tires.

That's why Fina now announces another important first:

The Fina Executive

This unusual tire with the reversible whitewalls is called the Fina Executive. It is one of the most unique tires you can buy, for although a blackwall Executive costs only $25.55, its premium features will give you many extra miles of safe, worry-free driving. Here's why.

The Fina Executive is carefully built by hand. All 4 plies are hand-placed at an exact angle of 34° for the toughest possible reinforcement. Special nylon strips called chafers are laid on by hand so there's no air seepage around the rim. Or chafing. Even rubber splicing is a hand operation, which is why the Executive is perfectly balanced and gives a smoother, more stable ride.

This is the only tire with a single whitewall ring on one side, and double ring on the other. This means you can match next year's whitewalls — or the year after — just by reversing the tire.

The Fina Executive has more rubber and a deeper tread than any tire in its price class. This means less wear and more mileage, while the new low profile also increases tire life by cutting down on heat build up.

Hard to believe that a tire with all these premium features can sell for $25.55 isn't it?

Or for just a few dollars more if you want the two sided whitewall?

Great price for a great tire.

Brampton Novice Tourney

BRAMPTON (CP)—A Guelph team scored the first major upset in the Brampton novice hockey tournament here Monday, eliminating Toronto Ted Reeve 4-3. Guelph won the first game 2-1 and held the Toronto team to a 2-2 tie in the second game.

Toronto George Bell dumped Peterborough 6-5 in another two-game preliminary round. The Toronto squad edged Peterborough 3-2 in the opening game, but were forced to come from behind in the second to earn a 3-3 tie.

Kitchener had little trouble dumping Hamilton 6-1.

In a class B elimination series, Richmond, Hill, Ont., eliminated Belleville 6-5 and Gr downed Simcoe 4-3.

Leafs Win Pair From Mud Hens

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Centrefielder Jim Gosger probably wouldn't stay around the International Baseball League too long if Boston Red Sox had a little less power at the plate this season.

Gosger, the American League Red Sox' farmhand, wielded the big bat Monday as Toronto Maple Leafs swept a doubleheader 7-6 and 5-3 against Toledo Mud Hens.

The five-and slugger collected two hits, including a two-run game - winning homer in the opener, and slammed another homer in the second game.

The double victory gave the Leafs a 3-1 record over the Mud Hens before moving into Columbus for their fifth game of the new season against the Jets tonight.

Elsewhere, Buffalo Bisons defeated Columbia 3-1, Atlanta Crackers downed Rochester Red Wings 6-3, and Jacksonville Suns edged Syracuse Chiefs 6-5.

Bud Gentry struck out six and gave up three hits before Rob Dulba took over in the eighth inning to register Toronto's second-game victory.

A walk to Darrel Harrieson gave Buffalo the winning run after he stole second and came home on Bernie Smith's single in the seventh.

Ed Chadwick drove in four runs with two home runs to give the Crackers their fourth straight victory. It was the third homer in two days for Sadowski.

Leftfielder Furn Goldy, who drove in three runs for Syracuse, cut the Chiefs lead with when he dropped a fly ball, allowing the winning run in the eighth inning.

The Copetown Peewees, although not rated highly enough to enter the Ontario Minor Hockey Association playoffs this season, defeated Zurich 2-2 and won 25-7 on shots on goal and then came back in their second game to beat Plattsville 4-2.

Meet at Port Hope

EOBA Prospects Good

Optimism was the keynote at the meeting of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association at Port Hope last night.

What was said to be a "fair turnout" was told that 70 teams had contacted the league regarding entry. This is an increase of 16 teams over 1984.

"Things look much better for the operation of the league than they did at the first meeting," a cricuit spokesman said today.

Practically all classifications were represented at the meeting which produced mostly pos sibilities.

In the senior division, league officials look for a three-team loop with entries from Brockville, Oshawa and Kingston. Belleville was not represented in this division nor was any communication sent to the league.

In the intermediate division prospects point to entries from Ajax, Little Britain, Centreville, Port Hope, Coe Hill and Campbellton.

It was proposed that the six intermediate clubs, if all enter, be merged with the three senior teams to form a nine-club two-section league.

These and other matters will be thrashed out at meetings to be held on May 3rd at Port Hope and Belleville.

The date was set as the deadline for entries.

Skater, 80 Still Gliding

NEW YORK (AP)—"It's exhilarating," says Miss Rosaline Dunn, "keeps you young."

She is in a position to know because at the age of 80 she still swings along with the best of them at the Rockefeller Centre outdoor rink.

She was the national figure skating walts champion from 1924 through 1926, the first time with Frederick Gabel as partner and the other three years with Joe Savage. In 1927 teamed with Savage she won the 14-step national title.

She was 40 when she won the waltz title in 1924.

"The national champions were much older than they are now," she said. She seemed a little scornful of the current crop of teen-agers. "I went on skating longer back in the twenties."

After her competitive days ended, there was a period of 23 years when she was off-the ice —"couldn't afford it."

But she is back on now undeterred by minor matters such as a fall at the start of the current season which broke her shoulder.

Early Surprises

Bats Fickle in Majors

NEW YORK (AP)—The baseball season is only one week old but there are some early surprises in the batting averages.

Tony Oliva, the American League batting champ, is hitting only .172 for Minnesota Twins. Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh, fighting back to form after an attack of malaria, is batting .250 in defence of his National League crown. All average are figured through Sunday's games.

The home run king of the majors, Harmon Killebrew of the Twins, has yet to hit one. The entire Chicago White Sox ball club has yet to hit a homer. On the other hand, the Chicago Cubs have hit eight, tops in the majors.

Ernie Banks of the Cubs is 20 for 20.

Governments Act

Austrians Deny Hockey Ban

OTTAWA (CP)—A letter challenging statements by Austrian Ambassador Dr. Franz Helmut Leitner was delivered to the Austrian Embassy here Monday in the continuing dispute over a ban against Canadian professionals playing hockey in Europe.

The letter, written and delivered by Larry Regan, a former National Hockey League player, said statements by Dr. Leitner that the Austrian Ice Hockey Federation had nothing to do with the ban were "incorrect" and conflicted with statements by Canadian hockey officials attending the meeting when the ban was announced.

Regan, who has been playing coach of the Innsbruck, Austria, team for the last couple of seasons, announced plans early this year for a hockey school in Innsbruck staffed by NHL stars including Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings.

But at the annual meeting of the International Ice Hockey Federation last month, the IIHF announced a ban on all Canadian professionals in Europe, declaring that any European ice stadiums allowing them to perform "in any way, shape or form" would be barred from presenting IIHF games.

PEARSON ASKED

In an interview last Friday, Dr. Leitner said his government had investigated the matter at the request of Prime Minister Pearson and "there is no doubt that the Austrian federation did not ask the international federation for such a ban."

In his letter to "set out the facts," Regan said the motion to ban professionals was made by Wasser Vogel, president of the Austrian federation. Regan said Vogel had approved the hockey school "just earlier, as did Dr. Rudolph Wiesser, president of the Innsbruck team, who first approached Vogel.

Regan said reasons for the ban are "vague" and he felt it was "a smear against North American hockey."

"I feel, too, that this ban is an insult to Canadians, as Canadians have always welcomed visiting European hockey teams."

Lead Series 2-0

Flyers Blank Garson 6-0

SUDBURY (CP) — Although coach Joe Protulipac thinks he has partially solved the problem of Niagara Falls' attack, the chief concern now is how to get his Garson-Falconbridge Native Sons past the Flyers' defence.

Niagara Falls, the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A champions, defeated the Native Sons 6-0 Monday night to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven eastern Memorial Cup semi-finals.

Garson - Falconbridge, the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A champions, lost the opener 10-3 Sunday night.

"They have a real good defence," said Protulipac after Monday night's loss. "We couldn't do a thing from the blueline in.

"But I think the boys were still a bit nervous with the puck. They weren't passing the way they can."

CREDITS CHECKING

Protulipac credited the forechecking of his squad with holding the Flyers to 12 fewer goals than in the opening contest.

Bud Debrusk sparked the Flyers with two goals, while Gilles Marotte, Ted Snell, Jim Lorentz and Bill Goldsworthy scored the others.

Coach Bill Long said it was difficult to get the Flyers "up" for the game.

"But what can you do after an 18-3 win?" he said.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — MacDuff's Lassie, a six-to-one choice, scored by a neck over Diana Hanover in Greenwood Raceway's feature trot Tuesday night.

Pilot-owner Allan Walker made his move with MacDuff's Lassie as the horses came around the last corner for home.

Diana Hanover, driven by Ron Feagan, had a clear two-length advantage midway through the stretch, but Walker came with a rush along the rail, gaining the decision in the final strides.

MacDuff's Lassie, owned by Allan and Viola Walker of Owen Sound, has pocketed $1,818 from three victories this year.

Drama Festival Program At Brockville Laid Out

OTTAWA (CP)—Seven classic and contemporary plays will be performed at the Dominion Drama Festival finals in Brockville, Ont., next month, it was announced today.

The national DDF executive decided on the following program:

Monday, May 24: The Hostage by Brendan Behan, Lakeside Theatre Productions, Ottawa.

May 25: Les Nouveaux-Dieux (The New Gods) by Jacques Duchesne, Theatre de la Place Ville Marie, Montreal.

May 28: The Cave Dwellers by William Saroyan, The Theatre Upstairs, Toronto.

May 27: A Man For All Seasons by Robert Bolt, The Players Guild, Hamilton, Ont.

May 28: Le Barbier de Seville by Beaumarchais, La Troupe de l'Echiquier de l'Universite de Sherbrooke.

May 29 (Matinee): The Wakefield Cycle adapted by Frank Cambo, The Experimen Players, Antigonish, N.S.

May 29: The Firebugs by Max Frisch, Vernon, B.C., Little Theatre.

VIE FOR SCHOLARSHIPS

The amateur theatre competition will vie for several scholarships and trophies. The final festival trophy carries a $1,000 cash prize, donated by the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, the festival's major sponsor.

The adjudicator will be Guy Beaulne, director of theatre services for the Quebec cultural affairs department and a former CBC French network producer.

Normally eight plays are performed at the finals, but the entry comprising Saskatchewan, Manitoba and the Lakehead region .will not be represented this year.

Plans for a regional festival fell through in Saskatchewan and drama groups in the Manitoba-Lakehead region preferred to stage a non-competitive festival.

To fill in the program Sunday evening, May 26, a non-competitive play will be presented by l'Atrium of Montreal. The play, Il Etait Un Chemin by Saint-Denis, actually is a monologue by a man waiting for the elevator.

The festival announcement said 26 groups took part in 13 regional competitions across Canada in March and earlier, this month. Eight Canadian adjudicators were employed.

The Beaubrough Trophy, for an exceptional production of a classic, was won by the University of Sherbrooke and the Xaverian Players.

Japanese Sets Boston Marathon Record

By MORRIS BROWN

BOSTON (CP)—Morio Shigematsu, who became lost last week while training for the Boston Marathon, had no trouble finding the finish line Monday and won the event in record time.

The 25-year-old Japanese university student seemed to know his way around the 26-mile, 385-yard course Monday as he finished in 2:17:39.

It was his first try at the famed Boston race.

The victory by the five-foot-seven-inch Shigematsu led Japanese runners to a successful return to the event. They rattled down the first three places and took five out of the top six spots.

They had been absent from the event for five years after winning three times in the 1951-55 span.

Hideaki Shishido was second, 2:17:12, and Takayuki Nakao third, 2:17:31.

Fourth place went to Belgium's Aurele Vandendriessche, bidding for his third straight victory. He finished in 2:17:46.

Yoshikazu Funasako and Kazuo Matsubara were fifth and sixth in 2:18:18 and 2:18:17.

The first five runners bettered the Belgian's old record of 2:18.58 set in 1963.

Top Canadian was Gordon Wallingford, 31-year-old assistant professor of physical education at McMaster University, Hamilton, who finished 11th in 2:23.26.

He led early in the race and looked like a strong contender until late in the event.

He finished third last year in 2:26.31, fastest time of the event for a Canadian.

The Japanese were among the leaders from the start. For the first half, Wallingford, Dave Ellis of Toronto Olympic Club and Gordon Dickson of Hamilton were closely bunched.

In the second half, the leaders were cut down to the Japanese and the Belgian as the hilly course took its toll.

Wallingford said after the race that he was "very disappointed" with his performance.

He said a stomach ailment hampered his training and prevented him from getting used to light Japanese shoes which he wore for the race.

He said his thighs felt "a bit stiff."

Wallingford, who has held Canadian records for the 5,000 metres and the steeplechase, was making his fourth start in the Boston event.

ELLIS DROPS OUT

Ellis, a sixth-place finisher last year and considered a good prospect this year, couldn't keep up the grinding pace and dropped out at about the 20-mile mark.

Dickson, a 32-year-old accountant and first-place finisher in Canadian Olympic trials in Calgary last fall, also faded and placed 35th in 2:47.04.

Wallingford received the Canadian-American Trophy, given each year to the top Canadian finisher in the event.

Other Canadians to finish included Geoff Hodgson of Hamilton, 23rd in 2:33.20; Dave Prokop of London, Ont., 42nd in 2:40.15; Paul Hoffman of Toronto, 46th in 2:42.46 and Herbert Snook of Hamilton, 47th in 2:44.13.

Marian Anderson Given Ovation In Last Concert

NEW YORK (AP) — Marian Anderson sang a triumphant farewell concert at Carnegie Hall Sunday before a sellout audience that seemed determined not to let her retire—or even leave the hall.

Miss Anderson, nearing 60, made her New York debut at Town Hall more than 30 years ago. She looked Sunday much like a lady receiving audience ovations at the start of a glorious career.

She had all her old straightbacked poise and her handsome face looked more youthful, not strained.

Her performance was relaxed and under perfect control, although she rarely turned loose the big contralto voice that has filled all the major concert halls of the world.

At the end, the applause was so frenzied and sustained that she had to sing almost another concert in encores.

After she had returned to her dressing room, someone discovered that the audience was still sitting and applauding. So she dashed back to the stage for a few more bows.

Hollywood Has Latched On To a New Dance Craze

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The rock 'n' roll beat is wild but the dance is wilder. It's the Latella (let's kick).

For once Hollywood has latched on to a new dance craze that makes some sense—couples wind up kissing each other.

It hit the Sunset Strip the other night and soon a group of Hollywood names were doing it. Said one of the jabor:

"It makes me feel like the only girl in a fraternity house."

Zsa Zsa Gabor, Georgie Hamilton, Jim (Gomer Pyle) Nabors, Gene Barry and a bunch of starlets were cavorting on the dance floor like adults playing post office.

ITS FINNISH START

Finnish in origin, the dance is kind of a wild polka, but something will never see on the Lawrence Welk show.

The guys and gals hop forward, jump back, hop-hop-hop ahead. And finally, kiss-kiss-kiss.

It can be done in groups if you have a puckering for variety or by couple, if she's the right girl.

The dance got its start in the discotheques of Paris last December via a recording by Finnish bandleader Anton Latella.

From Paris the dance spread to Munich's two-month pretested dashing fling.

HOP AND KISS

There, as the beer flowed, the dancers hopped and kissed all over the Bavarian city. Priests denounced the dance from the pulpits and even doctors deplored its germ-carrying potential.

Hollywood's introduction to the craze came in a brash press agent way. Four New Yorkers, which has a record subsidiary, Valiant Records, got U.S. rights to the "Latella" music.

John Buck and The Blazers recorded it. Four Star imported a couple of European experts in the dance, hired a hall and invited the stars. The European dancers pulled the stars on the floor and taught them how.

"The kissing is the easy part," said Zsa Zsa. "The steps are a little trickier."

But the dance, press agentry or not, caught on.

And, Latella, Watusi is as passe as the bunny hop.

"Emil and the Detective" is Family Film Fare Filled With Funny Surprises

Family movie buffs who like their film fare on the highly original and suspenseful side—and who doesn't — have something of a surprise to look forward to in the way of excitement now that Walt Disney's comedy adventure, "Emil and the Detective" has begun its run at the Belle Theatre.

The picture in color by Technicolor, Walter Slezak, and youngsters Bryan Russell, Roger Mobely and Cindy Caselton, is based on the famous Erich Kastener story that has fascinated readers all over the world for close to forty years. This incidentally is the second Kastener novel that Disney has adapted to the wide screen. Three years ago he made his smash hit, "The Parent' Trap," on another of the author's work.

All the wonderful ingredients that made the earlier attraction such a hit have been incorporated into this one.

The picture was filmed in West Berlin where the story takes place, and the first of a non-political nature to be made in that city since World War II. Its background provides the necessary atmosphere for Emil's exploits for trying to locate the crook that lifted him of a large sum of money. In his travels he stumbles upon a more serious situation that involves a trio of notorious and most wanted masterminds of the German Underworld who are out to raid a bank.

As the Baron, the leader of the bank robbing clique, veteran stage and screen star Walter Slezak delivers another polished performance that is both threatening and comical. Handsome young Disney contender Bryan Russell gives a winning portrayal in the title role, and Roger Mobley is fine as the head kid detective. Cindy Caroll, a pretty 14-year-old newcomer to pictures, is perfect in the part of a stalwart school reporter who shadows Emil and his pals in search of a scoop.

Early Bird Satellite Will Be Used for Live Telecasts

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The television networks are excited because after May 2 they can bring in live telecasts from Europe via the Early Bird satellite launched earlier this month.

ABC, CBS and NBC plan live news shows May 3.

Peter Jennings will broadcast his evening AGC news show from London.

NBC's Today Show will scatter its regulars in London, Paris, Rome and Washington for two-way discussions, and that night, Chet Huntley will broadcast from London.

HAS BIG NAMES

CBS will broadcast in the early afternoon a Town Meeting of the World show with State Secretary Dean Rusk in London. Barry Goldwater in New York and British and French leaders in their capitals. It will be taped for re-broadcast in the regular CBS Reports hour late that evening.

All this marks a great advance in fast television communications—and the end, presumably, of those frantic transatlantic races by the networks via chartered planes and "bellopters" in an effort to be first on the home screens with picture stories.

During the first eight weeks—an experimental period — the commercial satellite will be available to the networks only for periods on Mondays.

At any rate, it soon will be possible for all networks to cover Europe with almost the same ease and techniques now used to report on events at home.

Fred Hagerman who recently moved to the village from the eighth concession of Rawdon is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

Twelve members of the River Valley Women's Institute spent Wednesday evening at the home of the president, Mrs. Glen Bush and made plans for the year's work. The 39 members were allotted to the four group conveners and they will plan the programs in readiness for the printer.

On Wednesday evening the Grade 8 pupils and their mothers were invited to a special meeting at the Rawdon District High School when the work of Grade 9 was discussed by the various teachers.

Edmund Fleming, a member of the Stirling Public School staff was engaged Monday evening as principal at the school for 1965-66 term at a salary of $5000. The resignation of principal Ernest Scott to take effect in June necessitated this change. Mr. Scott has accepted a position as geography teacher on the staff of Crestwood Secondary School, Peterborough and will begin his duties in September.

Degree captain Farley Parnell and his staff of the Stirling Encampment No. 80 have conferred the Golden Rule degree at three encampments this past week. The team with other lodge members have visited Tweed Encampment, Willowdale in District 16 and Napanee.

Gordon Appering of the River Valley community displayed his own make of costume jewellry and his large rock collection at the April meeting of St. Paul's United Church A.O.T.S. Men's Club. His address on these two collections was both interesting and informative. Rev. Bruce Small conducted the devotional and Russell Rupert was sgt.-at-arms.

Williams, Sidney township resident who teaches at the Ontario School for the Deaf, is writing two examinations, Spanish and English 4 which is a course covering all of Shakespeare's works. Mr. James Palmer is also writing this examination. Extramural students write the same examinations as those students enrolled in the regular university curriculum. Some courses are taught by lecturers from the university who teach at Quinte Secondary School every second night throughout the season. Subjects may be studied at the university during the summer, but at least three courses must be taken at the university. Fifteen courses form a Bachelor of Arts degree.

SOUVENIR TO TREASURE

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Two London youths, Michael Dawdy and George Jenney, both 12, borrowed $500 each from their parents and went to Sir Winston Churchill's funeral, to pay their respects as ordinary Canadians. They brought back as a souvenir that potted trophy, a London bobby's helmet. After patiently asking a number of policemen, they found a friendly sergeant who let them buy his spare one.

GOOD MOISTURE RESERVES — Good rains falls last year and heavy winter snow on the Prairies means moisture conditions this spring that could lead to a bumper wheat crop. In most of the grain-growing areas of the three Prairie provinces moisture conditions are above normal. This applies even in many traditionally dry southern areas. THE STORY OF A DEMONSTRATION — This is the start of a civil demonstration in Montgomery, Ala., recorded in pictures by Lynn Ball of The Canadian Press. About 40 placard-carrying Negroes and whites begin a walk on the road around the Alabama capitol building. (CP Photo)

FRUSTRATIONS START — The demonstrators stop every few yards to ask state troopers to move so they can picket on the sidewalk. They say there are told by city police it is dangerous to walk on the road, but they are met only by cold stares from the truncheon-armed troopers who ring the capitol. (CP Photo)

CITY POLICE ARRIVE — The squeeze tightens as city police arrive on motorcycles. The deputy chief says the group will be arrested unless it gets off the road. The state troopers still won't budge from the sidewalk. (CP Photo)

Some Racial Demonstrations Caught Up in Squeeze Play

Lynn Ball of The Canadian Press, a photographer, spent a weekend in Montgomery, Ala., recently and made a camera record of a racial demonstration. This is his story.

By LYNN BALL

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (CP)—Not all racial demonstrations in Alabama end in club-swinging violence.

Some wind up caught in a squeeze play. State troopers won't let the demonstrators on the sidewalk. City police won't let them stay on the road.

With the two alternatives closed off and not wanting to withdraw, they're then loaded into paddy wagons and taken off to jail.

This was the pattern of one demonstration in the Alabama capital one recent weekend.

The 40 demonstrators, some white, filed out of a meeting hall in the Negro district of Montgomery. They were led by two youths, one Negro, one white.

Carrying placards with such slogans as "One man one vote, freedom now," they quietly set out for the Capitol.

The building, which covers an area about the size of two city blocks, was surrounded by state troopers.

The demonstrators made a complete circuit, stopping every few yards to ask the troops to move so they could picket on the sidewalk.

'WILL YOU MOVE'

"Sir, will you please move so I can walk on the sidewalk?" asked the young Negro leader.

No comment from the trooper.

"But sir, Governor Wallace says I can walk on the sidewalk, the sheriff says I can walk on the sidewalk and the chief of police says it's dangerous for me to be out here on the road."

Met by nothing but cold stares, the demonstrators made several attempts to squeeze through but were turned back by the troopers standing shoulder to shoulder, their clubs held in both hands in front of them.

They were starting their second circuit when city police arrived on motorcycles. The deputy chief approached the two leaders and told them they would be arrested if they didn't get off the road.

After several more unsuccessful attempts to breach the lines of troopers, paddy wagons drove up. The demonstrators climbed quietly into the wagons singing freedom songs and were driven off.

The Albury Sunday School held a penny bingo at the home of Miss Marjorie Peck with a good crowd in attendance. Proceeds for the evening were over $18.

THE CLEAN-UP — The demonstrators make several more attempts to breach the lines, but then climb quietly into paddy wagons and are driven away singing freedom songs. The demonstration has been broken up as thoroughly as if the troopers had charged with horses and teargas. (CP Photo)

U. S. WILL STEP UP VIET NAM WAR

Must Destroy South Viet Nam To Reunify Land, China Says

TOKYO (AP)—China said today South Viet Nam must be destroyed as a "product of U.S. imperialism" so that all Viet Nam can be reunified.

"There can be no compromise between the Vietnamese people and the U.S. aggressors on this question," said the Chinese Communist party newspaper, the Peking People's Daily.

Attacking President Johnson's April 17 statement that the United States insists that the independence of South Viet Nam be guaranteed, Peking said:

"The very purpose for which the South Vietnamese people are fighting at great sacrifice to themselves is to destroy completely this so - called 'independent country,' a product of U.S. imperialism, and to realize the reunification and complete liberation of their fatherland.

"So long as this so-called 'independent country' created by the U.S. exists, there can be no complete reunification nor a completely independent country for the Vietnamese people themselves. There can be no compromise between the Vietnamese people and the U.S. aggressors on this question."

The People's Daily charged that the United States "has gradually turned South Viet Nam into its colony, and military base and clamped a most brutal fascist rule on the region."

Recalling the coups of recent years, it continued:

"Finding Ngo Dinh Diem not to its liking, the United States murdered him; finding Nguyen Khanh not to its liking either, it removed him from office. Saigon has become the stage of ceaseless palace upheaval, with a reshuffle every day and a coup d'etat every other day.

Nobody is clear what sort of people constitute the present government of this so-called 'independent country'."

The paper said Johnson's statement "amounts to a declaration that the aim of the U.S. aggression in South Viet Nam is unalterable and that the U.S. is determined to hang on in South Viet Nam and carry on its war of aggression against Viet Nam."

Pentagon Chief Gives Decision Of Hawaii Meet

Will Increase Activity In Air and at Sea Too

WASHINGTON (CP - AP) — Defence Secretary McNamara says United States air and sea action against North Viet Nam will be stepped up.

The Pentagon chief spoke to reporters Tuesday night in Honolulu after two days of conferences on the Viet Nam war. He then headed home.

McNamara also said he assumes Russian missiles eventually will be sent to North Viet Nam, but they are not known to be there now.

Last week reports reached Washington that a Russian anti-aircraft missile site was being constructed near Hanoi, the North Viet Nam capital. Last Friday, a state department spokesman said such a site appeared to be in preparation near Hanoi, but other officials said there was no evidence that any Soviet missiles had reached North Viet Nam.

When the Soviet missile question was put to McNamara, he replied:

"We have no specific information whether surface-to-air missiles are in North Viet Nam, but we must assume they will eventually be introduced into that country."

WILL BE INCREASED

On the question of U.S. assistance to South Viet Nam, McNamara said aid will be increased above originally planned levels."

"We must seek to overcome the strategic disadvantage the South Vietnamese have versus the Viet Cong in terms of traditional guerrilla-to-guerrilla action by adding to the mobility and firepower of these forces."

Specifically, he said more helicopter and close air support is required. He would not say whether more U.S. combat troops will be sent to South Viet Nam.

There are about 31,000 American military men in the South-east Asian country, including a marine brigade of 6,000.

McNamara said greater deployment of the U.S. Navy is needed because the new routes are used by North Viet Nam to infiltrate men and equipment into the south.

"U.S. naval forces will continue to operate outside territorial waters, where they will note and detect suspicious vessels, will follow them, will report them to the South Vietnamese Navy, who will follow them into South Viet Nam territorial waters and inspect them."

He said the U.S. also will give South Viet Nam more small craft for this purpose.

DIEF GIVES VIEW

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker criticized Prime Minister Pearson Tuesday night for his recent speech in Philadelphia that called for a pause at the right time in air strikes against North Viet Nam. Mr. Diefenbaker said in a television interview any advice to the United States should be given quietly and not openly.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sooner or later China and the Soviet Union will have to make good on their threats to send people to fight in the Vietnamese war unless peace talks bring expansion of the fighting to a sudden halt.

Intensive efforts to arrange peace talks now appear to have broken down. The prospect is that instead of being slowed by diplomacy the conflict will go on several months with Chinese and some Soviet fighters until it is becoming involved.

These are the major trends on the military and diplomatic fronts as analyzed and projected by some of the best-informed Washington authorities.

In a sense the conflict with the U.S. government's official optimistic public posture on the prospects of peace. The cheerful facade seems to help keep open avenues for negotiations and damps down foreign pressures on the United States to cut its forces for peace.

Behind the wreckage of many recent peace manoeuvres lies a conviction on one side in the conflict that it can still win its major objectives.

U.S. air strikes have not persuaded North Viet Nam it must abandon efforts to take over South Viet Nam and warnings of war with China—even threats of Soviet "volunteers"—have not shaken President Johnson's expressed determination to defend South Viet Nam.

LATEST WARNING

The latest of these warnings came Tuesday. A Beijing broadcast declared that China's standing committee of the National Peoples Congress had conditionally called on all organizations in the country "to make full preparations to send their own people to fight together with Vietnamese people and drive out the U.S. aggressors."

This announcement followed by 24 hours an announcement from Hanoi that North Viet Nam's Communist government had rejected an appeal from 17 nonaligned countries to enter peace talks without preconditions.

State Secretary Dean Rusk commented that "we have heard those threats before."

U.S. officials have considered the initiative of the 17 countries particularly important, but North Viet Nam's rejection put an end to that effort. Even more significant was that this was the latest of many efforts undertaken by the United Nations, France, Britain and other countries interested in trying to avoid a big Southeast Asian war.

HEARING POSTPONED

TORONTO (CP) — The preliminary hearing of Solly Budd, 28, a Toronto businessman charged on three counts of fraud, was postponed Tuesday to May 19. Budd is charged with fraud in connection with the promotion of a bolt-like device called Dynavac, claimed to increase gasoline mileage if screwed into a vehicle's crankcase.

Johnson's action undoubtedly reflects the feelings of many Americans who are getting fed up seeing United States lambasted by countries which have received U.S. help.

History may decide that U.S., in playing meek nurse-maid to countries who bopped to keep away from communism with American aid, pursued far too long a policy far too soft and injurious to itself.

Soldiers Moved Into Emerson To Fight Flood

Will Throw Barrier Around the Hospital

WINNIPEG (CP)—Forty soldiers and 45,000 sandbags were moved into flood-menaced Emerson Tuesday night as the southern Manitoba town prepared to ward off a stiff punch from the swollen Red River.

The soldiers will join other volunteers in throwing a sandbag barrier around the community's 18-bed hospital, general store, hotel and telephone office. The hospital has been evacuated, with only a skeleton staff still on duty. Emerson is about 75 miles south of Winnipeg.

Forecasts are for two-third of the town of 820 residents to be inundated when the Red bulges to its crest Saturday. The same day awaits Morris, a town of 1,130 residents, about 25 miles downstream.

But flooding in Emerson and Morris will likely be less severe than predicted last week. In a revised forecast, Premier Duff Roblin announced Tuesday that the Red will peak lower than first anticipated and will crest a few days later.

PEAK FORECAST

Mr. Roblin said a peak of 781 feet above sea level now was expected on the Red at Emerson. Previously a peak of 783 feet was forecast.

At Morris, a crest of 775 feet, down two, was forecast for Sunday. The next day a crest of 773 feet above sea level was expected at Winnipeg.

Manitoba authorities revised their forecast after the United States weather bureau did the same. The bureau warned indications are for 50 inches of rain sometime Saturday at 49 feet at Pembina, near the Manitoba border.

The revised U.S. estimates shattered optimism in Emerson. Last week Mayor Leonard Careless and a number of people in the town doubted Manitoba forecasts of serious flooding. But Tuesday the town council held an emergency meeting and decided to call for help.

Residents, flanked by volunteers from nearby communities, started work on protective dikes.

ROME 2,718 YEARS OLD

ROME (Reuters) — Rome Wednesday celebrated its 2,718th birthday, according to the legend that twins founded the city on Palatine Hill in 753 B.C. Rome's colors—purple and gold—fluttered over streets and squares.

Flu Virus Causes 3 Deaths

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Harold B. Cotnam, Ontario's supervising coroner, warned Tuesday that persons in the Barrie-Midland area 30 miles north of Toronto should see a doctor at the first sign of respiratory trouble.

His warning came after three deaths in the region were linked to a mysterious influenza virus.

The deaths occurred during the last four months and Dr. Cotnam emphasized they did not indicate an epidemic.

But he said the virus apparently results in quick death unless there is medical treatment in initial stages.

Cause of the three deaths was detected by Dr. R. J. Forbes, a pathologist at Barrie's Royal Victoria Hospital, after autopsies.

The first death was that of a 16-year-old girl who collapsed on a street last December; the second victim was a three-year-old boy who died three weeks ago; and the third victim, a nine-year-old boy, died Monday.

NEEDN'T PANIC

Dr. Forbes said Tuesday night there was no cause for panic.

"I didn't mean to start a public outcry," he said, "but my phone has been ringing all afternoon."

He said he reported the deaths to Dr. Cotnam after noting similarities in the three cases. Dr. Isaac Weldon, Midland coroner, had asked for autopsies because the deaths were unexpected.

Dr. Forbes said the type of virus had not been identified.

Dr. Cotnam said injections of penicillin, or chloromycetin appear to be the best medication.

"The oral use of the drug proves too slow," he explained.

He has asked public health officials in Barrie and Midland to watch for virus when treating patients with respiratory ailments.

Today's Chuckle

Most things wear out with constant use. A bad temper seems to be the exception.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: There appears to be little chance of achieving seasonable temperatures either today or Thursday. A broad band of cloud stretching from James Bay to Lake Superior and Lake Michigan will move through the district today, giving wet snow to the far north and some rain to the rest of the forecast district today and tonight. Behind this band of cloud unseasonable cool air will spread southward over the province.

Name Of Dead Man Used

TORONTO (CP) — A stockbroker testified Tuesday John Campbell, former director of the Ontario Securities commission, traded in shares of Windfall Oils and Mines Limited but failed to say he was "selling short."

Harry Richardson said he knew Toronto SVTCK Exchange rules "require admission that short sales are being made. Selling short involves selling stock you don't own, hoping its price will descend so you can buy it back at a lower price and make a profit thereby.

Commission Counsel Patrick Hartt elicited testimony that Mr. Campbell had traded Windfall shares in four different names. Mr. Richardson said he found by accident that one name—Colin Hunter—was fictitious.

Mr. Hartt asked if Mr. Richardson's curiosity had been aroused. Mr. Richardson replied that he took Mr. Campbell's transactions to be in the ordinary course of business, and added:

"This was a very busy period."

ASKED FOR NAME

Mr. Richardson testified that he asked Mr. Campbell to produce the name of a living person to replace the name Colin Hunter. "He didn't seem to be able to come up with another name and he asked me to supply one and I did."

The name Edward Boyer was substituted. Mr. Richardson said Mr. Boyer had allowed his name to be used as a nominee by others.

The royal commission under Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly of the Ontario Court of Appeal is investigating a reorganization in Windfall share prices last July in which the price was fixed at 50 cents and then fell to 30 cents on the TSE.

In other testimony Tuesday J. Forbes McFarland, member of the Ontario Securities Commission, testified the commission unwittingly released an erroneous press statement on Windfall because Windfall officials hadn't provided sufficient information.

The press release of last July 25 said the company had done no assays on a drill core taken from the Timmins - area property in Northern Ontario.

SHOWED NO ASSAYS MADE

Testimony given before the royal commission previously showed no assays had been made on the drill core earlier in July.

Mr. McFarland said the press release had been written after commission members met with

Calls 'Small' High School of 500 Students As Obsolete as Little Red Schoolhouse

TORONTO (CP) — The very large high school and the very large school system are here to stay, George Flowar, director of graduate studies at the Ontario College of Education, said Tuesday.

He was addressing a meeting of the Ontario Secondary School Headmasters Association convention.

Dr. Flower said the school of the future will be large but made up of small units to preserve close student-staff relations.

The small high school of 200 to 500 students is as obsolete as the little red schoolhouse, he said.

The headmasters differed on the value of team teaching, which some schools have been trying out.

Hugh Vallery, principal of Toronto's Monarch Park Secondary school, said his teachers and students seem to prefer it.

But James Wyllie, principal of Toronto's Junior Collegiate Institute, said he dropped the system after two years and H. L. Willis, assistant superintendent of Ottawa secondary schools, said that after three years only three of Ottawa's 21 secondary schools are using the system.

In team teaching, a member of the team gives a lecture to several classes grouped together. Individual teachers then take groups of seven to 12 students for intensive seminar work. In the seminars the students read papers based on their research in the school library.

Mr. Vallery said the system costs more but teaches better.

Mr. Willis said students could

LBJ May Prove To Be Real Hard-Nose But Evidence Not Conclusive

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson, who has served only three months of his four-year presidential term, could wind up being the toughest president in years in matters of foreign policy.

What he did in foreign affairs between the time he succeeded President Kennedy Nov. 22, 1963, and when he was sworn in on his own last Jan. 20 can't be taken as a yardstick.

In that period he had no real crisis, there was an election coming, and he wasn't about to supply the opposition with ammunition.

Then, within a month after beginning his own term, he decided Feb. 7 to bomb North Viet Nam. He has kept the bombing going ever since despite criticism and even though it could lead to conflict with Russia and China.

Since no other problem in the last three months has required such drastic action, this one example is not enough evidence on which to build a case for a hard-nosed man in the White House.

It is hard to say whether he was being tough or just rough in the way he recently handled the prime minister of India and the president of Pakistan, both of whom were to visit here soon.

He cancelled their visits so abruptly that The Associated Press reported from India that the prime minister was deemed publicly disgraced.

The White House said Johnson was going to be too busy with Viet Nam and Congress to receive the visitors who are next-door neighbors in Asia, but not friendly ones.

But The AP reported from India it is generally believed there that Johnson cancelled the trips to show his displeasure with India and Pakistan, both of whom have received U.S. aid, for their criticism of the U.S.

If this was the real reason it will mark a turning point in American foreign policy...

Hunter-Farmer Relations Big Problem in District

Farmers and landowners have every right to deny hunters permission to hunt on their property - but they should post notices to this effect, the Belleville Fish and Game Club was told last night.

Russ Whitfield, chief of wildlife, Toronto headquarters of the Department of Lands and Forests, said that farmer-hunter relations in this district have had their "ups and downs."

"Some farmers and landowners have taken the matter of hunter trespassing into their own hands," said Mr. Whitfield.

Some have been known to take away hunters' licenses and guns after the hunter has refused to leave the property.

"This is not the correct solution," Mr. Whitfield said. "Farmers should realize that the proper authorities can keep anybody off their property."

"If they do not want hunters or anybody trespassing on their property, they should post notices to this effect," the speaker said.

The Department of Lands and Forests does not like to enforce the Trespass Act, but the Ontario Provincial Police will if deficiency of the force in this respect has resulted in the increase in fines.

"And hunters" Mr. Whitfield pointed out "should not go on private property until they receive permission of the owner. This is very important."

Turning to farm and hunting Mr. Whitfield said it is a nice thing for a parent to give his son a rifle but also a serious matter since the rifle is an offensive weapon.

It is all right for hunters to give guns to their sons but along with the gift should go training in the use of firearms. There is no better teacher than a hunter-father, the speaker said.

ASK PERMISSION

"Hunting courses are good," he added, "but they do not take the carelessness out of people. I advise the young hunter to go out with an experienced adult and get the benefit of his experience. It would help in reducing accidents."

Speaking to the large number of junior members present, Mr. Whitfield urged them to do the right thing. "Always ask permission to hunt on property."

The Department of Agriculture, he said, "will pay for any farm animals shot or other damage caused because of careless hunting — but they also want the fellow that did it."

He also urged the youngsters to respect private property, and not hunt on posted areas.

On closing, Mr. Whitfield offered a word to property owners. "The OPP will co-operate with everybody. Owners should order trespassers off their property. If they do not leave — call the OPP. They will look after it."

Three interesting films were shown to the members present, a smaller number than usual because of the Leafs and Pro-hockey game.

Clinton Grills, R. R. 6 Belleville, was awarded the grand prize of the evening, a rubber dinghy completely equipped.

Swimming Pool To Be Opened On June 26th

The seasonal opening of the Kinsmen Memorial Swimming Pool is still two months away, but already staff has been hired and plans are underway for the annual clean-up, paint-up program prior to the pool going into use.

Jim Collins, pool supervisor over the past three years, has been retained for another season and reported today that 1965 full-time lifeguards and swimming instructors had been hired. In addition there will be part time guard and check-room personnel.

A complete paint job for the pool, for the check rooms and change house, is being planned, while new safety buoys and other equipment is being purchased.

The pool will officially open for the season on June 26, while registration for swimming classes will start on June 30th.

Printers Refuse To Cross Picket Lines

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore News-American announced that it was suspending its operations after Tuesday's meeting, because printers and truck drivers "have refused to cross the . . . picket lines and report for work at the Sunpapers plant."

The announcement, made by William H. Mills, general manager of the newspaper, only Baltimore competitor to the Sunpapers, said The News and the Sun have a joint contract with the two trade unions involved, and the "News-American can deems such a refusal a violation of the joint contracts . . ."

Members of the American Newspaper Guild went on strike against the Sunpapers Saturday and the company was forced to suspend its publication after Monday's meeting at which time printers and truck drivers refused to cross the guild picket lines.

72 Per Cent Of Comic-strip Readers Adults

NEW YORK (AP) — Newspaper publishers looked Tuesday for new ways to attract younger readers — particularly on hearing a report that "72 per cent of all comic-strip readers are adults."

The figure was given by Tom C. Harris, general manager of the St. Petersburg, Fla., Times and Evening Independent, at a "shop talk" session of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

"This should suggest to us that we take a new look at our comic and adventure strips and pages and see if we have gone too adult," Harris said.

He reported that about 40 per cent of the entire population of the United States is 19 years of age or younger and about 50 per cent is 25 or younger.

ITS NEVER TOO EARLY

"With pre-school age children already literate to radio and viewing television, I do not believe we can start too early to attract their attention to the newspaper," Harris said.

One major newspaper which he did not name found that only 14.1 per cent of 1,025 youngsters interviewed regarded the newspaper as first choice as a favorite source of news and information. Radio was top choice, TV second.

"In this same poll, youngsters said they read comics first, fashion news second and radio and TV news third. Hard news came in a poor fifth."

Harris said girls want more teen - age fashion articles, beauty hints, hairdo styles and fads; boys want more high school and pro sports.

Girls and boys both, he said, want less news about declinquents and more about constructive and worthwhile projects for teen-agers, and more about career openings and college requirements and costs.

Sophia Loren And Producer Face Charges

ROME (AP)—Actress Sophia Loren and movie producer Carlo Ponti were ordered today to stand trial in a Rome court July 6 on bigamy charges.

They were originally charged in June, 1962, but no trial date was set pending the outcome of other legal action on their tangled marriage case.

Ponti, who was married previously, was charged with bigamy. Miss Loren, not previously married, was charged with complicity in bigamy.

The producer and Miss Loren could receive prison terms of up to five years if convicted. They have been free pending trial.

Action on the criminal charges was held up while a civil court decided the status of their Mexican proxy marriage in 1957.

In February the Italian civil court, accepting the stand of the state prosecutor and rejecting the Ponti-Loren arguments, ruled that the Mexican proxy marriage was null because Ponti already was married at the time.

Ponti and Miss Loren had argued the proxy marriage was never valid and they therefore were never married. They presented a 1962 Mexican court ruling that the wedding was invalid for technical reasons because some papers were not properly filled out.

The civil court ruling cleared the way for today's setting of a trial date for the bigamy action.

Shastri Renews Demands U. S. Stop Air Raids

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Shastri Tuesday night renewed his demand that the United States stop air attacks on North Viet Nam. This was interpreted as Shastri's way of standing up to President Johnson because Johnson asked him to postpone his visit to Washington.

Shastri told a reception of the Indian - Soviet cultural society that a halt in the bombing was necessary to create the atmosphere needed for peace talks. If the bombing continues, he said, Johnson's acceptance of the non - aligned nations' proposals for unconditional talks is pointless.

Editorial writers congratulated the prime minister. One said he had "added to his stature" by reacting with dignity to what was called an American insult—the postponement of his Washington visit.

Phoney Calls To Elmer Street Started Again

The crank - call rash has broken out again on Belleville's Elmer Street.

Today a taxi company and the city fire department fell victim to bogus calls and despatched units to the street in the Coleman Flats area.

The outbreak was a moderate recurrence of last week's plague of crank phone calls that turned the street topsy-turvy with traffic in a 24-hour period.

The only identification so far is that the culprit is a woman.

Today, one of the housewives whose address was used for a taxi call said she believed the gremlin was an Elmer Street resident.

"After the newspaper report appeared on the things happening last week, a woman called my neighbor and told her: 'You know I'm watching your houses all the time and you haven't seen anything yet.'"

Police have begun cautioning service enterprises to check back on any call received from the Elmer Street area.

Some businesses already have put the measure into practice.

First Russian Vessel Enters Great Lakes

CORNWALL (CP)—The Russian freighter Mitchurinsk, first Soviet ship to sail the St. Lawrence Seaway, cleared the American locks opposite here today after a five-hour United States customs examination and another long holdup by fog.

The 10,000-ton ship headed upriver for Toronto and Hamilton, the remainder of her inbound voyage through Canadian waters.

The U.S. customs, border patrol and coast guard all had a hand in shepherding the Mitchurinsk through U.S. water including the Snell and Eisenhower locks near Massena, N.Y., across the St. Lawrence River from here.

After clearing the locks at Montreal yesterday, she arrived at 8:20 p.m. Tuesday at the Snell Lock. The U.S. customs gave her what was described as the kind of search any Russian ship would get in a U.S. port. MORE

Tenders Called For Overpass On New Road

TRENTON — The members of Murray township council, meeting Monday afternoon in, were told that tenders for the construction of a railway overpass on the new development road, south of the Telephone Road, had been called and all tenders received will be opened at a special meeting of council May 7. Besides council, representatives of the Ontario Department of Highways and the township engineer, George Totten will be at this meeting.

The overpass project is a big one. Ten thousand yards of granular fill will be required; 71,000 cubic yards of dirt; 6500 tons of asphalt; 871 cubic yards of cement; 15 pre-stressed beams, 72 feet long.

The only identification so far is that the culprit is a woman.

The overpass will be the first step in the 1965 program to complete the road from the Macdonald-Cartier Highway to Highway 33. A contract for the completion of the road between the Telephone Rd. and Highway 33 (with a great deal of the work being on virgin soil), will be let later.

Township clerk Angus Gunter said today the overpass on the new development road would be one of three built in the township this summer, one overpass is to go on the Macdonald-Cartier highway, on the town line between Murray and Brighton township, approximately one mile west of the service centre and another on the county road, east of Highway 30, will replace a level crossing.

Mr. Gunter says that while it appears to be certain the Ontario government Centennial Committee will approve the new township municipal building as a Centennial project, there has been no word yet of the expected $10,000 grant towards the $30,000 project.

Present at the meeting were Reeve Douglas McMaster, deputy reeve Gerald Ross and councillors Leo McAuley, Ray Williams and Harry Lafferty.

Councillor Williams drew laughter from his fellow councillors when he explained that he was late for the meeting because he "got stuck in the mud."

Mr. Williams said some "kids" had helped him push his car out. He asked that the road superintendent grade the road near his home.

Trenton Council Briefs

TRENTON — Trenton council has voted to carry out the following works under the Water Works' program, which has been extended to May 31. (1) the continuation of the Front Street river wall; (2) installing a drainage pipe in the Ontario Street iron yards, (3) installing of storm sewer in Fairview Crescent, (4) reconstruction of Dufferin Ave., between Dundas Street West and Henry St.

Town engineer Eric Aldersey has been instructed to draw up specifications for a contract controlling the landfill site, south of the Community Gardens and tenders for salvage rights will be called.

The engineer will also design plans and produce estimates for the cost of providing storm sewers in the Louis St. area.

Council has accepted the proposed Downs-Coulter sub-division on Dufferin Ave., provided the developer agrees to finish the roads with a two-inch covering of hot mix asphalt and the parks' board rules on the location of a five percent parks' allowance in the sub-division.

In future, no sub-division plan will be approved by council without providing adequate roads for asphalt pavements.

Clerk comptroller O. W. Larry has been asked to submit to council a report on the measures necessary to control development in the older sub-divided areas where no services exist. This is to prevent council from becoming involved in large expenditures in providing such services.

Immediate steps are to be taken to replace the pumping unit at Elmwood Acres. The old pumping unit has become ineffectual and money has been provided for its replacement in the current budget.

Meanwhile, council will take immediate steps to dispose of four lots in Elmwood Acres, which were set aside for parks' allowance, but which the parks' board says are not needed for this purpose in this area.

The town will enter into a deal with the principals of the Trenton Cold Storage to "swap" a strip of town-owned land for equivalent property in return for which the company will build a retaining wall from the waterfront dock to the east limit of the land. The wall will be built to specifications supplied by the engineer. The company will also extend the existing storm sewer outlet out into the river beyond the area in question.

Trenton council Monday night also approved the sale of 15 acres of land to the Domtar in-crete on Marmora Street North.

CPR and CNR officials were also given the nod to relocate tracks and level crossings in the Ontario-James and Peter Street areas. The railways are moving tracks to make way for the new bridge across the Trent River.

Council will get a competitive price for the installation of a two - way radio book up in one of the fire department's trucks.

The Motorola Company has submitted an estimate of $780, and 45 per cent of this would be refundable to the town under the Emergency Measures Organization Act. However, it was thought prices should be secured from other companies before a decision was made.

And the clerk comptroller is to contact all newspaper companies and ask that carriers be told to dispose waste paper in boxes supplied by the companies. Complaints have come in from residents on King Street and First Ave.

Council Feels Highway Work Is a 'Must'

TRENTON—Trenton council will explore the possibility of carrying out the reconstruction of the underground services and roadway on Dundas Street East, between Bay Street and the town bridge this summer. Last year, council decided that very little if anything could be attempted in the way of capital works for the next four years owing to the commitment in school construction, but council feels work on this strip of Highway 2 is almost a "must" and that now is the time to do it, since the Ketchenson and Street blocks, (destroyed by fire, early this month) will not be built up until late summer or early autumn.

The Ontario Department of Highways will be asked to approve the work under a connecting link agreement and council may have the funds outside the government grant from the Municipal Loan Fund. Under the connecting link agreement, the province would pay 75 per cent of construction costs.

Meanwhile, the town will advertise its intention of installing a Cost is in the neighborhood of $7,000.

VON Sets Dates for Tagging

TRENTON — Clifford Miller, the president of the Trenton branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses, announced at a branch meeting last night that tag days this year would be June 3 and 4.

Mr. Miller said James Giles would head up the tag days in Middleton Park and that volunteer taggers in this area were needed.

Meanwhile, plans are completed for the VON spring tea which will be held at the Bayron Street home of Dr. and Mrs. W. A. L. McDonald, April 28.

One of the VON nurses, G. C. Onyette, has resigned, because she and her family are leaving Trenton.

A student nurse from the University of Ottawa will spend three weeks in May assisting the nurse-in-charge, Miss Mary Margaret Gillies.

Miss Gillies reported that she and her assistants had made 145 visits during March. She said attendance at the Thursday child health conferences is falling off and ways and means of encouraging mothers to bring their children for check-ups were discussed.

No immunization clinics will be held during July and August this year. These are for pre-school children and are held each month in the Community Gardens. Pre-natal classes will be discontinued for the season next week.

Miss Gillies said she had lectured CGIT girls in March, and also Grades 7, 8 and 10 at St. Peter's School.

Strange Situation

The so-called bi-partisan approach to the formulation of foreign policy in the United States has produced the strange spectacle of a leading Democrat suggesting a revision of the Johnson Administration's policy in Viet Nam and a leading Republican defending the administration.

Senator J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate's foreign relations committee, has suggested a temporary suspension of air attacks on North Viet Nam targets Fulbright is a Democrat. His proposal is much like that advanced by Prime Minister L. B. Pearson while on a visit to the U.S.

The Republican leader in the Senate, Everett Dirksen, has opposed Fulbright's suggestion and endorsed President Johnson's plans for keeping continual and unremitting pressure on the North Vietnamese.

All this will seem very strange to Canadians, and to those citizens of other countries with a parliamentary system, under which government policies must receive the support of a majority of the legislative bodies and are almost invariably supported by members of the governing party and attacked by the opposition parties.

The vital thing, though, is that policies should be exposed to criticism and the painstaking consideration which such criticism generally produces. The source of this criticism is not so important. As long as there are members with Senator Fulbright's courage and independence of mind, prepared to speak out against the policies advocated by the high command of their own party, the vital safeguard of discussion and consideration will be provided.

There will be many, though, who will believe that occasional obstructionism is a small price to pay for a built-in guarantee in our own system that this necessary examination and criticism will take place.

Meanwhile, many people will be easier in their minds at the reassurance Senator Fulbright's attitude has provided that the tremendously complex problems inherent in the situation in Southeast Asia are not being glossed over under the mistaken belief that the presentation of the appearance of national unity is more important than the airing of differences of opinion regarding the best course to follow.

Pesticides in Milk

No milk available in any part of the United States today is free from the residues of pesticides. This is the finding of the investigative staff of a subcommittee of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Perhaps, the same thing is not true in Canada. There may be some areas where scientific farming has not taken such a firm hold and where none of the food consumed by cows has been exposed to any chemical. This, though, will hardly hold true for the Quinte district, nor for any other area where farmers supply large urban markets.

There seems to be no conclusive evidence that pesticide residues in foods, in the quantities discovered after normal use of these pesticides, are harmful to human beings in normal health. Reassurance on this point comes in a blazing manner. Samples of mothers' milk contained pesticide residues in excess of those permitted in cows' milk, and babies consuming mothers' milk suffered no apparent harmful effects. There have been cases, though, where pesticide residues are believed to have had a harmful effect on people suffering from liver disease which enhanced the effect of the residues. And, of course, there are frequent instances of pesticide residues in foods eaten by insects killing these insects.

These findings point to a potentially dangerous situation.

So far, little or no harm seems to have come to humans from the proper use of pesticides. But is there any real assurance that this happy situation will continue ad infinitum? The thalidomide story suggests that there is not. Sometime in the future we may get an unpleasant surprise—and since almost everybody is ingesting residues of the various pesticides used on our fields and in our orchards, when this surprise comes its effects are likely to be extremely widespread.

Those who agree with this attitude will find comforting the experiments being conducted by the Federal Department of Agriculture's research institute here, in which other methods of pest control besides the use of chemicals to kill them are being investigated.

Many Useful Words Are Never Used

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I was planning to write a column about the amazing seals I saw last month in Miami's Seaquarium, and I actually began a paragraph about their "phonic antics."

Then I tore it up because most readers would have to look up "phocine," and would blame me for using a rare word, even though that is the only proper one to describe seal-like behavior.

There are hundreds upon hundreds of fine words, with precise and distinct meanings, that are never used in speech or writing; either because we are unaware of them, or because we are ashamed of being thought verbally pretentious. This is a great loss of verbal resources.

There are two classes of "difficult" words. One class consists of words that have satisfactory synonyms: there is no reason, except showing-off, for me to write "obverse" when I mean "plentiful," or to write "esurience" when I mean "greedy hunger." It is pedantic to try to impress anyone in this silly fashion.

But the other class of difficult words consists of those which have no real synonyms. If I want to describe something shaped like a beak, I must say "rampbird," or use four words instead of one; if I want to say "not capable of being mingled," I must say "immiscible," or use five words instead of one.

After I tore up the paragraph on "phocine antics," I made up a little mental list of words I know but have never used in 20 years of writing this column largely because I did not want to be considered a show-off intellectual. Yet my cowardice in this respect has prevented many people from learning new words that might be useful and time-saving.

"Orectic," is a lost word, meaning "pertaining to the desires." "Orguline" means "resembling the rattlesnake." "Mateurism" is "joy in another's felicity." "Comose" means "bearing a tuft of soft hairs."

Something that is "uricant" produces "itching or stinging." "Cibarial" means "pertaining to food." "Creotechnics" are "the useful arts." "Neatherapy" is "treatment by reducing the amount of food. "Imbricate" means "lying lapped over each other in regular order," like slates on a roof.

"Enation" is "kinship on the mother's side." "Rechibition" is "the return of merchandise for cash because of defect." "Ergasie" is "a disposition toward work." "Shotty" means "hard and round." "Arenoid" is "resembling sand." "Optative" is "something to be desired."

Thousands of other such words lie rusting away in the dictionary, of interest only to philologists. By failing to exploit the full potential of our language, we not only become dull, vague and verbose in our expression; we also fail to develop the muscles of communication.

No Proven Danger in Using Saccharin Instead of Sugar

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: A year ago I began using saccharin instead of sugar. I like a lot of coffee, so this made quite a difference in calories and helped me stabilize my weight at a normal figure.

A pharmacist told me that saccharin had produced cancer in laboratory animals and that I should avoid it. Then I asked another pharmacist who said this was absolutely untrue as saccharin was coal tar, and if it produced cancer, diabetics would acquire cancer from its use. To ease my mind I decided to ask you. — Mrs. W. B.

Saccharin isn't coal tar — but chemically it is a derivative, just as some other products are: Perfume, dyes, many drugs, etc.

Some coal tar derivatives, when applied constantly or in tremendous concentrations, can cause cancer, but I have never heard that saccharin has done this, nor perfume, nor many other products derived from the same source.

True, a certain irritating chemical has been used in laboratories because, when painted on a small animal's skin in heavy concentration, it causes cancer if the animal has been forced to be sensitive to such an irritant.

But that chemical isn't saccharin. Or many other things.

Over the years saccharin has been used by people with diabetes, not to mention all the others who have used it just to cut down on calories. If any danger were involved we would have seen it by now.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband had a heart attack a year ago. He is progressing well, but doctor tells us it is all right for him to eat eggs, yet so many people say they are not good for him as they build cholesterol. Please explain. — Puzzled

Don't ask me to explain why people go around saying eggs aren't good for you.

If your husband is eating 40 eggs a day, better tell him to cow down.

That's too many eggs. But if you mean he is eating one or two a day, that is entirely reasonable.

Of course, egg yolk contains cholesterol. Some cholesterol is necessary in the body. The main point is whether the cholesterol level gets too high.

So depend on your doctor's advice and don't be alarmed at what is told to you by people who are demonstrating the adage that "a little knowledge is a dangerous thing."

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain lipomas. What causes them? Could it be high cholesterol? Is surgical removal always necessary? If not, why? Do lipomas sometimes dissolve or regress of their own accord? If so, why? — Mrs. R.

You ask more "whys" than I can answer. Lipomas are fatty tumors — growth of fatty tissue into lumps. We don't know why. We have no reason to think that cholesterol has anything to do with them. They do not regress as a rule but may become smaller if there is a great weight loss.

There is no way of removing them except by surgery, but since lipomas are not cancerous the best rule is just to leave them alone unless they become so large as to be troublesome, or are unsightly, or are so located as to be uncomfortable.

Ontario Intelligencer.

With reference to the letter that the residents of Dufferin Avenue published in your paper on the 17th of April, I should like to take the opportunity of expressing my own opinion as a taxpayer in the Corporation of the City of Belleville, and the sole owner of the property known as 190 Dundas Street, East.

I feel that the decision to reject the application of Doctors Williamson, also previously Dr. Hartt, is very regretable on behalf of the general public as a whole, because more doctors are needed in Belleville, especially when the Belleville General Hospital is going to be enlarged.

At the same time in this modern age, I feel when our doctors offer to invest money into modern clinics, then this should be a great benefit to the general public as a whole.

I should like to point out that if such was to be built on my property, I should hate the thought of my neighbors on Burnham Street putting up such a fuss, as they have done on Dufferin Avenue. Although my property is now residential I fail to see where our Belleville Planning Board gave me any consideration when they allowed the Mimi Car Wash to be built directly across the street from me, which may devaluate my property.

Why does not the Planning Board make Dundas Street all commercial on both sides, so that we could all have a voice in the matter?

C. W. Stevens,
(Property Owner).

Letter to the Editor

Former Owner Gives Clinic Plan History

* * *

Hall. As a result of this meeting, a satisfactory and practical solution to the "clinic" was arrived at. This was of interest to all property owners in areas "B" but was of no real help to 260 Dundas St. East since it was still zoned "A". At this stage, I sold all my interests in this property to Dr. Harold Williamson. It seemed economically unsound and hopelessly unlikely that I would succeed with further attempts at re-zoning. I sold the complete property to Dr. H. Williamson who was able to obtain from City Hall and the building inspector a permit based on plans and specifications showing medical offices on the upper floor and two apartments on the ground floor.

The contractor did not finish the ground floor apartments and advised the owner that he thought it impractical and uneconomical to build residential facilities next to a commercial district. Consequently, construction was stopped pending a re-zoning application. Re-zoning to "B" district would allow all four suites in the building to be used as doctors' offices. The applicant for re-zoning was told that the board would be more likely to consider re-zoning than spot re-zoning. Consequently, the application included three extra lots in this district.

On Thursday, April 15th, 1965, the board announced after a public hearing in council chambers that it was refusing this application. Williamson stated through council his willingness to amend his application to exclude the three lots. This alternative spot re-zoning to permit construction of a medical clinic on the site was also turned down by the board. It said spot re-zoning would be "inopportune in advance of proper land use studies and would create more traffic in an already heavily congested area." The planning board's recommendation to reject re-zoning would be sent to city council. Council can grant or refuse the Williamson application as it sees fit. On the basis of all the difficulties encountered to date, I would doubt if the applicant receives favorable and successful treatment by city council.

In summary, there has been much confusion. I have personally found no one who is enough to deny any merit in the idea of a "clinic" directly across Number 2 Highway from an existing general hospital with a projected expense of eight million dollar addition. Doctors' offices in the past one to two years have been added to houses in other parts of the city that are not a doctor's private residence. It has been said that this is because these sites are in the older parts of the city, close to the General Bleecker house at 260 Dundas St. East was one of the first homes from the bay shore to Station Street. It is estimated that this house was built in 1826, so it is doubtful that there is an older part of the city than this.

Advice from the planning board official to await proposed master planning was so inconclusive that 200 Dundas St. East has since been in non-conforming use. The planning board's meeting of December 7, 1963, without due notice to all interested parties is another example of confusion rather than planning.

I further doubt the sincerity and interest in traffic safety

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

After listening to representations made by a deputation from the Trenton Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees, the Rotary, Lions and Kinsmen Clubs; the Canadian Legion, Trades and Labor Council, the Chamber of Commerce and two local doctors, the town council at its March meeting agreed to submit to the ratepayers a by-law to raise by way of debentures the sum of $100,000, the town's contribution to the erection and equipment of the hospital. Just when the vote will be taken was not stated, if the by-law is carried, no debentures will be issued until after the building is actually started. The estimated cost to build and equip it is $300,000 of which the Trustees now have some $40,000 on hand.

Kiwanis Lieut.-Governor Speaks on Civil Rights

Kiwanis Lieutenant-Governor Harold Marans of Kingston called for support of the civil rights cause in the United States when he addressed Belleville Kiwanians yesterday.

"If we are to stand up and be counted on the four freedoms we have to be aware of the deplorable situation in Alabama," he said.

He said if any member of the club wished to make a donation toward this cause he was sure its committee on international relations would contact him and he would see that it was forwarded.

"We must always keep in mind that we are not working for people but with people," said Mr. Marans.

"If we are to achieve the highest standards of morality in our daily lives Kiwanians must extend their influence," he added. "We want to demonstrate to the world a program of action and service that others will want to emulate."

He saw the club as a "pipeline" through which the forces of good might be passed on to others.

Vice-President Friedel Bellstedt introduced Mr. Marans and he was thanked by Bob Brain.

In a report on the Sheltered Workshop committee, Neil Davidson said the budget for the work of its handicapped workers' program this year was $16,000.

"Even if we get $14,000, it will be an increase of 40 per cent on last year's earnings of $10,000," he said.

Mr. Davidson said local firms had assisted in preparing a budget of sales and some workers were being employed by these firms.

"Sometime we would like to provide work for people who are incapable of making their own living," said Mr. Davidson. "For example, there has been a request that we assist the mentally retarded."

The club has completed arrangements for its flying visit to Belleville, Michigan, a community southwest of Detroit. Members depart at 10 a.m. next Tuesday by Air Canada Vircount from Trenton and return the same evening. The flight touches down at Detroit and the remainder of the journey will be made by car.

The Kiwanians' U.S. program includes a visit to the Ford Company's research and experimental division.

ost remain attentive during a ecture and teachers could not stand the strain of preparing and giving lectures to large groups.

The Ontario Classical Association heard a report by Professor Bernard C. Taylor of the Ontario College of Education on the association's committee which has been examining the future of classical studies in high schools.

MAY BE DOOMED

Prof. Taylor said the study of Latin and Greek in high schools may be doomed if the department of education carries out its plan to reduce to four the number of subjects taken in Grade 13.

Prof. Taylor said the education department is considering making Grade 12 rather than Grade 13 the year of graduation from high school after 1968. Grade 13 would become the second level of high school, a year in which students would specialize in four subjects.

Education Minister William Davis said later that the plan is still only under consideration and will not come into effect before 1968.

A guard remained posted at a 18,000,000-gallon gasoline tank farm where one tank, holding 1,107,000 gallons, was tipped at a 10-degree angle when a dike crumbled Monday. Water swirled eight feet deep around the fuel-sealing tanks and the potential fire danger added to the city's uneasiness.

WALL COLLAPSES

At the downstream city of Clinton, Iowa, a 75-foot section of a cement retaining wall collapsed without warning Tuesday, injuring 12 young volunteer flood workers. Eleven were released after hospital treatment and four were held for observation.

The rising waters still were some distance from the break, and flood fighters immediately began to plug the hole.

At Minneiska, Iowa, the river reached 23 feet Tuesday on the way to a crest of 24.5 feet expected today.

About 40 homes in the East Dubuque, Ill., area were surrounded by 15 feet of flood water. A dike protecting another 100 homes showed signs of seepage and sewers were backing up.

Helicopters dumped jumbled stars near rock creek north of Quincy, Ill., in an effort to reinforce weakened levees holding back flood waters that threaten already swept over 7,000 acres of farmland.

Twenty - five miles upriver from La Crosse at Winona, Minn., the river began to inch back after hitting a peak of 20.75 feet.

Winona Mayor Rudy Ellings said "our town is dry."

Mr. McFarland said he got the impression the MacMillans were optimistic about Windfall but that they did not say assays had been done.

Mr. Justice Kelly asked Mr. McFarland whether the press releases would have been different if Mr. McFarland had known that assays had been done—regardless of the assay results. Mr. McFarland replied "Yes, it would."

MAD VISIT

George Gardiner, president of Gardiner, Watson Limited, member of the TSE, testified Mr. Campbell had visited him

July 11 and had said he thought the exchange had been unfair in threatening to suspend trading in Windfall shares until drill hole assay results had been produced.

Mr. Gardiner said he had referred Mr. Campbell to Marshal Stearns, exchange president. Mr. Gardiner testified Mr. Campbell said he thought Mr. Stearns "was biased in the Windfall situation because clients of his firm were short in the stock."

Mr. Gardiner said he was later surprised to find that Mr. Campbell had sold the stock short. He added under questioning that he thought it unusual for an Ontario Securities Commission member, which Mr. Campbell was at the time, to take what Mr. Justice Kelly termed "such an active interest in the movement of stocks on the exchange."

"Let me define the word 'master' to you . . ."

Susanna's Family Fare

EGGS AND THEIR EGO

You may not realize it, but that lowly egg that stares back at you each morning as you blithely crack his head off, has definite personality problems. If you will just coddle his particular brand of ego a little, he will respond much more positively to your needs of him. In lieu of this, The Department of Agriculture very kindly sent me a whole bulletin of chatter about how to cater to these very young chicks.

I hope you will find this information as "fascegmating" as I did. I'm sorry— really should have resisted that last remark! But I couldn't, so on with the report:

"Should you use a plastic bowl to mix egg recipes? Never. Plastic absorbs oil from eggs and reduces their foaming power.

"Because the air space is at the large end, it is best to store eggs with the large end up in your refrigerator.

"Eggs are a valuable, inexpensive source of protein and a creamy eggnog for a child's breakfast pays off in excellent nutritional benefits.

"Over-beating of egg white reduces the volume of foam. They have been beaten enough, when stiff peaks form as the beater is withdrawn.

"A deep round mixing bowl assures more uniform beatine of egg whites, and if the recipe calls for several, use individual bowls to separate them first so that a broken yoke won't spoil the whole lot.

"Immediately after removing hard-cooked eggs from the hot cooking water, plunge them into cold water. The eggs will shrink leaving loose shells on the outside. The shells are then easy to peel off." — SUSANNA

CORD CARE

Dear Susanna: When the cords of my venetian blinds become jacked, I roll them up and soak them in a dish of soapy water to which bleach has been added. As I simply hold the dish up to the blind without removing it from the window I make a fairly strong solution so that it only takes a few minutes to clean them. It may not be necessary, but I push the little plastic knob up the cord out of the way just in case the laundry bleach might harm it. I rinse the cords with a fresh bowl of water and squeeze them dry with a towel. —Mrs. L. Lowry.

100 Children Attend Bible Club Rally

Approximately 100 children assembled in Holloway Street United Church Christian Education Hall for the annual C.E.F. "Good News Bible Club" rally, recently with Mr. F. Cummings as chairman.

Several clubs presented special group singing and a number of the children led the others in singing some action choruses.

Mr. Brent Daniels delighted the children by playing several numbers on his trumpet. Another musical treat was given by a class of Junior children from the Ontario School for the Deaf. Assisted by their rhythm teacher, Mrs. Harrison, they demonstrated their abilities in playing rhythm band instruments.

Miss White held the attention of the boys and girls as she told them the story of Gideon with the use of flannelgraph. The story pointed out how important it is to belong to God's army even if it is small and the enemy seems so strong. Miss White stressed the importance of being Christian soldiers with Jesus. "With Him in our lives to help and guide us along the way we need never fear the many tricks of Satan."

Following the story Miss White closed the meeting in prayer.

Ann Landers

Secret Love Affair at Seventy Seems Suspicious

DEAR ANN LANDERS — For a long time I have gotten a lot of laughs out of the wacky people who have written to you. Now perhaps I am the weakest one of all.

I am in the middle 70's and have been a widow for many years. I am in good health, and have always been considered a pretty woman. After my husband passed away I did not believe I could ever love again.

Two months ago I fell absolutely mad, crazy in love. I have never felt like this before — not even about my husband. I want to marry this man but I'm afraid the feeling is not mutual. If it were, he'd be begging me to marry him (and he is not.) The man is my age and we don't have too many years left.

ANN LANDERS

We are keeping our affair a secret at his request. Please tell this silly old woman what to do. — ASHAMED OF MYSELF.

* * *

DEAR ASHAMED — The second from the last sentence in your letter is the tip-off. Why would a man in his middle 70's wish to keep his interest in a woman a secret? Surely he is not afraid of his parents.

Unless your friend is willing to take you out publicly and treat you with respect and dignity, tell him to go wear out someone else's upholstery.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — You have dealt in your columns with guests who arrive late, but what do you suggest for guests who arrive early?

The other evening one couple (notorious for arriving early) showed up at 6:00 p.m. for my 7:00 o'clock dinner party. I was in the shower. The woman I engaged to help serve the dinner had not yet arrived. I greeted my guests in a shower cap and bathrobe which was horribly embarrassing. Then I had to rush to get dressed. I was so nervous I couldn't even comb my hair properly.

How does one deal with a problem of this type? I have thought of not answering the doorbell, but this is unrealistic since they know someone must be at home. — HELPLESS.

* * *

DEAR HELPLESS — Guests who show up an hour early are as clockish as those who show up an hour late.

Of course, you must let them in — but you don't have to entertain them. Tell them they are too early and excuse yourself. Take your own sweet time about getting dressed or doing whatever needs to be done. Appear in the living room at precisely "party time" — and make no apologies.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — For a gal who can usually cut through to the core and get to the real problem, you made a blooper in your reply to "Disappointed Son."

You told him the reason his mother didn't like his kids (she made the 3-year-old get off her lap because he was wrinkling her dress) was because Mama did not like his wife and the kids were an "extension" of her.

This is just surface stuff, and unworthy of you. The real reason is that Mama would not have liked any girl Sonny married because she wants him all to herself. She considers the wife and the kids competition and while she hasn't anything against them, she just hates to be beat out by anybody.

I'll bet my bottom dollar Mama is divorced or a widow. Usually these mothers, in an attempt to keep Sonny single, resort to phony heart attacks, bad back aches and headaches. When these sons can shake loose off their guilt for not putting Mama first, and go on to lead normal lives, it's wonderful. Unfortunately, some of them can't make the grade. — A SINGLE GAL WHO KNOWS.

* * *

DEAR SINGLE GIRL — You sound like a loser to me, but maybe it's just as well. There are worse fates than going it alone. And being married to a Mama's boy can be murder, as many women will testify.

* * *

Parents are people — they can be right and they can be wrong. To help understand their viewpoint and to promote harmony at home, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Speaking Personally

by Gladys Ward - - - Women's Editor

RUBBING SHOULDERS

In the enforced leisure of the past few weeks I have had time to read several newspapers from the page one calamities to the advertising on the back pages.

In a contemporary newspaper there was an ad that for snob appeal really made your eyes pop. It read in part: "Your furs deserve a preferential kind of treatment . . . after all, they're rubbing shoulders with goodness-knows-who all summer . . . our entire system has been hygienically sprayed . . . with a solution that prevents anything unpleasant."

Let's imagine a dialogue in this cold storage place. The cast of characters is small, just two, a chinchilla coat and an autumn haze mink cape.

C.C.: Really, you never know who you are going to meet in these places. They are letting just anything in these days.

A.H.M.: I know what you mean. Some of my best friends are muskrats but once you start letting them in the whole neighborhood changes.

C.C.: Mind you, the color of their skins doesn't mean anything to me. It's the individual coat that counts. I try to be broad-minded about these things, but I heardly expected to be rubbing shoulders with you-know-who.

A.H.M.: Yes, it's an unpleasant situation. Even if they have been sprayed with the most hygienic preparation, it gets under your skin.

C.C.: I think I'll complain to management, if this is their idea of preventing an unpleasant situation. If I have to spend all summer shoulder to shoulder . . . well, goodness knows I'm not a snob, but a coat has to draw the line somewhere.

A.H.M.: You can't deny it's breeding that counts. Why not get up a petition? I'd be the first to sign. Mind you, I don't approve of this status thing, but . . .

C.C.: You are quite right, I don't either, and I don't think you could call me prejudiced, but . . .

A.H.M.: Goodness knows I am as democratic as the next coat. My owner even wears me to the charity affairs she helps with every year. But what's the use of living in an exclusive neighborhood all winter and then spending the summer cheek by jowl with a motley crowd like this?

C.C.: When I think about the price tag I used to wear, the salon where I used to hang, the gorgeous models who used to show me off . . . (sigh). Well maybe it's better not to think about it.

A.H.M.: Look! Here comes another truck load in. Oh my goodness look at the rabbit and the imitation seal. Some of them look as if they had thumbed their way in.

A.H.M.: Oh I feel faint. I can't stay on this hanger any longer. I'm slipping, slipping . . .

(Slips down to the...broadloom in a furry heap.)

DAM WOULD HELP

ORILLIA (CP)—A single dam and set of locks on the St. Lawrence River below Montreal would help solve the problem of low water levels in the Great Lakes, Dr. P. B. Rynard, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Simcoe East, said here Tuesday. He told the Kiwanis Club the primary cause of low Great Lakes levels is Montreal's need to maintain enough water in its harbors for deep sea shipping, requiring a heavy drain on the Great Lakes.

VARIATIONS OF SALISBURY STEAK

In May of 1965 I gave you the recipe for Salisbury Steaks and included a Mushroom Sauce to serve with them.

I was surprised and pleased to receive a flurry of thank-you notes for the Salisbury Steaks recipe. Many of the girls said it was my best hamburg recipe to date—especially with the Mushroom Sauce.

WEDNESDAY
Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Pan-Fried Baby Beef Liver; Pickled Beets; Smothered Onions (see Tuesday); Fluffy Rice; Tossed Spinach with Shredded Cauliflower and Lettuce; French Dressing; Angel Cake with Tutti Frutti Whipped Cream; Coffee.

Today's Salisbury Steaks include an extender—1¼ cups cooked rice—and the alternate sauces I have suggested are Onion Gravy to be served separately, and Celery Soupsauce which would be poured over and baked on the meat.

SALISBURY STEAKS— (with Onion Gravy or Celery Soupsauce—serves 6):

Variation 1) Onion Gravy:

3 cups water, 1 package onion soup mix, 2 tablespoons flour;

or

Variation 2) Celery Soupsauce: 1 can cream of celery soup, 1 cup hot milk.

Combine beef, sausage meat; cooked rice, salt, pepper and eggs. Shape into 6 (or 12) slightly flattened little food balls. Place in greased baking dish and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 40 minutes.

If you have chosen to serve the Salisbury Steaks with Onion Gravy, heat 2½ cups water. Add onion soup mix and cook, covered, for 10 minutes. Mix flour with remaining ½ cup water until smooth; gradually stir into soup. Cook, stirring, until thickened. Serve in separate sauceboat.

If you have chosen to serve the Salisbury Steaks with Celery Soupsauce, pour off excess fat from pan (after the first 20 minutes' baking period) and pour over the Salisbury Steaks the celery soup mixed with the hot milk. Sprinkle top with ½ cup buttered crumbs mixed with 1 teaspoon paprika and bake 20 minutes longer at 350 deg. Fahr.

Note:—To obtain 1¼ cups cooked rice, cook ½ cup raw long-grained rice in 1¼ cups boiling water, covered, until tender and all water is absorbed—starting it on high heat and when boiling, reducing heat as low as possible.

Breast-feeding Of Infants Being Revived

EDMONTON (CP) — Modern women are beginning to do with knowledge and understanding what their grandmothers did naturally, says Mrs. Ronald Leblanc, leader of the Edmonton branch of La Leche League International.

She was referring in an interview to breast-feeding of infants, a practice that has been revived to some extent after being abandoned by most North American women in recent years.

Leche is Spanish for milk and the organization, founded by a group of Chicago women in 1956, offers information on breast-feeding.

The league has 150 branches around the world, including four in Canada, and it strives to overcome misconceptions about the practice.

Mrs. Leblanc, formerly a social worker, says the branch is ready to provide a series of four instructional meetings whenever there is a demand.

She says breast-feeding can be problem - free for most women, is easier than bottle-feeding, helps keep the figure trim.

She concedes, however, that it may not be right for all women. "Every woman has to make up her own mind. If she's not happy about breast-feeding, even after knowing the facts, then she shouldn't do it."

Successful Living

Multi-marriages Bedevil Relations With Children

DEAR DORIS — I am a widow, married again to a man who divorced his wife. She is living with one of a series of men she has had over several years.

I have three girls by my first marriage, three boys by my second marriage, and we also have the two girls of my husband's first marriage.

DORIS CLARK

My husband and I never argue about our own three boys, but when it comes to those who belong to only one of us, we are at each other's throat. His go to see their mother and are not the same when they come back. His girls give me little digs and no matter how you try to please them they find fault.

And then he punishes one of mine for something and lets his go free. Am I being thin skinned? He likes his, I like mine, and we both love ours! — UNHAPPY.

DEAR UNHAPPY. — So the house is divided against itself. I am the sorriest for your husband's first-marriage children. They are pulled, not two ways, but three. How can they ever know where they are at?

They might have accepted you at one stage, but now even that is unlikely as you have others coming along who seem to be getting all the affection. But no one wins in this home.

A remedy would call for some pretty mature behavior from both of you. You and your husband must see the light, see the rights of each faction, and act as a unit in administering love and discipline without prejudice. Counselling by a child care worker is practically a must.

* *

DEAR DORIS — I am an 18-year-old boy. Recently I went to a party where necking seemed to be the main form of entertainment. His parents were out and so there were no chaperones. Boris, some of the kids were almost going too far.

Now I'm not some kind of prude or something but I didn't particularly enjoy myself. The thing is that if I don't go to these parties I am considered one. The girl I was with I know felt much the same but what could she do when everyone else was doing it?

Could you please tell me how I can try to discourage necking, especially at such a large party (20 kids)? — DISTRESSED.

DEAR DISTRESSED — Start something more intriguing and less depraved — such as dancing the new steps (or wiggles) to dance music created by the guitars and trumpets and drums of some of the gang. Or some sleight-of-hand tricks.

Banish the word "corny" from your vocabulary, and theirs, and try what you can do to start a trend in a direction which will use a little grey matter. Perhaps that nice girl would conspire with you.

* *

DEAR DORIS — I can't help writing about "Despairing."

If only people could see that everyone has needs just as great as their own and that there is no disgrace to go to God with them. Just a year ago we were on the verge of a broken home. We have four children. But Christ changed the direction of my life. Praise God!

I pray for people who just don't know where to turn. I'm sure you must too. — THANKFUL.

DEAR THANKFUL — Indeed I do pray for them. Thanks for writing in.

For the Most Glamorous Occasions

Shower of Gay Raincoats From the Fashion Houses

By MARGARET NESS

Raincoats, mere infants of the fashion world, are making a splash this spring.

Gay, modish and even avant garde, including pastel, flower-colored designs, rainwear has come far from the time, in 1823, when a Glasgow chemist patented a method of rubberizing cloth.

The chemist was Charles Macintosh and the drab utility coat that resulted from his work bore his name. A raincoat is still called a "Mac" in England.

He wasn't alone in experiments with waterproofing materials. One patent was taken out for the treatment of cotton fabrics with boiled linseed oil, giving birth to the slicker.

These early raincoats certainly kept the water out but at the expense of personal comfort. By clogging the fabric pores they prevent air circulation. Wearers stifled inside their coats.

Further experiments produced the answer—a preparation to waterproof the individual fibres and leave the pores open. But raincoats still lacked fashion appeal and no style - conscious woman would arrive at a theatre or restaurant wearing one.

Today, however, velvet, taffeta and even organza for summer evenings can be shower-proofed. Elegant evening coats for the most glamorous occasions foil the raindrops.

For sudden daytime downpours there are colorful paper-thin plastics that fold to pocket or purse-carrying size.

MOD INFLUENCE

Anne Fogarty of New York has introduced a "mod" influence with a black-and-white striped plastic and a shiny white patent edged in black, complete with matching high boots and umbrellas.

For the travel-quota, all-purpose coat there is the rain-proofed fabric of 65 per cent Terrylene and 35 per cent cotton which retains its equally important wrinkle-resistant qualities.

There is even a return to the oilskin gleam. This is the new cire plastique, a glossy soft-as-silk fabric that has the sheen of patent leather. The New York coat house of Originals introduced the fabric in its spring collection as a seven-eighths coat in black, white or navy, topping a slim white skirt of the same material. It also introduced a new look in gold buttoned cotton poplin with a low placed string belt and patch pockets.

In the last few years it has become difficult to recognize a showerproofed coat except that many sport their own matching kerchiefs. However, since kerchiefs are popular headgear this spring, even that identification point is gone. Showerproofed coats are everywhere, in every fabric and color, even in jungle prints including the new civet cat print.

FABRICS DIVERGENT

Lawrence of London includes in its wide collection of rainwear coats such divergent fabrics as shantung, pongee, linen, broadcloth, satin, whipcord and gabardine. Most interesting in his spring collection was an evening coat in washable black moiry with the new wrap effect and a wide tie belt. This house is also fond of both staccato color and pale pastels. One corduroy coat is in hot Spanish pink, another in silk linen with inverted domino checks in honey beige.

In the "storming weather" group of the recent National Collection of the Union Label fashions in Montreal, there was a "scooter" suit designed by Rainmaster of Montreal in cotton poplin with the new short slacks and prominent zipper. Foslins of Toronto went military in white poplin stitched in black. Fairlane of Vancouver chose turquoise in a slim coat, and Juillard's of Winnipeg proferred a bulky look in dull gold.

MOD INFLUENCE — These raincoats by Anne Fogarty of New York illustrate the Mod influence in rainwear this season. The black-and-white striped plastic and the shiny white patent edged in black are matched with high boots and umbrellas. The white boots are by Capczio and the striped boots are by Golo Footwear. Church Groups

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The afternoon W.M.S. Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held their Easter thankoffering meeting in the Sunday school hall with Mrs. J. Darwell presiding.

The usual reports were read and several members reported having visited Hastings Manor.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. H. Yorke, Mrs. D. Kaur, Mrs. George Wallbridge and Mrs. N. McConnell. Mrs. Kane and Mrs. Yorke led in an Easter service of worship during which Mrs. Ivan Rollins sang an appropriate solo.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Yorke introduced the guest speaker Mr. Brent Humphreys who based his talk on the value of missionary work in every day living taking as an example St. Andrew who during his life time brought others to Jesus. Mr. Humphreys pointed out to his listeners how they by the example of their every day lives can be missionaries of the gospel.

Mrs. V. Weir, on behalf of those present, thanked Mr. Humphreys for his inspiring address.

At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served by the group in charge.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

The undefined status of a toddler presents some problems to the mother. Neither all baby nor fully developed child, he needs more attention than the stay-put baby. Since he tries more things, there are bound to be more frustrations. Then too, the pressure to learn good behaviour...plus the need to exert himself, make the toddler a bit unruly. Ways to ease these normal "growing pains":

• Extra tenderness to offset frustrations . . . extra patience at seeming perversity . . . extra guidance in all phases of development.

New and appetizing, too, are Gerber Junior Dinners. Each is made to tickle a toddler pink. Filled with flavour, it is ready and waiting to be happily enjoyed.

Nursery cue for you-know-who. A gallon plastic ice cream container, covered with wallpaper or contact paper, makes a nice wastebasket for the nursery. Good way to help teach your toddler to pick up scraps after a round of paper-playing.

Appetite delights for busy sprites. Year-olds' appetites may lag a bit, primarily because the growth rate slows down. Easy way to continued meal-appeal . . . serve Gerber Junior Foods and serve 'em in goodly variety. Their extra-special goodness stems from the fact that they're "custom-cooked" to help preserve nourishing food values and natural colours and flavours. Seasoning is added with a knowing hand to suit a toddler's taste.

Winning combinations for active toddlers: Gerber Junior Dinners. These special "casserole" dishes are especially delicious because they combine vegetables, cereal and meat for flavour to spare. There are such extra-special delectables as Chicken Noodle with Vegetables and Spaghetti with Tomato Sauce and Beef. And these are just two of twelve good-tasting Gerber choices. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Mother's Helper

FUN for a party or rainy-day entertainment is a Postcard Puzzle Race. For every player, a picture postal card is cut in pieces and sealed in an envelope. At a "Go!" signal, each opens his puzzle and gets to work. The winner is the one who puts it together first.

Planes Strike At Convoys Of Red Trucks

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy planes struck through the night at Communist truck convoys in North Viet Nam. One plane was lost, the results of the strikes were not known. . .

Other U.S. and South Vietnamese planes flew a number of missions against suspected Viet Cong concentrations inside South Viet Nam.

Some of the heaviest strikes were in Quang Tin province where government forces were smoked Sunday and Monday by Viet Cong guerrillas.

U.S. and South Vietnamese air force planes hit at road and bridge targets through Tuesday. One of the strikes hit a Viet Cong landslide across Highway one about 140 miles south of Hanoi.

The death toll in a Viet Cong guerrilla bomb attack at Bac Me Thuot, 160 miles northeast of Saigon, Monday night rose to 17 today, South Vietnamese military sources said. Forty-five persons, including four Americans were wounded.

The bomb was set off in a bar in the capital city of South Viet Nam's Montagnarda (mountain tribes).

Tuesday some 40 U.S. jet bombers and fighter - bombers pounded Viet Cong positions in a battle area less than 30 miles from the strategic U.S. air base at Da Nang, 375 miles northeast of Saigon.

The U.S. pilots reported seeing trenches filled with Viet Cong dead as they gave air support to government troops locked in a major clash with guerrillas dug in the area.

North Viet Nam claimed it downed eight U.S. aircraft Tuesday.

In the ground war in South Viet Nam, a powerful Viet Cong force was dug in at the base of foothills rising from the Quang Tin plains, and six battalions of government soldiers massed nearby appeared reluctant to tangle with them.

SEATO Fails to Provide Unity of Defence Against New Communist Method

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

More than a decade ago, eight countries banded into what appeared to be a solid alliance to prevent communism from running riot in the Pacific. But a slow and change in political viewpoints has produced the prospect of solidarity and turned the treaty of defence into a document of demoralizing despair.

Even from the outset there didn't seem much hope the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, which includes the United States, Britain and France — would ever work.

Basically it was designed to block aggression against the signatories, to prevent another Korea. But it failed to provide unity of defence against the new communist method of attack—the slow struggle of guerrilla warfares in disease-infested jungles at the periphery of the alliance in Southeast Asia.

Neither Laos nor South Viet Nam was a signatory to the Manila treaty signed in 1954. But they were specifically mentioned in terms of SEATO responsibility; the SEATO countries could respond if those at the periphery of the Alliance called for help.

NO UNANIMITY

But the SEATO countries could not agree whether Laos needed help or what kind of help was required. They could not agree on the future of South Viet Nam or whether the turmoil there was stirred by civil war or outside attack. Stealth had replaced open affront; the SEATO alliance was a Maginot Line with its flanks exposed.

Now France has decided it won't send its foreign minister to the SEATO ministerial meeting in London May 3. Its delegation will be downgraded to observer status and Paris reports suggest this will be the first step toward complete French withdrawal from the Alliance.

Pakistan, another member country which once told the U.S. it was the only major country on which the American could safely rely in Asia, appears to be weaving new bonds of friendship with Peking, apparently pursuing Chinese support for its claims to Kashmir.

BRITAIN HOPEFUL

Britain still thinks SEATO has strength and vitality. It points to non - military achievements, such as SEATO training schools in Thailand, Pakistan and the Philippines. SEATO funds have helped stimulate economic development among low-standard countries.

But SEATO has not held back the Communist surge.

The prospect of a war between the U.S. and China over South Viet Nam is not an appetizing one for France. It favors neutralization of Indochina, though the U.S. maintains this merely would be a screen for a complete Communist takeover.

Amid this deepening political cleavage, Thailand, a SEATO signatory, quivers. It had hoped the alliance would keep the Communists at bay. But over the years its faith in SEATO has been shaken. Bold declarations and big guns appear unwieldy weapons to prevent the slow, silent boring from within.

CNR Summer Time-tables Start Sunday

MONTREAL — Canadian National's summer time-tables which come into effect on Sunday April 26th, introduce three new passenger trains on the Lakeshore Express between Montreal and Toronto; the Chaleur, between Montreal and Campbellton and a second separate suppor-constitutional between Toronto and Vancouver; there is also a new, bargain-prices sleeping car service, the Dormettes.

The Lakeshore Express will offer the fastest-ever daily service of five hours and 45 minutes between Montreal and Toronto from June 23rd. It will leave Central Station at 8.25 a.m. and arrive at Toronto at 2.10 p.m. from that date also, the second super-continental will leave Toronto at 4.00 p.m. The other two transcontinental trains, the Super-Continental and the Panorama, and the trains which line Montreal to Toronto will leave Montreal one hour earlier than before as of April 25th.

There are only slight adjustments in departure and arrival times in the Montreal-Ottawa service, the number of trains remaining unchanged.

There have been some notable changes in the Maritimes service:

The Ocean which used to leave at 8.30 p.m. will now do so at 4.05 p.m.; the Chaleur, destination Campbellton, with transfer at Matapedia for Gaspe, will now leave central station at 7.30 p.m. The schedules of the other two main Maritime trains, the Scotian and the Maritime Express, have undergone only slight alterations.

Eastern Standard Time is used to indicate arrival and departure times in the new time-table.

Martin Has New Foreign Policy Problem in Canada, Department Is in a Tizzy

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin has a new foreign policy problem in—of all places—Canada.

It concerns the assertion by Quebec Education Minister Paul Gerin-Lajoie that the provinces have the right to negotiate international agreements with other countries in fields where the provinces have jurisdiction.

His statement, made before a group of foreign councils in Montreal, has the external affairs department in a tizzy.

Mr. Martin was asked in the Commons, just before it rose for its Easter recess, whether the federal government recognizes Quebec's right to sign international agreements in the education field.

He replied that he would give an opinion at a later date.

The problem has arisen in the last 18 months. This is the background:

By an exchange of letters in December, 1963, between the French ambassador here and Mr. Martin, the Canadian government assented to a program of exchanges in the industrial and technical field negotiated between an association in France and the Quebec youth department and the University of Toronto.

By another exchange of letters in February this year between the French embassy and Mr. Martin, the federal government assented to "an extension or understanding" was signed by the Quebec and French ministers of education.

Mr. Martin told the Commons March 1 that, pending these agreements between France and Quebec could not have been regarded as agreements subject to international law."

Mr. Martin said ministries of education and universities in the English-speaking provinces have concluded similar exchange agreements with correspondi institutions in English-speaking countries, particularly Britain and the United States.

However, France preferred to put cultural relations on a formal intergovernmental basis and "this is a fact of international life which the federal government cannot ignore in carrying out its international responsibilities in respect of cultural relations."

Mr. Martin was asked by Marcel Lambert, Conservative MP for Edmonton West: "Is it contemplated that any provinces shall have the right to participate as an independent signatory?"

"No," the minister said. He added:

"On the international plane, the federal government represents all of Canada and under international law only sovereign states are recognized as members of the international community.

"One, if not the most important, attribute of this international personality accruing exclusively to the Canadian government is the power to negotiate and conclude agreements or treaties of a binding character in international law on behalf of the whole country or of any part thereof with foreign countries.

"The precedent followed on the occasion of the agreements between France and Quebec is a reflection of an accord with the Canadian government's practice in the distribution of the and the constitutional position in Canada."

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie, a constitutional expert, maintains that the British North America Act does not spell out jurisdiction in international affairs.

The external affairs department of which Mr. Martin's March 1 stand and says "that if a province has special interest to negotiate and enter into treaties in its own right, this would be inconsistent with the constitutional position in Canada, according to which the federal government alone can conclude treaties."

The department adds in a statement: "... When a province has a special interest in a matter which is of particular importance to itself, the federal government lends its assistance to that province in order to achieve the particular goals which it wishes to attain."

Production of Motor Cars Has Fluctuated Sharply

OTTAWA (CP) — Production of motor vehicles in Canada has fluctuated sharply in the first three months of this year, but officials here say this has little, if anything, to do with the new Canada-U.S. auto agreement.

In fact, they say, it will probably be years before there is any impact from the agreement and 1967 before the real force of it is felt. Under the agreement, production is expected to push upwards to take a bigger bite from the North American market.

The down-and-up production of the first three months of the year are said to be due mainly to strikes, and a lacking of demand.

In January motor vehicle production in Canada totalled 65,906, shrinking from the 84,073 in the same month of 1964. In February it was 64,906, slightly from the 64,941 of the previous February. But in March, total Canadian production rose to 90,207 from 69,586 in March, 1964.

This year's three-month production total of 220,020 compares with 207,624, then a record in the same period last year.

LAW IN CANADA

The agreement," still to be ratified in Canada, provides, but already law in Canada, allows manufacturers — but not the public—to move autos and parts across the border without paying duty.

It will mean that the companies, most of which are U.S. controlled anyway, can eliminate the duplication of manufacturing facilities and specialize in particular models instead.

The agreement is conditional on Canadian plants increasing their output—so there is no chance of the parent firms deciding to enlarge U.S. plants at the expense of their Canadian counterparts.

The eventual goal is identical prices for identical cars in both countries. Initial prediction was that this would take five to 10 years to achieve, but some officials say it might happen more quickly.

This won't necessarily mean greatly reduced prices for Canadians' cars, which now cost about 17 per cent more than cars in the U.S. prices are expected to rise faster than those in Canada, and by the time the full effects of the agreement might felt, the gap may be much less.

Disarmament Talks Resume

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Seldom such a thin chance of disarmament debate offered less promise than the one beginning today in the 18-country disarmament commission.

As arms experts gathered at UN headquarters for the opening session, some Western diplomats feared the public debate would serve only to accentuate current East-West differences.

Unless the Soviet Union intends to use the commission as a platform for raising the Viet Nam issue and the use of nonnuclear weapons by the U.S., they did the Russians seek a public debate rather than the usual private negotiations in Geneva?

In a speech in Boston Tuesday, U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson said the commission's debate "may result in economics than progress."

The debate by the full UN membership is not expected to take the place of the 17-nation negotiations in Geneva but to serve as a prelude. In the past, the United Nations has had such debates in the General Assembly, but they have rarely done anything more than provide a sounding board for the sponsors of rival disarmament plans.

Port Elgin Reeve Refuses To Pay Fees

PORT ELGIN, Ont. (CP) Reeve Charles Drummond resigned from town council Tuesday rather than pay legal expenses incurred by six members of the town council at Ontario Police Commission hearings here.

"If I have to pay money to sit as reeve . . . I don't think I want it very badly," he said, adding that his share of the expenses would be about $1,000.

Mr. Drummond said six members of last year's council, including Deputy - Reeve A. Thomas, who represented them at the police commission inquiry this year into operations of the town police force.

He said council had already paid a $1,000 lawyer's bill for one constable and $1,250 for another involved in a dispute before the commission.

Mayor W. A. Davey said payment of the bill came up at a council meeting Monday night and was rejected. He said it had been rejected several times before.

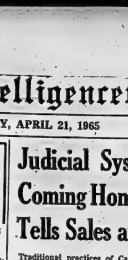
WILL NAME REEVE

Mayor Davey said council would appoint a new reeve from its ranks, and then fill the council vacancy by offering the seat to the runner-up in last fall's municipal election.

The mayor said Port Elgin and Southampton councils are considering amalgamating police forces in the two towns, which are about five miles apart and about 20 miles west of Owen Sound.

Port Elgin's only permanent police force is Chief Ron Lemcke, who was hired in mid-March. He is attending a three-month course at the Ontario Police College in Aylmer.

Southampton police and provincial police have been policing Port Elgin since April 1, when all but one constable in town is back to its normal three-man strength.



Police Chief Charles Riley resigned March 31. He and two other constables had been relieved of duty last year during a dispute with council that ended in the Ontario Police Commission hearing.

All three were eventually reinstated, and then all three resigned.

Judicial System Changes Coming Hon. Kelso Roberts Tells Sales and Ad Club

Traditional practices of Canada's law courts, need adjusting to the tempo of modern society, Lands and Forests Minister Kelso Roberts said here last night.

He predicted to the Belleville Sales and Advertising Club that changes in the judicial system will come within the next few years.

KELSO ROBERTS

"The danger in this world of fluid-business and complex society is that the century-old traditions of the Third Estate (Judiciary) are they are, they hinder real and speedy justice. The existing machinery, both administrative and human, may well need adjustment.

For many years Attorney-General of Ontario, Mr. Roberts noted the stepped up pace of modern living and business as typical of modern times.

"A change in the Third Estate too, will be necessary.

"I believe that some further important advances in the administration of justice within the next few years will be made to meet the present tempo and requirements.

"Commercial business is on the move 12 months of the year and the same kind of application is needed at the judicial level to eliminate the backlog of court cases," he said.

"It is not the law for the nation's fourth estate—the press—that Mr. Robert saved his most potent remarks.

Criticizing news media sensationalism he charged sections of the press with spreading "misinformation, calumny and falsehood.

He also blamed many politicians for fearing to speak out on the issue.

MANY EMBOLDEN TO PRESS

"What a pity so many candidates for public office — and quite often occupants of elected public offices—are afraid to speak to the press," he said.

"What a pity, a number of top executives of the press are so egotistically sure of their own policies—and will accept support or even adequately report a candidate or the incumbent who runs counter to them."

Many politicians fear to speak out "for fear of not keeping the mark of the beast placed upon them by these, in their eyes, influential controllers of the news media."

Newspaper were not urging the extension of legal aid, Mr. Roberts noted.

"If there is to be any great extension of legal aid it should certainly include legal aid in police court and in the lower courts where the alleged offenders are the news media," he added.

Mr. Roberts also spoke hopefully of national affairs and the pattern of Canadian constitutional government.

"The Constitution with a number of amendments and as interpreted by our courts has endured until now. The good in it should not be lost sight of."

Optimism and confidence could soon overwhelm any dire predictions on the country's future.

The provinces have co-operated in Confederation in a pretty fair code of conduct and either for a vast and complex nation.

GUESTS PRESENT

Defects in the parliamentary system of government were due more to individual immorality than to the system itself, he warned.

"Major efforts to clean up the defects appear from time to time and some are definitely going on at the present time. It's not necessary to wreck the Constitution to cure these defects."

Among guests present to hear Mr. Roberts were: MLA's Edward Vandervoort (East Hastings) and Clarke Rollins (East Hastings.)

The Minister was introduced by Douglas Boyle and thanked by Robertson Collins.

Texas Gulf Stock Down $1.75 a Share

NEW YORK (AP)—The price of Texas Gulf Sulphur stock dropped $1.75 a share to $69.25 in active trading Tuesday after the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission accused company officers of illegally profiting in news of the firm's rich Ontario ore strikes.

Trading in the stock was delayed at the opening of the New York Stock Exchange in the morning. The first block of 34,000 shares traded $3 below Monday's closing price of $71.

Though dealers contended that the SEC action should have no impact on the earnings of the company, the market reacted nervously to the unexpected news.

The SEC suit, filed late Monday in U.S. district court, claimed the defendants took advantage of their inside knowledge of the ore strike for personal profit.

The suit seeks reimbursement by the defendants to persons who, in ignorance, sold shares in the stockholders.

As a result of the ore strike the stock rose from a low of $30 in the autumn of 1963 to a 1963 high of 71¼.

WASHINGTON (AP)—An assistant U.S. secretary of commerce, Herbert Klotz, gave figures Tuesday that indicated he made a quick paper profit of more than $14,500 by acting on a tip to buy Texas Gulf Sulphur company stock.

Klotz was mentioned Monday as one of about a dozen persons who bought stock shortly before the official announcement that the company had discovered huge deposits of copper and zinc in Ontario.

The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission charged that the company withheld information about the ore discovery. The suit charges that those officials bought stock that shot up in value as soon as the official announcement came out.

While Klotz was mentioned as receiving a tip, the commission did not charge that he acted improperly.

In a statement, Klotz said he did not speak in his capacity with the department of commerce, I have never had nor could be expected to have any dealings with the Texas Gulf Sulphur company or its officials."

RECEIVED TIP

Klotz said he received a tip on the company from Miss Nancy Addison, now Mrs. Francis Brown, who was then working at the federal pavilion of the New York World's Fair.

Klotz said, "she stated that a long-time family friend, who was employed by the company, had told her family that the company had very good immediate and future prospects."

The commission said Klotz bought 2,000 shares of March 30, 1964, on 2,000 shares of Texas Gulf Sulphur stock. A $31 is an option to buy at a specific price.

Klotz said the shares cost him $29.70 each, including the price of the calls and commission.

He said the stock closed at $37 a share April 16, 1964, the day on which the announcement of the ore discovery was made.

Prince Charles Now Taller Than His Tomboy Sister

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Official photographs of Britain's Royal Family made public today show that Prince Charles is now taller than his tomboy sister, Princess Anne.

For some years, Anne has been taller than her older brother.

Prince Charles, heir to the throne, will be 17 Nov. 14. Princess Anne will be 15 on Aug. 15.

Prince Charles' two years at Gordonstoun, the tough Scottish school, must have done the trick. At Gordonstoun, Charles leads an active outdoor life with plenty of sports, woodchopping and sailing. He also plays in the school band.

Not only is Charles—at about five-foot-eight—now an inch or so taller than his sister, his once narrow shoulders have broadened.

His thick head of dark brown hair, which often flops over his forehead and eyes, giving him an abbreviated beatle look, hasn't changed.

Three years ago, friends of the Royal Family said Anne could outride and outwrestle her brother.

As Charles shoots up, Anne's once plumpish, muscular figure seems to get more feminine.

A good horsewoman, she is a student at Benenden Boarding School for Girls in County Kent. She and Charles now are taller than the Queen, who is a little over five - foot - two, and if Charles keeps growing he'll soon be as tall as his father, six-foot Prince Philip, also a Gordonstoun graduate.

The Queen's youngest child, Prince Edward, who was a year old March 10, is a wavy-haired blond, now able to stand up in his carriage.

LAND STILL WILD

Only one third of Canada has been settled or developed. Eight per cent of the area now is farmed and another eight per cent is suitable for farming.

TAXES TAKE LESS

Canadian federal, provincial, and municipal governments spent 31.7 per cent of the gross national product in 1963, down from 1961's 32.2 per cent.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

Sports Editor

Geoffrey Dyson, chief national coach of the Amateur Athletic Association of England from 1947 to 1961, says there's no guarantee but "Canada can look forward to a good, well-balanced track and field team for the 1972 Olympics."

Dyson now in his third year as director of the Royal Canadian Legion's track and field program, told a coaches' clinic the other day that "Canada is passing through the same stage in track and field that Britain was 20 years ago. Because of its history Canada could not afford facilities for athletic development, but it can afford them now."

Dyson said he has never seen such magnificent gymnasia as the ones being built in Canada now. 'He added a national recreation centre for Canada is in the future with complete facilities for every sport from boating to skiing, plus lecture halls and accommodations for coaches and athletes.

"Track and field is tremendously on the upswing here," he said, "but there are problems. There is not enough competition and there is a shortage of tracks and equipment. But one centre like this would, at least, be a start."

According to Dyson there is a general attitude of defeatism that is another stumbling block to success. "Not matter how much logic there is in what you say, there is a general feeling Canada can't do it."

The international coach also found fault with Canadian instructors for "neglecting the physical in physical education."

"There has been too much pseudo-intellectual claptrap written by instructors who have no love for physical activity," he charged. "In Ottawa, where I live, there are inspectors of physical education who have an degrees in phy-ed."

In his coast-to-coast lectures Dyson stresses the scientific approach to coaching. He believes strongly that science is essential to track and field improvements in any country.

"[illegible] understand the techniques of modern coaching you can't succeed," he says.

Dyson said there is a lot of talk about psychology in sports and it's true that with a change of attitude an athlete can draw from himself efforts he never thought possible—but, he cannot do what his own lack of flexibility and mechanical skill will not allow him to do.

He warns against an over-consciousness of scientific skills on the part of athletes. "I don't think an athlete should be aware of the precise nature of his skill. Then he becomes too analytical and introspective and the freedom and importance of his performance is lost."

"A coach should tell his athletes what to do and after a while, if the athlete begins to ask why, the coach should explain—but he should not throw the scientific book at the athlete."

Dyson thinks Canada should expect some measure of success by 1972, but there is no guarantee the Olympic pot of that year will be filled with gold, silver and bronze. As was noted he thinks Canada can look for a good well-balanced team.

"There is no short cut to success," he says, "and no guarantee of it for Canada. France has spent millions of francs without winning any gold medals. It still takes that touch of genius to produce a champion athlete."

"We are moving through a second industrial revolution," he says, "and with more leisure time available, physical education is even more important."

Spahn Tames Dodgers With 6-Hitter

First Win As Met

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Warren Spahn, who celebrates his 44th birthday Friday, gave further evidence Tuesday night that he still has a future in major league baseball.

In making his second start of the season, the winningest southpaw in major league history showed only one earned run in a 3-2 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers that brought him his first triumph as a New York Met and the 357th of his career.

That left Spahn with a sparkling 2.12 earned-run average and two steps closer toward his prime 1963 goal—"erasing the memory of last year when everything went bad for me."

Spahn, who won 23 games for Milwaukee Braves in 1963, plummeted to a 6-13 mark last season with a 3.26 e.r.a. But he never once assumed he was over the hill.

"I am sound physically," he said during spring training. "I just wasn't pitching enough last year. I have to work regularly to be effective.

"You can't convince me you go from middle age to old age in one year."

HAD SHUTOUT GOING

He proved his point against the Dodgers, working into the ninth with a four-hit shutout.

Then a single by Wes Parker and an error by Ed Kranepool opened the door and the Dodgers stuck their foot in it with run - producing singles by Tommy Davis and John Roseboro.

But with the tying and winning runs on first and third, Spahn struck out Jim Lefebvre for strikeout No. 2,500 of his career, got Ron Fairly on a grounder and struck out John Kennedy.

Elsewhere, Roberto Clemente, still underweight from a battle with malaria this spring, drove in two runs with a pair of singles in Pittsburgh Pirates' 5-1 victory over San Francisco Giants and Philadelphia Phillies edged Houston Astros 3-2 in 13 innings on Ruben Amaro's key single. The other clubs were not scheduled.

Spahn, pitching against the only club with a winning record against him during his 20-year career, was locked in a scoreless duel with Claude Osteen until Roy McMillan's squeeze bunt brought in Johnny Lewis with the Mets' first run in the eighth.

BRINGS TWO HOME

Lewis produced the other New York runs with a two-run single in the ninth inning.

Clemente, who has six hits in his last 12 at-bats, singled following Bill Virdon's double in the first inning and drove in another Pirate run in the fifth.

Willie Mays provided the only San Francisco run with his third homer of the season. Mays' 420-foot belt came off Bob Friend who needed Al McBean's relief help over the final 2 2-3 innings to get his second victory without a loss.

The Phillies edged the Astros in the 13th when reliever Hal Woodeshick issued two-out walks to Cookie Rojas and Frank Thomas before Amaro followed with his game-winning hit off Claude Raymond, the St. Jean, Que., right hander.

Jack Baldschun got the victory with three innings of perfect relief when Ray Herbert, acquired from Chicago White Sox, tired after shutting out the Astros on five hits through eight innings.

Drove in All Five Runs

Mantilla's Grand Slam Beats Senators

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Felix Mantilla, who made more moves than a belly dancer last year, has reduced his act.

Instead of belting the ball between fielders and over fences while moving from one of six positions to another, he is just rapping the ball between fielders and over fences.

Mantilla, 30, maintaining the power he discovered in 1964, drove in all of Boston's runs Tuesday in the Red Sox' 5-3 triumph over Washington Senators. It was the only American League game scheduled.

The Puerto Rican got the Red Sox off to a fast start with a first-inning grand-slam home run, the first of his career and the first in the league this season. Two innings later, he singled across Boston's final run.

The performance increased Mantilla's 1963 output to a .263 batting average, two homers and 10 runs batted in. No one else in the AL has more than seven RBI while only Tony Conigliaro, hitting .556, has a better average with Boston.

LEAD THE LEAGUE

Mantilla's slugging has helped the Red Sox to four victories in their first five games and the AL lead.

Acquired from New York Mets for the 1963 season, Mantilla burst forth last year as a power hitter, reaching career highs of 20 home runs and 64 runs batted in. His .290 average was second best in his nine-year career.

While he was compiling his lustrous record, Mantilla was moving all over the Boston defence. He played at all three outfield posts, second base, shortstop and third base.

This year, however, manager Billy Herman decided Mantilla would remain at second base.

The Red Sox went out today to try and continue their winning ways, a mannerism they weren't expected to possess this season. They were scheduled to play Chicago White Sox in one of four afternoon games.

The other three involved the league's final home opener—Kansas City Athletics at Detroit Tigers, Los Angeles Angels at Cleveland Indians and Minnesota Twins at New York Yankees. Baltimore Orioles were scheduled to play Washington in a night game.

Brampton Novice Tournament

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Galt squashed any hopes Goderich had for a first-day lead Tuesday with a decisive 3-0 victory in the Class B series of the Brampton novice hockey tournament.

The second game of the two-game set was to be played this afternoon.

The lone Class A game of the day was won by Burlington, Ont., who beat St. Clair Shores of Michigan 3-0 after losing 3-2 Monday. Burlington meets Windsor in the quarter-finals today.

Goderich, Delhi, Milton and Napanee advanced to the next round of the Class C playoffs by games that occupied most of the day.

Delhi pounded Grimsby 5-1 in the first game and tied them 2-2 in the second to win the round 7-3.

Winning quinella tickets on the combination paid out $431.10. Coco's Girl paid $61 straight.

Jets Shade Toronto

Atlanta Unbeaten In 5

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Milwaukee Braves, who move their National League baseball club to Atlanta next year, have already provided the city with a winning team.

And the Crackers, undefeated after five games in the International League, might spoil the Maple Leafs' home opener in Toronto Saturday.

Atlanta defeated Syracuse Chiefs 8-5 Monday, while Columbus Jets defeated Toronto 8-7 to leave the Leafs with two losses in five starts.

Elsewhere, Jacksonville Suns defeated Rochester Red Wings 6-3, and Toledo Mud Hens shutout Buffalo Bisons 5-0.

Atlanta touched five Syracuse pitchers for 14 hits. Woody Woodward collected three hits while Bill Robinson, Don Dillard and Gene Stephens had two each.

MAKE FAST START

The Crackers got off to a fast start, scoring five runs on six hits.

Pancho Herrera spoiled a near-perfect comeback for the Leafs, scoring the winning run with a double to left centre in the bottom of the ninth.

The Leafs, trailing 7-0 after six innings, had tied the count over the next three, collecting five hits including homers by Tony Horton and Bill Millnic.

Tom Dukes scattered five hits to lead Toledo to victory, while the Mud Hens scored all five runs in the fifth inning. Four of the runs were unearned.

Elio Chacon belted a grand-slam home run in the eighth inning to lead Jacksonville to victory.

MANIAGO NAMED MVP

DETROIT (CP)—Cesar Maniago, 26 - year - old goaltender with Minneapolis Bruins, was named Tuesday most valuable player in the Central Professional Hockey League for the 1964-65 season. Maniago played in 67 of the Bruins' 70 games and led the league with a 2.75 goals-against average and six shutouts.

Henry Target 300 Goals

QUEBEC (CP) — Camille Henry says he hopes to score 300 goals before leaving the National Hockey League. The little lefthinger, traded this season to Chicago Black Hawks by New York Rangers, now has 253 goals in 725 games.

He made the statement, Tuesday in an interview, during which he also said that, although he is not as happy as he could be with the Hawks, it would be wrong to say he is discontented and that he is anxious to leave the team.

Henry, who makes his home here, said his doctor has told him an operation planned this summer for back trouble will not jeopardize his hockey career.

WOLVERHAMPTON, England (AP)—Henry Cooper, British and empire heavyweight champion, knocked out Chip Johnson of Naples, Fla., in two minutes, 34 seconds of the first round in their scheduled 10-round fight Tuesday night.

Goderich Peewee Tournament

GODERICH, Ont. (CP)—The southwestern Ontario town of St. Marys, never a winner of a provincial minor hockey association peewee title or a championship here during Young Canada week, stands on the threshold of both prizes.

Three games were all that remained in their path after they won two games in the B series of the Young Canada week peewee hockey tournament here Tuesday.

The victories—an 8-1 win over Markham, Ont., and a 6-5 one over Milton, Ont. — advanced the St. Marys team into Saturday's semi-final round, putting them two wins away from the B series crown in the 16th annual Goderich tournament.

Meanwhile, St. Marys is involved in the all-Ontario peewee B final with Napanee and can wrap up that title with a win in the eastern Ontario town Thursday night. St. Marys won the first game 6-1.

It's the first time in 12 years of peewee hockey that a St. Marys team has got that far in the OMHA playoffs.

St. Marys beat Milton in the OMHA semi - finals, tying the first game in a best-of-three series 2-2, and then winning two in a row, 6-4 and 6-1. Tuesday night it was 6-3.

Vancouver Will Build Coliseum

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Pacific National Exhibition announced Tuesday night it will definitely build a new coliseum large enough to ensure a Vancouver entry in the National Hockey League.

Capt. H. J. C. Terry, president of the community-owned exhibition, said in an interview that the PNE will build a 14,000-seat coliseum with its own money.

If the PNE is able to obtain a federal government grant to cover part of the cost, the coliseum will be increased to 18,000 seats.

"Our people have already talked to NHL officials," said Capt. Terry. "We will get in."

The NHL has announced plans to expand within the next few years, possible to 12 teams in eastern and western divisions.

Eastern Memorial Cup Play

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—A berth in the Memorial Cup Eastern Junior hockey final will be the prize tonight when Lachine Maroons of Quebec and Smiths Falls Bears meet to break their tied tournament win-loss records.

Lachine pulled even with the Ottawa district champions at three wins and one loss when they romped to an easy 11-2 victory over Sydney Cape Breton Post Tuesday night. The Maritime champions had nothing to lose in their last game of the week-long, double round-robin tournament after being eliminated Monday night by Smiths Falls.

Smiths Falls and Lachine will be battling for the right to meet the winner of the Ontario junior series for the eastern title.

The Maroons got the winning goal at 5:53 of the first period and finished the first period with a 5-1 lead over Sydney. They outscored Sydney 3-1 in the second and added three more in the third. Sydney was defeat 11-2.

Charge Rough Tactics

WOODSTOCK (CP)—It'll be 3 heads up hockey game here tonight between Woodstock Athletics and Sherbrooks Beavers.

Sherbrooks will be taking a 3-0 lead in their best-of-seven Eastern Canada junior final and a lot of complaints about the rough play of the Athletics.

Woodstock will be playing up to Sherbrooks's expectations.

Sherbrooks forward Jean Lemieux said after his team's 5-2 opening game victory Monday night, "they use their sticks too much.

We are not yellow, but any player can only take so much. There was too much rough play out there."

Other Sherbrooks players accused Woodstock of carrying their sticks like headhunters stocking in on their prey.

Woodstock player-coach Ted Power denied the charges, but added, "if they think that we used the sticks in an incorrect manner, just wait until tonight's game."

'Can Do It Myself'

Judy's Daughter Seeks Own Fame

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP)—"I think I can do it by myself now," says Liza Minnelli.

At she talks, the confidence of a 18-year-old glints in her dark brown eyes—and something more: The determination of a girl with special need to prove herself.

For Liza Minnelli, of course, is the daughter of Judy Garland. And until now she's been striving to sever her identity from satellite association with her renowned momma.

The girl who is getting ready for Broadway debut May 11 as for the leading lady of Flora, the Red Menace, contrasts present circumstances with what happened when her career began three years ago. Soon after getting an okay to try, from Miss Garland and her father, film director Vincente. Minnelli, Liza landed a part in an off-Broadway revival of Best Foot Forward.

"I got the job without them knowing who I was. It wasn't the main role, or even the second most important—then suddenly all the publicity was about me."

When she broke her foot, the opening was postponed, and there was more excitement when famous Judy missed the premiere ("I know the real reason was she didn't want to draw attention from me," Liza philosophized later).

Then agents and producers came swarming with bids for her services. But Miss Minnelli felt the deluge wasn't really for her, but for Judy Garland's daughter. She turned her back on big league bids and went off for a series of stock engagements.

"I didn't feel I was ready," she said between sobs pop sips during a rehearsal break. "I didn't want to come to Broadway until I felt sure of myself and felt that people were ready to trust me, and identify me for myself.

"I think I'm through that phase now."

When did she feel she was ready for the big time?

"Well, I got sure of myself the day I met George Abbott and convinced him I was good enough to be in this show."

Flora, the Red Menace, a musical about the mid-1930s, is co - written and directed by Abbott, the dean of Broadway backstage potentates.

THIS TO BE DIFFERENT

"The story is about a girl who's looking for something and when she gets it—finds it isn't exactly what she wanted," she explains. There's some dancing, a good deal of singing.

"It took a while for me to find my own voice," says Miss Minnelli, getting to that matter of family resemblance.

"When you grow up around a voice, you get to imitating it. Since Best Foot, it has become a lot stronger and purer. And I think I've changed the way I pronounce words. Momma puts a lot of Rs in where there aren't any. The only thing that I've hung onto is the way she phrases things."

Miss Minnelli enthusiastically describes a joint appearance with Mike Garland at London's Palladium in December, and expects that lady to be in the first night audience here.

"My mother's great," she continues. "I don't get nervous when she's in the audience—she's on my side. But I want my father to see me at a preview first. She gives me confidence, but I feel his critical hawk's-eye."

Another important influence is Peter Allen, whose diamond engagement ring is on the third finger of her left hand. Allen and his brother are a singing duo from Australia. Liza and Peter met on a Garland show.

AT THE BELLE — The detectives — these are the good guys in Walt Disney's "Emil and The Detectives", Bryan Russell who is at right, and Roger Mobley their leader. On the same program is Walt Disney's, "The Tattooed Police Horse", the story of an off-beat trotter with the heart of a Hero.

At the Belle

Jerry Lewis is a man with a mission.

"I never forget when I'm performing that I have an important job to do," the Number One screen jester explained on the set of "The Disorderly Orderly," his latest comedy for Paramount release in which he is linked romantically to two pretty girls, Susan Oliver and Karen Sharpe. Sitting in the director's chair watching me may be someone with an incurable illness. If I can help that someone forget his troubles, if only briefly, then I have fulfilled my mission in life."

This may sound like strange talk from a man who's made a successful career of playing an idiot, but Lewis really feels he's something like a missionary, a human being with a purpose.

"You see, I believe there's a reason why God gave me this talent to make people laugh, Not to make money—although it's certainly done that. I believe He did it so I could help others. In any case that's the reason I work so hard. I'm convinced God wants me to make people happy. However, that may sound to the cynics, that's the way I feel."

Lewis is deadly serious about the therapeutic value of laughter.

"I once wrote a piece on the subject for the American Medical Association," stated the comedian, whose new film, "The Disorderly Orderly," pokes gentle fun at the world of medicine. "They are convinced of the curative forces of laughter since like me, they have seen what it can do."

"SANDOKAN THE GREAT"

is Technicolor

Scene after scene of surging excitement, thrilling adventure and the perils of a Malayan jungle trek endangered by wild beasts and savage headhunters fill the screen in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacular release, "Sandokan the Great," opens next at the Park with Steve Reeves in the title role playing his most intrepid and action-filled characterization.

And the picture's climactic battle at Fort Victoria between Sandokan's followers, the "Tigers of Mompracem," and the sepoy forces of the British ruler who attempts to take over a sultanate in Borneo is one of the most thunderous and spectacular sequences of its kind ever staged for the screen.

Correction From Karloff

'It's Not Horror, Purely Terror!'

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — "I don't make films," said actor Boris Karloff; "Terror is a better word."

Hired to make still another chiller, the 78-year-old Karloff denies the tag of the high priest of horror.

Vintage titles such as Frankenstein, The Mummy, The Raven, The Old Dark House, Black Friday, The Ape, The Body Snatcher, and the tale of The Dead are but a few dark reminders of the actor's successful sinister roles dating back to the 1920s.

"Lorror," said Karloff "spells revulsion. I do not believe in horror and sadism when introduced purely and simply for their own sake.

"The idea of terror — which is much better — is to make people's hair stand on end, and not to make them lose their breakfast."

He went on:

"The kind of formula with which I've been associated in these years is rooted firmly in legend. Frankenstein, Dracula, the Mummy are all basically fairy stories.

"I still get letters from children who've seen the original Frankenstein on television," he said, "and they show remarkable powers of perception. To them the poor old monster wasn't an evil, horrifying object, but a helpless, inarticulate creature, forsaken and grossly misused by his creator. He was very badly done by, as the children say."

REALLY CULTURED

Karloff is in reality a cultured Englishman, born to the Scottish name of William Henry Pratt.

In his latest film, House at the End of the World, he reverts—historically—to a classic monster role for the first time since the son of Frankenstein in 1939.

He is master of a creepy old house in a remote corner of England where many weird menacing rituals take place.

"Here again," explained Karloff, "the villain of the piece isn't really a nasty sort of fellow. He was once a perfectly ordinary kind man who makes the mistake of tampering with evil forces."

Karloff summed up saying:

"To suggest as some people sincerely do that films about depraved creatures necessarily debase humanity—that fright is a sort of masochistic thrill instead of just another harmless, human reaction is, to me, complete and utter nonsense."

Mr. Thorburn addressed the councillors on the facets of planning and what each one means specifically. Sub-division control applies to parcels of land and the splitting of these land parcels into lots. Building by-law applies to the buildings placed on the lots and buildings only. Zoning relates to the position of the buildings on the lots, and official planning is the concept of how the area will grow and where the various usages of the land will be placed.

There are seven types of zoning areas, they are Agricultural, Residential, Industrial, Commercial, Open space for parkland, Transportation, Institutional use such as hospital and public buildings. The area will have to decide whether they are going to accept the steady sprawl of homes or whether they are going to plan to keep the arable soil for crops and agricultural uses. A planning board would clearly define each one of these divisions to accept the growth in the area due to the population explosion of which the ordinary person does not have clear concention.

A question and answer session was held. One question arose — could the Provincial Government take an area set aside for agricultural purposes to make a park land.

COULD EXPROPRIATE

Mr. Pearson said it was quite possible the Government could expropriate land for this purpose but they would go through the planning board before doing so. no assessment is derived from Provincial park land. It was also asked if a zone could be changed once it was set up, the answer was yes subject to the approval of the municipal affairs board. Another question was, would this zoning interfere with free enterprise, it was explained that the planning would leave option for enterprise but would restrict such businesses as grocery stores etc., being placed in the middle of a residential area.

The very high cost of financing a planning board is why the possibility for a joint board should be considered. The money to finance this venture would be obtained from the various councils on a ratio of population basis.

The councils should pass a resolution wishing to join in planning area and two members from each township would be appointed by the councils and two members from Napanee with the mayor as an ex officio member.

Mr. Pearson commented on the friendly atmosphere existing between the township councils and Napanee which was somewhat different to the feeling ten years ago when he was here to set up the Napanee board, but at that time the thought of annexation reared its ugly head. Mr. Pearson asked the councillors present to go back to their respective councils and meet to decide what they wish to do re this matter and let the department know within a month, of the decision.

Mr. A. Fitchet, Mr. Manley Hart and Mayor Smart all gave words of appreciation to those present for making this meeting possible, after which they all departed to look into another important matter, a battle between Montreal and Chicago, hockey of course.

Albino Muskrat On Display In Fun Store

NAPANEE — A rare sight is on hand in Napanee at Victor Zender's Fur Trading Post. A mounted albino muskrat is on display in the window of the store. The pure white muskrat was caught in the vicinity of Napanee this season.

An albino animal is a very rare freak of nature which happens in all types of animals and the chance of an albino is believed to be one in two or three thousand. Very seldom they have a chance to survive and be seen by a human, as the mother animal lets them die or apparently in most cases she feels they are a misfit and destroys them shortly after birth.

Mr. Vernon Davis of Roblin Trading Post stated "the knew of no other albino muskrat in existence, in captivity or mounted."

The trappers have had a slow to fair season this year due to a late spring. Mr. Zender said he expects the year to end with a good over all catch. This could be due to the reported extension of trapping season, an extra ten days to the end of April.

There has been a very good crop of Beaver, Mink and Otter pelts this season with some very large ones of good quality on display.

Kingston Man Dies in Crash Near Dorland

NAPANEE—Malcolm Magee, 30, of Kingston was killed during the Easter weekend and eight people were injured in a head-on collision near Dorland.

A 4-door sedan belonging to James Gilbert and Amos Carey of Newburg collided Saturday in Newburg causing $700 damage to the two vehicles.

A three-car accident near Tamworth sent Mr. E Kidd of Oshawa to the hospital. The three cars involved belonged to Gerald Sagriff of Oshawa, Robert Mercer of Yarker and Harold Guernsey of Kingston. Mrs. G. VanDusen and baby were treated locally and were passengers in the Mercer vehicle. Mrs. Jacqueline Burrows of Deseronto received injury in an accident on Highway 401 east of the Palace Road intersection.

Vehicles belonging to Robert Breen and Joseph Murphy of Enterprise collided on a county road Friday. There were no injuries to either driver and damage to the Breen car was about $175.

The Theresa Winston of Tor... onto was injured Saturday in an accident on Highway 401 near Switzerville overpass.

Deseronto News

Public School Being Cleaned Over Holiday

DESERONTO — Easter holidays is the time for house cleaning all over the country and the Deseronto Public School is no exception to this rule.

The janitor is doing a fine job preparing all the rooms so they will be fresh and clean when the teachers and students return.

The fences around the school yard are being repaired while inside painters are giving the principal's offices a new look, and two sets of new storage cupboards with arborite counters are being installed.

On the playground a new slide is being set in place and the monkey bars have been repaired. Perhaps this will make the pupils more eager to return for the last lap of the school year.

START PLANTING

The talk these days seems to listen around the late spring weather, and when will the crops be put in.

The people driving between Deseronto and Napanee on Highway 2, who might have looked to the south as they passed the Van Vlack farm could have changed their mind, at least for a moment on Tuesday April 20.

Three generations of Van Vlack's were busy racing with the weather to get the potatoes planted in the already prepared soil. Mr. Percy Van Vlack is noted for early potatoes in this district, their soil is a sandy loam with excellent drainage slopes to allow them to be first in the district.

Dr. McVicker Will Represent Town in Booth

DESERONTO — Councillor D. C. McVicker, head of the Industrial committee, is to attend the Lake Ontario Development Association booth at the National Production Show in Toronto as an official delegate. He will represent Deseronto in the interest of the promotion of industry.

Council feels this is very important as this is a wonderful place to advertise property here available for industry.

The proposed larger sewer line to be installed on Centre St., will not be allowed unless a further costly installation is prepared to take off the effluent of said sewer line.

A letter was received from Deseronto Board of Education requesting a by-law to be passed to discontinue the Deseronto high school and join the Napanee and District School Area. This motion was voted on and carried six votes in the affirmative and one negative.

APPLICATION REFUSED

Mr. G. Rendell applied for a licence to operate an automobile wrecking business in the west end of town on Dundas St.

This application was dismissed due to the fact a by-law exists which prohibits this type of business in this zone.

A motion was passed to pay 50 percent of the P.S.I. payments of the town employees.

The fire department requested $75 to defray costs of necessary meeting with the Fire Department Mutual Aid Association to be held here Wednesday, May 8.

A motion was passed to have the streets committee look after the removal of old wrecked cars that have been parked on the streets for some time, if this does not come under the jurisdiction of town council it will be placed in the hands of the proper police authority.

Councillor Webster suggested a no parking sign be erected on the corner of St. George and Main Streets. Cars parked on the north side of Main Street, close to the intersection make it impossible for motorists to have clear view and make this a very hazardous approach to Main St. This will be attended to promptly.

Identify Body Found In Wreck

SCHREIBER, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police Tuesday identified the body of a man found in the wreckage of a derailed CPR passenger train near Terrace Bay as that of Elzeor Dallaire, 61, of Wells, B.C.

They said Dallaire may have come originally from the Windsor, Ont., area where he has relatives of the same name.

A CPR spokesman said Allaire was not a crew member.

The body was found during the weekend in a rear diesel unit by workmen clearing the wreckage of a passenger train derailed near Terrace Bay, 160 miles east of Fort Arthur, early Saturday.

Charles Kamegniesser, 36, of Fort William, a CPR baggageman, was killed and 47 persons were injured, none seriously, when the train jumped the tracks.

The twin - diesel locomotive and nine cars of the 14-car train tumbled from the tracks after hitting a cave-in on the line. The diesels and six cars rolled down a 100-foot embankment.

Say Narcotics Agent Accepted Bribe at Miami

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The chief federal narcotics agent in Miami and two of the city's police vice squad officers have been charged with accepting a bribe from a dope peddler who complained he was paying $2,000 a month in protection money.

The arrests were made Tuesday by city police and a team of federal Narcotics Bureau agents at the home of a self-admitted narcotics operator after the trio was said to have accepted $130 in marked money.

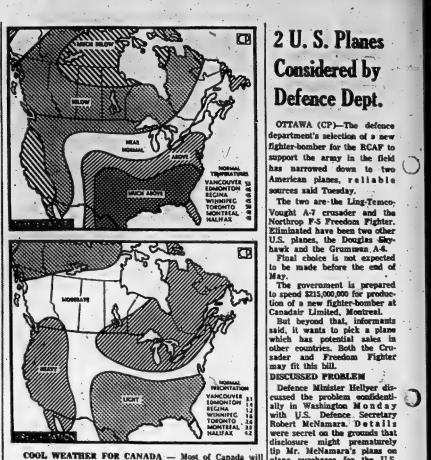
Headley quoted the informer as saying he wanted "to quit, but they wouldn't let me."

The police chief declined to reveal the informer's name or details of the investigation.

Two Railway Branch Lines Are Abandoned

OTTAWA (CP)—Approval for the abandonment of two CNR branch lines in southwestern Ontario was announced today by the Board of Transport Commissioners.

The railway was given authority to close at any time after June 30 its 10½-mile line between Glencoe and Alvinston, railway between London and Chatham, and a 6.85-mile line between Woodstock and Hickson.



Public hearings on the CNR's abandonment applications were held at London and Woodstock in January. Several municipalities and industries put up opposition in both cases.

The board said the railway has had an annual operating loss of $8,103 on the Glencoe-Alvinston service and $2,582 on the Woodstock - Hickson line. There were no regular passenger or freight services on either but railroad freight pickup and delivery was available on a when-required basis.

The board judgments noted that both areas are amply served by highways and declared that no severe public inconvenience would result from closing the two lines.

The three were charged with accepting a bribe, a felony under Florida law, and released on their personal bond. They are Eugene J. Marshall, 35, head of the U.S. Narcotics Bureau for southeastern Florida; Police Sgt. Frank Fountain, 39, second in command of the city's vice squad, and his assistant, Roosevelt Trenholm, 34, a Negro plainclothes detective.

Police Chief Walter Headley said the arrests climaxed a week of investigation. It started when the police department complained to police about the protection money he said he was paying.

2 U. S. Planes Considered by Defence Dept.

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department's selection of a new fighter-bomber for the RCAF to support the army in the field has narrowed down to two American planes, reliable sources said Tuesday.

The two are the Ling-Temco-Vought A-7 crusader and the Northrop F-5 Freedom Fighter. Eliminated have been two other U.S. planes, the Douglas Skyhawk and the Grumman A-6.

Final choice is not expected to be made before the end of May.

The government is prepared to spend $215,000,000 for production of a new fighter-bomber at Canadair Limited, Montreal.

But beyond that, informants said, it wants to pick a plane which has potential sales in other countries. Both the Crusader and Freedom Fighter say fit this RCAF plan.

DISCUSSED PROBLEM

Defence Minister Hellyer discussed the problem confidentially in Washington Monday with U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara. Details of talks were secret on the grounds that disclosure might prematurely tip Mr. McNamara's plans on plane purchases for the U.S. Air Force. So far, the U.S. defence secretary has not ordered the crusader only for the American Navy.

Informants said Mr. Hellyer could wait for Mr. McNamara to announce his plans and then choose the same plane, simplifying Canadian problems of alternate bases and spare parts.

However, Mr. Hellyer likely will decide before Mr. McNamara to meet the pressing demands of the Canadian aircraft industry for new production.

This will provide some sort of saw-off between the industry and the defence department, which has not regarded choice of a new plane as urgent. Mr. Hellyer had rejected earlier the industry's request for production of an expensive plane such as the U.S. Phantom.

Remember This Courageous Man?

FLQ's Bomb Hero-victim Rebuilds Shattered Life

By DAVE STOCKAND

MONTREAL (CP)—Accident is the word used by Walter Leja's family to describe the thunderclap climax of raw and deliberate bomb terrorism.

It is said without irony.

The rebuilding of a brave man's life—out of the wreckage that his act of courage cost him—takes precedence over looking back in futile anger.

Nearly two years have gone by since that Friday morning—May 17, 1963—when a dynamite time-bomb blew up in Walter Leja's hands while he was removing it from a mailbox in the Montreal suburb of Westmount.

The bomb was one of a number planted by le Front de Liberation Quebecois (FLQ)—a terrorist group seeking by violence the establishment of an independent Quebec nation.

Walter Leja, Rocky to his friends, was doing his dangerous work on callout from the reserve army in which he was a sergeant-major. An overseas veteran of the Second World War, he had volunteered for the task and was tackling his third mailbox, when death took a swipe at him.

"He loved the army," says his wife "and he's still army through and through."

To this day, Rocky Leja has no recollection of the blast that had his number on it.

LOST LEFT ARM

In his never - to - be - remembered horror, his chest and face were savaged by the close-in force of the explosion and his left arm mangled so badly that it had to be amputated below the elbow.

For all its vicious mischief, the FLQ turned out to be a ragtag outfit with a membership list almost as short as its bomb fuses. It was smashed, and its key members, most of them youthful, sent to prison for a variety of outrages including the Westmount bombings.

But the maiming of Rocky Leja remains a legacy of terrorism and the Leja family history has a cruel dividing line —before and after the "accident."

To describe meaningfully how he is making out now, it is important to know something of his past—before the shock and flash of explosion struck him speechless while shattering his body.

Rocky Leja was an extrovert, one of the most likable of men. He was a jack-of-many-trades who had at various times owned his own taxi, worked for the CNR, but who loved the army above all.

Around the house he was a do-it-yourself-while. He had tremendous energy and a passion for the outdoors. Swimming, water-skiing, fishing—especially fishing—he loved them all.

He would take on any challenge. Once, just to show it could be done, he took a bottle of whisky down with him in a diving suit and had a belt under water.

Today, Rocky Leja remains one of the most likable of men.

He is 45 now and, as his nickname implies, he retains the build of a powerful middleweight. Despite a decided limb to his walk, like a tough seadog on a rolling deck, he gets around the house at astounding speed.

Using a clipboard, with a pencil fitted to a hook at the end of what remains of his left arm, he can get simple messages down on paper. He is naturally righthanded but his right arm, while it has strength, has little co-ordination.

The regaining of speech comes harder—much harder—but even here determination is slowly winning out.

There is a staccato burst of no-no-nos when he disagrees, a stream of affirmatives when the right thing is said, and his family have become almost psychic at translating his wants into action.

Sometimes the right words come out. Sometimes they don't. And sometimes, in exasperation, he has to resort to the sounds and gestures that a small child might make in an effort to be understood.

REBUILDS LIFE — Two years after he was blown to the brink of death by a Montreal terrorist's bomb, Walter Leja (left) is busy getting his life back to normal. Through daily speech therapy lessons he is able to get across simple voice messages, and with help he is able to fish — a favorite hobby prior to the bombing. Constant sources of help are his wife and son Ted, a McGill University student. (CP Photo)

These are the terrible times he has. For he is a man with an adult's memory—a man who knows and who understands.

"When he started an speech he didn't know how to say the letters of the alphabet," Mrs. Leja says.

"In the beginning progress was fast but now it seems slow to him and it gets him down.

"He was so very active before and he's not a patient man. He blows his top occasionally."

In a visitor's conversation with the Leja clan—Mrs. Leja, the Leja's strapping son Ted, a first-year student at McGill University, and Stanley Przywara, Mrs. Leja's brother — Rocky Leja gets across the idea that he wants to try water-skiing again.

"Maybe in a few years," says Mrs. Leja. "Not this year."

It is a moment edged in sadness, a reminder that the future still holds many more trips to hospital for speech therapy—every weekday—and for physiotherapy sessions—twice weekly.

There are nerve - scratching times when life in the Leja house must resemble a never-ending combination of charades and a 30-questions-type television show. Yet laughter is no stranger and warm pride is always present.

The Lejas live in the Montreal suburb of Jacques Cartier, on the south shore of the St. Lawrence river, and their home is a showplace on the street because of Rocky Leja's before-the-accident craftsmanship.

EAGER TO FISH AGAIN

They are comfortable enough financially because of a full army pension plus interest from a fund of close to $30,000 raised in gratitude by the citizens of Westmount—a terrorist target because its population is predominantly English-speaking.

They are proud of what Walter Leja did, grateful for the many messages of sympathy they have received—and, with close-knit sense of purpose, are rebuilding a life at the pace set by the circumstances of an act of senseless brutality.

Summer is coming, and with it the fishing season, and the thought of visits to the summer cottage always brings a smile to the face of Rocky Leja.

"Last year he was out fishing with my brother," says Mrs. Leja.

"He would hold the fishing rod and my brother would bring the fish in."

Stanley Przywara says that, this time, he is going to rig up an attachment on the reel that will allow Rocky Leja to operate it with the hook that substitutes for a hand.

"This year he will land his own fish," he said.

U.S. Marines Clash With Viet Cong

Air Base Guards In First Battle With Guerrillas

Patrols Hand Out Candy And Look for Enemy

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP)—U.S. Marines fought their first extended clash with the Viet Cong today as U.S. and South Vietnamese planes bombed and strafed Communist targets in both North and South Viet Nam.

During an eight-hour patrol into a valley, outside the Da Nang air base, the marines tangled twice with the Communist guerrillas. One American was wounded, and two others collapsed with heat prostration.

The operation included the first helicopter assault landing of U.S. Marines in South Viet Nam.

Three squadrons of South Vietnamese air force propeller-driven fighter - bombers — the largest Vietnamese air unit flown so far—attacked a base in North Viet Nam and reported they destroyed it.

U.S. Navy fighter - bombers made five raids during the night on road traffic in North Viet Nam. No planes were lost and groundfire was reported minimal.

DAMAGE TRUCKS

Pilots reported destroying nine trucks and damaging eight in strafing attacks on three separate convoys. The attacks centred around Vinh, midway between the border and Hanoi.

U.S. Air Force and marine jets flew 43 sorties against Viet Cong installations and guerrillas in South Viet Nam. In An Xuyen province, 13 B-57 jet bomber sorties resulted in a claim of 53 Viet Cong structures destroyed.

On the ground, the marine patrol from Da Nang exchanged machine-gun fire and buried grenades across a hard, hot rice field as the Communist

Floods Aim Fury at Two Cities

DUBUQUE, Iowa (AP)—Rising Mississippi floodwaters carved a half-mile swath in Dubuque, stayed at a record crest in La Crosse, Wis., and turned fury at Illinois today.

La Crosse dug in for two more days of record flooding that prompted Governor Warren P. Knowles to comment: "That's enough to make you cry."

The 17.7-foot crest was 7.7 feet above flood stage and 2.4 feet higher than the record of 1952.

Dubuque, a city of 57,000 at the Iowa-Illinois-Wisconsin junction, fought to stave off waters that were expected to crest at 26 feet Friday or Saturday.

The water covered a seven-eighth-block area of factories, small businesses and some homes. It covered parking meters and forced residents to flee their homes by boat.

Governor Harold E. Hughes of Iowa said he was asking legal advice on whether police could evict some 1,000 South Dubuque residents who refused to leave their homes despite warnings of rising water.

FORCED FROM HOMES

Hughes estimated flood damage at $15,000,000 and said the waters have forced some 3,000 persons from their homes.

President Johnson declared as disaster areas the tier of Wisconsin counties that took the Mississippi's worst beating. The state's toll comes to two dead, one missing, some 14,000 persons affected and damage totalling $18,700,000.

Civil defence authorities estimated that some 3,000 Illinois residents had left their homes.

No flood deaths have occurred in Illinois. Damage estimates would be impossible to make, civil defence authorities said.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Northern regions are assured of fine fair weather today and southern regions can expect some sunshine and certainly much more pleasant weather than the previous two days. Temperatures will again be unseasonably cool.

Another disturbance will move through the forecast district late today and tonight. The slower activity with it should end overnight but cloudiness generated by it will likely linger over southern Ontario Friday.

Viet Cong Victorious

From Reuters-AP

SAIGON (CP)—A strong government force was dealt a bloody defeat today and retreated after attacking strongly fortified Viet Cong positions 30 miles from the key U.S. air base at Da Nang.

In today's bloody defeat on the coastal road, six battalions of South Vietnamese ground forces were ambushed after being ordered, and 86 wounded—including five American advisers.

Two defected and 28 were reported missing.

The government claimed at least 53 Viet Cong killed. But municipal hospital. All patients have been moved to other hospitals and the operation staff was on duty.

The muddy, debris-laden water was within 3 feet of both the hotel and hospital on the main street.

While most of the town's residents have taken precautions against the rising water, there seems to be a consensus that the flood will rank behind 1950 and 1948 floods.

Emerson Braces For Flood

By ALLEN SACKMANN

EMERSON, Man. (CP)—An air of anticipation hung over this border community Wednesday night as the swelling Red River inched closer to homes and businesses.

"We're in a state of readiness," said Provincial Co-ordinator Frank Muirhead as finishing touches were put on major dikes through the downtown area.

The 930 residents of Emerson, 70 miles south of Winnipeg, are waiting for a flood crest forecast to reach here Saturday. It's expected to inundate a large section of the community.

The Red continued to rise slowly and measured 784.22 feet above sea level Wednesday night—a rise of two inches in four hours but still nearly three feet below the anticipated crest.

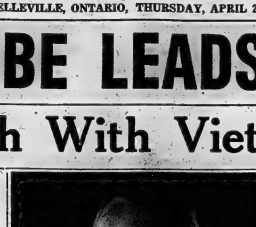
FORMS LAKE

Army Engineer James Gagnon said the river formed a 10-mile-wide lake and was the worst he had seen in many years. The ponding in North Dakota was expected to alleviate the threat in Manitoba as the flood waters moved northward.



In Winnipeg, a crest of 22 feet was expected next week—three feet below the city's primary dikes. The level was 20.1 feet at 1 a.m. today, down one-fifth of a foot from Wednesday's noon level.

Already, Jim and George Stacey have had to operate two sump pumps around the clock to keep the water level at 2½ feet in the basement of their Emerson home.

A higher sandbag dike was thrown up by 49 soldiers from Winnipeg around a new, 16-bed

OTTAWA (CP) — Lester B. Pearson celebrates two anniversaries this week—his 68th birthday Friday and the start of his third year as prime minister of Canada Thursday.

His cabinet colleagues plan a celebration at a regular weekly cabinet meeting. And his staff and the staff of the Privy Council office have baked a birthday cake for the prime minister and Mrs. Pearson to cut Friday.

A five-day rest at the prime minister's country residence in the Gatineau Hills north of the capital has put the bloom back in the Pearson cheeks after parliamentary sittings stretching back more than a year.

Charge Montreal Men Slew Kingston Beer Store Head

KINGSTON (CP) — Kenneth Harbour, 21, of Fabreville, Que., and Harry Moore, of Montreal have been charged with capital murder in connection with the Christmas Eve holdup - killing of Paul Lawrence, a Kingston brewery store manager.

The two men were arrested Wednesday in Montreal.

Mr. Lawrence, 51 - year - old father of four children, was shot twice in a holdup bid at a shoping plaza as he headed for a night bank depository with $3,000 in beer store receipts.

The money was left in a paper bag on the front seat of his car and the assailants ran off with another bag containing Christmas presents for the Lawrence family. Mr. Lawrence died next day.

Inspector Harry Sayeau of the provincial police, who has been investigating, went to Montreal to pick up the men charged.

Doctors Criticize Flu Alert

MIDLAND, Ont. (CP)—Doctors in this area Wednesday criticized the manner in which a report Tuesday had linked the deaths of three persons after infection by an influenza virus.

Dr. C. A. Talbot of nearby Port McNicoll described Dr. H. B. Colnam, Ontario's supervising coroner, and the pathologist who conducted the autopsies on the three bodies as alarmists and said much was being made of the reports.

Local doctors all complained of a flood of telephone calls from patients concerned over the report.

Dr. Colnam said in Toronto Tuesday that a virus form of pneumonia that killed three children in the Midland district had similar symptoms to the disease that swept across Canada in 1918, but has by no means been identified.

"It should be stressed that there is no epidemic," Dr. Colnam said.

DIDN'T KNOW

The tetical doctors said they knew nothing of influenza being involved in the three deaths-the first of which occurred in December—until it was disclosed by Dr. Colnam.

Dr. W. F. Neale of Midland said that if the virus was similar to the 1918 epidemic, which killed 20,000,000 persons around the world including 30,000 in Canada, it would be knocked out in nothing flat by modern drugs.

Dr. Roland Lauzon of Penetanguishene said a number of persons in the town had influenza but the situation was not dangerous because penicillin was available.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Six children and their parents are dead in a murder-suicide police have tied to a robbery of $1,250,000 in mutilated money.

Hogue and his wife lay dead in their bedroom. Their children' bodies were scattered about the home's three bloodstained floors. Some of them had tried to hide as shots rang from their father's .357-calibre magnum revolver.

Deputy Chief John Fisk of the Vancouver police force said Hogue, 34, had been under suspicion in the Feb. 11 robbery here of cancelled money being sent to the mint in Ottawa to be destroyed.

Joseph Percival, a former city constable, was arrested recently in Edmonton and charged with possession of $12,000 of the money.

Why Men Murder Families

By LARRY FRIEDMAN

NEW YORK (AP)—A prominent social scientist offered a possible explanation today for the outbreak of recent family slayings that have cost 25 lives in North America alone—something snaps inside frustrated people in the spring.

"Spring always is a bad time for these things," Dr. Alfred McClung Lee said in an interview.

"All life is reawakening in the spring, the roads are open and these people can't use them. Life is frustrating. It is a time of inadequacy for them.

"They have to lash out at someone and often they do it against those to whom they are most devoted."

Lee, 58, a professor of sociology and anthropology at Brooklyn College and author of many sociology textbooks, quoted a line from Thoreau on the subject:

"The mass lead lives of quiet desperation."

But the sociologist stressed that his theory is only a possible one and not meant to provide any answer for the slayings of entire families in recent days including a family of eight in Vancouver Wednesday.

Of course, it is difficult to understand the tensions that build up in some people in spring," Lee said. "We do know that something snaps inside. It often is resolved by either violence, desertion or divorce."

These slayings without apparent motive have occurred.

. In Vancouver, police found the bodies of Leonard Hogue, a Vancouver policeman, his wife and their six children in their suburban home in Coquitlam. We are assuming . . . the man shot the other members of the family and then committed suicide," an RCMP spokesman said. The children were between 3 and 13 years old.

. In South Bend, Ind., Mrs. Deanna Hanbey, 28, whose husband often was away from home on business trips, admitted to police she strangled their three sons and a daughter, ranging in age from 2 to 7. She begged hospital aides to "let me

Church Spokesmen Voice Varied Sentiments Over Possible End to Religious Instruction

TORONTO (CP)—Clerical reaction was mixed Wednesday night to a report that the Ontario government is nearing a decision that could mean the end to religious instruction in public schools.

Rt. Rev. George Luxton of London, Ont., Anglican Bishop of Huron, said he was surprised at the possibility that the legislature would throw religious instruction open to committee discussion after what he said was 15 years of happy experience in teaching religion in schools.

The Globe and Mail reported that the government may accede to a 1964 resolution of the Ontario Federation of Home and School associations calling for a committee of child psychologists, psychiatrists, social workers and teachers to study the existing courses in religious instruction.

Bishop Luxton said such a committee would be the result of continued demands by small but vocal minorities to do away with religious education.

Rev. R. H. N. Davidson, a Toronto United Church minister, welcomed the plan for a committee.

Rev. Harold Trinier, editor of The Canadian Baptist, said he thought the committee should have clergymen on it.

Rev. Arnold Thaw, minister of South Peel Unitarian Congregation, said: "I'm delighted."

Rev. Clement Crusoe, national director of Jesuit education, said: "It is important that young people be given religious instruction.

Rev. W. F. Butcher, general secretary of the Canadian Council of Churches, said: "I can't foresee possibilities."

The Globe and Mail says the committee's terms of reference would make it possible for it to recommend abolition of the present religious instruction courses in public schools.

The paper says the committee would determine if the course is achieving its intended purpose.

It would study the possibility of teaching morality and ethics to all students regardless of their religious backgrounds. Committee members themselves would come from a variety of religious heritages.

The government will likely be made in the legislature early next week by Education Minister William Davis," the paper says.

The legislature has received for Easter vacation and will resume sittings Tuesday.

Ontario is the only province in Canada that makes religious instruction mandatory in public schools. Regulations call for an hour's instruction in Christianity each week in grades 1 to 8, province.

Do Not Pose as Perfect Person Is Priest's Advice to Teachers

TORONTO (CP) — Teachers with personal problems and feelings of insecurity can do psychological harm to both themselves and their students, says Rev. Serilius Bowers, dean of the school of social welfare at Ottawa's St. Patrick's College.

Father Bowers told a special section of the Ontario Education Association Wednesday that a teacher's own problems and anxieties can prevent him from seeing pupils as they actually are.

"It does not only happen with teachers; it happens with social workers, with psychologists, with psychiatrists," Father Bowers said.

Father Bowers suggests as a solution "not to try to create the image or facade of the hypothetically-perfect person, but to use the self-that-one-is constructively and with purpose in the teacher-pupil relationship."

Says Franco-Ontarians Can Be Equal Partners of English Ones

OTTAWA (CP) — French - speaking Ontario residents can, within the framework of Confederation, become equal partners with their English-speaking neighbors, the president of the Ontario French - Canadian Education Association said Wednesday night.

Roger Levac, re-elected association president earlier Wednesday, said, "however, we are still far from occupying the position to which we have a right."

Speaking at the annual banquet of the association, held during Ontario French Week, he said Franco-Ontarians need to have "at their disposal the means and institutions needed for a truly French life in this province."

"We must arrive at the point where each Ontarian have a mind, a spirit and a heart that is truly French and for that we need a school system, a language of instruction and of culture is French."

He said Quebec province is making its desires known with loud cries. "We too, authentic French - Canadians, although in the minority in this Ontario in which we live, we well know what we want to be and we are bringing to light our aspirations."

Today's Chuckle

There is certainly one thing to be said for this modern "music": you can't tell the difference when the record wears out.

Keeping Up With City's Growth Can Be Real Strain on Memory

Spring is here—well practically—and soon Belleville will acquire its usual crop of new subdivisions, adding many new street names which Belleville residents will have to memorize if they wish to boast that they know every nook and cranny of their home city.

But memorizing the new names is not enough. One has to remember where each one is a street and when it is a road, crescent, avenue, circle or what have you. And woe betide the person who says Wallbridge Road when he means Wallbridge Crescent. He will end up in the ditch and in trouble.

Most cities, including Belleville, do not follow a standard in naming traffic arteries. But strictly speaking, roads, streets and avenues are not identical.

The Century Dictionary defines a road as "a public way for passage or travel; a strip of ground appropriated for travelling; a highway; a communication between different places."

How does a street differ? Well, a street is basically the same except it appears in a village, town or city and normally includes houses and sidewalks. A street, in the strictest sense, is a main way, in distinction from a lane or alley.

Then there is a crescent. According to the dictionary, a crescent should be shaped like the appearance of the moon during its first quarter. Except for the shape, it is basically the same as a street.

An avenue is a street, but not an ordinary street. Defin ition has it that an avenue is a wide street planted with trees and often with turfed spaces on either side, or a garden or shaded promenade in the middle.

A circle is usually a short cul-de-sac, that is, a street which allows a car access to properties and leaves enough room for the car to circle at the end of it to come back the other way. It is often a mushroom-shaped street.

To add to the confusion, there are parkways and expressways. Parkways run through undeveloped land, usually through park areas, and expressways are divided, controlled highways.

What this all means is that your street, even if called one, may not be a street at all.

Duo-Pianists Welcomed In Return Engagement

By EUGENE LANG

After a lapse of a few years the celebrated duo piano team of Parsons and Poole made a welcome appearance to this city last evening to conclude the present series of musical attractions of the Belleville Community Concert Association. The Collegiate Auditorium was, as usual, well filled with musical patrons for this recital.

Hailing from London, Ontario, these pianists are the team of Margaret Parsons and Clifford Poole have travelled extensively and have appeared widely with decided success wherever they have appeared. Their method of two piano combinations is not overly loaded with very many numbers, but is rather in this field Parsons and Poole loom as one of the brightest gems, and prefer their serious musical approach to the works that they program, but also for the contrast, to program between the two in their manner of phrasings, rhythmic pulsings, and tonal colorings, the complete subjection of one to the other is so subtly attained that the listener is put to the test to know which artist is playing what at which moment. It is this musical absorption of one to the other reached so flawlessly that has earned for the coverage of several major news stories and the fact that the U.S. television networks were more evenly matched in ratings for prime, evening time.

The selections chosen for last evening's recital were based upon variety that encompassed examples from the 18th century to the present day, and in practically all of them the two artists achieved the ultimate in their renditions of same.

Brahms' Variations on a theme by Haydn", a masterwork in the two piano literature was given a most fitting and considered sedatene. The Poulenc Concerto in D Minor was another effective duet, despite its unusualness and complexity of writing. It was relived into by the artists and came up fitted just like a jig-saw, not only technically, but also musically. The second duet said of Milhaud's "Scaramouche Suite", a lovely three movement work, which the pianists Poole did rewarding justice to in their assembly of its clownish antics and pantomimic steps and forth between the double keyboards.

Two short works written by Mr. Poole gave evidence of his composing talents. The first was a jig-saw, not only technically, but also musically. The second duet said of Milhaud's "Scaramouche Suite", a lovely three movement work, which the pianists Poole did rewarding justice to in their assembly of its clownish antics and pantomimic steps and forth between the double keyboards.

TWO BACH SELECTIONS

Two Bach selections were programmed in both of which Bach has imbued their respective emotional feelings with telling power and lovely fugue. "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" was flowingly devised in Mr. Poole's transcription that got humility mixed with tranquility. The "Dorian" Toccata gave an impression that the pianists have that can be realized from Bach's organ compositions, and in this league baseball games the splendored the keyboards with their playing of this grandiose work.

Saint-Saen's "Aquarium" from the Big "Carnival of the Animals" was given a shimmering performance in the delicate shadings that were achieved by the two pianists. This was an example of exceptional musical sketching that was flowingly set forth between the two pairs of hands with silken caresses.

The Wolf Mozart Sonata were the Sonata in B Flat major (K 358) which was given a convincing interpretation, but a little heavy in places and the set of three Waltzes transcribed from Johann Strauss' originally scored for small orchestra. These latter were disappointing, in that the keyboard executants dressed these up in 19th century pomposity with a heady and slow tempo overloaded with ritardandos and rubatos. They could be improved if livened up and briskly played as Mozart intended them to be.

In retrospect, a lovely concert that was well received by all in attendance. And so ends the thirty-first season.

and the heavy demands on him apparently fade into the background behind the satisfaction and inspiration Mr. Pearson finds in his job.

Perhaps his greatest personal satisfaction came with Parliament's adoption of a Canadian flag last summer, though in the process Mr. Pearson's favorite design will not aside by a parliamentary committee in favor of the single red maple leaf.

His colleagues see other satisfactions. The buoyant economy, a portable pension plan, expanding trade, parliamentary redistribution. Many of the government's actions have been undertaken despite a perils of governing with only a minority of Commons seats.

The adoption of the flag was followed closely by one of two events regarded by associates as the most trying period for Mr. Pearson. This was the charge of attempted bribery and corruption in ministerial circles which a judicial inquiry has been held.

The second setback, possibly the sharpest for Mr. Pearson personally, is the defeat of all his political associates and the first-budget controversy so soon after his government came to power seemed to dismay Mr. Pearson little. Mr. Pearson weathered the storm and presents his third budget Monday, LATER HAS FURTHER

In the months since he became prime minister, Mr. Pearson's life has fallen into a discernable pattern. He's at the office by 8:15 a.m. or 8:30. He has a brief conference with Privy Council Clerk Gordon Robertson and top policy adviser Tom Kent.

Tuesdays and Thursdays the cabinet meets and other cabinet committees generally are called for late afternoon. Sittings of the Commons usually run from two or three hours of the day when Parliament is in session. He there's a never - ending stream of visitors to see.

Mr. Pearson likes to get away from the office at noon Fridays. Friday afternoon and Saturday are spent at his official residence, 24 Sussex Drive, studying official papers, dictating correspondence and reviewing drafts for forthcoming speeches.

Despite the work load, Mr. Pearson finds time to relax. He is a rapid and selective reader, leaning to history and biography with novels and whodone-its for a change of pace. He schedules his time to watch television coverage of NHL games in winter and important major league baseball games in summer.

The he isn't out of Harrington Lake where the prime minister has a summer home but he tries to spend part of the week end there from April until November. He likes fishing.

He likes long walks with his wife's black French poodle, Pepi, and sometimes skates and slides with his grandchildren.

Indian Education Section Of OEA Is Well Attended

TORONTO — The Indian Education Section of the Ontario Educational Association held its annual convention in the auditorium of Education Centre, Toronto, O.E.A. activity was evidenced by the fact that attendance this year almost doubled any previous year. With the new set-up in [illegible] Northern Ontario are combined under one Regional Office in Toronto with a central under the direction of supervising principals, the section had attendance from as far west as Fort Frances and east to St. Regis Agency near Montreal.

Three very interesting speakers provided those attending with much food for thought to carry back to their classrooms.

Mrs. Vera Wilson, Art Director for East York, President of the Ontario Society for Education Through Art and lecturer in Canadian Art History at the Ontario College of Art, spoke on the ways that art could be utilized in everyday life, and how it could be taught in the classroom and stressed the fact that, although we are not all artists, all could be taught an appreciation of art. With the rapid development of automation people are going to have more leisure time which could be profitably spent on such subjects as painting, ceramics, sculpture carving, design, home decoration, and so forth or to many other of the fine arts. Mrs. Wilson said that Indian children have a sense of rythm and beauty in nature which she has found in no other group of people as a whole.

Mr. A. P. Haswell, Inspector of Public Schools Ottawa, member of the Ontario Mathematics Commission and member of the committee on the new approach to Mathematics gave a most inspiring address on "New Mathematics". He said that in the age of scientific development we must change to learn the new "Concepts of mathematics which is an integral part of science. This is an age of discovery and when ever in all of history's great scientists are alive and active today and science is progressing faster than ever before in history. He stressed the fact that in the so-called new math pupils are not only learning something new but learning a new approach to an old subject with a new language and, most important, the pupil is learning why he is doing some particular problem and why he is able to arrive at a certain conclusion.

During the morning break those attending were given a special treat of hearing a group of classical selections by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Moses. Mr. Moses, a lieutenant in the Naval Reserve, is a music supervisor on the Toronto Board of Education.

May Restrict Grade 13 Pupils To 4 Subjects

TORONTO (CP)—The education department is considering reorganization of Grade 13 studies in order to restrict pupils to four subjects, Education Minister Davis said today.

The Ontario Guidance and Guidance Association a committee has proposed to reduce the number of subjects required for university admittance and give Grade 13 students time to study them in greater depth.

"The suggested normal program is two subjects at advanced level and three at advanced level," he said. "It is felt that, except in the special cases, a student could not do justice to more than two subjects at advanced level.

"It is possible, however, that some university faculties may find it necessary to demand slightly more than this suggested normal program."

He said he will appoint another committee to study the administrative and teaching problems resulting from the proposed change in both high schools and universities.

Mr. Davis' remarks were contained in a text of his speech to be delivered at delivery.

While he said the concept of general and advanced levels in Grade 13 appears to have met general support in principle from secondary schools and universities, the idea of Grade 13 curriculum ran into some criticism Tuesday at a meeting in Toronto in connection with the Ontario Educational Association convention.

But Bernard Taylor of the Ontario College of Education told the Ontario Classical Association division of the OEA that the University of Toronto's council of arts and sciences dislikes the idea of accepting four subjects as adequate for admission.

He said that if a student went into mathematics or sciences, it would be likely English could not be included in his post-Grade 13 career. It also sounded like the "voice of doom" for high school Latin and Greek.

Mr. Davis said Prof. Taylor was prematurely concerned, since the suggested revision was still under consideration and would not likely be introduced in less than two years.

Unique Answer To Family Car Problems

More and more families with working wives are finding that one car is not adequate for their transportation needs. While two cars might solve the problem, this is expensive — especially when more than two members of the family are driving as well.

The ideal solution is the Honda Motor Scooter. For as little as $4 per week, you can have the advantage of a second car. For example, dad may drive the family car to work while mom drives the family car to her job or goes shopping. In fact, it is not uncommon to see women going to the grocery store with the handy Honda.

Teen-agers are finding the Honda Motor Scooter a dependable source of transportation. A low cost (up to 254 miles per gallon.) For dad, this is less expensive than letting son use the family car.

To learn more about these wonderful machines, drop in to Booth Radio and Television Limited, 170 Front Street. They'll be pleased to show you all the wonderful advantages of driving a Honda. Ap22-25

50th Anniversary of Heroic Stand Made by Canadians At St. Julien Observed

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

YPRES, Belgium (CP)—Canada and Belgium today commemorate the 50th anniversary of a heroic stand by Canadian troops against the first major poison-gas attack in history.

Villagers in this Flanders area, devastated in the First World War, still designate certain fields by such names as "Mousetrap Farm" and "Canada Farm" in memory of the Canadian action against the Germans when they attacked with chlorine gas.

Leo Cadieux, associate defence minister, flew from Canada to represent the government at today's ceremonies in this ancient city and at the impressive Canadian memorial at nearby St. Jülien, scene of the gas attack.

Two RCAF transport planes were scheduled—weather permitting—to drop 20,000 poppies over wreath-laying ceremonies at St. Julien, where in a few days 2,000 Canadians died out of a force of 18,000 in April, 1915.

A 100-man Belgian military contingent linked up with a similar-sized contingent from Canada's NATO brigade in West Germany for today's commemoration.

Canadian and Belgian army officers worked together Wednesday night to perfect the somewhat intricate arrangements in which Canada is represented by the Princess Patricia's Light Infantry.

Some 300,000 allied soldiers died in the Ypres area during the First World War. Cadieux, whose transatlantic plane touched down at Marville, France, was to present to Ypres this, morning - Canada's new flag to replace the old design presented to the 1,000-year-old town in 1961.

Ypres Burgomaster (mayor) Albert de Hem was to present Cadieux with an engraved medal struck by the city to commemorate the anniversary.

The Belgian-Canadian party then was scheduled to go to the front of the town hall where the burgomaster was to raise the new flag beside the emblems of France and Belgium, whose forces were in the line with Canada at the Battle of St. Julien.

Atop a tall obelisk at St. Julien is the great, bowed head and shoulders of a soldier carved in white granite, bowed in grief perpetually over the dead. An inscription says:

"This column marks the battlefield where 18,000 Canadians on the British left withstood the first German gas attacks, the 22nd-24th April, 1915. 2,000 fell and here lie buried."

It was the marines' first extended clash with the enemy since they landed in South Viet Nam six weeks ago. Previous contact had been limited to Communist sniping and grenades directed at marine positions.

BEGIN TO MOVE

The marines this week began moving out of their defence perimeter at the air base for the first time, looking for the enemy and distributing propaganda leaflets, candy and chewing gum in the surrounding villages.

At the same time U.S. aircraft kept up around-the-clock attacks on travel routes in North Viet Nam.

Carrier - based U.S.-naval planes destroyed two trucks and damaged four with rockets and cannon fire in two sorties.

There was no ground fire or air opposition reported but one plane crashed on its way back to the carrier Midway and the pilot is missing.

In Newark, N.J., the police director said an investigation is under way to determine whether Arthur Sherod, 37, had threatened to kill his family shortly before his car crashed into a truck, fatally injuring his wife and seven of their children Tuesday night.

Universities Have Room for All Qualified

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario universities will be able to accommodate all qualified students seeking admission this fall but a student might not be able to get into the university or the faculty of his first choice, says Education Minister William Davis.

Mr. Davis was commenting Wednesday night in a televised interview on proposals for establishment of Ontario community colleges, which he said are being favorably received now than they were 18 months ago.

In an apparent reference to recommendations of a committee of Ontario university presidents, Mr. Davis said many of the objections to the community - college concept had not been related to conditions as they are in Ontario. Rather, they referred to situations in the United States not applicable to Ontario.

Prompt Action Saves Life Of Child

Prompt action on the part of an older sister and a neighbor girl is credited with saving the life of two and a half year old Stephen Barron, R.R. 1 Carrying Place, when on Tuesday he fell off a dock into five feet of water.

The small boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Barron, with his sister Janet, 9, and Heide Vogel, 11, were playing on a dock near their home on the Bay of Quinte when the lad tumbled off into deep water.

Heide jumped in and pulled the lad to safety.

Today Mrs. Barron said neither her son or the girl who pulled him to safety, had suffered any ill effects from their unexpected wetting.

"They were lucky" she said.

Former Theatre Has Been Sold, To Build Block

TRENTON — The former Century Theatre, vacant for a number of years, has been bought by the local real estate firm of Fraser and O'Neil and will be torn down and replaced by a one - storey business block. This was announced yesterday by D. R. Fraser, who said it would be uneconomical to think of renovating the present building.

The Farley house on Dundas Street West, built before the century by Dr. Day and occupied by Dr. Frank Farley and his family and his son, Dr. John Farley and his family in succeeding generations, has been sold to Gerald Weaver and Councillor Joseph Gould. Plans for use of the building and the land have not been announced.

The CPR clubhouse on Campbell Street has been bought by a 12-man syndicate, whose president is Harry Seymour, and will be renovated and turned into a private club. The clubhouse will be named "Club Meteor." Quarters will be made in the basement to house the Trenton Elks' Lodge and the upstairs will be rented out to persons wishing to make use of its facilities.

Grandparents See Grandson On Program

TRENTON — Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Day of R.R. 1, Trenton, got quite a thrill as they watched the Truth or Consequences program beamed in from Channel Eight at 10 a.m.

Their daughter, June, (Mrs. Arthur Untrauer) of Santa Monica, Calif., and their seven-year-old grandson, Jimmy were on the program.

Jimmy was one of the three small boys asked by the TV announcer, (1) if you went on a trip to the moon, what would you take to eat?; (2) what kind of toy or tool would you take? and (3) what would you expect to see on the moon?

Jimmy said he would take a jelly sandwich with him; a monkey wrench and would expect to meet "goons."

Mrs. Untrauer and the other mothers were then called into the studio and asked to pick out their sons from the list of answers. Unfortunately, she guessed a "peanut butter and jelly sandwich . . . and lost to another mother.

Jimmy's Dad is an electrical engineer in Santa Monica, and he has a sister, Sandra, 9 and a brother, David, 4. The Untrauers have lived in California for ten years and get "home" every year or so to visit Grandma and Grandpa Day. . .

Not Season for Hunting

We do not really blame the youngsters who were out hunting on Monday in the vicinity of the Haig sideroad, when Brian Killeen was wounded in the leg by a bullet, presumably from a .22 rifle.

It was the weather for it.

But not the season.

In spite of the temperature, it is spring. Hunting licences have lapsed. Rabbits are breeding, or already have young. The only legitimate "game" consists of pests, such as groundhogs or crows with a .22 rifle. The bullets carry too far. Extreme care should be exercised in shooting at groundhogs.

As a matter of fact the .22 needs to be respected. It is not a beginner's weapon, for anything except target practice, despite the fact that it is cheap. Its proper use requires constant caution.

A gun-handling course may make a boy a reasonably safe hunter with a shotgun, the killing range of which is short. A .22 rifle, while nowhere near as deadly at close quarters, reaches out so far that only the caution which comes from experience afield makes it a safe hunting gun in populated areas. It can also be said that the area where the boys were hunting is much too hazardous to the residents and passers-by for such sport.

The Brilliant Need Help Too

The Ontario Educational Association is holding its annual Easter convention in Toronto. The OEA is a sort of parliament of education. While it discusses the problems facing our school systems, its most valuable function is to provide a focal point for the attention of the public. Probably little that is said to these annual conventions does much to enhance the level of knowledge of experts in the field, but the convention does provide these experts with the opportunity of placing their views before the general public. In a democracy, any sweeping changes in our school system only become feasible after there is public recognition of the need for new policies.

This year the keynote speech of the OEA was to be by Lord James of Rusholme, vice-chancellor of York University, England. His said education in Canada is geared too much to the needs of the average student. This thought was echoed by Gordon Finlayson, president of the OEA, who opened Ontario's school system to the bed of Procrustes in which every occupant is stretched or lopped down to fit.

The speakers were concerned with failure to provide adequate opportunity and challenge to exceptional students.

The Ontario Intelligencer mentioned the same problem in an editorial in the recent past.

We have a simple solution to offer.

In recent years we have seen a steadily growing demand that special educational facilities be provided for children who are unable to meet the standards our schools, by reason of physical handicaps, mental retardation or for other reasons. Ontario is increasing the assistance provided in educating these children, and it is right that it should do so.

Now all that is required is a statute making it compulsory to match every dollar spent on schooling for the handicapped by a similar expenditure on special provisions to meet the needs of brilliant students.

SEATO May Crumble

France is expected to sever its ties with SEATO, the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization which was supposed to do for that region of the troubled world what NATO has done for Western Europe—provide a certain shield against communist aggression.

SEATO has proven a paper tiger, and, paradoxically enough, this may basically be because of the tremendous power of the United States in that area.

In Europe, with their prestige at stake, the little big powers," Britain and France, demanded real voice in the deliberations and in the formulation of NATO policy.

In Asia, the United States has carried most of the burden and now, just when it is most in need of unflinching support from its allies, the U.S. may see the SEATO front crumble.

There is nothing like enlightened self-interest in forging a strong alliance and all too often, in Southeast Asia, the member nations' fear of the spread of communism has been offset by differences in outlook.

Strictly Personal

Auto Toll Is About Same As Cancer's

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: After listening to memorial services, one can only conclude that the best hope for mankind is to resurrect the dead and enter the living.

The common law wisely provides that no man shall be compelled to testify against himself; but the pervasive spirit violates this protection every time he opens his mouth.

Naivete in a woman can be utterly charming — until we are forced to live with it, when we rapidly begin to call it by another, less endearing, name.

The real argument for capital punishment was ironically expressed by Douglas Jerrold more than a century ago, when he said: "To reform a man is a tedious and uncertain labor; hanging is the sure work of a minute."

People who are materialistically inclined cannot really understand those who hold other values higher; in order to maintain their precarious selfesteem, the materialist-minded are forced to believe that the others are hypocrites or self-deceivers.

Our habit now is to become highly filled with political zeal and political waste — spread perpetual political indignation — is raised against polluted books, which have never been demonstrated to hurt anyone.

How can women be so reliably clear-eyed about one sex-object, and so antagonistic about men?

The argument against cigarette smoking is still largely statistical rather than biological, and some interestingly diverse conclusions can be drawn from statistics: for instance, we have about the same number of motorists as we do cigarette smokers and about the same number die annually from auto crashes as from lung cancer; statistically, therefore, the reason for giving up riding in a car is as compelling as the reason for giving up cigarettes.

The best way to distinguish religion from mere religiosity was expressed by Stevens n, who warned: "If your morals make you dreary, depend on it they are wrong."

Most introductions of celebrated lecturers sound more like obituaries than biographies; one half expects that, when they are over, instead of the lecturer rising to talk, the audience will rise to pray.

As for predictable reaction to the 19th century's silly dictum that "Children should be seen and not heard," modern children rarely seen than ever before.

One of the most misused words is "cohort" for "confederate" or "associate"; a person cannot be a cohort, only a group can.

Babies Need Love, Security As Well as a Set Routine

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Our son and daughter-in-law took their baby's bottle away from her when she was seven months old, and now have taken the pacifier away from her, even at bedtime. The child is 20 months old.

They are trying to train her to go to bed at nine o'clock. Her room has only a small night light on, and the door is closed.

She cries and actually screams for 45 minutes to an hour every night. They never look in on her.

Friends tell them their babies were broken from crying in a few nights, so they think it proper to let her scream. Our own five children were to put to bed with love, not shut up in a room by themselves to scream their heads off. Is this the modern way to rear children? — G. S.

There isn't any modern way to rear children. Babies are the same now as they always were. You love them, and you keep them warm, fed, clean, and feeling safe. And you also, if you are wise, start right in the beginning to establish reasonable routines—good living habits.

Three simple and basic ones are regular meal and regular sleeping times. At less than the age of two years, this baby has been kept up much later than normal and now they are trying to train her to go to bed at nine.

She's a baby that has gotten used to a lot of attention. Babies learn the trick very quickly if she wants to stay up and get still more attention. When she can't, she yells. However, she may very likely be rather tired by nine p.m. It is not at all unusual for an overtired and overstimulated infant to be unable to relax, and to stay tensely awake, yelling in protest and frustration.

I see no objection to a baby sleeping with the door closed. Most do. It's quieter. A very small night light is all right. I dare say, but the majority of babies do very well sleeping in the dark. Why not?

They've taken her pacifier away. Why did they start making a pacifier a part of the baby's existence, anyway?

It sounds to me as though this youngster has been allowed to expect some pampering and privileges — such as staying up too late — which are not good for her.

It's going to take some patience and wisdom to get her straightened out. I suggest putting her to bed soon after her supper, because she's more likely to be relaxed and sleepy then. Cuddle her a bit, make her feel loved and contented. As she gradually works into such a routine, the screaming will stop. But it won't come in a single night. Habits don't change quickly for any of us — including babies.

Dear Dr. Molner: My five-year - old daughter has a fungus or a red rash in the crotch. You once mentioned a drug that is good for fungus. Please help me. — Mrs. A. K.

I have frequently mentioned a drug that is effective against some types of fungus — and isn't helpful at all with other types. From your description, that can't be sure (and am somewhat doubtful) that your youngster's trouble is a fungus. Maybe it is; maybe it isn't. Take the child to a physician at once. He'll have to diagnose the problem. If it is a fungus of the type that the drug I mentioned (griseofulvin) will help, you still need a prescription for it.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it bad to sit on a foam rubber cushion? I do so all day at work, but someone told me it is bad. — G. H.

No, there is nothing harmful about it. Think of all the automobile seats, to say nothing of furniture, padded with foam rubber.

Should Stay Out of War

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

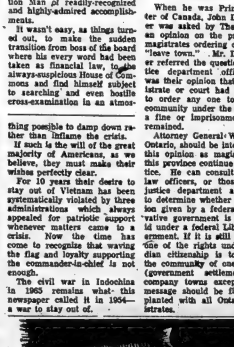
The main question before the country is not whether President Johnson was "right" in ordering what he called reprisal bomb attacks on North Vietnam, but what should be the objective of American policy in Southeast Asia.

Up to now the objective has been to maintain a military base on the Asian mainland on the assumption that thus communism could be "contained." It has been argued that if we lost South Vietnam, we would lose all of South-east Asia, if not the world.

But neither South Vietnam nor south-east Asia, nor for that matter the world, is ours to lose.

The fantasy of a world struggle, in which "we or they" must win, does not square with the world of reality, a diverse place which has never been and is not likely to be controlled by any one ideology.

The destiny of India, of Indonesia, of the Philippines, of Japan, will not be decided in Vietnam, but in the hearts of their people and neither there nor in Vietnam will military power be the crucial factor in the end. Vietnam can be contained, ideas cannot.



In our view, the American objective in Vietnam should be to disengage militarily as gracefully and honorably as possible.

That does not mean laying down our arms and walking out tomorrow. It does mean accepting disengagement as the ultimate goal, and to that end encouraging negotiations of mediation looking towards military neutralization of the whole area, meanwhile doing everything possible to damp down rather than inflame the crisis.

If such is the will of the great majority of Americans, as we believe, they must make their wishes perfectly clear.

For 10 years their desire to stay out of Vietnam has been overwhelmingly violated by the administrations which always appealed for patriotic support whenever matters came to a crisis. Now the time has come to recognize that waving the flag and loyalty supporting the commander-in-chief is not enough.

The civil war in Indochina in 1965 remains what this newspaper called it in 1954— a war to stay out of.

Ottawa Offbeat

Walter Gordon Unruffled By Ridicule or Praise

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Poor Walter Gordon, they said only some 22 months ago, it won't ever be the same again for him or his Government.

There he was, they all mourned, one of the Wonder Boys of Prime Minister Pearson's troubled team, part of a political image that stood clean and shining-white like a flawless marble statue.

And then suddenly, those same 22 months ago, it turned out that he really wasn't a Wonder Boy after all, and that statue of perfection was marred by the ugly cracks of fallibility.

It was too bad, they glooned, that things had turned out that way, because hopes had been so high, prospects so bright, and there was real drive and that sense of going places.

Walter Gordon had come to Parliament Hill as the very crystallization of the ideal of those who cry out for the highest calibre of man in public life.

There he was, a self-made financial businessman, born a financial aristocrat who had he had parlayed to $10,000,000 by the time he made the big and self sacrificial move from private to public enterprise.

He had come into politics as a sort of elder statesman of the board, trained for the Treasury, a real find, a sensational natural for Finance Minister.

But politics and business are different.

OLD PATTERNS

In business, one phase of the enterprise can be less than successful, but if the organization as a whole remains a going concern, the stockholders are usually content.

In politics, any less-than-successful move is not measured in percentages with the whole scene, but assessed in terms of its immediate impact on public events, morale and votes.

The Old - Financier-but-new Finance Minister was simply doing the customary business thing when he called in those outsiders from Bay Street to help him write his first Budget — and he was merely hiring the best possible people to do the most work in the shortest time.

And when he withdrew first one tax, then a changed and changed others, again it was simply a matter of good business practice in correcting initial mistakes and cutting losses.

But he had forgotten that the House of Commons is a corporative board room, and MPs aren't directors.

Walter Gordon had entered the Pearson Cabinet as something very, very special, the whom something very special in the way of political performance was expected.

He was a millionaire wheeler-dealer with a highly developed sense of showmanship, a virtuoso of the prime minister for more than 30 years and an Organization Man of unchallenged and highly-admired accomplishments.

It wasn't easy, as things turned out, to make the sudden transition from boss of the board where his every word was to be taken as financial law, to the always-suspicious House of Commons and subject to be subjected to searching and even hostile cross-examination in an atmosphere where protest, disagreement, argument, contention and opposition are a way of business life and nobody ever takes anything for granted.

FIRE-TESTED

He took some terrible lumps.

They all but laughed him out of the Commons.

He was the butt of almost every Parliamentary "in" joke.

And they shook their heads sadly and murmured in sympathy if not understanding; poor Walter, he'll never be the same.

They were right, for a change. He wasn't.

Instead of cracking under the ridicule, he stood there, in his fully smiling and let them have their fun.

True, he cringed — who wouldn't? And in what must have been the agony of his bartasment, true humiliation, of one who was supposed to have flown so high and had fallen so low, he went quietly to the prime minister and offered his resignation.

To his personal credit as a loyal friend, and perhaps to his credit as a man with exceptional foresight, the prime minister refused the resignation and sent Walter Gordon back to work to fashion other Budgets.

He was still regarded by many, especially Opposition MPs, as something of a joke as a finance minister.

Monday's will be his third budget, and even before they hear him read it, those a n e Opposition MPs know it will be no joke. Nobody's laughing now. This Budget promises to be a smashing success, and claimed by Walter Gordon, still quiet and unimpressed by praise as he was by ridicule, emerges as the kind of finance minister they expected him to be in his brief "Boy Wonder" days and better for his two-year ordeal.

Cannot Order He Quit Town

Sudbury Star

When he was Prime Minister of Canada, John Diefenbaker was asked by The Star for an opinion on the practice of magistrates ordering citizens to "leave town." Mr. Diefenbaker referred the question to justice department officials. He was their opinion that no magistrate or court had the right to order any one to leave a community under the threat of a fine or imprisonment if he remained.

Attorney General Wishart of Ontario, should be interested in this opinion as magistrates in this province continue the practice. So we can consult his own law officers, or those of the justice department at Ottawa to determine whether the action given by a federal Conservative government is still valid under a federal Liberal government. If it is still held that one of the rights under Canadian citizenship is to live in the community of one's choice (government settlements and company towns excepted) the message should be firmly implanted with all Ontario magistrates.

Considerable business was transacted by the council in committee at a meeting on Thursday evening and which will be approved at the regular session on Monday evening. Other cities show successful operation and it is the intention of the Council to bring the Canadian Mi-Co Meter Corporation to the city to explain in detail, construction and cost.

On Easter Day at John Street United Church, the Rev. Robert Hall, the pastor, conducted the service, during which beautiful memorials to the late R. J. Graham were dedicated. The first to be dedicated was a memorial tablet which was presented by the congregation of John Street Church and was unveiled by Mr. Robert Templeton. Following this, Mr. George H. Graham, on behalf of the family presented a beautiful memorial window in three panels. The choir under the direction of Miss Leona Mills with Mr. Alec Corbett at the organ rendered the musical portions of the service in an excellent manner. In his remarks concerning the memorials, the pastor referred to the magnificent organ in the church which was presented to the congregation Fifty-five years ago by R. J. Graham in memory of his wife.

Slang Burred

Buffalo Evening News

Soviet writers must take notice from their union chairmen that they should avoid the use of slang, that the aim of literature should be to preserve purity of language. That purity, of course, contends by political thought, and there will be no nonsense about freedom of speech. The same author who knows which side his party bread is buttered on will be careful to sprinkle his writings with such approved polemics as "capitalist war mongers," "imperialist lackeys" and the like. For this, naturally, is not slang. It's just Marxist realism.

Teeners Run Greatest Risk Of Being Jobless

By BEN WARD

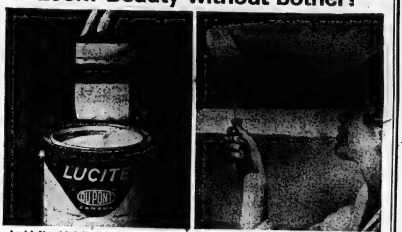
OTTAWA (CP)—A teen-ager runs the greatest risk of being unemployed when he enters the current labor market.

A detailed report on employment in 1964, issued by the bureau of statistics Wednesday, showed that the unemployment rate among workers 14-19 years of age averaged 10.3 per cent. The national average for all groups was 4.2 per cent.

Married women in the labor force ran the least risk of joining the jobless ranks. Their unemployment rate over the year worked out to 1.8 per cent.

The report also showed that about 30 per cent of the country's teen-agers are in the permanent labor force—at work or looking for jobs. In midsummer this jumps to about 48 per cent with students on temporary jobs.

MARRIED WOMEN WORK



Of the married women in the country, 977,000 or 25.7 per cent were members of the labor force. Average unemployment among them was 18,000.

The average rate of unemployment among married men was 2.9 per cent, 3.6 per cent. The rate for single men 20 and over was 8.9 per cent and for single women 2.9 per cent.

Continuing the trend that began a decade ago, married women formed a major part of the 1964 labor force. That group outnumbered the single women (647,000), single men (620,000) and teen-agers.

Among those 65 and over in 1964 there were 16.1 per cent or 224,000 still active in the labor market. An estimated 8,000 of them were job-hunting in the average month.

Shastri Plans To Delay Visit Till After Fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Indian diplomatic sources said Wednesday that Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri will be unable to come to the United States next fall and will defer the visit to Washington until it is convenient for him to do so.

This was the delayed reaction to President Johnson's sudden request last Thursday that Shastri and Pakistan President Mohammad Ayub Khan defer their visits to Washington until next fall because Johnson was so occupied with congressional affairs and the problems of Viet Nam. Shastri reasurbia will go ahead with plans to visit Canada and Russia.

Indian officials have been highly critical of Johnson's Viet Nam policies.

"President Johnson apparently has had enough of foreigners telling him how to run the world," one diplomat remarked caustically. "The president, it seems, cannot tolerate foreign chiefs of state that he cannot handle like members of the Senate and the House of Representatives."

KHAN ANGERS?

The Indian reaction was particularly irate because Indians felt that Johnson had asked Shastri not to come because he had been angered by actions of Ayub Khan and felt he would have to treat the leaders of both rival nations equally.

Indian Politician Renounces Ambition

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—The impossible has happened. A top politician has given up politics, power, ambition, position, wealth. In short, he has renounced the world.

He is Bachittar Singh, the 48-year-old mayor of New Delhi and one of India's most respected politicians.

"I have had enough of the rough and tumble of politics," said the bearded, handsome Sikh who looks every inch a patriarch. "The time has come to serve God and suffering humanity."

Hindu, Christian, Moslem and Sikh priests attended a brief ceremony at Singh's bungalow as he formally donned the white robes of a "sadhu (holy man) to begin his new life.

For nearly four decades Singh was an active member of the ruling Congress Party. He was a close confidant of Gandhi and former Prime Minister Nehru. His high standards of political behaviour won for him the popular title of "hawa" or "man of saintly principles."

As president of the New Delhi Chamber of Commerce for 25 years and member of the executive committee of the Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce and Industry, the country's highest business organization, Singh crusaded for healthy trade practices.

During the recent Indian food crisis, he threw his weight on the side of the Shastri government in curbing blackmarketing and profiteering in essential commodities.

As councillor of the New Delhi Municipal Corporation and later as mayor of the national capital, Singh turned over his salary and allowances to the ruling party's fund.

His home has now been converted into an "ashram," or monastery. All are welcome to the early morning and evening prayers but politics is strictly taboo.

Singh said he hopes other Indian politicians will follow his example. "The country," he said, "can do well with fewer politicians. It is suffering from a surfeit of arid political controversies."

Toby's as English as the Cliffs of Dover ... though it's brewed here in Canada.

It's made with special English hops and toasted barley-malt. Hence its deep amber colour and its robust taste (malty and rich, with a definite "bite" to it). Also you'll notice Toby's smoothness: It has less gas than Canadian beer.

Toby beer is sold under the Carling listing —and at your favourite "pub"—at regular prices.

Ghosts Who Live on Pension Cheques

CHINESE GHOST TOWN — Swayback buildings, fallen fences and a handful of Chinese over 70 is all that remains of Cumberland, B.C., a once-booming coal town on Vancouver Island. At one time 3,000 Orientals worked in the mines but the pits closed in 1920s after two explosions. Those that remain simply move to another shack when the one they live in becomes unlivable. (CP Photo)

REFLECTS ON OLD DAYS — Mah Fun, 80, recalls the days of 40 years ago when Cumberland, B.C., boasted five chop suey houses and the Lum Yung Club, a gambling casino. Now the residents live on pension cheques and air their memories in the sun. (CP Photo)

CUMBERLAND, B.C. (CP)—Everyone in the colony is over 70. All live in dilapidated shanties, and when one becomes unlivable its occupant simply moves to another.

This is the way of life for the handful of old people who remain in the Chinese ghost town a mile from Cumberland on Vancouver Island.

The residents live on pension cheques, spending their years in a town that began to die more than 40 years ago.

At one time the colony, 140 miles north of Victoria, had more than 3,000 residents—miners imported from China and Japan to work the Dunsmuir coal mine.

Five chop suey houses were kept in business and night life centred on gambling in the Lum Yung Club, biggest building in town.

That ended in the 1920s with two tunnel explosions and the closing of the mine. Ironically, the blasts were blamed on smoking by workers in the mine.

Most of the workers drifted away. Of the few who stayed, their numbers dwindle each year and the nearby cemetery continues to fill.

The aged miners—the oldest is 88—are granted free rent by the mine owners. Water and electricity for the few who have it adds $1.75 a month to the housekeeping bill.

In winter the elders stay close to their stoves. In summer they air their memories in the sun amid the grotesque swayback buildings and fallen fences.

There has been talk in Cumberland of restoring Chinatown as a tourist attraction but the idea doesn't appear to be catching on. More likely, when the last resident goes, bulldozers will move in to give the tottering structures their final push.

Canadian's Opinion

Yanks in Viet Nam "Twelve Feet Tall"

By BRUCE LEVETT

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Canadian television cameraman, just back from Viet Nam, says the role of the American and Australian military advisers is the most misunderstood aspect of the Far East fighting.

Graham McMillin, 37, a freelance, has made four filming tours of Viet Nam for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

"As far as I'm concerned, they're about 12 feet tall," he said of the advisers. "They're risking their lives to work among those people, trying to get the country back together. They're taking tremendous personal risks."

McMillin said that the ground fighting, as he saw it, was "Viet Nam's own war."

"It isn't generally understood that these advisers aren't in control of the operations they get on.

"In the field, the local Viet Nam officer is in command. If he wants to lead his unit into an obvious ambush, the Americans with him can point out the dangers. Then, if he goes anyway, all they can do is keep their heads down."

'GENTLE PEOPLE'

McMillin, from Nelson, B.C., worked in Vancouver on the editorial staff of The Canadian Press and CBC before becoming a free-lance photographer. In the last year he has tied his microphone around the necks of Prime Minister Shastri of India, President Ayub Khan of Pakistan and Maxwell Taylor, United States ambassador to Viet Nam.

"I'm not the reporter on these trips, so I'm not qualified to discuss the political situation," he says. "But I'm basically nosey and I talk to people."

The Vietnamese he found a paradox—"a gentle people to have so much violence in their souls."

The military advisers he saw in Saigon or in the field were teaching the militia the care and use of modern weapons and elementary tactics and strategy.

They also work with the civilians, teaching them the proper use of fertilizers and modern farming techniques. They give advice to the Viet love-lorn and also pull teeth, but you hear very little about this side of their activities."

He found that despite the fighting South Viet Nam seems to be prospering.

PAY WELL

"In the field, the Americans pay the Viet Nam peasants more money than they've ever seen to crush rock by primitive methods for use on air-strips.

"In Saigon, new buildings are being built. Bars catering to off-duty servicemen open up month by month. A new hotel has gone up, roads are being built and sewers are being laid."

He found Saigon a tense city.

"You can feel it in the streets when the press gangs are out looking for draft-dodgers. At night you can hear the artillery and see the flashes from the guns.

"When there's an infiltration scare an aircraft circles constantly over the river dropping one serie, white flare after another to keep the Viet Cong from slipping across."

McMillin says little "Yankee Go Home" sentiment is expressed in South Viet Nam—"nobody I talked to wanted the Americans to pull out."

Wherever he went, he asked Vietnamese, "What would you do if the Americans went home and the Viet Cong came in?"

Replies ranged from the "I would leave the country" from an Air Viet Nam stewardess to the comment of a hotel elevator boy: "I would become a Viet Cong."

Hitler Hero To Group of Young Men

TORONTO (CP)—Hitler is a hero to a group of young men who set up shop here this week.

They call themselves the Canadian Nazi Party and held open house for the press Wednesday.

Rhodes Avenue was a quiet east-end street. Now there's a Nazi party headquarters there and neighbors don't approve.

"First it was termites—now this!" exclaimed a woman who watched as William Beattie, a 23-year-old with a swastika arm band, alternately begged and commanded 50 non-sympathizers to get off his front lawn.

Mr. Beattie said he doesn't necessarily support the Second World War Nazi doctrine of extermination for Jews.

He said to one onlooker: "If you've a good Jew, you've got nothingto w orry about. If you are a Communist Jew you will go hung."

GIVES VIEWS

Later, Mr. Beattie gave vent to more traditional Nazi ideas when he said that he didn't really care much for any Jew.

And he admitted his group had sung "Happy Birthday Dear Hitler" Tuesday in honor of what would have been the Fuehrer's 76th birthday if he had lived.

Mr. Beattie, a customs clerk, said he is a friend of David Stanley of the Toronto suburb of Scarborough. Mr. Stanley now is recruiting Nazis in British Columbia.

Mr. Beattie and two youths calling themselves Commander Marcel Jacques de Kock and Captain Peter Reed — aged 17 and 18 respectively—gave newspaper men a guided tour through stacks of Nazi propaganda leaflets, swastika decorations and portraits of Nazi leaders. There was also a .22-calibre rifle.

have knowledge."

February's robbery, from a railway warehouse, was carried out with precision-by four men. Holes had been punched in the bills to make them worthless, but the money recovered in Edmonton had been patched with professional skill.

Both city police and RCMP termed the Hogue tragedy a murder-suicide. The RCMP is in charge of the investigation because Hogue's suburban Coquitlam home lies within RCMP jurisdiction.

RCMP Supt. F. B. Woods-Johnson said the murder scene was the most gruesome sight he has encountered in 20 years of police work.

"The place was in a shambles," said one policeman. "We kept finding bodies everywhere."

SHOT IN HEAD

Police established the time of the deaths as early Tuesday. All eight members of the family were shot through the head.

Reconstructing the rampage, police said Hogue's wife Vera was probably the first to die, shot as she was asleep.

The next victim, Larry, 13, was shot as he tried to get out of his top bunk in an upstairs bedroom.

Raymond, 8, and Clifford, 6, fled to the main floor. One was shot as he crouched in a closet, the other hit in the bathroom after one shot had missed.

Noreen, 12, and Darlene, 4, ran to the basement and were shot there by their pursuer.

The last victim before Hogue himself was Richard, 3. He had not left his bed.

Police said nine shots in all were fired and the gun had to be reloaded during the massacre.

TB Beating Wonder Drugs

TORONTO (CP) — Tuberculosis beats some wonder drugs which used to work against the disease, the president of the Canadian Tuberculosis Association told Wednesday. There is a build-up of resistance to drugs in victims.

Dr. E. M. Pound of Charlottetown also told the association's annual meeting hat a TB sufferer who has been taking drugs for a long time can pass the disease to another person and can transmit an immunity to drugs as well.

Trade Dept. Teams Up With Manufacturers in Assault on U.S. Market

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal trade department and 29 Canadian fashion manufacturers have teamed up for a full-scale assault on the prosperous United States clothing market.

In its first major attempt to promote Canadian fashions in the U.S., the trade department is sponsoring a five-day fashion showing in Chicago, starting Sunday.

The huge display, occupying 36 rooms in a Chicago hotel, is made up of womens' and childrens' clothing from manufacturers in Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg.

All manufacturers in the show will be displaying Canada maple leaf hangtags, and many have said they plan to use the trade department tags on all future exports to the U.S.

A highlight of the Chicago trade promotion will be a fashion show Monday night in which Canadian designers will present their predictions for fashions of the future.

DISPLAY SUCCESSFUL

Trade department officials said Wednesday the Chicago show was organized following a highly-successful display of Canadian high-style clothing in Philadelphia last fall.

About a dozen firms who specialize in expensive high-fashion designs took part in the Philadelphia venture. The department says the firms gleaned a large number of American orders after their clothing made a good impression on American buyers.

Next week's display in Chicago will be made up of a wider range of clothing at popular prices.

The emphasis will be on sportswear, including suede and sealskin coats, suits and hats, knitted suits, dresses, sweaters, and a large group of ski and after-ski clothes. One Toronto firm will show its newly-designed maple leaf tartan.

STYLES ARE CANADIAN

Many of the clothes to be shown to American buyers are distinctly Canadian in style. Some examples are red fox fur ski jackets, hand-knit woollen hats from Quebec, and moccasins, slippers and after-ski boots in designs inspired by traditional patterns of the Huron Indians.

A Montreal firm which produces fur hats will show a wide range of styles in muskrat, fox, racoon, muskrat and lynx.

Ookpik, the Canadian trade department's symbol, will be at the show. The furry arctic owl will be in the display of a Montreal handicraft manufacturer who specializes in northern products. Ookpik will share the limelight with sealskin parkas, fur hats, and seal and fur mittens.

Other items being shown include dresses, gloves, handbags, lingerie and rainwear.

Women Take Stiff Course In Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — If the barked commands and grunts and groans reverberating through the Winnipeg Winter Club sound like those at a football practice, it's not surprising.

Although it's a group of women who are working out, the orders are being given by a former professional football player and the exercises are the same ones Winnipeg Blue Bombers use.

Three mornings a week 20 members of the club are put through their paces by Ernie Becker, former fullback with the Bombers and Saskatchewan Roughriders.

In the interests of the body beautiful these women — some young and some not so slim — obey the "Hup, two, three, four" commands of their leader for 30 minutes.

To march music they huff, puff and swing their way through a mile of walking calisthenics. Then there's a strenuous series of stationary football exercises ranging from graceful movements to the grunt-and-groan effort of a partial situp leg lift.

Not many lose weight, Ernie says, but there is a certain redistribution. "We aim for muscle tone and improvement in the belt-buckle area."

The February-April classes, usually followed by a steam bath and a swim, have been held for four years. Some of the women take them because the workouts get them in shape for golf.

W.I. to Hold '67 Meeting In Guelph

OTTAWA (CP) — The Federated Women's Institutes of Canada will hold their 1967 convention in Guelph, it was announced Wednesday following an executive meeting.

The convention will take place June 12-16 at the University of Guelph.

The meeting will mark the 70th anniversary of the founding of the first women's institute. The rural women's organization now has about 71,000 members across Canada.

Members attending the 1967 convention will be able to tour the Adelaide Hunter Hoodless homestead at St. George, the former home of the institutes' founder now preserved as a historical site.

They also may visit Stoney Creek, Ont., where Mrs. Hoodless held the first institute meeting Feb. 19, 1897. Both Stoney Creek and St. George are less than 40 miles from Guelph.

Conventions of the WI are held every three years.

Church Groups

ST. MARGARET'S EVENING GUILD

The members of St. Margaret's Evening Guild met in the church hall on Monday night. After opening prayers Mrs. F. Woolmik called on Mrs. J. Stewart who led the devotional period.

During the business meeting, Mrs. R. Bishop reported on the successful Easter egg project undertaken by her group to make talent money.

Guild members will participate in St. Margaret's Variety Night on April 30th, plans for this evening were discussed. After current business was concluded the ladies worked on aprons for the bazaar.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. R. Sends' group, after which time a social half hour was enjoyed.

LOOKING FORWARD to her 100th milestone is Mrs. Nattie Foster who last month celebrated her 99th birthday at Hastings Manor. "I'm sure I'll make it" she says.

Mrs. Nattie Foster Nearing 100th Birthday Recalls Early Life in Community

Mrs. Nattie Foster sat proudly perched in an upright position in a reclining chair. A shawl, which she had made herself, was slung loosely over her shoulders.

Her usual spot was beside the window in her room at the Hastings Manor but today they were cleaning and her chair had been moved.

"I've just had a birthday, and I'm going to have another one. Then I'll be 100 and I'll be ready to meet my Maker."

She was born Nattie Amelia Rushnell 90 years ago, on the concession of Huntington Township. She was the eldest of eight children — five boys and three girls — and she has outlived them all.

"I was going with a fella name of Jim Osborne, when I met my husband. One Sunday we were going to church and Ben Foster come along with Jim — don't know why though, he wasn't invited — so I was stuck with the two of them.

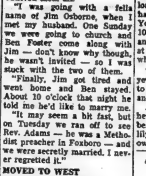
"Finally, Jim got tired and went home and Ben stayed. About 10 o'clock that night he told me he'd like to marry me. It may seem a bit fast, but on Tuesday we ran off to see Rev. Adams — he was a Methodist preacher in Foxboro — and we were secretly married. I never regretted it."

MOVED TO WEST

She recalled that her father-in-law bought Ben a ranch near Calgary and they moved west. They had two children, Mrs. Myrtle Buchanan of Washington, D.C., a mother of six, and Blake, who lives in Lindsay and has one daughter, Susan.

"We came to Belleville before (World War I) one Saturday night and went to my sister's place on Geddes Street."

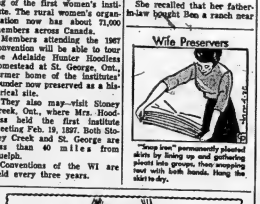
Mrs. Foster was a cook at the Albert College on College Street for a time before leaving to keep a boarding house.



She spends most of her time in the Home crocheting and making things for bazaars.

"I can crochet anything," she says proudly, and if you met her, you'd believe it.

When asked the secret of longevity she replied, "I've had a good time all my life. You've got to live right to reach 100. You've got to please God and be baptized — I was baptized at the Latter Day Saints Church when I was 83.



"The only thing I want to do yet, if I can find the right fella to go with, is go on an airplane and fly to Germany."

An Easter lily, given her by her church, sat on a table beside her. It was a beautiful lily, but its gracious, witty owner outshone it by a mile.

Rural Woman Planning to Publish Book

OTTAWA (CP) — Centennial projects approved Wednesday by the national executive of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada ranges from poetry writing to clean-up campaigns.

The 71,000-member organization of rural women is planning to publish a book, a historical short story and a poem dealing with the history of Canada. All are to be written by WI members.

Other projects include provincial paint-up and clean-up campaigns, donations of scholarships and bursaries and rural beautification contests.

Eleven certain chairs will be presented to the Fathers of Confederation Memorial Centre at Charlottetown.

The chairs, one from each province and one from the national federation, will carry the provincial and national coats of arms. They are to be placed in the legislative chambers.

A competition for an original short story based on a Canadian theme or fact will be the federation's citizenship project.

Aimed at tying in with the centennial celebrations, the short story project is for a work of not longer than 2,500 words written by members of a Women's Institute. The winner will be awarded the Senator Cairine Wilson Trophy.

Closing date for the story contest is April 15, 1967.

Susanna's Family Fare

PRESERVED FROM GAMES

Dear Susanna: Being a naturally orderly person, I would say that the one most important event towards helping me keep my calm disposition when I was raising our four children, was the day my husband hung French doors on the entrance-ways to our living room and dining room for me.

Any young mother with a home or apartment that has standard doorways to either of these rooms would be well advised to adopt this method of keeping these areas as sanctuaries for the grown-ups and for childrens' special occasions.

These lovely doors can be purchased reasonably from building demolition crews or from second hand stores (be sure you have the exact measurements.)

I've never forgotten the delicious feeling it always gave me to close my living room 'til it sparkled on Thursday, then step out into the hall, close the doors, click the little latch at the top, and admire the room through the glass knowing it would stay reasonably lovely all weekend.

We only had a six room house and no "rec" room. The children's two bedrooms and the kitchen table, near where I was working, were their main play areas and I'm certain they never suffered in any way by this slight confinement, nor by some rooms as privileges reveal. They always behaved beautifully when they were allowed to accompany us in there.

Certainly, they were extremely well adjusted children and are extremely well adjusted adults! — "Proud of me and my family"

. . . to say nothing of the extremely well preserved living room furniture! Well done. — SUSANNA

BATH SALT FOR PLANTS?

Dear Susanna: Did you know that old flower pots that have turned white could be discarded? Never use anything for replanting houseplants except clean clay pots, as the white deposit that won't wash off is a buildup of unused fertilizer. Planting a plant in this is like putting it into a salty bath. — H. H. H.

(If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope when requesting pamphlets.)

Ann Landers

Young Couple Were for Sale to Highest Bidder

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband and I were deeply interested in your counsel that parents should not be expected to support children who marry in college. This is what happened in our family:

ANN LANDERS

Our eldest son, (21), a junior at Yale, handsome, bright and promising, fell in love with a 19-year-old girl who attends a nearby school. They wanted to marry during spring vacation. We told our son we felt an obligation to educate him, but not to support him and a wife. We agreed to continue his usual allowance until he finished law school, but nothing more.

The parents of the girl decided our son was too good a catch to lose. They offered a lavish wedding, a beautiful bungalow, (completely furnished, of course) and agreed to pay all their living expenses indefinitely.

Our son now considers us "stingy, unco-operative, and downright mean." The girl's parents are "generous, loyal and understanding." We rarely see our son and his wife. The girl's parents see them a great deal. Was it worth it to stand by our principles? Sometimes I feel the price was too high. — HEARTACHE IN NEW HAVEN.

* * *

DEAR HEARTACHE — Unfortunately your son and his girl were for sale to the highest bidder and her parents put in the high bid.

This is a dismal picture, and not an uncommon one. I can only say I hope your son wakes up and recognizes the situation for what it is. The whole thing smells like last week's fish to me.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a girl who will be 16 years old next month. I have to share a bedroom with my 13-year-old brother who is retarded. I love my brother very much and I try to help him all I can but I do feel a girl my age should have some privacy.

When my girl friend invites me to stay overnight I am so serious that I can hardly stand it because she has a bedroom all to herself.

Dad admits we could afford to live in a larger place but he says it isn't necessary. Please say something to help me. — BETTY BLUE.

* * *

DEAR BETTY — A 16-year-old girl should not be sharing a bedroom with her younger brother. This is not good for either of you. I am adding my voice to yours in the hope that you will be moving to a larger place very soon. Good luck.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband is an executive. We frequently give cocktail parties, usually during convention time when the town is loaded with by husband's colleagues.

We love to entertain and people tell us we do it well. We plan our parties carefully. Although the atmosphere is casual and informal, a great deal of thought goes into the selection of the guests. Our home is not large and we have learned that too many guests can be deadly. Often we must leave off the names of folks we'd like to invite in order to insure a group of the right size.

Certain guests invariably bring four to six of their friends along. Sometimes they phone ahead but usually they just show up at the door with the extras. The greeting generally goes like this: "Surprise! Look who I brought." Or—"I knew you wouldn't mind." They feel, apparently, that just because it isn't a sit-down dinner it's all right.

Is there a solution to this problem? — ONE-DOWNMANSHIP.

DEAR ONE — When guests arrive at your door with uninvited extras you are trapped.

Anticipate the problem when you do the inviting. Say, "We can comfortably accommodate only a limited number of guests in our home, so please don't bring anyone with you."

* * *

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

What Women Are Doing

Argyll Chapter IODE

Mrs. Kenneth D. H. Willcocks, Regent

The Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. is proud to owe its inception to that outstanding gentleman, Lt.-Colonel Thomas Stewart, who on November 1st, 1910, called a meeting of all those interested in military affairs. This meeting was held in the old drill shed on Church Street, where Lt.-Colonel Stewart made the ruling that only wives, mothers, sisters and daughters of active officers of the Argyll Light Infantry would be eligible for membership. Another ruling passed at this meeting was that the wife of the Officer Commanding should be Regent of the Chapter and, as Lt.-Colonel Stewart was not married, he asked the wife of Colonel W. N. Ponton to undertake this office during his regime.

Since the revision of the constitution, the wives, mothers, sisters, and daughters of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and the wives of officers, and ex-officers, of the Armed Forces of the British Commonwealth shall be eligible to be members.

The motto adopted by the Chapter was "Nulli Secundus" (Second to None) and the Princess Louise, wife of the Duke of Argyll, became the Honorary Regent, as her husband was Honorary Colonel of the Battalion.

Among the colors presented were those to the first Cadet Corps of the city, organized at Queen Mary School, and on July 29th, 1916, battalion colors were presented to the 155th Overseas Battalion which had many of the Argyll Officers and men in its ranks. These colors now repose in St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville.

A tremendous effort was put forth during the first and second world wars to supply the needs and comforts to the armed forces overseas.

This chapter is proud of its community service role, especially in the fields of education and welfare. Seasonal and full time activities include the awarding of a one hundred dollar scholarship annually to the son or daughter of a Canadian or Commonwealth veteran, attaining the highest aggregate in eight Grade XIII papers, of those attending Belleville High Schools. IODE calendars are supplied to the classrooms of the Belleville public schools. An adopted school—Lakeside School, at Consecon, is periodically visited by members, and presented with teaching and recreational aids.

Provision is made for a Christmas party and a summer picnic for the pupils, also the presentation of a bursary to the best Grade 8 pupil intending to continue to high school.

Over the years assistance has been given to the Children's Aid Society, and the Retarded Children's School. Many members assist at the local cancer and blood clinics. At Christmas welfare baskets are given to local needy veterans families. The Argyll and St. Julien chapters attend Citizenship Courts presenting maple leaf pins and certificates to new Canadians, and after the court ceremony entertain them at a tea in the officers' mess.

The members collect and send books and magazines to the troops in Germany, and to cooperate at lumber camps. They also participate in knitting and the making of layettes, hospital gowns, etc. A percentage of these articles are used at home and the remainder are sent overseas to "Save the Children" Fund" and are distributed to countries in need. Donations of funds are sent to Korea for milk and X-ray equipment. Donations sent to national headquarters include aid to the Canadian Eskimo Fund, from which three Community Centres have been built in the far north; the Canadian Peace Garden; the IODE Canadian Centenary Fund, the First and Second War Memorial Funds, for future education of veterans' children. In case of local or national disaster the IODE's role would be to assist in the welfare centres.

In order to finance the many projects of the organization an annual dessert bridge and fashion show is held each fall, late in January, a delightful winter fantasy ball is held in the officer's mess. Money is raised by holding rummage sales.

This fall the Argyll Chapter will be celebrating its fifty-fifth anniversary and at this time we hope to renew their many acquaintances.

This is the 15th in a series about women's organizations and their activities in Belleville.

Ceylonese Woman to Tour Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — A Ceylonese woman will tour Canada this summer under the sponsorship of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, the FWIC national executive announced Wednesday.

Miss Lilamlal Perera of Colombo, Ceylon, is to study the work of Canadian Women's Institutes for 2½ months, from July 1 to mid-September.

Miss Perera's visit is part of the federation's increasing role in international exchanges and affairs.

Reporting for the committee on United Nations and international affairs at Wednesday's executive meeting, Mrs. Ray Tozer of Red Deer, Alta., described eight different programs Canadian WI members are participating in through international organizations.

"Provincial conveners report a growing interest in the United Nations. All phases of U.N. activities have been studied. Program material in the provincial loan collections was circulated and many requests for U.N. information were filled."

Another international project supported by the Institutes is the Unitarian Service Committee.

About 200 Canadian women are expected to attend the triennial conference of the Associated Country Women of the world in Dublin, Ireland, in September.

The official delegates to the conference include Mrs. James Haggerty, Napanee, Ont. and Mrs. R. J. Penney, Kingston.

The FWIC annual executive meeting ends here today.

LUXURIOUS PANCAKE DESSERT

Whether or not you transfigure these pancakes into a luxurious dessert by adding rich cherry sauce, you must become acquainted with the pancake part. They are tender and light and rich. If you dream of raising the perfect forkful of food to your lips these delicious pancakes are your dream come true.

For hostesses who are forever searching for different and finer guest desserts, directions are given for a Bing Cherry Sauce which you can ignite if you are the flaming-Mamie type.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

Salisbury Steaks with Celery Soupsauce (see Wednesday); Broccoli; Wax Beans; Sliced Tomatoes with Green Peppers on Leaf Lettuce; Banana Cream Pie; Tea.

SUNDAY
(Guests)

Glazed Picnic Ham; Scalloped Onions (see Tuesday); Buttered Asparagus; Cole Slaw (with dressing — see Saturday); De Luxe Pancakes with Cherry Sauce (see Thursday); Coffee.

DE LUXE PANCAKES WITH CHERRY SAUCE (serves 8 generously):

Pancake Batter: 4 eggs, yolks and white separated, 2 tablespoons sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1 cup dairy sour cream.

Cherry Sauce: one 28-oz. can Bing cherries (30% sugar syrup), 1 tablespoon arrowroot, flour or cornstarch, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind, (optional), ½ teaspoon red food coloring, ¼ cup fine quality liqueur (optional — Cointreau, Cherry Heering, etc.)

Note: If you add and flame the liqueur the orange rind is unnecessary.

Make the Cherry Sauce first: Drain the cherries, measure and reserve the juice (I had 1 2/3 cups). Remove the stones from the cherries and discard stones (I used the closed end of a large common safety pin to stone the cherries). Reserve 1/3 cup of the juice and heat remaining juice with the orange rind (if used) to boiling point. Mix together the arrowroot, flour or cornstarch and sugar and stir in the reserved cherry juice until you have a smooth paste. Stir into hot juice until thickened and clear, then cook and stir 2 or 3 minutes longer over low heat. Remove from heat and stir in cherries and red food coloring. Keep warm.

When serving time arrives make the Pancakes: Beat the whites until stiff. Transfer unwashed beaters to bowl containing yolks and sugar and beat until thick. Add sour cream, flour and salt and stir until blended. Fold in stiffly beaten whites. Spoon onto lightly greased griddle (or if your griddle is well-seasoned it will not require greasing). Make each pancake about 4" in diameter, turning over when bottom is gold. They will be about ¼" thick — not thin like French crepes. Serve like ordinary pancakes, if desired, with butter and maple syrup.

Meanwhile, if Cherry Sauce is served, reheat Cherry Sauce to boiling point and as each warmed plate is served with hot pancakes, spoon some Cherry Sauce over.

NOTE:

If you decide to flame your cherry sauce have it boiling hot in your chafing dish. Have ready at hand the liqueur of your choice in a little pitcher. Heat about 1 tablespoon of it in a large kitchen spoon over a candle flame, then ignite it with a match. Immediately pour liqueur over hot cherry sauce, tip flaming spoonful over and it will ignite the whole business. Serve at once over hot pancakes. Sensational.

Abortion Easy To Obtain In Poland

WARSAW (AP) — Poland is one of the easiest places in the world to get an abortion legally.

Polish justice and health ministry officials concede this but express surprise at reports that some travel agents abroad have begun to promote trips to Poland for abortions. In fact the number of foreign women receiving the operation here is thought to be puzzling to a justice ministry official said.

The law makes no distinction between foreign visitors and Polish women. Abortion is virtually a guaranteed right.

Poland has one of the highest birthrates in Europe when a law was passed in 1956 permitting committees to authorize abortions for social as well as medical reasons.

This was a liberalized four years later with directives requiring doctors to admit women to clinics or hospitals for abortion when the patient states the operation is needed because of living conditions. The physician's responsibility became mainly medical.

By 1962, the birthrate had dropped to 19 per 1,000 population, almost as low as England's.

The Roman Catholic church, to which most Poles belong, opposes abortion in most cases. But low pay scales and the housing shortage, coupled with the ease of getting abortions, have virtually ended the Polish tradition of large families, especially in cities.

One official estimated that 200,000 women had legal abortions last year. A western European woman can stay in Poland for one week and get a legal abortion, all for less than $100.

The operation itself might run to $40. For a Polish woman with health insurance it costs almost nothing.

Neither the Polish state tourist bureau, Orbis, nor the Swedish embassy had heard about reports of a growing influx of Swedish women for abortions. The opening of a direct ferry connection between Poland and Sweden last year swelled the number of Swedish tourists from 1,000 in 1963 to 12,000 in 1964.

Couple Observes 25th Anniversary

On Saturday evening, Miss Linda Ruckstuhl entertained about 80 relatives friends and neighbors at an enjoyable evening in the Orange hall at Canniton in honor of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ruckstuhl of Corbyville, who were celebrating their silver wedding anniversary.

The hall was appropriately decorated with pink and white streamers and bells. The tea table was covered with a white linen cloth, centred with a three-tiered wedding cake made by the bride's sister, Mrs. Frank Coulter. The cake was flanked by silver candles and pink flowers.

The evening was spent playing cards and dancing, after which Mr. Russell Ruckstuhl, brother of the "groom" and Mrs. Frank Coulter assisted the bride and bridegroom in opening the many lovely gifts received, among which was a silver tea service from friends, neighbors and relatives in the community.

After thanking the many friends and relatives for the lovely gifts and inviting everyone to visit them a tasty lunch was served.

Mrs. Ruckstuhl was the former Annie Burley, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry Burley of Moneymore.

Guests were present from Oshawa, Trenton, Carrying Place, Belleville, and Moneymore.

BRANCH 99 LADIES' AUXILIARY

Tuesday evening of this week the general meeting of the Royal Canadian Legion Ladies' Auxiliary was held. The men's branch extended an invitation to the ladies to attend the annual Fish Fry this Friday night. The next meeting will be held in Wellington this year on Wednesday, May 27th.

President Betty Hodge reported on banquets held in April and gave dates of several more in the near future.

The film on cancer will be shown at the May meeting and a pot-luck supper will be held the same night at 6:30.

Mrs. Gannon was the lucky winner of the draw. Euchres are still popular and a grand euchre will be held the third Thursday evening in May.

The meeting concluded with refreshments and a social get-together.

Church Groups

WESLEYAN METHODIST W.M.S.

The April meeting of the Wesleyan Methodist Women's Missionary Society met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Votsary, Bridge Street East.

The devotional was given by Mrs. Violet Mitts and Mrs. Pamela Rawlings spoke on the Easter Commission, "Go and Tell as was given the women at the tomb". The speaker said "No other religion has such a message. Confucius and Buddha are dead, but the bleeding, mangled body of Jesus placed in the tomb, is alive. He was Divine, He was God. His resurrection is the proof of ours, His resurrection is the pledge of ours".

A study on Wesleyan Methodist missionary work in Colombia, S.A., was most enlightening to the members. Mrs. Votsary stated that in Bogota, the capital, two lots have recently been purchased on which to build a church; also that from the Press operated in Medellin by Rev. Harris Earl and national workers, Christian literature goes out to every Spanish speaking country in the world. Immediate goals are for the salvation of many Colombians, self-supporting churches and a Bible School for Education, both academically and from the Scripture.

The president, Mrs. Jean Locklin made an announcement of the forthcoming visit to Belleville of Dr. V. Edling, a medical doctor on furlough from Haiti, on May 23rd. The ladies were also reminded of a work meeting on May 22nd.

The hostess served refreshments.

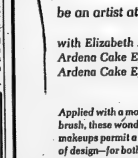
CLUB 4-H NOTES

ALBURY-JUNIORETTES

For their fifth meeting, the Albury Juniorettes met at the home of Mrs. Neil Peck. After repeating the 4-H pledge, each member showed a custard which she had made. Marianne Leth read the minutes of the last meeting.

The discussion topic "Cooking With Milk" included milk in soup, main dishes, baking, and desserts, how to estimate milk you get in meals, and heating milk.

Judging Leth and Evelyn Peck demonstrated making a medium white sauce using two different methods. This sauce was added to other ingredients prepared by Beverly Dunstor and Nancy Wessel to make chicken a la king.



Following the points for judging custards, the girls judged the custards brought by each member.

The Experts Say

How, What and Where To Make a Happy Home

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—A rule of thumb when deciding how much house you can afford is that it should not cost more than 2½ times your annual income.

The total carrying charges, including taxes, should not take more than 27 per cent of your gross monthly income; roughly a week's pay. It takes $6.53 each month to pay $1,000 of loan at 6½ per cent interest over 25 years.

Once you decide what you can afford, look at possible neighborhoods in terms of protecting your investment, says D. R. Kirkup of the Toronto Real Estate Board.

He says homes in older, stable neighborhoods are difficult to get all across Canada, but are desirable because you can see what you are getting in them. "You can tell from appearance if homes are well maintained or if the neighborhood is on the decline.

"In any neighborhood, a quiet street, free from traffic hazards is best. The lots on crescents and courts are usually sold first, often have a premium price and then by a builder.

"If you are buying in a new neighborhood, be sure local improvements are in and paid for. Check with the city engineer. You should know that such things as sewers are in, connected and paid for.

"Be careful of buying next to a vacant lot if you don't know what is going to be built on the lot. You can check with the municipality about zoning. But remember that zoning can be changed.

"Ask about the local tax structure. Taxes will be high if there are no industrial and commercial businesses sharing the load.

"While you are still outside the house, think about what material has been used in the construction. Brick is the best material from the point of view of investment value, and burned clay brick costs twice as much as sand lime brick. Ask which type it is."

CHECK FOR CRACKS

Mr. Kirkup says the most important place to watch for indoor cracks is in the basement, where they might indicate serious weakness. "It might be only a simple matter, but you would have to consult an expert to be sure. You should also be sure the basement is dry."

"Upstairs, check flooring. Hardwood is best. Wall cracks probably needn't worry you too much. Most houses have them, especially new ones.

"Consider the traffic pattern in the house. For instance, would kids have to go through the living room to get to a bathroom or the kitchen?

"If you think you might want to build an addition, find out if local by-laws would allow it. People rarely build on. They move. The average family now moves once every four years. Ten years ago it was once every five. And about two-thirds of all Canadian families own homes."

While you are looking at the house, check for leaks either in the roof or the plumbing. Water marks near a ceiling are signs of trouble. Be sure, too, that eavestroughs are in good condition.

Copper water piping is the best type, Mr. Kirkup says. There is no sure way for a layman to know whether the heating and plumbing equipment are good, but a well-known brand name is a guide.

Unfortunately, Mr. Kirkup says, you are on your own when you buy a house; disinterested expert advice is hard to find. He suggests dealing through a real estate man whose reputation is good, and taking your time.

"See a lawyer before you sign any papers. Get competent advice.

"Compare, look for three or four months to see what is available. You will learn if you look at more than one house."

Transplant "Encouraging"

From West to East The Salmon Arrive!

By DAVE BUTLER

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The first stage of a program to transplant a species of Pacific salmon to the Atlantic has been completed with results described by scientists as "encouraging." Now the second stage is under way.

If successful, it will relieve the pressure on the Atlantic salmon which, because of its popularity, has been fished with great intensity in Newfoundland waters.

The project, undertaken by the Fisheries Research Board of Canada, was started in 1962 when 2,500,000 eggs from a species of Pacific salmon known as pinks were airlifted from points in British Columbia to St. John's.

After a fast 60-mile ride by truck and then by cable-car over North Harbor River the eggs were planted in a special bed in the fast-running stream.

From then on it was a case of waiting. If the project was to work, the eggs would have to hatch, the tiny fish called fry would have to swim downriver to the sea and then, if they survived two or three years in the Atlantic, they would have to find their way back to a river that had never before lured their species.

None of the scientists were taking bets on success. But in the spring of 1964 commercial fishermen began reporting to the St. John's Biological Station that they were finding strange pink fish mixed in with their regular catches of Atlantic salmon. In all, 22 pinks were reported in commercial catches.

SEVERAL SPAWNED

The scientists believe many others were taken by fishermen and were either not noticed or were mistaken for discolored Atlantic salmon.

Then the pinks began turning up in St. Mary's Bay, into which the North Harbor River flows. Finally they were sighted going up the river itself.

The biggest reward for scientists was finding several "spents" — fish that had returned, spawned and then died. This meant that for the first time on the Atlantic coast, Pacific salmon had completed the cycle of life.

The freshwater survival from the first transplant was considered "excellent" with a fry-run of about 87 per cent. Hatching had begun about mid-February and was completed before the end of March. The fry-run happened quickly and more than a million fry passed through a counting gate at the mouth of the river in only two days in late May, 1962.

There was no serious predation problem in the first run. Sampling of trout in the lower reaches of the river showed only 12 per cent had been feeding on the fry. Once out to sea, it was found that less than one half of one per cent of codfish tested had fed on fry. There was no predation by herring.

At the end of the whole two-year experiment, the scientists decided it was still too early to make an evaluation of the success of the project. Although there had been a return—26 pinks altogether—it was small compared with the number of fry that had gone to sea.

On the strength of the first experiment, a much bigger transplant was planned. On March 15 this year, the scientists took 3,500,000 Pacific salmon eggs in another series of special trenches in the North Harbor River.

Again, the next step was to watch and wait. After the count of the fry going downstream has been made to determine whether a good percentage of the eggs hatched comes the long wait to see if they return in 1966 or 1967.

Ultimate success in the venture could mean a new fishery for the province as well as taking the pressure off the Atlantic salmon.

The pink is the smallest of the five species of Pacific salmon, attaining a length of two feet and a weight of three to five pounds. The Atlantic salmon is a much bigger fish, averaging about eight pounds. Both fish are high in food value and both have one thing in common—their ocean movements once they leave their home river are unknown.

The Atlantic salmon fishery was a $500,000 business in Newfoundland in 1964 with 2,500,000 pounds taken. The 2,700,000-pound catch in 1963 was the largest in the province in 11 years. Newfoundland fishermen catch salmon almost exclusively by gillnet.

Should the Pacific pink salmon become a commercial fish in Newfoundland some day, it will probably be most beneficial to the Avalon Peninsula fishermen. North Harbor River is on the southwest coast of the Avalon Peninsula, running into the St. Mary's Bay.

Income Tax Explained

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax office.

By C. A. MILLER
Retired Supervising Assessor,
Income Tax Department

STATUS OF HOUSEKEEPER

There is no exemption for a housekeeper and neither can any salary or wages paid to such a person be deducted from the taxpayer's income.

The only time a housekeeper enters the tax picture is when there are children in the home and the taxpayer is a widow or widower. When a taxpayer maintains a home for the children after the death or desertion of the spouse, then the employment of a housekeeper will allow added exemption for one child.

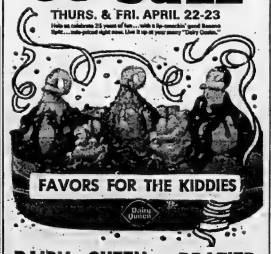
When the taxpayer employs a housekeeper to care for the home and children, and is separated, divorced or a widow(er) a claim for $1000 is allowable on one child as an equivalent to married exemption, and the fact that a full time housekeeper is employed, that same child on which the $1,000 is allowed may be claimed again for the ordinary child's allowance. This would give a widower with two children, employing a full time housekeeper the same exemption he had when his wife was alive.

Points to remember are that a housekeeper has no bearing on the tax return unless there are children in the home: A single person or widow(er) without children is taxed as a single person, regardless of the fact they maintain their own home. Many taxpayers are of the opinion, there is added exemption for just being a housekeeper, but this is not true.

When a claim is made for additional exemption on behalf of a child, the housekeeper's name must be shown on the return in the space provided for this purpose.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: I am a widower 70 years of age and in poor health. I employ a housekeeper. What claim can I make for her?



Answer: You have no claim at all, either for exemption or deduction of her wages.

Question 2: I am a widowed school teacher with two children. I employ a full time housekeeper except during the summer holiday. Does this qualify me for the added exemption on one child.

Answer: Yes. The Income Tax Department recognizes the school year as being of only 10 months.

Union Nationale Party Showing Signs of a United, Big Revival Under Leader

By GERALD ALARIE

MONTREAL (CP)—The Union Nationale party is showing signs of a united and spirited revival for the first time since the death in 1959 of its founder, Premier Maurice Duplessis.

Party popularity has been at a low ebb following its defeat at the polls in 1960 after 16 unbroken years in power, subsequent royal commission investigations of patronage under the Union Nationale, and another election defeat in 1962.

When Daniel Johnson was elected leader at the Union Nationale's first general congress in 1961—the fifth man to assume the leadership since Mr. Duplessis' death—it was by a margin so narrow that many observers predicted a split in the party.

But now it is evident that Mr. Johnson has won the full support of his former opponents within the party and has evoked fresh enthusiasm from party followers.

At the Union Nationale's second general congress, held here in late March, Mr. Johnson received a standing ovation from about 3,000 delegates who came to Montreal from all 95 ridings in the province.

SHOW OF UNITY

The open show of confidence came at the request of Jean-Jacques Bertrand, the man Mr. Johnson defeated by 94 votes in the 1961 leadership convention, who since has been designated "first lieutenant" of the party leader.

Later, when Mr. Johnson appealed for funds at a convention dinner, delegates subscribed more than $10,000 in an hour.

They also participated with vigor when policy resolutions came up for consideration.

It was a far cry from the 1961 convention, where internal strife was evident and some expressed dissatisfaction with the way proceedings were conducted.

Delegates then were not given an opportunity to vote against policy resolutions, and one man who tried to propose an amendment from the floor was shouted down.

This year, grass-roots participation reached a high point. And in the group were representatives of student organizations and persons obviously in sympathy with the demands of nationalist and separatist movements.

AMENDED BY STUDENT

A resolution calling on the party to work for Quebec's independence was debated and then radically changed through an amendment proposed by a 21-year-old University of Montreal coed.

The amendment proposed by law student Danielle Methot recognized Quebec's "right to self-determination" but said the method of achieving it should be determined by the people in a referendum.

The convention also dealt with a resolution stating that Quebec should declare itself a unilingual French-speaking province. The convention recommended that the question of unilingualism be referred to the Union Nationale members on the bi - partisan constitutional committee of the legislature and that they put pressure on the committee to examine all aspects of the issue.

It also recommended that the question be referred to the political committee of the party with the aim of getting opinion on the matter from local Union Nationale associations.

PROMISES FAIR DEAL

Mr. Johnson said the action on the resolution did not constitute a "first-class burial" for it.

He said that in a situation where students educated in French are being forced to earn their living in English, politicians must not be afraid to take "even radical measures."

He qualified this with the pledge that the Union Nationale will never be guilty of "the same injustices toward the English - speaking minority in Quebec as are suffered by French-speaking minorities in the other provinces."

Resolutions approved by the convention suggested a need for new Quebec government departments of recreation, economic planning and immigration.

Delegates also voted for free education at all levels, including university, and full health insurance coverage for all Quebecers.

Another noteworthy development was the unanimous approval by the congress of a procedure for the choice or replacement of a party leader.

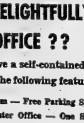
Under the new procedure, a leadership convention can be called at any time by the party's national council, a body of about 200 members which groups three representatives from each riding as well as the Union Nationale members of the Legislative Assembly and Legislative Council.

CURB LEADER'S POWER

The national council would get together to consider a leadership convention at the request of its own executive, any 50 of its members, or the party leader himself.

Once assembled with at least half its members present, the national council would call a leadership convention if a simple majority of those present favored the move.

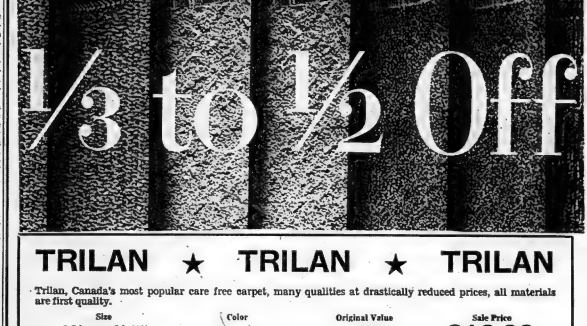
In the event the leadership becomes vacant due to death or a resignation, the National Council will be obliged to call a leadership convention within six months.



The new procedure was suggested by Mr. Johnson himself, who said it will give the party more control over its leader.

Mr. Duplessis, who founded the party in 1936 on a base of Quebec Conservatives and dissatisfied Liberals, ran things virtually alone for 23 years without consulting the membership about anything.

EXERCISE PLANNED



OTTAWA (CP) — Planes of the North American Air Defence Command will take part in a joint training exercise with the U.S. Strategic Air Command over some Canada-U.S. border areas, the defence department announced Wednesday. The exercise, with supersonic bombers flying over some border areas of Ontario and the Maritime provinces, is to be staged in the early morning hours of Friday.

ROMPIN' ROYALTY! — Canada's rock 'n' roll king Ronnie Hawkins sets the scene for hundreds of fans at last night's Crow's Nest caper.

Crow's Nest Is Mecca For Many Teen-agers But Rules Are Strict

SHINDIG DANCERS show fans how it's done . . . whether Watusi, Shotgun, Frug or Freddie. Take your pick!

It is called the Crow's Nest and it's seen some fancy flying but never known an egg!

And as far as the teenagers are concerned it's the greatest social advancement bit since the wheel.

Difference is its caper never gets out of control.

But let's make the scene in cooler notes and take it from the top of the page.

The Crow's Nest is Belleville's inspired reply to the teen dance-club demand that started its wildfire career across the world not many moons ago.

From a fad it blossomed into a phenomenon and is now accepted fashion with the comeative generation.

The Crow's Nest was the personal inspiration of a young Belleville couple, Phil and Joan Bennett.

"It was a matter of supplying something for the kids," they explain. "Up to that time they had to be content with dancing to records or old local group.

Their idea was to sell memberships and make big-time talent available for district teenagers.

They launched the fledgling in flight last January and saw it fly over the rainbow on its first bid.

Since then, the Crow's Nest has been the Saturday-night mecca of dancing district youngsters.

Last night however, was a new success bids as the Nest welcomed a rock 'n' roll king himself — Toronto's Rompin' Ronnie Hawkins.

More than 500 of the new generation flocked to look, listen laugh and energetically lock wits with the Frug, Swim, Shotgun, Freddie, Watusi, Jerk — and other exotic modern measures.

STRICT RULES

The freeing sealed the Nest enterprise with signal success.

And—for those adults who blanch at the sight of such lively display—the success of the event is a combination of energy and decorum.

Strict rules are demanded of the Nestlings in behavior and dress—shirts and ties for the boys, dresses or skirts and blouses for the girls.

They have never had to be enforced once the rules were laid down.

"Everyone co-operates. They behave like perfect ladies and gentlemen," said one usher.

"Key to much of the project's progress is the fact the Bennetts—in particular Mrs. Bennett, who is club manager—work closely with a committee formed by two students from each city high school.

"This keeps tabs on the talent they want here," says Phil Bennett. "They meet once a week and make suggestions."

Initially, a thousand memberships were sold, and another 200 added later.

From this list each dance draws an average 350 ranging from 16 to 20 years of age.

The Bennetts hope to keep up the promising pace.

"We've had some of the top-flight rock-and-roll bands there and are in Canada—and we have more lined up," they say.

Cabinet Must Decide on Railway Bill

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet must decide shortly on a bill for about $19,000,000 submitted by the major railways to cover the 1964 cost of a wage increase they agreed to under federal pressure last June.

Officials are checking the CNR and CPR figures and will submit a report to Transport Minister Pickersgill. He will take the matter to a cabinet committee.

If the bill was paid in full it would push total direct railway subsidy payments for 1964 to about $90,000,000.

Last spring the railways resisted a wage demand by their 100,000 non-operating workers, arguing that the federal freeze on freight rates gave them no way to raise the extra money.

A conciliation board recommended a 19.1-cent hourly boost which the non-op unions accepted. The railways rejected it and a strike threatened.

The CNR and CPR estimated that the 19.1 - cent increase would cost them $18,200,000 in 1964, and estimated $39,000,000 for 1965 and $46,300,000 in each succeeding year.

Freight rates were frozen in 1959 pending a royal commission study of the railway financial situation, but a temporary federal subsidy of $20,000,000 a year was introduced. When the commission filed a report in 1961, Another $50,000,000 a year was added to cover the period until new legislation was passed.

The railways maintained last year that their increased costs since 1959 had already eaten up these two annual subsidies.

Prime Minister Pearson then said that if the railways paid the 19.1-cent boost the government would review the situation later.

Lake Erie Water Without Oxygen

HAMILTON (CP) — Lake Erie is "dying," Prof. G. B. Langford of the University of Toronto's Great Lakes Institute said Wednesday.

Speaking at the annual conference of the Niagara Regional Development Association, Prof. Langford said the institute's research ship, Port Dauphine, found last summer that more than a quarter of the bottom of the lake is "dead water"—without oxygen that sustains marine life.

Screwball Irish Comedian Delights Queen and Party

LONDON (CP) — The Queen's birthday party turned into a hilarious vaudeville act Wednesday night before a wildly cheering audience in a London Theatre.

The Queen obviously loved every minute of it.

Wednesday was the Queen's 39th birthday, and Princess Margaret took the Queen and her family to see screwball Irish comedian Spike Milligan starring in the play Son of Oblomov as a Russian aristocrat too lazy to get out of bed.

Among the royal guests were actor Peter Sellers and his Swedish wife, Britt Ekland. Milligan and Sellers are old buddies and soon turned the play into a double act, with Milligan gagging from the stage and Sellers from the royalty row in the stalls.

Milligan stopped the show just after the opening curtain as an embarrassed footsome arrived late and took seats just in front of the Queen.

"Turn up the house lights," cried Spike. "Start everything again.

"That's cost you your knighthood," he told the blushing latecomers.

Then he cried: "Is there a Sellers in the house?"

Sellers, sitting between Prince Charles and Princess Margaret, yelled, "Yes."

"Why," demanded Milligan, "does Prince Philip wear red, white and blue braces (suspenders)?"

Sellers quickly swung into the old vaudeville routine with "I don't know. Why does Prince Philip wear red, white and blue braces?"

The classic reply to that ancient chestnut is "to keep his pants up" but whatever Milligan said was lost in the audience's laughter.

In the final scene Milligan, playing a Russian landowner who had taken to his bed rather than face the world, was joined by his pretty housekeeper. The star waved a warning finger toward 16-year-old Prince Charles and shouted:

"Philip, get that lad out of here."

Milligan also threw in an imitation of Queen Victoria, who died a slipper into the audience, narrowly missing Prince Philip's head, and appeared for his final curtain call with a sword with which he invited the Queen to knight him.

Her Majesty declined, and instead Milligan and others in the cast were invited back to the birthday supper at Princess Margaret's home in Kensington Palace.

Milligan, who says "I usually sign my letters 'a semi-loyal subject,'" told reporters in his dressing room: "I hope the food is good. I'm starving."

Impact of Steel Strike Could Lead to Termination Of U.S. Economy Expansion

NEW YORK (AP)—The net impact of a steel strike in the U.S. this year would be a loss of millions, perhaps billions, of dollars in wages and corporate profits.

It also possibly could lead to a termination of the tremendous four-year expansion of the U.S. economy.

The initial loss, of course, would be to the steel industry itself as plants shut down. Workers would not draw pay cheques, and the companies would not make sales, except of what inventory they would have on hand for future delivery.

The impact on other industries this year would come almost as quickly.

The reason is that mill shipments of steel are reported to be running one to four weeks behind schedule — and losing ground. Those shipments are host to meet current demand, notably from the booming automobile industry, number one steel user.

Steel production during the last week tied the record at 2,785,000 tons — but still not enough to meet current demand particularly in specialty products.

Consequently, some steel users seeking to stockpile material as a hedge against the end - of - month strike deadline have been frustrated.

The auto industry anticipated the strike problem as long ago as last fall and began building an inventory. Ford, General Motors and Chrysler all reported they will have a 60-day supply by the end of the month, in addition to their normal 20-day supply.

But most other steel users report their inventories now are as low as planned some weeks time ago because of the lag in steel production behind demand.

Some steel users have contracted with foreign producers to cover their needs temporarily. That development has caused some alarm in U.S. management circles. They fear permanent inroads by foreign producers.

Four Members Of Family Die In Collision

GUELPH (CP) — Three women and a man, all members of a Brantford family, were killed and a second man of the same family injured Wednesday when their car was in collision with a gravel truck on Highway 24 at the city outskirts.

Dead are: Mr. and Mrs. John Berry; Mrs. Clara Berry, and Mrs. Edna Berry.

In critical condition in hospital here is Harry Berry, husband of Clara, believed to have been the driver of the car.

Gregory Clark Named to News Hall of Fame

TORONTO (CP) — Gregory Clark, veteran Toronto newspaper man, was named Wednesday as first honorary member of a newly-instituted News Hall of Fame.

George Retzlaff, chairman of National Press Week, announced the selection of Mr. Clark, in recognition of his contribution to the newspaper profession during the 53 years he has been a reporter and columnist.

Now 72, Mr. Clark is associate editor of Weekend Magazine and although his columns no longer appear weekly, he still contributes articles to that publication.

Sponsored by the Toronto Men's Press Club, the Hall of Fame is planned to be ready by the spring of 1966 and likely will be set up in the club's headquarters. It will include honor rolls of winners of major press awards, such as the National Newspaper Awards.

Announcement of selection of Mr. Clark as first honorary member coincides with National Press Week, April 19-25, and will be followed in turn with the annual Byline Ball Friday night and the Newspaper Awards dinner, Saturday at which Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec will be the speaker.

Eight Canadian newspaper men, judged best in their fields of writing, cartooning and photography, will receive $400 each and certificates at the awards dinner in Toronto.

Queen's 39th Birthday Celebrated at Windsor

LONDON (CP) — The Queen celebrated her 39th birthday Wednesday, free of official engagements and with her family gathered around her at Windsor Castle, some 25 miles west of London on the banks of the Thames.

Prince Philip, 44, was home to share the birthday celebrations after a long series of trips abroad. Also present for a quiet lunch party were the four Royal children—Prince Charles, Princess Anne, Prince Andrew and baby Prince Edward — the Queen Mother and the Queen's sister, Princess Margaret, with her husband Lord Snowdon.

Five-year-old Prince Andrew stole the scene in a series of informal birthday photographs published in the British press. One picture showed him gallantly presenting a daffodil to his mother. Another had him conscientiously setting the brake on his 13-month-old baby brother's perambulator.

The Royal Family spent the birthday, as always, in strict privacy, but the usual morning ceremony of changing the guard at Windsor was given a special touch by the regimental band playing happy birthday to You and Here's a Health unto your Majesty as the Queen rod her children watched from a window in the battlemented castle.

A 21-gun salute was fired, and Windsor returned to its normal sleepy calm.

In the capital, guns boomed out in Hyde Park and at the Tower of London, while flags blossomed in gay abundance along the grey city streets.

Britons do not formally celebrate the sovereign's birthday until the second Saturday in June—this year June 12. Then the imposing, scarlet-and-gold trooping the color parade draws thousands of Londoners and tourists to Buckingham Palace and The Mall, the broad avenue along which the Queen rides side-saddle in colonel's uniform at the head of her troops.

49th Parallel Makes Quite a Difference!

By DENNIS ORCHARD

CHILLIWACK, B.C. (CP)—Ray Menzies goes to high school only 30 miles from Steve Gerela, but between them lies the 49th parallel and a gulf in method and custom.

They measured the gulf late last year in a Kiwanis-sponsored exchange, and they were amazed.

Four top students, elected by their principals, came from Burlington-Edison High to Washington State and moved in for a week here with four students picked by the principal of Sardis Junior High. The visit was returned a week later and each delegation attended the other's school.

The Americans found a "barrier between teachers and students" they were struck by the formal appellations of "Sir" and "Mr. Jones" students used to address their teachers. Classroom Bible - reading was unknown to them.

The "swear" - colloquial for the strange - shocked them.

When Ray and his schoolmates went to Burlington they found teachers wearing neat shirts and answering to first names. Even the principal's first name as "Kep, So and Suzie."

CHEW GUM

Students chewed gum in the classes, and the whole system was conducted more as seminars than as periods of instruction.

The Canadians were amused by a course called "world problems" in which everyone called "AP" for "American problems" because of the way it interpreted current events.

"When the class got noisy the teacher would turn around and say: 'Shut up,'" recalls Lorraine Peters, 15, a Grade 10 student at Sardis.

"And they would shut up.

"They pay attention when they're told because they know they can get thrown out of class. Here we get warnings and then the guys get kicked."

Sardis principal Frank Kope confirmed that his staff makes closely - controlled use of the strap, mostly on younger boys, and always as a last resort.

The Canadians discovered that the Burlington - Edison school was better-equipped, although with no better students it is about the same size as Sardis.

The Americans were a bit wealthier. The students were given little homework, while their Sardis counterparts were assigned an average of two hours a night. Yet the Americans were more school-oriented, with more extra-curricular activities and social activities centred on the school.

PARENTS INVOLVED

Rita Friesen, 17, found the Burlington fathers and mothers "more interested in what the kids are doing," and John Calhoun, 16, also was impressed by the support of "adults and the whole community," delivered in the form of interest in school work, understanding of problems, and attendance at such events as basketball games.

Ray Menzies, 15, believes the American students today's kids as serious an attitude towards their school work."

"There's not so much book-learning, but they concentrate more on expressing themselves, on developing as all - around character."

The Canadians spent a lot of time discussing their experiences and reported to the Chilliwack Kiwanis Club March 2. They said the American probably are just as ready for life as social beings when they graduate, but perhaps not as sure as Sardis students in their grasp of individual subjects.

Well then, they were asked, who emerges better-educated?

"We debated this for and heavy," said Ray Menzies, "and didn't really come to any conclusion."

SHAPING the EARTH
MAN HAS CREATED A NATURAL CATASTROPHE!
Much of Europe, Asia and North America have been harmed in this way. Forests have been CUT DOWN INDISCRIMINATELY in China, Greece and in the now arid regions of Spain. This has caused GREAT EROSION of the land as well as drought and tornadoes. Only 1/10 of the original forests in the Mediterranean area now remain.
Man has DISTURBED the balance of nature by ploughing downs and by STEAMING the land for more and more produce.
More and more DEFORESTATION of the earth's surface causes the TREES' roots held the soil against erosion and rain mobilizes. RAINFALL is also influenced by trees.

Provinces Tackle DST To Make Cities Conform

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The rugged individualism so long displayed by Canadian towns and cities in their approach to daylight time is gradually succumbing to the pressures of conformity.

Some provinces still let municipal governments decide whether they will go on daylight time each spring or stick with standard, but more and more the decisions are being dictated in the provincial capitals.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that New Brunswick and Manitoba have moved to set orderly patterns and, in common with most of the rest of Canada, they will move their clocks ahead one hour next Sunday, April 25.

Most Canadian communities will also remain on daylight time until Sunday, Oct. 31, but in Manitoba all but greater Winnipeg will go back to standard time just after Labor Day.

Alberta still resists the temptation to switch to daylight time, a practice that pleases the golfers but bothers the farmers. A law on the books since 1948 simply prohibits daylight time and Mountain Standard applies the year round. There's a fine of up to $25 for anyone who breaks the law but no one has ever been charged under it.

Saskatchewan, divided between Central and Mountain time, hasn't fully resolved a situation that has resulted in some confusion over the years.

FEW SWITCH

Most eastern Saskatchewan communities stay on Central Standard throughout the year and most western municipalities stick with Mountain Standard. But in the middle belt of the province, communities tend to switch to Mountain Daylight from MST April 25 to Oct. 31.

New legislation passed in New Brunswick gives the government authority to establish uniform daylight time dates and it decided on April 25-Oct. 31.

Before the law was adopted, Saint John and some other large centres had been planning on these dates while Dalhousie had chosen May 29-Oct. 29 and Moncton May 29-Sept. 4.

The Manitoba legislature this year passed a new Time Act placing Metropolitan Winnipeg on daylight time from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October.

The remainder of the province must also go daylight from the last Sunday in April until the first Sunday after Labor Day in September. However, any municipality may, after holding a referendum, extend daylight time to the last Sunday in October.

WAIT TILL 1966

There have been no referendums so far and this means such cities as Brandon and Portage la Prairie will return to standard time Sept. 12 even though they might prefer to remain on daylight longer. Few municipalities like to hold referendums apart from regular elections because of the cost and as a result extended daylight time probably won't be adopted until 1966.

Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island will all follow the April 25-Oct. 31 daylight-time pattern. In Newfoundland the decision is made by the province but in Nova Scotia it's a local matter although there have been no exceptions the last two years.

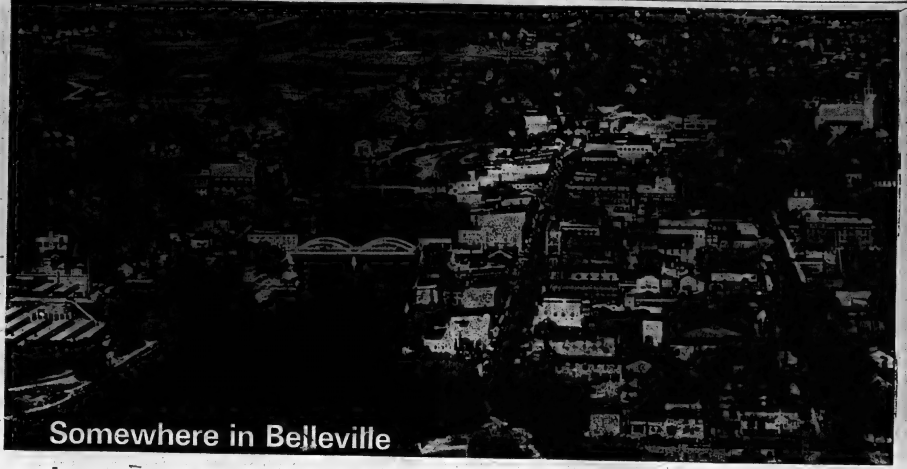
This is the second daylight time year for P.E.I. which made it law in 1964. Previously many municipalities went on "advanced working hours," meaning that offices and stores opened and closed an hour earlier than usual. It had the same effect as daylight time because most people advanced their clocks when the system went into effect and turned them back when it ceased.

TWO TIME ZONES

In Quebec, Eastern Daylight Time is provided for almost all of the province except the area east of the 68th degree of longitude where most towns stay on Atlantic Standard all year. One exception is Temiscouata which goes on Atlantic Daylight because it wants the same time as New Brunswick with which it has many dealings.

It's possible for cities in other parts of the province to stay on standard time—by applying for permission from the municipal affairs department — and five agricultural communities do this.

In Ontario, the April 25-Oct. 31 daylight time change is widely adopted but there are exceptions, notably Windsor, which stays on Eastern Standard to conform with neighboring Detroit, and Fort Arthur and Fort William which are on the western fringe of the eastern time zone and get plenty of evening daylight without having to switch.



While Pacific Daylight is the summertime rule for British Columbia, several communities in the Peace River district of the northeast keep Mountain Standard Time all through the year to remain in step with neighboring Alberta.

Somewhere in Belleville is a man who has everything it takes to make a successful life insurance underwriter.

Trouble is, he doesn't know it yet.

We want to train that man to become "the Man from Manufacturers." Maybe you can help us find him.

WE'RE LOOKING FOR MEN

Belleville is a rapidly growing community. And Manufacturers Life business here is growing apace. There are many Manufacturers Life policyowners in Belleville. They believe in our product. And so do we. We believe that the kind of service Manufacturers Life delivers can better provide for the financial security of the families and businesses of Belleville. We need able men to help provide that service. We need men who've got what it takes to become "the Man from Manufacturers."

WHAT KIND OF MAN?

The man we're looking for has probably never considered life insurance underwriting as a career. He might just be graduating from school. Or he may already be successful in business but starting to feel that there isn't much farther he can go in his field. There's no limit to how far he can go with Manufacturers Life. The man we select will be walking into a promising sales situation. And a rewarding career. What kind of man will he be?

IT TAKES ALL KINDS

To tell you the truth, we don't know. Yet. Present Manufacturers Life underwriters don't fit a mold. They aren't "types." Some are married and some are single. Some have a university education and some are completely self-educated. They do have a capacity for inner discipline when it comes to work habits. (They have to. The Manufacturers Life underwriter enjoys the same freedom and independence he would if he were in business for himself.)

And they do like people.

PEOPLE ARE PART OF THE JOB

Many Manufacturers Life policyowners look upon their agent as an adviser who'll give them help in planning their financial security. Manufacturers Life underwriters welcome those problems. And do their best to solve them.

WHAT ARE THE REWARDS?

If we could find a man who is willing to work hard for his clients as well as himself, we'll train him as a Manufacturers Life underwriter. Here's what we can offer him:

1. An adequate income while he is learning plus the chance to earn substantial bonuses. Successful men who set their sights high can attain a five figure income early in their careers.
2. Permanence of markets for his services. Life Insurance fills a need no other financial instrument can meet and the market is constantly widening.
3. A retirement pension as early as age 60 (minimum of 20 years service). Major medical expense coverage for his family at a nominal rate.
4. Opportunities for development in sales management. Most of our 100 branch managers were Life Underwriters. Our current expansion brings many new opportunities each year.

WHY MANUFACTURERS LIFE, THEN?

A career in life underwriting offers many substantial rewards. But why choose Manufacturers Life? Here are some of the reasons:

1. Our method of selecting new men. (A man is offered a contract with Manufacturers Life only after we've mutually agreed that he has a high potential for success. We have an obligation both to the man himself and to our policyowners to select only representatives who will continue in the business and thrive in it.)
2. More to sell (Manufacturers Life offers a complete range of life insurance and annuity plans which can be custom tailored to the needs of individuals and business and industry.)
3. Rates are competitive. (The Manufacturers Life agent's ratebook is constantly revised to supply benefits at the most favourable costs.)
4. Expert training in what to say, what to do and what to know. Advanced courses that range all the way from Business Insurance and Employee Benefit Plans to Estate Planning. As the Manufacturers Life underwriter increases his knowledge of insurance and planning techniques his ability to earn increases accordingly.
5. More prospects are insurable (Manufacturers Life is a pioneer in the insuring of special cases including diabetics and coronaries.)

CAN YOU HELP?

Perhaps there's someone you know who would be interested in becoming "the Man from Manufacturers."—It's a challenging career. And a rewarding one.

Perhaps you're interested yourself. We'd like to meet you. Our area Branch Manager, Mr. J. H. Shaver, C.L.U., will be in Belleville at the Queen's Motor Hotel April 22 through 24. You are invited to phone him at the hotel (968-6495) and arrange a confidential interview.

Calls Church Self-criticism Striptease

KINGSTON (CP) — Fourteen Queen's Theological College graduates were warned Wednesday they are stepping off into an age where self-criticism within the church resembles a "spiritual striptease."

Rev. Robert B. Craig of Peterborough said at a convocation ceremony this is an age where denigration of character and hallowed institutions seems the accepted order of the day.

The United Church clergyman said this is the age which "calls back to the pulpit."

"This is an age where religion and faith are news but the fact that religion is considered worthy of criticism is a mark of its continuing significance even in a materialistic age."

A Hobby Is a Hobby Is a Hobby

FORD MACLEOD, Alta. (CP) Gordon Munro Elgin, 39, a bachelor ranching in this district 25 miles west of Lethbridge, has an array of hobby skills that would be envied by most men—and by women too.

Mr. Elgin runs the 1,600-acre ranch where he was born. He's a big-game hunter and collects arrowheads from a buffalo slaughtering ground near his ranch.

Besides this the rancher is an accomplished chef, does impeccable petit-point needlework, knits everything from baby outfits to men's sweaters, creates fancy shell work, does copper tooling, paints, makes abstract designs for vases and does a lot of home canning.

Mr. Elgin started his best-known hobby almost 20 years ago, when he discovered arrowheads at the foot of a cliff near the ranch, 29 miles south of Fort Macleod. He estimates the tiny pieces of chipped rock may be up to 2,000 years old, left there by generations of Indians who stampeded buffalo over the precipice and slew survivors at the bottom with bows and arrows.

The rancher has spent days at the site, sifting the dirt through a quarter-inch screen in his search for arrowheads. His collection of about 900 perfect barbs is on display in the Fort Macleod museum during the summer.

By knitting more than 300 items of clothing for the Canadian Red Cross, Mr. Elgin won the War Workers Badge. His first beguiling hobby in 1939, following the practice of his mother who spun her own knitting wool.

When knitting began to bore him, Mr. Elgin turned to petit point, a hobby for the last five winters. He won entered $100 for one small mountain scene.

TROUT FARM FLOURISHES — The latest thing in sport fishing in British Columbia is a fish farm where anglers can catch fish in especially stocked pools. One of them is the Sun Valley Trout Farm run by Mr. and Mrs. Hans Lehmann at Port Coquitlam. Anglers pay $3.50 for the privilege of catching six rainbow trout, or if they are unsuccessful the Lehmanns will do it for them with a net. Here, they clean fish for a customer. (CP Photo)

Commercial Fish Farms Make Angler's Life Easy

By WALTER HAYES

PORT COQUITLAM, B.C. (CP)—A secluded pool about the size of an ice rink hides some 500 rainbow trout beneath its shimmering surface.

None is less than nine inches long—many are between 14 and 18 inches. All are hungry and full of fight.

No fishing licence is required and there's no catch limit. The pool is restocked frequently.

And if you can't catch them, there's a man handy who'll dredge some up with a net.

This isn't the idle dream of an angler. It's all for real at the Sun Valley Trout Farm nestled in the shadow of a mountain—an isolated spot with no telephone service and with gasoline generator.

Operator of this angler's paradise 25 miles east of Vancouver is Hans Lehmann, 45, an amiable German immigrant.

Sun Valley Trout Farm is one of about 25 commercial fish farms scattered throughout British Columbia. All cater to the angler, but Sun Valley is the only one that sells trout commercially.

SELL TO HOTELS

In fact, most of the Sun Valley rainbows find their way to the gourmet's plate in major hotels and restaurants in the Vancouver area, or to wholesalers who ship them frozen across the country.

These outlets provide 80 per cent of the farm's commercial business.

Anglers provide the other 10 per cent. They come mostly on weekends to fish in the pool out of sight and sound of the Lehmann house.

The farm is open the year round and a second pool is stocked during the heavy spring and summer season.

Many anglers who visit the farm are returning empty-handed from a poor fishing day elsewhere and stop for a few rainbows to take home.

If they can't land one here, Hans will even do that for them.

"They always ask us not to clean the fish . . . to keep them the way they are," said Mr. Lehmann.

Many visitors are husbands who bring their wives and children to fish. However, these expeditions usually end with the husband standing on the bank of the pond excitedly working a rod while his youngster stands beside him pleading: "Daddy, when is it my turn?"

RODS FOR RENT

Some come attired in the latest fishing garb complete with hip waders, creels and fancy tackle. Others wear business suits and fish with rented rods.

One man even showed up with his boat and insisted on being allowed to take it on the tiny pond and troll.

Finally, there are those who don't like to fish, but enjoy eating trout. For them, the Lehmanns will dip several fish from a rearing pond, kill and clean them all for about 65 cents apiece depending on size.

Hans, his wife Mimi, their sons Bernie, 20, and Hans Jr., 18, carved the farm out of wilderness four years ago. They started with rainbow bought in Washington State. This year they expect to raise between 100,000 and 150,000 trout.

Most farms charge as much as inch for each fish caught, but the Lehmanns favor a flat rate of $3.50 for six fish and allow luck or skill to decide who gets the big ones.

Hamburgers To Hamburg!

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States has put a steak- and - hamburger show on the road in Europe, hoping to build a growing market and ease a domestic dilemma.

Eisenhower, roast beef sandwiches and prime steaks have been introduced to Europeans in London, Paris, West Berlin and Hamburg, Germany, of course.

Coming up are beef shows in Madrid, Geneva, Brussels, and London again. Italy also has drawn attention.

Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman, who took a personal role in the West Berlin exhibition, sees the North American custom of the back-yard barbecue, or "cookout," as a stimulus in creating demand for the fat-marbled American steak.

European beef is lean beef, he has told a congressional committee, and "grilled lean beef is the next best thing to high quality shoe leather" and the outdoor grill could become the best overseas beef salesman we have."

The U.S. has been shut out of the European beef market since the First World War, largely because its product was too expensive. Today, growing European affluence has created a demand for competitors such as Argentina have changed the situation.

PRESSURE GOVERNMENT

There is also heavy pressure on the U.S. government to find new outlets for its beef.

Early last year, prices hit a seven-year low and the powerful cattlemen's lobby closed in on Washington.

The government reluctantly saw Congress approve quotas on imported beef at a time when it was pressing for more.

It launched a beef-buying program for schools and poverty areas which cost $100,000 in 1964 and began an eat-beef campaign domestically.

Prices rebounded but the national beef herd keeps right on rising, standing at a record 107,300,000 animals as of Jan. 1 for a seventh-consecutive annual increase.

Per capita consumption has surpassed 100 pounds. Imports in 1964 dropped one-third to 685,000,000 pounds. Exports doubled to 32,000,000 pounds—still small but significant in the light of the urgency attached to the beef-exports drive.

$225,000,000 Steel Mill At Becancour Will Boost Population to 40,000

BECANCOUR, Que. (CP)—A single street dotted with a few stores, a barber shop, a funeral home and a Roman Catholic Church and an official population of 312.

That is the Becancour of today.

A thriving town of 40,000 and a boom economy fed by a $225,000,000 steel mill.

That is the Becancour of tomorrow, a tomorrow Mayor Pierre Blondin says will dawn within a decade.

And all because of an announcement by the Quebec government Wednesday that Becancour has been confirmed as the site of the long-proposed steel complex.

It was enough to turn this quiet agricultural community into a happy hubbub of future promise.

"We're exuberant," says Mayor Blondin, a defence department employee at nearby Nicolet who serves as Becancour's chief magistrate without remuneration.

SEES CHANGES

"That will change now," he said Thursday. "We'll have to have better prepared men for this job."

That's not all that will change. Where there are now a few corner stores, there are certain to be supermarkets. Where there are only a few isolated houses, there will be subdivisions.

There will be problems, too, but Father Joseph Bergeron, whose Roman Catholic parish embraces the town and about 500 residents in the immediate rural area, says these can be forestalled if the "proper measures" are taken.

Becancour—pronounced Bay-Cahn-Coor—from its first days almost 300 years ago, has been a small agricultural village across the St. Lawrence River from Trois-Rivieres about halfway between Montreal and Quebec City.

Until announcement of the steel mill, the largest and about the only sign of modern industrial expansion to hit the area was a $35,000,000 bridge across the St. Lawrence. It is currently under construction.

COMMUTE TO NICOLET

Father Bergeron said some of the 312 townsfolk commute daily, as does Mayor Blondin, to Nicolet to work there. But most of them are tied to farm life with the accent on raising cattle for meat and dairy products.

It is almost completely a French-speaking community.

Becancour became a municipality in 1821.

Except for a marginal increase in population, things didn't change much.

Signs that changes were coming, first appeared a year ago when Le Trusts Generale du Canada quietly took out options on 11 square miles of land in the area on behalf of the provincial government. The cost—$2,000,000.

Then came the months of walking while the governments and its investment arm, General Investments Corporation, debated the respective merits of Becancour and Contrecoeur, a larger industrialized site east of Montreal.

The choice was announced Wednesday.

SPORTS SLICES

"My son," the letter said, "is something of a kook, sportswise. He doesn't want to play hockey, football, or baseball. He curls a lip at tennis, badminton and lacrosse. He disdains croquet, tiddly-winks, chess and checkers. He broke a finger playing marbles once, and wrenched his back picking up a dropped card in a stout game of "Old Maid." Now, he wants to be a baseball umpire. Any advice?"—Worried Pop.

Dear Worried Pop:—

First he must have the necessary physical equipment. He should possess wall-to-wall brainlessness in his skull; a pair of large feet, ditto shoulders; a skin that would make a ring-side hippo look like he was overexposed in cellophane; two large pulsating fingers and an overbite gift of the gab.

He should have the courage of a lion; the diplomacy of a bowyer; if needs be the disposition of a wounded bear; the stubbornness of a mule; the sartorial splendor of a snake; a dash of fox cunning and the bellow of a bull moose.

He should possess the ability to recognize the shortcomings of his fellow men, especially those garbed in baseball uniforms. He should be able to recognize the cloak of authority as marries the shoulders of managers —but not necessarily bow to it.

He should marry early. This fits him for the argumentative phase of the job. He should study diction which will separate his efforts from that of an Ozarkian Dizzy Dean. He should study posture so he can stand, as dizzy says, "as still as a statcha" when an irate player starts gibbering.

He should be impervious to abuse, and learn it is more blessed to receive than give. He should learn a rigid control of his facial muscles so he does not give way physically, what is going on in his mind. He should not fraternize with infuriate batters at the plate, at or a grunt is sufficient.

He should avoid bad breath and head colds as much as possible. When an angry player or manager thrusts a snout to within an inch of the official nose, there is no point in intervening these physical assaults to healthy nostalgia.

He should learn lip-reading. Through this he will learn the batter's idea of his ancestry after a borderline decision. He should use discretion and turn his back on a belligerent player. After all a left in the pants is better than a right to the jaw.

He should be quick with a quip and be able to handle an emergency. Like the player who wore glasses and had two strikes on him. He slowly removed the glasses and offered them to the umpire. The umpe took them, looked them over watched the third pitch, "Strike Three" he said, and handed the glasses back to the squint-eyed batter.

Or the umps in the Polo Grounds who watched a blimp hover over the field and stop to allow the crew to watch the game. Suddenly his nibs called time and shouted: "Any batted ball that hits that whatchamacallit goes for a ground-rule double."

If he has all these attributes — tell him to forget umpiring as a career and take up politics.

But if he insists tell him that umpires in the big leagues are not as well paid as players, but they last longer. The average tenure of 40 major league umps, 20 in each league, is 11 years.

Rookie umpires get the same startling salaries as rookie players, $7,000, but the high for an umpire is around $20,000, depending on ability and seniority' Umpires get $3,500 a season for expenses—rooms, meals, etc.—and their transpactation is paid.

Not bad and the hours are good. It's actually better than working for a living.

Blake Says "No" ★ ★ ★ ★ No Change In Lineup

Reay Plans To Shake Hull's Shadow

By AL McNEIL

CHICAGO (CP) —Montreal Canadiens moved into Chicago Wednesday night in search of their third straight victory in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup finals against Chicago Black Hawks, but it was obvious they had no intention of resting on their two - game cushion.

To make sure his charges had not developed kinks during their 17-hour train ride from Montreal, coach Toe Blake promptly ordered them to Chicago Stadium for a brisk 50-minute workout.

The Canadiens, who squeezed past the Hawks 3-2 in Saturday's opener and then shutout Bobby Hull and company 2-0 Tuesday night, concentrated on the shot - shoot aspect, which has become their trade mark, during the impromptu practice session.

The Habs—the fastest skating club in the National Hockey League—were only on a pair with the Hawks in the opening games.

It was their tenacious defence which flashioned the 3-0 victory and earned rotund Gump Worsley his first playoff shutout.

ISN'T SATISFIED

However, the Canadiens general manager, Sam Pollock, is still not satisfied with his team's scoring punch.

"We've been fortunate because the other team isn't scoring either," Pollock said.

"So far, we've managed to tie up their scorers, but how long can we do that?"

Blake must have been listening to the bons' lines because during Wednesday night's practice he had his squad divided in half, firing scoring shots at Worsley and little Charlie Hodge from all angles.

Following the workout, Blake said he anticipated no lineup changes for tonight's third game. The workout was the last the Canadiens will hold before the game.

However, Blake will work four or five reserves briefly this morning.

PROVOST KEEPS JOB

Blake said there is no reason why Claude Provost, who has successfully contained rapid Robert Hull to date, will not continue his checking chore.

However, it is Chicago coach Billy Reay who will have the final choice in the line-to-line alignment for tonight's and Sunday's games here. This choice goes to the home club, and no doubt Reay will attempt to spring his big gun for some of his snipes and booming drives without the watchful Provost tagging along.

Reay refuses to discuss his reasoning in throwing Stan Mikita — another contestant threat and regular season scoring leader—on to a line with Hull Tuesday night.

Blake, in return, claims Mikita appeared on the Hull line to escape the attention of big Jean Beliveau.

REAY WON'T TALK

Wednesday, Reay would not say if he would gamble with Hull and Mikita on the same line again tonight.

He has been forced to shuffle his offensive force under the constant and - Hull movement thrown up by the Canadiens, and by the fact a new injury to Kenny Wharram broke up his "Scooter" line.

Wharram may be patched up for the third game, but Pierre Pilote—Hawks' captain and defence stalwart—remains sidelined with a shoulder separation. Pilote's injury could keep him on the bench until next season.

Amerks Shade Bears 2-1

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Gerry Ehman's goal after 13 minutes and 20 seconds of sudden-death overtime gave Rochester Americans a 2-1 victory over Hershey Bears Wednesday night in the first game of the American Hockey League's Calder Cup finals.

Defenceman Duane Rupp's manoeuvre in keeping the puck in the Hershey zone set up the game-winner. Rupp passed the puck to Ehman whose shot into the goalmouth smack under Hershey goalie Claude Dufour.

Second game in the best-of-seven series will be played here Friday night, with the third and fourth games in Hershey Saturday and next Wednesday.

The Americans, western division champions and the team with the best record over-all during the regular season, broke on the ice in the hard-check ing game with a tally at 3:43 of the second period.

PAPPIN SCORES

Hershey's Howie Yanoski had been in the penalty box for only 35 seconds when Jim Pappin turned in a drive by Ehman for his sixth goal in five playoff encounters.

It stayed 1-0 until Bruce Draper, standing in front of the net, "right-angled" Keith McCreary's pass from the left boards past American goalie Jerry Cheevers at 5:05 of the final period.

Portland Game Off Loop Title

VICTORIA (CP) — Portland Buckaroos moved to within a game of the Western Hockey League championship Wednesday night by edging Victoria Maple Leafs 3-2.

The win gave the Buckaroos a commanding 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven final and an opportunity to take home the Lester Patrick Cup after the fifth game of the series here Saturday night.

Portland grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first period and added a goal in the second before the Leafs finally ended Don Head's shutout bid early in the third period.

Cliff Schmautz and Larry Leach scored first-period goals and Pat Stapleton scored what proved to be the winner at 5:24 of the second. Steve Wilbik and Sandy Hucul were the Victoria goalgetters.

Shuffle Gives Cards Second Win

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Only one victory in six games is enough to shake up anyone who might be managing baseball's world champions.

Red Schoendienst, in turn, shook up his lineup, and St. Louis Cardinals have their second win.

The Cardinals, with two of the rookie manager's bench members supplying some punch, defeated Milwaukee Braves Wednesday night behind the six-hit pitching of Bob Purkey.

The victory didn't help St. Louis vacate the National League cellar, but Schoendienst was pleased with the performance by right-handed pitching, Schoendienst said. "I'll platoon Francona, but I can't take those two out now."

Francona has played only parts of the last two seasons for the Cardinals, took over from Julian Javier, who had managed only four hits in 23 trips to the plate for a .174 average.

Francona, a winter acquisition from Cleveland, subbed for Mike Shannon, one of the 1964 World Series heroes who has managed one single in 22 at bats for an .045 average.

DROVE IN TWO

Gagliano, 22, didn't get a hit, but did drive in two runs with sacrifice flies. Francona tripled in the second inning and scored on Javier's double and then singled Dick Groat into scoring position in a four-run fifth inning.

In other NL games Wednesday, San Francisco Giants defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2, Los Angeles Dodgers whipped New York 5-1, Houston Astros walloped Philadelphia Phillies 11-4 and Cincinnati Reds drubbed Chicago Cubs 9-2.

Purkey limited the Braves to two hits, one of them Ed Mathews' three-run homer in the third inning and pitcher Juan Marichal singled across the deciding run in the seventh for the Giants. Marichal scattered eight hits, including Bill Virdon's homer in the eighth.

Don Drysdale, with relief help from Ron Miller, coasted to his 11th straight victory over the Mets. Miller came on in the eighth after Drysdale had walked a total of seven batters. Wes Parker's run-scoring single broke a 1-1 tie and helped the Dodgers post three runs in the seventh inning.

Philadelphia's Chris Short was on the way toward his third straight victory until Houston erupted for four runs in the eighth inning and five more in the ninth. Beauchamp singled across two runs in the eighth while Al Spangler capped the ninthinning outburst with a two-run single.

Joey Jay, making his first start of the season, set Chicago down on four hits, including Ron Santo's fourth homer, a two-run shot in the fourth. The Reds, meanwhile, battered Larry Jackson and three relievers for 16 hits. Pete Rose and Gordy Coleman homered for Cincinnati.

Definite Starters

Four Enter Commercial

Four definite starters and one other "interested entry" were represented when the Belleville Commercial Softball League held its second meeting of the season last night.

Listed as definite starters at this point are Black Diamond Cheese, City Hotel, Point Anne and Lightfoot Construction, all four representing Belleville, consisting of air force players who live in Belleville turned out seeking information as to the league's operation.

The league has not yet elected its officers for this season and anyone interested in an executive position is urged to attend the next meeting.

Umpires and playing fields are also matters yet to be settled, but may be dealt with at definite number of entries is not.

Another meeting will be held next Wednesday night, April 28, at eight o'clock. It will likely be at the Recreation Centre but this is yet to be confirmed. A full attendance will be set at this meeting and any clubs or persons interested in the league are urged to attend.

Rangers Tops In Central

ST. PAUL (AP) — St. Paul Rangers won the Adams Cup, symbolic of Central Professional Hockey League playoff supremacy, when they defeated Tulsa Oilers 3 - 1 Wednesday night.

It was the fourth victory for St. Paul against two losses in the best-of-seven final series.

St. Paul, which also was the regular season champion, took a 2-0 lead into the final period on a pair of goals by Paul Andrea.

The Rangers nursed that lead until the final few minutes when Tulsa's Mike Walton scored an unassisted goal to break his team withik striking range.

NHL May Back Regan Over Ahearne

European TV Rights

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — Larry Regan's proposed hockey school at Innsbruck, Austria, suffered set backs on two fronts Wednesday, but the former National Hockey League player still hopes to go ahead with his project.

And if NHL owners agree with Stafford Smythe, president of Toronto Maple Leafs, Regan may have a big bargaining weapon in his battle against an International Ice Hockey Federation ban on professionals—European television rights to NHL games.

J. P. (Bunny) Ahearne, president of the IIHF and probably Regan's chief opponent, has applied for NHL TV distribution rights in Europe. But Smythe was quoted as saying Tuesday in Montreal that Ahearne's continued opposition to professional hockey would rule him out and he would be happy to have Regan "be our agent" in Europe.

Smythe has no power to grant TV rights—it will require a decision by owners of all six teams in the league—but Regan said in an interview Wednesday he will pursue the matter.

The status of the school is uncertain. "I hope to be able to go ahead with it but it may have to be postponed."

Regan's setbacks came from the Canadian embassy in Vienna and the Austrian embassy here. Both said there was nothing the Austrian government could do about an IIHF ban against professionals performing in Europe.

The external affairs department said the Canadian embassy in Vienna had been told by Austrian officials that the government had no control over the IIHF or the Austrian Ice Hockey Federation.

The Austrian embassy issued a similar statement Wednesday.

At the IIHF's annual meeting last month, a rule banning professionals was passed by a unanimous vote.

The school, scheduled to start at the end of the month, would have Gordie Howe, Alex Delvecchio, Marcel Pronovost, all of Detroit Red Wings, and Tim Horton, Ron Stewart and Tuffy Sawchuk of Toronto Maple Leafs instructing Austrian youngsters.

The Vienese Embassy statement "rejected emphatically" any allusion that Austria does not want Canadians in Austria. It was a controversy "existing solely between Mr. Regan, a private entrepreneur, on one side and the International Ice Hockey Federation, a private organization, on the other."

Whips Woodstock 4-1

Sherbrooke Goes Two Up

WOODSTOCK, (CP) — Anytime a hockey team can win the opening two games of a playoff series in the opponents' back yard they're in an excellent position, and that's why Sherbrooke Beavers are bursting with confidence today.

The Beavers, making a strong bid for Canada's senior hockey championship, defeated Woodstock Athletics 4-1 to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven eastern Allan Cup finals Thursday night.

They won the opening game 3-2 Monday night.

Skip Burchell, Rene Pepin, Rod Gaudreault and Simon Nolet scored a goal each Wednesday to offset Woodstock's only goal by Jack McIntyre.

The Beavers' success, however, was mainly due to the heroics of goaltender Serge Aubrey, who stopped 27 shots, including 11 in the second period, while the Athletics held the edge and got their only goal of the game.

RUINS SHUTOUT

McIntyre had ruined Aubrey's shutout and tied the score at 1-1 in the second period, converting Mr. Klinck's slapshot from the blueline.

The tie was short lived, however, and less than a minute later Pepin caught the lower left corner of the Woodstock net with a 10-foot shot after he and Dupre had gone in alone on netminder Ron Salter.

Loose defensive play by the Athletics paved the way for Sherbrooke's third goal. Dupre stole the puck behind the Woodstock goal and passed to Gaudreault, who scored while standing unguarded on the doorstep.

Salter was outstanding in the Woodstock net, making brilliant saves and stopping several breakaways by Gaudeault and Claude Cardin.

The third game of the series is scheduled in Sherbrooke Friday night. The fourth game will also be played in Sherbrooke Sunday, and the fifth, if necessary, Monday.

Brampton Novice Tournament

BRAMPTON (CP) — Brent Bowen and Terry Martin scored two goals each as Barrie defeated Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., 6-3 to win the Canadian-American championship at the novice hockey tournament Wednesday.

Paul Oshcuk and Jeff Simmons scored the other Barrie goals, while Don Welch score twice for Sault Ste. Marie and Rick Myers got the other.

Meanwhile, Napanee, Ont., gained a berth in the class C finals by defeating Milton, Ont., 2-1 and 3-2.

Napanee will meet Goderich, Ont., in the final game Saturday.

Rocky Baker, Brian Williamson and Mike Kaszycki handled the Milton scoring.

Terry Smith brought his goal total to 12 in six games with three more goals as Goderich battled Delhi, Ont., to a 3-3 tie and won the second game 3-2.

Paul Kelly scored twice for Goderich, while Ian McAdam got the other. Mike Stephens scored twice for Delhi, while Bob Geertz, Ved Ertzlinger and Joe Roe got the others.

Defeat Gerzon 6-2

Flyers Grab 3-0 Lead

NIAGARA FALLS (CP) — Even 14 minutes in penalties to Niagara Falls Flyers didn't help Garson-Falconbridge Native Sons in their fight for the Ontario junior hockey championship Wednesday night.

The Flyers, on the other hand scored a goal during one of their two power - play efforts and went on to defeat the Native Sons 6-2.

The victory gave the Flyers, Ontario Hockey Association Junior A champions, a 3 - 0 strangle hold in the best - of - seven eastern Canadian Memorial Cup semi-finals against the Northern Ontario Hockey Association junior champions. Fourth game of the series is scheduled here tonight.

Although the game was closer than the previous two contests which the Flyers won 13-3 and 6-0, the Native Sons still proved no match for their faster-skating opponents.

Rookie Jim Lorentz gave Niagara Falls a 1-0 lead on the Flyers' first power play of the game, deflecting Dave Woodley's shot from the right past goaltender Bob Whidden.

Steve Atkinson, Bill Goldsworthy, Doug Fromyvet, Don Marcotte and Woodley scored the other goals for the Flyers. Charlie Phillips and Frank Hamill replied for the Native Sons.

Batting—Leon Wagner, Cleveland, cracked two home runs, the second giving the Indians a 6-5 victory over Los Angeles Angels in 10 innings.

Blasts Inspire Fans

Bugle Sparks Habs' Cavalry

MONTREAL (CP) — Black Hawks beware — out to blow them over is a youngish man with a horn.

Michel Blanchard, 31, has been blowing his horn all year as Montreal Canadiens' noisiest supporter.

The home - town forum has rocked blasts from his gold-colored trumpet and to the cheers which it heralds from a knot of rabid Canadiens supporters.

The supporters come over with Blanchard from suburban Verdun, toting a seal that will be satisfied only if their beloved Habs triumph in the current Stanley Cup final against Chicago.

The Verdunites will miss tonight's tussle at Chicago, but they plan to hop a train for Chicago in time for Sunday night's game.

There'll be nine in the Verdun rooting section that evening and Blanchard, who likes to be called Mike, will carry along his traditional accoutrements of tears, beer, a big blanket bearing the Canadiens emblem and, of course, that raucous trumpet, hung with the red, white and blue of la Club de Hockey Canadien.

Mike is a fan, quiet-looking sort who works as a government investigator when he isn't hoofing for the Canadiens.

He has a small repertoire of tunes.

The chilling "charge" is sounded at the beginning of periods and when play gets dull.

It also sounds forth when Canadiens mount their awesome powerplay and sometimes in the wake of Montreal goals.

Then there's the Blanchard rendition of the Last Post reserved for enemy players who get rough or find themselves stumbled into the penalty box.

When decisions by referee or linesmen conflict with the Blanchard view, he lets loose with Three Blind Mice and his colleagues join in the refrain.

Mike is married with two children and restricts his music-making to the forum. His wife, he says, couldn't care less about hockey.

The Montreal club first heard from Blanchard's horn two years ago after he decided hockey could benefit from the musical accompaniment common to U.S. college football.

In the beginning, said Mike, the Canadiens Management thought patrons seated near his horn might object to the racket.

But in due time a tacit agreement evolved whereby the Verdun virtuoso restricted his game-time trumpetings to a set variety of cadences.

He's been a Canadiens fan since he was seven years old.

The Memorial Cup

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Two brothers contributed much of the punch that carried Lachine Maroons to victory in a sudden-death playoff with Smiths Falls Bears Wednesday night, climaxing a two-day double round-robin tournament in Eastern Hockey Association play.

Maroons' forwards Gilbert and Michel Lapalme figured on four goals as the Quebec junior champions dumped the Ottawa District kings 5-3 to move into the final against the winner of the Ontario junior series.

The winner of that series will meet the West for the Memorial Cup final.

Gilbert's goal, on a power play with his brother and defenceman Gerry Firn at 5:22 of the final period proved the winner.

It broke a 3-3 tie the Bears had earlier in the period after the second time Smiths Falls came back to even the score. Michel Lapalme opened the scoring before the game was six minutes old and set up Richard on a goal to give Lachine a 2-0 first - period lead. Quick Bears got two goals and Ray Barnes got the Bears back in contention before the two - minute mark of the second.

Don Young put Lachine ahead again at the end of the period, but centre Jack Churchill led Smiths Falls to a 3-3 tie in the third before he scored Michel Lapalme scored his second to sew up the victory.

Efrem Zimbalist Jr. Will Star in 'FBI Story' Serial

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — From private eye to G-man was announced to be bought by the triple was a season between: The story of Efrem Zimbalist Jr.

A season ago, the actor finished a long run as star of 77 Sunset Strip. He declared himself weary of the television grind and anxious to test his wings in feature films.

Recently he was announced with only mediocre entries, The FBI Story, for which the government agency promised aid and support. What happened to Zimbalist during the interim?

"I became [illegible] with the rat race that's working in features entertainment. So I've got roles in features you have to play the social [illegible] to these oldtime producers who think the movie business is just what it used to be.

"Well, if that's what working in pictures entails, I owe to [illegible] with it. I would much rather be working in television, where you don't have to put up with that nonsense.

"Sure, you work hard. But that never bothered me, as long as the material was good. I had to do 77 Sunset Strip. But I think it will be different this time."

The reason for his faith is the presence of the series' [illegible] mastermind of such [illegible] O'Clock High. The producer sold the series to CBS [illegible] two without a pilot, and [illegible] these times, when [illegible] to see what they're getting.

Zimbalist's [illegible] contributed to his disillusionment with [illegible]. It was directed by the French director, Serge Bourguignon, and members of the cast and crew still [illegible] their heads over the experience.

"Before this," Zimbalist said, "We were in the middle of Death Valley in the heat of Summer—120 degrees—and he wouldn't use more than 35 times. That's right: 35 times! We were all gone outs.

"They tell me they still can't tell what the ending is about. We're supposed to go back for re-takes to straighten it out."

Sport Snapshots

By WILLIAM NEVILLE

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques Plante, the colorful veteran who has done much to rehabilitate the art of goaltending, says it's time the National Hockey League enlarged that piece of real estate supposedly cancall his own.

He wants a much bigger goal crease to protect netminders from the regular "beatings" he says they typically suffer.

"They should make the crease larger and legislate strongly against players who go in there," the New York Ranger goalie said in an interview while in Montreal to watch the Stanley Cup finals.

"The crease is private property, about the only place a goalie has any margin of safety. At least he's supposed to be safe, but we're taking more and more of a beating every season and no one is getting penalized."

Plante, a perspicacious student of the finer points of hockey, made his comments after another veteran goalie, Toronto Maple Leafs' Johnny Bower, complained he wasn't safe any more in the crease.

Bower said opposing forwards were constantly charging into his domain in search of rebounds without drawing penalties. "It's time something was done about this," he added.

Plante's solution: The crease, now measuring eight feet by four, should be 10 by six, adding one foot on each side of the net and two in front.

GUMP DISAGREES

"This would give us plenty of working room and keep the forwards out where they belong," Plante said. "When pucks are loose in the crease we could do something about it. But the official's decision would be clear-cut—anyone invading that deep gets a penalty."

However, Lorne (Gump) Worsley, the goalie who came to Canadiens in the Plante trade, doesn't think much of the idea.

"We get hit enough now in the smaller crease," Worsley said. "With an enlarged one we'd have to move out farther and we'd get hit more."

Worsley agrees there's far too much traffic in the crease but he's not high on the chances of finding a solution—"The only way you'll keep some of those guys out of there is to build a fence."

Plante says the heavy traffic in the goal area is one factor in practically eliminating the 20-game goaltender.

"Part of the problem is the beating we are taking. The pace of the game itself almost forces many playing the full NHL schedule and forwards in the crease just add to the danger."

As the man who pioneered the face mask and the practice of a goalie going behind the net to stop pucks fired along the back boards, Plante would appear to have the prestige to make big changes.

However, before his idea could be turned into a rule it would have to be formally submitted to the NHL rules committee. Then if approved, it would be passed on to the board of governors for final decision.

New Soap Opera to Make Debut as Nighttime Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — "If you don't get the character right in a one - hour dramatic show, you've blown it forever," says Tom Donovan.

The big plus in working with actors in a serial is that you get another chance to make things right."

Donovan, producer - director with a string of more than 250 television and stage credits, is preparing a twice-weekly evening serial for CBS' daytime As the World Turns. This 10-year-old series remains the most popular daytime show in TV, with an audiences larger than those of some night-time programs.

The new soap opera, called Our Private World, will debut on CBS May 3, a Wednesday, with a second show the next Friday. Some of the problems involved handing one of the established characters of the old show on a new life. It is being accomplished by having Lisa, played by Eileen Fulton, leave As the World Turns for Nairobi, Oahlale, to start a new life with new friends in Chicago.

"All the others will stay in the day-time show," Donovan said, "but there may be visits back and forth within the plot lines of the two shows."

Jerry Lewis Has Another Hit With "The Disorderly Orderly"

"The Disorderly Orderly," Jerry Lewis' new starrer for Paramount release is now showing at the Belle Theatre.

The film is a wild and wacky comedy about a bungling hospital orderly who becomes hopelessly and hilariously enmeshed in a series of rib-tickling situations, each more preposterous than the other. Co-starring in this laugh-riot, which gently pokes fun at the medical profession, are such top names as Susan Oliver, Glenda Farrell and Everett Slone.

The hospital setting is a prime place for Jerry to run rampant—he does. Whether he's setting fire to a patient's beard, spilling thousands of pills over the hospital corridors or crashing a wheel-chaired patient into a whistling trees, the comedy is Lewis at his best.

As usual, Lewis has surrounded himself with able and popular performers, all of whom give top-notch performances. Susan Oliver, in making one of her rare comedy appearances, plays the role of a world weary hospital patient; Glenda Farrell, after many successful years of dramatic work, is back to comedy again with her portrayal of the hospital's chief doctor.

Everett Sloane, the distinguished dramatic actor, previously associated with Jerry Lewis in "The Patsy," has the role of a terrified hospital president. Also included in the cast are such able talents as Kathleen Freeman, Del Moore and Karen Sharp. For added fun there are cameo roles by Jack E. Leonard, Barbara Nichols and other leading personalities.

Of course, most of the story is Jerry Lewis, and "The Disorderly Orderly," just happens to be one of the best of all his very funny films. The rousing last scene in which Jerry goes into a wild, one-man ambulance and chases after the girl of his dreams, is a comedy classic. Directed by Frank Tashlin and produced by Paul Jones, "The Disorderly Orderly," in Technicolor, is a film that will be enjoyed by one and all.

Nip Angels in Tenth

Wagner's Twin Blasts Give Tribe Win

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Everything looks just fine to Leon Wagner, who is wearing contact lenses to improve his vision despite assurances from American League pitchers that there was nothing wrong with it in the first place.

The Cleveland slugger raced in on Los Angeles Angels Wednesday, unloading two home runs — the second one leading off the 10th inning—as the Indians pulled out a 6-5 victory.

The homers were his second and third of the young season and hiked his batting average to a hefty .366.

Rocky Colavito, returning to Cleveland after five years, treated the 44,385 fans — the largest opening day crowd in the majors this year — with a two-run homer.

Wagner broke up the game leading off against Ron Piche in the 10th after first the Angels and then the Indians rallied in the ninth. Cleveland was leading 4-3 on homers by Colavito and Wagner when Los Angeles pushed across three runs in the ninth for a 5-4 edge.

Cleveland tied it with a run in the bottom half and Piche balked the Angels out of a baserunner, one-out jam before serving the home run ball to Wagner in the 10th.

In other action, Detroit blanked Kansas City 1-0, Chicago topped Boston 3-1 in 11 innings, Minnesota ripped New York 7-2 and Baltimore nipped Washington 3-2 in 11 innings.

The White Sox and the Red Sox each pushed across a run in the first inning with sluggers Pete Ward of Montreal and Frank Malzone laying down bunts. Then Boston's Bill Monbouquette and Chicago's John Buzhardt chalked into the 10th before Moose Skowron's two-run homer broke it up.

Ward squeezed home Danny Cater with the first White Sox run and then the Chicago third baseman was caught napping by Malzone, whose drag bunt helped set up Boston's run.

Tony Oliva, Rich Rollins and Jimmie Hall each hit two-run homers as the Twins spoiled the Yankees' home opener. Camilo Pascual and Gerry Fomoe combined to pitch the eight-hitter with Mickey Mantle's 457th career homer producing both New York runs.

The Tigers managed only three hits but Don Demeter's two-out double in the fourth produced the game's only run as Hank Aguirre and Larry Sheery stifled Kansas City.

John Orsino's first home run of the year gave the Orioles their victory. Washington's Don Dimmer had tied it in the seventh with a pinch homer before Orsino's shot won it.

No Plans To Change Games Site

LAUSANNE Switzerland (AP) — Eric Jonas, secretary-general of the International Olympic Committee, said Wednesday planning for the 1968 Winter Olympics at Grenoble, France, is progressing satisfactorily and there is no present intention to find another site.

He was commenting on a statement by health Minister Judy LaMarsh that the games might be switched to Banff, Alta., because of IOC dissatisfaction with Grenoble's progress.

"The IOC received a detailed report from the Grenoble organizing committee last week and is completely satisfied," Jonas said.

The only issue which still might place the Grenoble games in doubt was the IOC demand for a French government pledge to grant entry visas to all qualified competitors, Jonas said.

This concerns particularly the East German team. France complies with an internal agreement of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to admit only those East Germans whose travel has been approved by the NATO permit office in West Berlin. Participants in sports events generally are not approved.

An East German team was barred from the 1962 world ski championships t Chamonix, France, for this reason.

Canada also is a NATO country.

Goderich Peewee Tournament

GODERICH, Ont. (CP)—The magic names of Howe caused some disappointment at the Young Canada Week hockey tournament Wednesday.

Many of the 1,200 fans at the peewee meet had come to see Mark and Marty Howe perform for the Detroit Recordalls and hoped for a glimpse of their father, Detroit Red Wings' Gordie Howe.

The Howes were away for an Easter holiday in Florida, but the fans still got to see another celebrated, name—Hull.

Steve Hull scored two goals to help a powerful Oakawa Alta Vista to a 7-3 win over Hamilton in the A-A series.

Crackers Setting Hot Pace

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

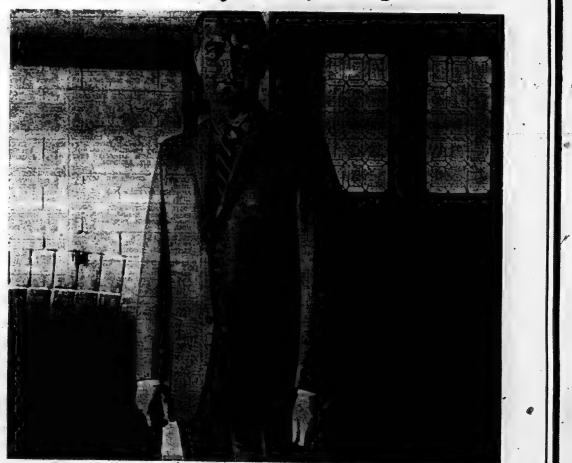
Atlanta Crackers' continued their hot early-season pace in the International League Wednesday night, picking up their sixth straight win with a 5-1 lacing of Syracuse Chiefs.

The victory—they haven't yet lost—leaves them 2½ games ahead of both Columbus Jets and Toronto Maple Leafs, who were rained out in Columbus.

Gene Stephens set the pace for the powerful Crackers, hammering out a pair of home runs, one a two-run shot, in four plate appearances, while Woody Woodward drove home the other runs with a fourth-inning double.

In other action, Buffalo Bisons blanked Toledo Mudhens 4-0 on southpaw Larry Miller's three-hitter while Rochester Red Wings scored early and held on for a 4-3 victory over Jacksonville Suns.

Buffalo collected 10 hits off three Toledo pitchers, but left 13 runners stranded.



In Jacksonville, the Red Wings did all their scoring in the fourth inning on a walk, a pair of singles and two doubles.
